Doubtless there are now comparatively few who will not agree that the suggested program if carried out will make for better communities and will help to keep in the rural districts many of the young people who are going to the cities and the industrial districts. There are those, however, who will insist that it cannot be done, and hence a beginning should not be attempted. But this is no day to talk of impossible tasks, and least of all for the Church to say a needed work cannot be done. Much of the work outlined is being done in all of the rural sections of the South, even though it does not come in much of our territory for some years. Will the Church throw away this chance of leadership in a work which promises better economic, social, moral and religious conditions, and give its place of leadership to other organizations? This the Church cannot afford to do, for its own interests as well as the larger interests of the people of all the rural districts demand that it give to this work its wiso leadership and its faithful service. My faith in the Church is that it will use this opportunity for the bringing in of a better day. If there are those interested in these plans of work in rural districts, in cities, and in industrial communities, I would suggest that they write to the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A., Southeastern Department, Atlanta, Ga.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE JOURNAL.

The attention of the editors of the Mississippi Conference Journal has just been called to an embarrassing blunder in the statistical tables of the Journal of the recent session of the Annual Conference. It seems that the reports are correct as far as the reproduction of the figures is concerned, but that by some unfortunate mistake, the statistical reports of certain charges have been interchanged, and that in one case the recapitulations of two of the Districts have been interchanged.

The pastor of the Chunkey and Meehan charge is greatly disappointed because the excellent report made by that charge last year has not been properly set forth. This is very much to be regretted. This editor need not say that there was no intention to withhold credit from any pastoral charge, and the matter is simply one of those mortifying mistakes that in spite of the greatest care sometimes mar the work of proofreaders. In his earlier experience with the Mississippi Conference Journal the present editor used to say that he aimed at perfection without expecting to attain it, but that whatever expectation of excellence he allowed himself to indulge was always effectually dissipated by the feeling of chagrin with which he discovered some egregious mistake only after it was too late to correct it. The editors, through the columns of the Advocate, apologize to the brethren of the Conference and express their regret that it is too late to correct the unfortunate blunders.

THE NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

By the consent of all concerned, it has been decided to hold the sessions of the New Orleans District Conference at First Church, New Orleans, instead of Carrollton Avenue, as previously announced. The first session will be held on Tuesday afternoon, April 1, at two o'clock. The first two hours of the session will be devoted to organization and necessary business matters, after which the Centenary Movement will be taken up, under the leadership of Rev. N. E. Joyner, Conference Secretary. Supper will be served in the church at 6:45, and the consideration of the Centenary cause will be continued at the evening session.

On Wednesday, other matters properly coming before the conference will be duly considered. Sunday schools, woman's work and Epworth Leagues will receive special attention. The conference will close with the Wednesday evening session.

It is earnestly hoped that all delegates will be in attendance from the first, and that as many others as possible will be present throughout the conference.

The women of the New Orleans District will hold their District Meeting at First Church at the same time the district conference is in session. They are making preparations for an inspiring program, and they are expecting a large attendance.

PLANS FOR "GREATER MERIDIAN COLLEGE."

After thirty-three years of strenuous work as college president, I find my nervous system giving way under the continuous strain that has been almost without a break. If I live out my allotted time of life, I must necessarily lighten my duties. In view of these facts I have sought the country over among the leading educators to find a suitable co-worker. I believe that I have found that man in Dr. Z. J. Edge, who has been for years a leading factor in such colleges as Shorter College and Cox College of Georgia and Hardin College of Missouri. He has always made a wonderful success financially and otherwise wherever he has gone, always building up the institution beyond what it has ever been. Dr. Edge is a Baptist minister, a good preacher, a devout Christian gentleman as well as a successful educator.

Having found a man that could continue the work that we have so successfully begun, and one that can enlarge and build on the foundation, and thus perpetuate my life's work, I have sold Meridian College to Dr. Edge, but will remain with him as his assitant in the capacity of associate president, taking lighter work than I had with all the responsibility.

The new management has large plans ahead. This summer the plan is to put hot and cold water in bedrooms and make other striking improvements. We are planning in the near future to erect another modern building with up-to-date equipment. "Greater Meridian College" is the slogan of the new management. Dr. Edge has the benefit of my years' experience connected with his skill, energy and successful record as a college man. There will be a division of labor, so the duties will not fall too heavily upon any one of us.

This is one of the most prosperous years the college has ever had in its history. We have a fine student body, a well to-do, cultured class of students that any college would well be proud of. Preparations are being made to take care of the increase that next year will bring under the new management and enlarged plans.

Rev. Dan Kelly, Conference evangelist, held a fine meeting in the fall, and Rev. J. L. Miller, of Nashville, Tenn., the general evangelist, will hold the spring revival beginning March 28. Let friends of the college pray for the revival and for the future of the college.

A YEAR'S WORK OF THE REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH.

March 31 is the end of the Conference year in the Baltimore Conference. The Representative Church at Washington, as is generally known, is within the bounds of the Baltimore Conference, so that its year's work is just about ending. A few facts in connection with its record during the past year will doubtless be of general interest throughout the connection.

If the Washington church is in reality "representative" so far as the past year's work is concerned, then great things indeed are taking place throughout Southern Methodism. When Dr. Clovis G. Chappell, of Texas and Tennessee, was assigned as pastor in the spring of 1918, he began at once to attract attention. He made his services all evangelistic, and within a few weeks he had received scores into the church. Members of long standing at Mount Vernon Place (the local name of the church) saw the evidences of rejuvenation, and laid plans for 200 new members in a year—which would break all records. Before the end of six months, the goal had been long passed, and 500 was set as the mark. Last Sunday night there was held a special welcome service for the new members who have been received during the year, and tickets entitling these new members to reserved seats were distributed. The number up to that service was 523, and eleven joined at that service, making a total of 534, with two more Sundays in the Conference year. Thirty-nine of these were received last Sunday morning, and these, with the eleven who joined that night, made a total of 50 for the day.

Since the new building has been occupied for services, beginning on September 22, there have been few preaching services in the church when it has not been necessary to utilize chairs in the aisles, and frequently scores leave because unable to secure seats. The past two Sundays have been quite inclement, but notwithstanding this fact, there have been no vacant seats. This situation prevails notwithstanding the fact that the building is not finished, and there are decided handicaps and discomforts incident to making use of it in its incomplete condition.

Thus it is seen that in the matter of attendance and increased membership, the Representative Church has been remarkably successful. When the year's work is considered from the lower, yet quite important, standpoint of finances, a similar situation is found. At the beginning of the year, an estimate of funds needed was prepared, which was larger than the local congregation had ever set down as its budget. Up to the present time, that amount has been received, and in addition an excess of more than 50 per cent. And this has been without extra effort on the part of the church officials—it has been the natural result of increased attendance and membership, which have been the natural result of the kind of preaching that has been furnished by Dr. Chappell.

Dr. Chappell is a wonderful preacher. Laying aside, to a considerable degree, pulpit conventionalities and ecclesiastical tones and affectations, he presents to his congregation an intensely human personality, and brings to them messages that burn with his earnestness and deep religious feeling. He believes in a liberal use of newspaper advertising, and in this way he attracts strangers by the hundred to his church. Once they are there, he enthralls them with his simple and sincere messages that everyone can understand and appreciate. Beyond all doubt, he is doing the most wonderful work of any minister of any denomination at the National Capital.

Scarcely could a more cordial wish be expressed to the other congregations of Southern Methodism than that the wonderful work that has been going on in our Representative Church at Washington during the past year is really representative of accomplishments throughout the connection.

SAVING THE RED HILL DAM.

"Let's fire our signal, so that Mr. Hill will know that we are here again," said Walter Lenox, turning to his companion, Lawrence Graham, who was standing at his side.

The two were standing on the right bank of the Fresh Water River, just above the Red Hill Diversion Dam, which supplied one of Arizona's most fertile valleys with irrigation water by means of long canals leading across the desert. On the opposite bank from which they stood was a small house, the home of Mr. Hill, who had charge of the dam.

"You might as well," replied Lawrence to his friend's question, "for, if the river continues to rise, he probably won't be able to cross to this side before long, as the water will overflow on the spillway."

Picking up the repeating shotgun which lay at his side, Walter fired three shots into the air; then, after a moment, two more. In a short time a man appeared through the door of the house on the opposite bank of the river. He hurried across on the spillway of the dam, which was yet a half-foot above the water being diverted into the great main canal.

"Well, boys, out hunting again?" he called as he approached the spot, on which the two boys were putting up their tent, preparatory for their night's encampment.

"How do you do, Mr. Hill?" cried Walter. "Yes, we came out for a week this time. School has been closed on account of the State fair being held, you know. Looks as if the water were rising some from last night's rain."

"I should say it is!" replied Mr. Hill. "I just received a report from the Government station above here that a two-foot wall of water was coming down the river. It will be a sight for you boys to see. I notice that you have your camp high and dry, so that you are in no danger. If there is anything you need you had better let me know, so that I can bring it over right away, for that water will be here in a half-hour or less, and it will be impossible to cross the river after that hits us."

The boys assured him that they were amply supplied with all that they needed. For a few minutes they discussed the hunting possibilities, and then Mr. Hill rose to go.

"I'll have to be going now," he said, "for that water will be here before long. Oh, by the way, you remember that Mexican, Carlos Montijo, I had working for me? I had some trouble with him yesterday, and had to discharge him. If you should see him over here I wish you'd keep your eyes on him, as he vowed he'd get revenge. Not that I pay much attention to that sort of thing, but it will do no harm to watch out."

A few minutes after he had crossed safely to the other side the boys heard a low, deep roar, for all the world like a great gale of wind, approaching them from up the river.

"The water's coming!" cried Lawrence, and both boys jumped up and rushed to a safe vantage point from which they could watch the approach of the flood.

It was but a few seconds before they saw it—a great, angry wall of muddy water, full of brush and the limbs and trunks of trees, bearing down upon the dam with the speed of an express train. With a reverberating roar that shook the ground beneath their feet the mighty wave struck the spillway of the dam and surged over, the trunks of great trees crashing and foaming down the torrent. With unabated force, though with a lessened roar, the flood of water rushed on, fully a foot and a half over the top of the dam's spillway.

"It'll keep that up all the rest of the day and all night," said Walter; "but the dam is strong enough to hold it. A lucky thing, too, for if it should give way the whole valley would be flooded and dozens of people drowned. There must have been a terrible cloudburst up in the mountains to cause the water to rise like that."

The next morning when they awoke they found that the flood had subsided until there were but a few inches of water running over the spillway. All over the top of the spillway and along its upper edge the brush and tree trunks washed down by the flood had formed a small barricade through which the water rustled.

"It'll take a gang of Mexicans to clear that brush away," said Lawrence, sweeping his eyes up the muddy river.

"Say, what's that?" he asked a moment later, pointing to something floating on the stream. "It looks like a small raft or something. Maybe it's some kid's toy submarine, as it seems to have a conning tower made out of a tin can on top."

Walter picked up a pair of field glasses and focused them on the object which was rapidly approaching on the current.

"That's funny," he said after a while; "it looks like a baking powder tin fastened to a dynamite can, and the whole thing is tied tightly to a little raft. I wonder what it can be!"

As he handed the glasses to Lawrence the little raft, struck by some cross current, veered around.

"Wait!" gasped Lawrence, as he put the glasses to his eyes," there is a burning time fuse hanging out of that baking powder tin! Do you suppose that Carlos—!"

Snatching the glasses from his hands, Walter gave a quick look. Sure enough, he could distinguish a piece of time fuse hanging from the baking powder tin, and a red spark half-way up its length!

"What can we do?" he cried. "That raft will just swing down into that brush and stuff that has accumulated on the spillway, and hang there until the thing goes off! And then—we've got to do something, Larry!"

Suddenly, just before the tiny craft came almost abreast of them, he rushed to their improvised gun-rack in the fork of a tree, and seized his automatic rifle. Throwing it to his shoulder he took careful aim and pressed his finger hard against the trigger. A stream of lead crashed from the mouth of the gun straight into the dynamite can. And then, suddenly, it seemed as if a great hole appeared in the water while a deafening crash echoed and re-echoed from shore to shore. The flotsam which had accumulated on the spillway, loosened by the terrific jar, plunged over and on down the river. Then, except for the steady roar of the river, all was silent again.

Though they immediately patrolled the bank for several miles they could find no trace of Carlos, although they were sure that he had been the author of the crime. It was not until next day that Mr. Hill was able to cross the river to give them his hearty thanks for what they had done. He told them that Carlos had been captured on the opposite bank by a cowboy just after he had launched the deadly raft.

"I certainly appreciate what you have done," said Mr. Hill, "and I think that the city of Aqua Frio will appreciate it just as much when they learn what you have done." And, as subsequent events proved, Aqua Frio did appreciate it.—Joseph Thalheimer, Jr., in The Epworth Herald.

HOLINESS.

Constantly look up. Be on the watch for chances to rise, like a bird let loose, though but for a moment, into the upper air. Such is the nature of holiness. Being from God, it is ever seeking to revert to its source. The heavier the pressure of a mundane life upon it, the stronger is the force of its compressed aspirations. Such pressure is like that of the atmosphere on water, which seeks, through crevices in its enclosure, the level of its fountain. A spirit like this will demand the habit of fragmentary prayer for its own holy indulgence; and will demand it with an importunity proportioned to the superincumbent weight of earthly cares.—Austin Phelps.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should he directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will he paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

EXTRA COPIES—CENTENARY NUMBER.

As we announced last week, it is our purpose to issue at an early date a special Centenary number of the Advocate. It is our purpose to make this special number as interesting as possible and as helpful to the Centenary cause as may be. We are of the opinion that a wide circulation of this special number will materially assist our pastors in arousing the proper Centenary spirit among their people. In order to bring this about, we make the following proposition: We will send ten or more extra copies in one bundle to one address at the rate of 3 cents a copy, provided remittance be made by money order, cash, or stamps. If check is sent, 10c will be deducted for exchange. If single copies are ordered to separate addresses, the price will be 5 cents a copy. In order that advantage may be taken of this offer, it is necessary that orders be sent us at once. We shall have to know in advance how many extra copies to print that we may have a sufficient number to meet the demand. Unless orders are placed in advance, we cannot guarantee that they will be filled. It is very important, therefore, that all who want extra copies of the special Centenary number send in their orders at once.

THE VICTORY LOAN AND THE CENTENARY.

As has been previously announced, the date of the Centenary "Big Drive" has been changed to May 18-25 in order to avoid conflict in any way with the Victory Loan of the Government, which is scheduled for the period embracing April 21-May 10. Some inconvenience may result to the Centenary campaign organization on account of the postponement, but, as we suggested in last week's Advocate, a real advantage is likely to be gained by the Centenary cause on account of the additional time available for perfecting the details of the plans of the "Drive."

We trust that nobody will feel that an unjust hardship has been imposed upon the Church by the postponement of its plans for the sake of the Victory Loan. Pure patriotism admitted of no other step. The Government is carrying heavy financial burdens as a result of the war, which must be provided for, and it has adopted the most feasible plan for meeting its needs—that of offering to the people its own bonds in denominations and on terms that make it possible for even the humblest citizen to have a part in clinching the great victory won by the war. We cannot conceive how any patriotic American can feel that he is not under obligation to help carry the financial burden of his country. The fact that the war is over, does not, in any sense, relieve us of the responsibility of supporting the Government in its program by investing in its securities. The emotional appeal to invest our funds in the Victory Bonds may not be as strong as the appeal to buy Liberty Bonds was, when our men were facing death on the battle field; but the practical appeal is just as strong. It is still our duty to buy these bonds to the extent of our ability.

And we can perform this duty without lessening our contributions to the Centenary cause. In fact, doing the one will help us to do the other: we can buy the bonds of the Victory Loan, and thus support the Government, and then we can give the bonds to the Centenary cause, and thus serve the Church. In answer to the objection that may arise in the minds of some, that the gift of the bonds to the Centenary would necessitate their being put on the market, thus weakening the financial position of the Government, we may say that much of the money obtained in the Centenary "Drive" will be put into more or less permanent investment, anyway, and the bonds that would have to be disposed of would be marketed in such way as not to interfere with the ordinary course of financial credits.

Hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Let us buy Victory Bonds to the limit of our ability, first; then let us contribute in the same proportion to the Centenary cause. By doing so, we do our duty as citizens and as Christians.

CAN WE GIVE IT?

The eyes of the world seem to be turning to America, in these days of turmoil, for leadership, especially in spiritual things. The reports that come to us from abroad are to the effect that anything American is looked upon with favor, merely because it is from America. Representatives of Church and benevolent movements who have gone to Europe have been overwhelmed by the enthusiasm with which they and their messages have been received.

We must understand, of course, that this attitude is due largely to the material help America has given to the European people during and since the great war. Our treasures of munitions and supplies were poured forth at a time and in a measure that confirmed the feeling that America is a country of boundless resources.

But America is looked upon as a country of ideals; and our manifestly unselfish course in the part we have taken in the war has convinced our friends across the sea that we are able and willing to minister to them in the things that feed not only the body, but also the soul. And they are appealing to us with outstretched hands to give them the food that perisheth not. They seem to have put their trust largely in us as administrators of the bounty of Heaven.

This attitude on their part is flattering to us as a people, and it ought to bring forth a response that will more than justify their high expectations. But before we become exalted in our own opinion, we need to ask ourselves some very serious questions. Are we prepared to give them the help in a moral and spiritual forward movement that they seem confidently to be expecting us to give? Are our own spiritual resources sufficient to meet the requirements that they are making of us? Is our idealism of the type that we can carry to them with the assurance that it will ennoble and strengthen them for the arduous tasks that lie ahead of them in the reconstruction of their own upturned social and moral order? Are we, in other words, what they have assumed we are in their appeals for our help?

We ourselves have great confidence in the substantial morality and lofty idealism of the American people. But we confess to a feeling sometimes that we may be thought of as better than we really are. "Distance lends enchantment to the view," may be as true a saying in the matter of character as of a landscape. We are facing an opportunity such as has been given no other people in the history of the world. If we meet it fully, we shall have vindicated the view that we are a providential people. But if we find ourselves unequal to the task that manifestly has been assigned us, history will record no more monumental failure than we shall make in the performance of a divinely ordained mission. We need to strengthen our own hold upon the eternal verities and clarify our own vision of the ways of Providence, that we may be able to furnish the leadership for which the nations of the world are looking to us to-day.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. N. Ware, of Walnut Grove, Miss., is meeting with encouraging success in his work.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Cockrum, Miss., finds the outlook on his charge most encouraging for the year.

Rev. M. W. Porter, of Blodgett, Miss., is meeting with success in his work on his present charge.

Rev. Thomas Mills, of Wilson, La., is performing his duties faithfully, and receiving members into the Church.

Rev. A. H. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference, is serving this year the Belcher charge. He labors among an appreciative people.

Rev. J. H. Jolly, of Heidelberg, Miss., is enjoying his work with the fine people of that charge. He reports progress in his work.

The Advocate has been going to the Farrar home, in Kingston, Miss., since 1854. Mrs. Martha J. Farrar, the sole surviving member of the family, still reads it regularly.

Rev. Alonzo Early, the efficient Sunday school field secretary of the Louisiana Conference, will spend several days in New Orleans, this week and next, in the interest of his work.

The good ladies of the Horn Lake charge, North Mississippi Conference, have recently expended about $200 in furnishing the parsonage. Rev. Geo. A. Baker is the diligent pastor.

Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Lewis, of Prentiss, Miss., are happy over the arrival in their home of a fine ten-pound boy, on March 21. He has been named Edwin Henry. We extend congratulations.

Rev. John W. Ramsey, of the Daleville charge, Mississippi Conference, writes that he is getting ready for the great Centenary drive, and that he is hopeful of exceeding the quota assigned his charge.

A subscriber on the Bayou La Chute charge, Brother Mercer, has been reading the Advocate for more than fifty years. He is another member of the "Old Guard." Rev. Sidney A. Seegers is his pastor.

Forty copies of the Advocate go regularly to the Harrisville charge, Mississippi Conference, and the pastor, Rev. C. H. Ellis, writes that he expects to send more subscriptions. His motto is, "The Advocate in every home on the charge."

We learn from the Vicksburg Herald that Rev. H. P. Lewis, the oldest member of the Mississippi Conference, is seriously ill at his home in Jackson, Miss. The prayers of many will ascend in behalf of this faithful and devoted servant of the Church.

Rev. J. E. Selfe, of Covington, La., is having a successful pastorate in his difficult but promising field. He received ten members into the Church last Sunday, making twenty-four since Conference. Brother Selfe is a hard worker, and he serves an appreciative people.

Rev. M. A. Massey, of the Fannin charge, Mississippi Conference, has already exceeded his allotment in the Advocate campaign for subscriptions, and he writes that he is not yet through. He serves a fine people and he is expecting this to be a great year in his ministry.

Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., of Bonita, La., has already ordered 100 copies of the Centenary number of the Advocate, to be sent to him when issued. Doubtless many other preachers will wish extra copies. See the announcement concerning this matter in another column.

Rev. A. S. Oliver, of the Eden charge, Mississippi Conference, recently closed a revival meeting of eleven days' duration in which he was assisted by Rev. B. F. Lewis, Rev. B. W. Lewis, and Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr. There were nineteen additions to the Church on profession of faith.

Our church at Columbia, Miss., is thoroughly progressive. Arrangements have been made to put a pipe organ in the beautiful church building that was dedicated last summer by Bishop Kilgo. The necessary amount of money has already been secured. Rev. W. M. Sullivan is the pastor.

We regret to learn that Mrs. A. B. Barry, the wife of our pastor at South and East McComb, Miss., has recently had to undergo a serious surgical operation. We are glad to know, however, that she has been able to return to her home from the hospital and that her condition is improving.

The McDonoghville charge, Louisiana Conference, under the leadership of Rev. S. D. Roberts, has maintained a good record thus far. All assessments, including those for the benevolent causes, are paid in full to date, and there is satisfactory progress in other departments of the work.

The town of Homer, La., is passing through the excitement and more or less unsettled conditions attendant upon the discovery of oil in any place. We may depend upon our faithful pastor, Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., to conserve as far as possible the spiritual life of the community under these trying circumstances.

A telegram to his parents from H. Wynn Rickey announces his safe arrival at New York from France on the steamer "Louisville," on March 22. He will be at Camp Merritt, N. J., until discharged from military service. He has made a fine record overseas. His father, Rev. H. W. Rickey, is our efficient pastor at Lafayette, La.

According to information received by us, the figures for Sunday, March 23, in the Sunday school attendance contest now being carried on in Louisiana, are as follows: Noel Memorial, 421; Lake Charles, 410; Ruston, 403; Mansfield, 270; Monroe, 261. Alexandria and Baton Rouge are expected to enter the contest next Sunday.

Brother W. J. Beasley, of Woodland, Miss., has been a reader of the Advocate since his boyhood days, and he is now more than three-score and ten years of age. He has lived within the bounds of the Montpelier charge about 66 years, and has been a steward for 42 years, 24 of them as a recording steward. He still finds much to interest him in the pages of the Advocate.

We acknowledge receipt of a copy of the "Style Sheet" of the Department of Journalism of Louisiana State University. We are inclined to believe that a part of the required English course in every college should be a study of the accepted usage of reputable journals in composition and style. We especially recommend such a course for those who are preparing for the ministry.

The Bulletin of the J. S. Noel, Jr., Memorial Methodist Church, of Shreveport, La., is an attractive folder which is used not only to give the announcements of the weekly services, but also to bring to the attention of the membership of the church the vital matters of Methodism. Rev. W. Winans Drake is the pastor of this rapidly growing church.

We acknowledge receipt of the souvenir program of the fortieth anniversary of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, West Springfield, Mass., of which Rev. Wm. B. Van Valkenburgh is pastor. The anniversary celebration extended throughout the week, March 23-30. Several notable leaders of the M. E. Church had places on the program.

There has been organized at Houma, La., an interdenominational young peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor, bringing together many of the young people of the three Protestant churches in that town in a way that could not be accomplished by a purely denominational organization. Houma, it will be remembered, is the center of our French mission work.

The Centenary program is rapidly forging to the front in Louisiana. All the preachers and many of the laymen are talking and planning and praying for the Centenary, and are getting ready for the "Big Drive," May 18-25. The State Campaign Director, F. E. Gunter, is enthusiastic over the outook, and he predicts a great record when the "Drive" takes place.

Rev. A. C. McCorkle, of Durant, Miss., is a busy and successful pastor. During February and March, he has succeeded in paying off the total indebtedness of the church, amounting to $2000, and, in addition, he has raised all his benevolent collections in cash—something unusual for any congregation so early in the year. Brother McCorkle has also been unusually diligent in pastoral visiting.

Mr. W. P. Gaines, a steward of our church at Rayville, La., of which Rev. I. T. Reames is pastor, has recently been in New Orleans for medical treatment at Touro Infirmary. He reports that considerable improvement has been made in the appearance of the Rayville church by a fresh coat of paint, for which the community is indebted to Mr. E. E. Stodghill, a loyal Methodist who is superintendent of the Sunday school, and who has a brother in the Tennessee Conference.

The Baton Rouge District of the Louisiana Conference has completed its Centenary organization to the last church in the district. The pastors and laymen are co-operating heartily with the presiding elder, Rev. H. W. May, and the district campaign director, W. S. Holmes. An enthusiastic council meeting was held at Baton Rouge on March 21. The following district councils are yet to be held: Lafayette, at Crowley, March 26; Shreveport, at First Church, Shreveport, March 28; Alexandria, at Alexandria, April 3; Ruston, at Minden, April 4.

A note from Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, the presiding elder, informs us that the Winona District is going forward in many encouraging ways. Nearly all the laymen have enlisted in the forward movement of pushing up the pastors' salaries to meet the need of these trying times. Winona has increased the salary $400, Itta Bena $300, Belzoni $300, Indianola $300, Greenwood $200, Tutwiler $400, Lambert $400, Ruleville $200, Drew $750, and the good work is still going on. The pastors and the people are awaking to the great Centenary Movement, and the vision of it and its purposes are becoming clearer every day.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

It has been announced that Dr. F. N. Parker will preach the commencement sermon of Athens College, Athens, Ala., on May 25, and that Dr. A. F. Watkins will deliver the baccalaureate address on May 27.

Bishop J. W. Bashford, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died in Los Angeles, Cal., on March 18, at the age of sixty-nine. Nearly all of his episcopal service was given to China, where he did a great work.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has announced that Vanderbilt University has been added to its list of associated universities. This item is of interest in the light of what has been.

We learn from the Central Methodist that Mrs. H. C. Morrison, the wife of Bishop Morrison, received a fall more than a week ago by which she was seriously injured. The Church will join her devoted husband in prayer for her recovery.

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, will become a member of the staff of the Bible Teachers' School, of New York, next October. Professor T. R. Glover, of St. John's College, Cambridge, will also participate in the work of the School during July and August.

The American Sunday School Union is offering three prizes of one thousand, six hundred, and four hundred dollars for manuscripts on subjects in connection with its work. Full details of the offer may be secured by writing to the Union's headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa.

Bishop U. V. W. Darlington will preach the Emory College commencement sermon this year in Oxford, Ga., on June 8. This commencement will mark the close of the work of this historic school in Oxford, since it will be removed to Atlanta next fall as the School of Liberal Arts of Emory University.

Dr. F. N. Parker furnishes the sermon for "The Pulpit" of the Christian Advocate (New York) of March 6. The subject of the sermon is, "The Light of God," and the text is I John 1:5, 6. A good picture of Dr. Parker, and a short biographical sketch precede the sermon.

A recent analysis of the facts in connection with the adoption of the prohibition amendment shows that the forty-four States adopting it contain over ninety million people, or more than eighty per cent of the whole. Five times as many votes were cast for the amendment as against it. In six States there was not a dissenting vote, and at least five of these States had already given State-wide and hone-dry prohibition a test in their own territory before prescribing it for others.

Freckles
There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.
Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Mrs. AMERICA JOSEPHINE McHAFFEY was born on November 27, 1845, and departed this life on Feb. 22, 1919, at the ripe age of seventy-two years. She professed religion in early childhood, united with the M. E. Church, South, and lived a devout Christian for more than a half century. On January 2, 1868, she was happily married to Isaac Newton McHaffey, who left her for regions beyond in 1890. Six children were born to this union, five of whom, four daughters and one son, are left to mourn her going away. She was a devoted mother, an affectionate wife, a loyal friend and a happy Christian. Throughout her long life she was untiring in her devotion to her loved ones, unceasing in helpful deeds and kind words to others and unwearying in her services to her church and for her Savior, whom she loved with all her being. She was laid to rest from her late home in Booneville, Miss., by her pastor, Rev. J. D. Boggs. She has gone to abide in her "Eternal Home." There her loved ones may find her.

J. D. BOGGS.

On Thursday morning, January 23, 1919, Mrs. CHARLEY LIGHTSEY departed this life at the home of her father-in-law, Mr. Lewis Lightsey, near Paulding, Miss. Mrs. Lightsey was a devout Christian, a loving companion and a kind mother. She leaves her husband, three children, father, two brothers and a sister to mourn her departure. She was a faithful member of the Baptist Church, and loved its services, and did many deeds of kindness for humanity. To know her was to love her. There was seemingly no selfishness in her life, but her whole soul was centered in the happiness of others. But just as the baby girl had begun to lisp her name, the All-Wise Father called her home. God's ways are not our ways; we can only trust him and say, He doeth all things well! CLARA FOLEY.

Paulding, Miss.

Mrs. SALLIE TARPLEY, nee Deason, was born on November 30, 1851, in Henry County, Georgia. She was married to W. M. Tarpley on May 16, 1869. She died in Claiborne Parish, Louisiana, on February 10, 1919. To this union were born five children. She became a Christian early in life and joined the Methodist Church. She was a devoted wife and a sweet, loving mother. Although she was an invalid for many years, she bore it all with patience. Yes, mother is gone, but we know where to find her; we will meet her some day in the sweet by and by. She was laid to rest in Mill Creek cemetery, by the side of her baby child. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, Mr. W. M. Tarpey, and four children, Mrs. A. E. King, Ashland, La.; Mrs. Mollie Dickson, Hot Springs, Ark.; Mrs. Ida Moncrief, Hico, La.; Mrs. J. A. Wafer, Coushatta, La., besides a host of relatives and friends. HER CHILD.

Entered into rest, from her home near Raymond, Miss., on January 16, 1919, Mrs. BESSIE COLLINS BUSH, wife of Robert Bush. She leaves a devoted husband, a mother, Mrs. J. R. Purvis, of Learned, Miss.; a brother, Mr. Edington Collins, and three sisters, Mrs. Leonard Kruidenier, Miss Dixie Field Collins, Miss Elizabeth Purvis. After a few months of married life, this young woman was taken with influenza, followed by pneumonia, and God called her to a "home not made with hands." Having realized that the end was near, she had no regrets save that of leaving her loved ones. Although she had not reached the age of twenty, she had won the distinction of being a devoted and consistent Christian. She united with the Church at an early age and served as organist for a number of years. She had a cheerful and happy disposition, with ever a smile and ready word for all, which made many friends for her. The funeral was held in the Methodist Church at Learned, Miss., and the body was laid to rest in the Morrison cemetery. May the Lord help his servants to say, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

A FRIEND.

Learned, Miss., March 12.

RESOLUTIONS.

The committee appointed by Mrs. J. C. Williamson, President of the Methodist Missionary Society, Pleasant Hill, Mississippi, submit with saddened hearts the following resolution in regard to the passing out from our midst of our readily beloved Secretary and friend, Mrs. Floy Black Williamson:

Whereas, Mrs. Williamson was one of our most faithful and interested members, and we wish to bear witness of the helpfulness of her presence whenever it was possible for her to attend; and whereas, she was a long-time member of our Church, and a Sunday school teacher, and that she spent her last hours bidding a loving farewell to her husband and family, assuring them that the way was bright, and her hope in Christ firm; and whereas, to her family she was a counselor, guide and friend, ever considering them worthy of her devotion and highest service; therefore be it

Resolved, That we send this expression of our appreciation of her worth and our great loss to her beloved husband and family, with whom we sympathize most tenderly.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband and mother, a copy spread on the minutes of the Missionary Society, and a copy be sent to the New Orleans Advocate.

Signed: Mrs. J. S. Slaughter, Mrs. M. G. Robinson, Committee.

RESOLUTIONS.

Adopted by the Epworth League of Deerford Church, Deerford, La.

Whereas, the Hand of God reached out so quietly and quickly and removed our dear friends, Arthur and Ella Browning from their places among us.

Be it resolved, That the League has lost two good and earnest helpers, having lived in our midst and gained warm places in our hearts and lives.

Be it also resolved, That the united Sunday schools of this vicinity have lost two most promising and faithful pupils, vacancies that cannot be filled in our classes.

Be it further resolved, That our deepest sympathy and remembrance in prayer be extended to their father, also their foster-parents. That a copy of this be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed:

DEERFORD EPWORTH LEAGUE.

HATCHED 175 CHICKS.

G. W. Miller of Pittsburg, Okla., writes: "I used Reefer's Ready Relief and out of 175 chicks hatched didn't lose one." Mrs. T. E. Murphy, of Hughesville, Mo., writes: "Have been using Ready Relief for White Diarrhoea and only lost one chick out of 140."

You can do as well. Reefer's Ready Relief in your baby chick's first drinking water will save them from dying off with that dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. This remedy is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 9253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will save 500 baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth five for a cent? You take no risk. Mr Reefer will refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver, at least write today for Mr. Reefer's free valuable poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibly you have imagined that you could not get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Springs are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water that those who have been relieved of their rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisoning matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of Stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefitted. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr Rhodes, of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The Water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McCann of South Carolina writes. "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offered below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the

Shivar Spring,

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

80 YEARS AGO

Mr. Edward Goodenough, of Goodenough and Woglam Sunday School Supply House, secured a remarkable formula for a skin ointment, which he sold privately for a half century by personal recommendation, making up the preparation at his home. So remarkably efficient did it prove for all skin troubles that Mr. Goodenough received large numbers of the most enthusiastic commendations from his customers. His grandson, Mr. F. E. Kirby, as vice-president of The Morgan Drug Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., is still active in the production of this ointment under the name so widely and well known to grateful users as Palmer's "Skin-Success." Mr. Kirby is as enthusiastic as his grandfather over its merits and declares that it is the best preparation of its kind on the market or known to the medical profession for freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema and other skin troubles. SHE SAVED 200 CHICKS.

Mrs. G. Hancock, Sturgis, Ky., writes: "I hatched 200 chicks and didn't lose a single one with White Diarrhoea. I give Ready Relief the praise." Mrs H. L. Sutton, of Ramona, Kas., writes: "My chicks were dying 20 and 30 a day. I got two packages of Ready Relief and now I don't lose any."

You can get the same wonderful results. Reefer's Ready Relief put in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. This remedy is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 6253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will certainly help you save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? You take no risk. Mr. Reefer will refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a cent? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver at least write today for Mr. Reefer's valuable free poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

NOW RAISES 600 CHICKENS

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me.

"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTERS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters.

Women everywhere in Mrs. Alters' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

Rid of the Torment of Rheumatism

"Send me Foley Kidney Pills. I am badly done up with rheumatism and they are the only thing that help me." A. J. Walsh, Sneeds, Colo.

Rheumatism is stubborn as a mule—it hangs on like a leech—wears out your strength—worries you with pain—drags on your vitality—depresses your mind—affects your health!

Don't let it hang on you! Don't give up to it! Don't overlook Foley Kidney Pills! For they work directly on the kidneys—tone up and strengthen them to the perfect action that keeps uric acid out of the blood, and clears away the cause of rheumatism, lumbago and stiff, swollen, aching joints. Begin now, today, and soon you will again be active and free from pain. Mr. Walsh winds up his letter to us by saying: "I consider Foley Kidney Pills the best I have ever used, and I have tried several different remedies." Your druggist sells them.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Here is what a superintendent writes: "Blame it on the Sunday school superintendent in any isolated case where a Sunday school fails to assume its five-cent allotment. Students are willing, even eager."

Here is what another says: "The Missionary program was the best part of the services last Sunday."

The Sunday school is to furnish the missionaries, superintendents, preachers, teachers, leaders of every kind for the Church in the next generation. What kind are we going to furnish the future?

The following schools have accepted the five-cent allotment and have signed the card and sent it in to J. L. Neill: Okolona, Shannon, Pontotoc, Merigold, Church Grove, Cockrum, Sardis, Byhalia, Greenwood, Dublin, Rome, Vaiden, and West. Louisiana Conference has enrolled 43, Mississippi Conference has enrolled 29, and North Mississippi Conference has enrolled 16. We will have to speed up if we ever get anywhere. The devil would like for us to put off enrolling for at least one more month and then one more. Every day we delay we are playing into his hands. Look for your name next week.

STORIES FOR BEGINNERS.

We give herewith a fine selection of stories suitable for telling to children of about four or five years of age. This list was made up for us by Mrs. Isaac Sewell, of Nashville, Tenn., who has had much experience in story-telling, and she not only gives us a list of stories but tells us where the stories are to be found and by whom they were written. The books may, many of them, be found in the public libraries, and any of them can be purchased of our Publishing House:

"The Stars," by Richards, in "Golden Windows."

"Five in One Shell," by Coe, in "First Book of Stories."

"The Roll of Bread," by Maud Lindsey, in "The Story Garden."

"The Visit," by Lindsey, in "More Mother Stories."

"How Patty Gave Thanks," by Poulsson, in "In the Child World."

"The Candles," in "Andersen's Fairy Tales."

"Our Daily Bread," by Wiltse, in "Kindergarten Stories and Morning Talks."

"Piccola," by Wiggin and Smith, in "The Story Hour."

"The Little Fir Tree," by Sara Cone Bryant, in "Stories to Tell Children."

"The First Christmas Present," by Wiltse, in "Kindergarten Stories and Morning Talks."

"Santa Claus," by Lindsey, in "The Story Garden."

"Out of the Nest," "The Little Shepherd," and "Dumpy the Pony," by Lindsey, in "More Mother Stories."

"The Three Rabbits," by Danielson, in "Little Animal Tales."

"How Christmas Came to Bertie's House," by Bakewell.

"The Darning Needle," "The Buckwheat," "The Teapot," and "The Top and the Ball," in "Andersen's Fairy Tales."

"The Proud Little Rooster" and "The Proud Little Hen," by Danielson, in "Little Animal Stories."

"The Apple Dumpling," by Lindsey, in "The Story Teller."

"Tom, the Chimney Sweep," by Kingsley, in "Water Babies."

"The Little Half-Chick," by Bryant, in "Stories to Tell Children."

"Mouffou," by Wiggin and Smith, in "The Story Hour."

"The Cooky," by Richards, in "Golden Windows."

"Prince Harweda," by Harrison, in "In Story Land."

"The Woodpecker," by Edna Lyman, in "Story Telling."

"The Boy Who Forgot to Wash His Face" and "Rodney's White Gloves," by Danielson, in "Story Telling Time."

"The Boy Who Recommended Himself," by Sneath, in "The Golden Ladder Book."

I suggest that teachers and parents cut this list out and preserve it for future use. It will be followed later with lists suitable for older children.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"Teachin' Scripter's one thing—teachin' folks is another. Which be you puttin' fust—book or boy?"

"Good habits is fine things to have; but if we grow we must change 'em. Th' only pusson who don't have to change his habits once in awhile is a dead one."

"If a workman makes a mistake in buildin' a house he can tear out his mistake an' do the work over again; but if a teacher makes a mistake in helpin' a child build a character it's mighty hard to tear the mistake out. Better be sure to teach right in th' fust place."

"It's terrible hard to make young folks see the beauty of holiness in a meetin' house that has some of its winder-panes knocked out, a smokin' stove, a leakin' roof, uncomfort'ble benches, an' lamps that give off a loud olly smell at night."

NEWS NOTES FROM OUR SUNDAY SCHOOL HEADQUARTERS.

A CENTURY OF SERVICE.

In 1820 a good old-fashioned doctor in North Carolina prepared an ointment for skin eruptions. It met the needs of his patients, and has likewise met the needs of millions of other doctors' patients. Gray's Ointment, the compound he prepared, is now rounding its hundredth year of honest, good old-fashioned service and value. It is very effective for sores, boils, cuts, bruises, burns, stings, eczema and the many similar forms of skin eruption. It soothes the pain, cleanses the wound, kills the germs and begins healing. If your druggist can not supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you.—Adv.

FROM WINNSBORO, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: On account of the influenza, excessive rains and bad roads, the work on the Winnsboro charge has been hindered very much. Rev. A. S. Lutz, P. E., came and held our first quarterly conference on February 26, and preached a very interesting sermon on the Centenary Movement. We had a very interesting and harmonious quarterly conference.

On March 5, I buried Brother J. R. Amos, one of the leading members of the Crowville church, in the presence of several hundred people. I was unable to attend the District Group Meeting at Monroe on the same day, on account of the funeral. I am doing my best to get my people interested in the Centenary Movement.

TELLS WHY CHICKS DIE.

E. J. Reefer, America's foremost poultry expert, 4253 Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free his valuable chicken book just off the press entitled "White Diarrhoea and how to Cure It." This book tells how to prepare a simple home solution that will cure this terrible disease overnight and will actually save 90 per cent of every hatch. This book is worth $1 of any poultry raiser's money, but Mr. Reefer is sending it absolutely free as long as the present edition lasts.

RAISED ENTIRE INCUBATOR HATCH.

Mrs. Dan Holycross, Silverwood, Ind., writes: "Reefer's Ready Relief is all it is said to be. I have not lost one of my last incubator hatch and they are now four weeks old." And G. W. Miller, of Pittsburg, Okla., writes: "Hatched 175 chicks and haven't lost one."

You can have the same success. Ready Relief in your baby chicks' first drinking water will save them from dying off with that dreadful plague, White Diarrhoea. Reefer's Ready Relief is the invention of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 5253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will positively help save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? You take no risk. Mr. Reefer will refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied, and a million dollar bank guarantees he will do it. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a penny? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. If you don't want to try this bank-guaranteed chick saver at least write today for Mr. Reefer's free valuable poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

In Peptiron, to the Last Particle of the Medicine.

The new and real iron tonic, Peptiron, is prepared in the convenient form of chocolate-coated pills, easy to take, easy to carry about with you; no water, no alcohol, no opiate.

Peptiron is the essence of economy, the acme of efficiency. It is readily assimilated, acts promptly and powerfully upon the blood and nerves, corrects all run-down conditions, creates an appetite, gives stomach comfort and healthful digestion. It wards off impending illness, bridges over the danger spots, and increases power of resisting disease.

Do not put off treatment in these so perilous to health, but get Peptiron and begin to take it today, two after each meal.

You'll not regret being particular to get Peptiron, and no other. Like many others, you will be surprised at its promptness in building you up.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Adv.

SHREVEPORT METHODISM.

Being a citzen of Shreveport, having resided within the city the past year, and since this is to be my future home, where, in the providence of God, after twenty and more years in the active ministry, my lot has been cast, I wish to make a few preliminary observations relative to the status of Methodism, and say a few deserving things about the brethren.

Let me speak of first things first. Our First Church is not a whit behind the leading churches of our Methodism, and Dr. Sexton, the pastor, has in late years developed into one of our strongest men. He is preaching to some of the largest audiences ever assembled in our First Church. He is pre-eminently a leader of men and has gathered about him the strongest group of business men in the city. He has a wonderful sway over the men of Shreveport. His church has unlimited resources.

Our Noel Church, under the leadership of Rev. W. W. Drake, has made wonderful progress. He has a perfect command of that situation, and Noel now takes its place among those larger churches that are doing things. He has pre-eminently met the situation there and given assurance of its future ability to do things. Brother Drake possesses two qualities that few pastors can claim—that is, he is a profound preacher and fine pastor.

In connection with Dr. Drake's work, I must speak of the Centenary College—he has been closely identified with it all the years of his ministry here. But at this particular time, I want to speak of a man who is worthy to be elected a bishop in the Church. He is worthy and well prepared, and the Church will find it out. The work of Dr. Wynn in Centenary will last throughout the years, to come.

Texas Avenue and Queensboro both have strong men—men that have ability to do things—and these churches recognize their leaders. Their churches are prosperous and the future is hopeful.

The Cedar Grove Church has a splendid young man to lead them. Full of fire and energy, he has entered upon his work and he will make good.

Last, but not least, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, who was returned for the fourth year, has already made good on the district. He is a fine business man, has a consecrated brain and heart, loves Methodism and is one of the hardest workers I have ever known anywhere. The Shreveport District has become, under his leadership, one of the strongest in Methodism, and the end is not yet. I have not written the above to flatter any man or men; but I love the Church and I love the brethren, in sincerity.

JOHN L. WILLIAMS.

A GREAT DAY FOR DURANT STATION.

Sunday, March 2, is a memorable day in the history of the Methodist Church in Durant. On that morning, at the opening of the eleven o'clock service, one of the stewards, Mr. G. B. Ramsey, made a very strong appeal to the church in regard to the amount due on the building of the beautiful edifice, which is the pride of the Methodist people of Durant. Mr. Ramsey stated that the balance due of the indebtedness ($2000) that was not provided for was $200. At the conclusion of this statement, Mrs. Minnie Hamilton Hoyt, of Pasadena, California, arose and said it was her pleasure to give a check for the amount desired, in memory of her sainted father, Col. J. G. Hamilton, whose body was brought back from Pueblo, Colo., on February 19, and lay in state in this church that he loved so well, and where every expression of love and appreciation was shown in many ways, especially in the beautiful floral offering and large attendance at his funeral.

As an expression of gratitude, the entire church rose in a body to thank Mrs. Hoyt for her splendid generosity. All indebtedness wiped out, the members of the church are looking forward with the greatest interest to the dedication of their splendid building by Bishop J. C. Kilgo, on the first Sunday in June.

Under the wise leadership of Rev. A. C. McCorkle, the church is moving forward, and many new plans are being made for perfection in the near future. A handsome mahogany bedroom suite has been added to the parsonage, and everything possible is being done to make the pastor's family comfortable and happy.

MATHISTON CHARGE.

Dear Advocate: We began our meeting here at Mathiston on the fourth Sunday in February. Rev. W. M. McIntosh, from Iuka, did the preaching, and it goes without saying he brought us the gospel in every message.

Mr. Robert L. Cooper, from Aberdeen, Miss., had charge of the singing, and his sweet solos were great. Brother McIntosh and Mr. Cooper certainly make a great team when they have the help and co-operation of the people, as they did here. Every service was well attended.

The first Sunday in March, at 3 p. m., Brother McIntosh brought a great message of love and sympathy to a congregation of men and boys only. At the close of the service, a large number of men and boys rushed down to the altar and gave their lives to Christ. And Sunday night, after the sermon, 35 young men and women went to the altar and confessed Christ as their Savior.

We closed the meeting Wednesday night, March 5, with 35 additions to the Methodist Church and 15 to the Baptist Church. The oldest people of the town say it was the greatest meeting that has been held in Mathiston in a long time. Everybody here, of all denominations, love Brother and Sister McIntosh and Mr. Cooper, and want them to come to Mathiston next year.

And the people of Mathiston never forget their pastor and family. They have reminded us of their thoughtfulness of their pastor almost every day since we came here, by bringing us something good to eat. By the way, I think Brother McIntosh was greatly tempted to go into the pastorate if he could get Mathiston charge, where the people bring their preacher so many home-cured hams, eggs and other good things to eat.

The readers of the Advocate will please pray for us that we may be able to keep the work growing.

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS BY MANSFIELD AUXILIARY.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Church had a wonderful meeting last Monday afternoon as a closing service to a very strenuous campaign for new members, and when it was known that the goal had been exceeded by the number of five it was declared a time for jubilation. One hundred and five paying members, and twenty-seven of them new! Was it not the time to rejoice and be glad?

Mrs. Ben Johnson led the devotional service and made a very interesting talk, exposing our many frailties, and pleading for a more willing service for the Master. She used as her Bible reading the report of the spies upon their return from the land of Canaan, and dwelt upon a part of the 31st verse of the 13th Chapter of Numbers, "We be not able to go up against the people: for they are stronger than we." The many forms of service that would be rendered to the Master but for the frequent and overworked excuse, "We be not able." Her talk was forceful and much to the point. It will not be forgotten.

The President, Mrs. W. A. Nabors, who when she had set the goal at a hundred members like Caleb had said, "Let us go up at once and possess it for we are well able to overcome it," presided at a love feast where each member told quite freely what the missionary society had meant to her.

Miss Eliza Logan, a charter member of the first Foreign Missionary Society, told in a tremulous voice of the works of the early organization and tenderly referred to the number of faithful and zealous women who served with her for years, and in many hearts there throbbed a loyalty to the memory of other workers in the Home Missionary Society of later years. It is with a spirit of great thanks that we witness the harmony with which the two once separate organizations now work in perfect unity.

Sweetest tribute was paid to the fellowship of this powerful organ of the Church.

Dr. Steele administered the sacrament of the Lord's supper as a fitting consecration service.

The ladies, about 65 in number, were invited over to the parsonage, where a happy time was spent in a social way while delicious refreshments were served. The rooms were cheery with spring blossoms, and the gladness of springtime which was throbbing in every woman's heart.

HOW GASOLINE LIZZIE SERVED THE LORD.

It was an exquisitely beautiful day. A large congregation was assembled in Pharr Chapel. Outside a mocking-bird sang as if its brownish-gray throat would burst with joy; its head was lifted toward the clear sky as it perched upon the boughs of a wide-spreading elm. The day was flooded with golden sunlight and the waters of Berwick Bay sparkled as they reflected its brilliance.

My husband, the minister, stood in the pulpit and called out the hymns. The sweet-toned organ filled the building with music. A young woman who entered and seated herself near me, exclaimed in an earnest undertone: "Oh, if I could read so I could sing that song!" I moved close to her and asked: "Is there anything the matter with your eyes?" "My eyes is all right; I just do not know how to read."

"Why did you not learn? You are young."

"My Pa was not able to pay the convent sisters for my learning."

"Why didn't you go to the public school?"

"Because the priest said that the public schools was devil's schools."

Well, I have taught that young woman for some time; she has learned to read, write and spell, and I am cheerfully giving her much of my busy time.

A large portion of the Catholic population in this part of the State cannot read or write; they are too poor to pay convent fees and are afraid to attend the public schools. This young woman had walked a long distance to worship in the church. After the service, as we stood at the church door, she asked me to come and visit her people and told me that I would find so many as ignorant as she.

I had no conveyance. I found it difficult to reach her home—it was some miles away. I concluded I would walk, and started. The road was rough and wound along the shore of the Atchafalaya River. As far as my vision could reach the left bank of this beautiful stream was lined with house-boats. The poverty, ignorance and hard-living of many of these people cannot be told. Scarcely any of them could read or write. I found many women whose husbands had deserted them. Being uneducated, they are not able to earn an honest living for themselves and children. There are so many of these poor children!

I had a hard time getting a way to bring those little boys and girls to Sunday school. I had much difficulty in going back and forth myself. One time I rode in a grocery wagon as far as it went, then walked the remaining distance. I prayed and prayed over the matter. Our Sunday school superintendent, who is a generous man, offered to pay for their transportation. At last I found a "Gasoline Lizzie." Another big-hearted church member lent it to me. We had to pay for our gasoline. It was a glorious sight to see these little ones coming to a Christian Sunday school. They came for some time. Then "Gasoline Lizzie" broke down—she was old and almost broken down when she started on her greatest of missions. The noblest work she ever did was bringing those little children out of wretchedly darkened homes into the sweet, spiritual light of a Christian Sunday school. The oldest of the boys and girls still walk the long distance through the heat and dust of the summer. They love their Sunday school.

But many cannot come, for "Gasoline Lizzie," their joy and hope, is dead. "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not," was the long-ago command of the Master.

Now, I am praying with all of my mind, soul and strength for a new "Gasoline Lizzie." She could carry the little children to the Master.

Uric Acid in Meat Clogs the Kidneys

Take a Glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers you—Drink More Water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

FROM NOXAPATER, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: I am sending you a few words from Noxapater charge. Our first quarterly conference was held here last Monday, March 10, with Rev. W. W. Mitchell, P. E., in the chair. He gave us a very helpful sermon on Sunday night. All the churches on the charge were represented except one, and the financial report was the best ever made at the first quarterly conference since our assignment to this charge, more than three years ago. The charge paid for all purposes more than $500, and the stewards advanced the pastor's salary from $800 to $900. We are praying, hoping and expecting this to be the most fruitful year of our pastorate here. With best wishes for you and the Advocate. G. W. GORDON.

Noxapater, Miss., March 14.

A REAL BLESSING

F. M. Hammonds, Shamrock, Tex., writes: "I used Ready Relief. Had 104 chicks hatched and not one has died." Thos. A. White, of White Pigeon, Mich., writes: "I have not lost a chick. They are fine and grow fast. Ready Relief is a godsend."

You can have the same success. Reefer's Ready Relief in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the White Diarrhoea that kills off more than half the chicks that are hatched. Reefer's Ready Relief is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 3253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package of Ready Relief that will positively help you save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? You take no risk. Mr. Reefer guarantees to refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a penny? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver, at least write today for Mr. Reefer's valuable free poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair to Any Shade

Don't Stay Gray! Here's a Simple Recipe that Anybody can Apply with a Hair Brush.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

RENWAR RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanitarium treatment, and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others. Should anyone doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists, price 50c; or by mail on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

A GREAT REVIVAL AT DUNCAN, MISS.

Rev. J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Miss., the evangelist of the North Mississippi Conference, has just closed the greatest revival ever held in this section. This is the second meeting held by Brother Bell in Duncan, and it surpassed in results even the great one of two summers ago.

Churches of all denominations have been added to and strengthened, and the entire community has been filled with a spirit of love and desire for service as a direct result of this meeting.

Brother Bell is a man singularly adapted to his great calling by education, deep spiritual power and of a personal magnetism, only equaled by Sam Jones a quarter of a century ago.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN W. M. S. AND WOMEN'S CENTENARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

From so many sources have come letters of inquiry regarding the relationship of the pledges given in Woman's Missionary Auxiliaries and the Centenary contribution that a few brief, clear statements are deemed necessary.

Let it be fully understood that the $7,000,000 a year for five years called for by the Centenary movement is divided into two parts:

First — $2,000,000 already being raised annually by the various missionary departments of our Church, of which our Woman's Missionary Society contributes nearly $600,000. Everything paid in dues and pledges in our auxiliaries will be counted in this $2,000,000, and our women must carefully and definitely keep up their auxiliary contributions and send them through their Conference Treasurer to the Council Treasurer. No money collected in the Woman's Missionary Society will go through the Centenary treasury.

Second—$5,000,000 to be raised annually over and above everything heretofore collected by our Church for missions.

To this extra Centenary offering our women are expected to contribute individually as lay members of our churches just as the men do, and to subscribe to this fund during the Eight Day Drive (May 18-25, 1919) only. The subscriptions made during the Eight Day Drive are to be paid through the authorized Centenary channels of the local church and not through the auxiliary treasurer. No W. M. S. is to become responsible for the raising of any specified quota of the Centenary allotment of its church. The Missionary Society will aid the pastor in every way possible in conducting the Centenary campaign, but will serve as individual church members and not as a Woman's Missionary auxiliary.

We urge our Southern Methodist women not to emphasize the finances of the Centenary just now, but to give the next three months to prayer and the study of their debt of obligation to their Lord. When the Eight Day Drive comes, we will pay as God show us our duty.

Physician Explains Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Practical Advice on How To Help Build Up Great Strength, Energy and Endurance.

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood builder by over three million people annually, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and The Westchester County Hospital said, "Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill cant grind.

For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all "run-down."—while at 50 or 60 with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy.

The accompanying article of Dr. Sullivan should be carefully read by every man and woman who wants to possess perfect health, great physical endurance and a strong, keen mentality. Dr. Sullivan tells how to increase the iron in our blood and thereby gain greater physical and mental power, brighter intellects and better health.

Manufacturers' Note—Nuxated Iron which is used by Dr. Sullivan and others [illegible] results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is [illegible] but one which is well known [illegible] Unlike the other inorganic iron [illegible] easily assimilated and does not [illegible] them black nor upset the stomach. [illegible] guarantee successful and [illegible] to every purchaser or they [illegible] your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

THE GHOST, THE GOLD, AND A VISION.

Under the first and second topics; there appeared recently in the Advocate that which should inspire to heroic effort for "World Conquest." They also remind me of two experiences not soon to be forgotten, which I think have led to the conception of a plan that will aid largely in leading our forces to victory.

In 1885, the author of the Ghost Story and I roomed together at Centenary College, in Jackson, La. I had been sick for several days with typhoid fever, when he took the measles, which caused him to cough almost incessantly the first night, we both occupying the same bed. It seems a little out of the ordinary that we survived, for when we began to convalesce, Mrs. Wiley (of pleasant memory) sent us two large covered dishes of chicken and soup, and though we had not heard of Mr. Hoover, we left nothing but bones for the garbage.

In 1901, due to injudicious management upon the part of my predecessor, a crisis came, when twelve men expected upward of $500 for material and labor, and the only definite promise was $200 twelve months later. I, with a family of seven, occupying a rented house, and having to keep a horse and buggy to serve my eight appointments, and the promise of three hundred and seventy dollars to meet all expenses, and possessing less than $27 in cash—I headed a subscription to liquidate the debt on and complete the construction of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Hammond, La., and paid $25; and in 1903 Bishop Galloway dedicated it.

For several years, with an income for ministerial service of about forty dollars per month, and leading my charges in benevolent work, I had been contributing fifty cents per month to our State Anti-Saloon League; but in 1915, with a receipt from my charge of less than $50 per month, I joined the National Anti-Saloon League, at $1 per month, to knock out John Barleycorn in five years; and we are now on the last round, and John's lovers have pooled one billion dollars to sustain him. The secretary of our Anti-Saloon League, asked that I pay in advance my last year's pledge, which I have cheerfully done, and join in the chorus, "Must go, Must go, Must go—Saloons, Saloons, must go."

Now comes a Five-Year Campaign, for the bringing in of the Kingdom. Our leaders, divinely led, have given us a marvelous programme, which, if our Church will follow, will insure our success.

In my secret meditations concerning Our World Job, and the injunction of our Lord to lay up treasure in heaven, I have thought it would be worth while for each pastor to form his charge into a bank for World Conquest, with a minimum capital of its allotment, and the minimum share one dollar. Therefore, when the allotment for Sicily Island for five years was fixed at six thousand and eight hundred dollars, I asked that it be fixed at seven thousand, with the privilege, while in charge, to pay for one-seventh of the capital for my wife, two minor children and myself; and my two major children, while they held membership here, would pay for one-twelfth of the remainder, which would be fifty shares each per annum.

In order to promote devotion and Christian stewardship on my charge, I have signed this document: "To any man or woman of known veracity, of the Sicily Island charge, Louisiana Annual Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who will enroll with the Fellowship of Missions, for its Centenary, sign the Covenant of the Methodist Million, and then prayerfully and honestly tithe their income for twelve months according to Bible requirements as found in Leviticus 27:26-34, Proverbs 3:9, Malachi 3:8-12, Matthew 23:23, and Luke 20:25; and then, with record of results, make affidavit of dissatisfaction, I agree to pay one hundred dollars in gold, the payment of which I secure with my home on Farmerville Street, Ruston, La., in and for which I lived and labored seven years.

THE MOST AND BEST.

The importance of economy has been impressed on our minds in recent years. We want to know that we are getting the most and best for our money, no matter what we spend it for.

In the matter of medicine there is probably no more economical course of treatment than Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptiron—a real iron tonic—taken in conjunction, one before eating and the other after.

The combination of these two great medicines brings into co-operation such well-known substances as sarsaparilla, iron; nux and pepsin, best for the blood, nerves and digestive organs.

This combination is especially recommended in cases that are scrofulous, or rheumatic, anemic and nervous, or where the blood is both impure and pale, deficient in iron.

Any ultimate delight in life must be rooted in something deeper than self-centered pleasure; it must love persons and seek ends for their own sake; and find its joy not in the satisfaction of man as he is, but in the development of that which his thought and love enable him to become.—William De Witt Hyde.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

LOOK FOR LIGHT.

Many of us have very definite opinions about a great many things. Probably some of those opinions were formed years ago, before we were in a position to have full information about the subjects involved; but we have held tenaciously to them because we have assumed that they are right. It is altogether possible, in some cases at least, that we could very well afford to revise those opinions in the light of new knowledge that is now available. We heard a very sensible woman remark the other day that she had thought a great deal about a certain subject, but that a speaker whom she had recently heard had given her an entirely new point of view. She had received new light, and she adjusted her opinions in accordance therewith. We owe it to ourselves, as well as to the world in which we live, to get all the light we can on the matters that concern us, even though it does involve a revision of opinions that we had thought were thoroughly sound.

UNAWARE OF DANGER.

"Guests Sleep as Firemen Fight Blaze in Hotel," was the heading of a news paragraph in a local newspaper the other day. The heading tells its own story. And it tells the story of thousands of people in the world who are as unconscious, apparently, of the imminent danger they are in, as were the guests of the hotel. The forces of evil are all about them, endeavoring to destroy them not only for time, but also for eternity, and they sleep on, serenely unconscious of their perilous situation. It is our duty to arouse them before it is too late.

BETTER THAN NOT AT ALL.

We read an interesting article not long ago concerning "Sub-conscious Mentation." It seems to be a well established fact that our mental faculties do sometimes continue to function after we ourselves have lost consciousness in sleep. The results of such mentation may not be altogether logical or satisfactory, but we are strongly of the opinion that it is better to think unconsciously, or subconsciously, than not to think at all.

EVEN A DOG.

There is an element of pathos in the story, recently printed, that a dog in New York committed suicide by jumping from the roof of a six-story building after he had been reprimanded by his owner for giving too vigorous expression to his playful spirit. We sometimes forget—or perhaps we never stop to think—how deep is the sting of a harshly spoken word. According to the story, one dog could not stand it—he preferred death to the reproach of one he loved. We wonder if our children and our friends do not sometimes writhe in the agony of a hurt produced by a word thoughtlessly or unfeelingly spoken. Reproof is often necessary, but it should always be given in a spirit of unmistakable love.

THE GOVERNMENT KNOWS.

A few poorly informed persons have taken it upon themselves to declare that the Church failed to meet its obligations during the war, the implication being that it is a useless institution which exists merely as an expression of an effete spiritual impulse. In reply to all such, we quote from an official communication lying before us: "The Treasury Department deeply appreciates the splendid services rendered by the ministers of the United States in helping to solve many of the difficult problems arising in the conduct of the war. With the war happily concluded, we are hoping that we may continue to have the support and co-operation of the ministers and church members of the country in meeting the many and varied problems of the transition from war to peace. * * * The Government feels that the ministers of the country can render a truly great service by bringing the message of wise saving and the use of savings to the attention of the millions of people, young and old, who attend their churches and Sunday schools. * * * If the 50,000 pastors in rural districts, where the difficulties of organizing are great, will give attention to reaching all families in their neighborhoods, they will be of the utmost service to the county savings directors and, consequently, to the entire campaign." The ministers and church members of this country will continue to help the Government in every possible way in the future as in the past. The Government knows that it can depend upon them.

SLANDERING THE SOLDIERS.

A good many questionable enterprises—and some that are unquestionably bad—are being promoted nowadays on the ground that the returned soldiers demand and ought to have such forms of amusement and recreation. Our own conviction is that such pleas are a palpable slander on the character of the men who have been overseas. If they are not, they do not justify wrongdoing.

WATCH FOR OFFICIAL RECEPTIONS.

It has been announced in press dispatches from New York that the famous Sistine Choir from Rome will make a concert tour of the United States this spring. The Sistine Choir is an ancient organization of the Roman Catholic Church which, for many centuries, has had the exclusive privilege of singing at the services and ecclesiastical functions at which the Pope officiates in person. We certainly could offer no reasonable objection to the proposed tour of this famous choir—we rather think we should like to hear it ourselves. But we venture the prediction that secular newspaper reports will make it appear that official recognition is given to this organization by representatives of the State when it makes its appearances. We have seen too much of the skillful propagandism of the Roman hierarchy to think otherwise.

PROTECTION FROM ABOVE.

According to press dispatches, the police department of New York has perfected plans for the use of an aviation squadron. Twenty-six American, British, and French aviators have been sworn in as members of the police reserves, and they will begin their duties about June 1. The residents of New York will probably feel a new sense of safety with these aerial protectors hovering above them; we hope it will lead them to think of the All-Seeing Eye of the One who is over all.

LEARNING TO READ.

To read well is a fine art, which may be acquired by any one who will take the trouble to think and study and practice. All the more, therefore, is it a reproach to a minister to read the Scriptures in a bungling, monotonous, unintelligible way. Not very many do, perhaps, but enough to make one wish that all of them would give special attention to this very important part of the preaching service.

PREYING UPON THE DEFENSELESS.

Reports indicate that the brewers of the United States, having been put out of business in this country, are looking for other fields in which to carry on their work of destruction, and that they have fixed upon China as offering a favorable opening for the establishment of their trade. The tragic thing about their program is that they have determined, apparently, to conserve their ill-gotten gains, and enlarge them, by fastening upon a helpless people a habit that will inevitably weaken their moral character. We are heartily in favor of the world-wide prohibition campaign that will educate the people of all nations as to the evils of intemperance, and that will enable them to resist the efforts of mercenary men to traffic in character for the sake of money. We take courage, however, in the thought that as China outlawed the opium trade, so she will ultimately prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor.

WE ARE DEBTORS ALSO TO THE JEWS.

We had the privilege last Sunday of hearing a very interesting address by Dr. Julius Magath, who is an officially appointed missionary from our Church to the Jews. We were impressed by the soundness of his plea that we recognize the obligation Christianity is under to-day with reference to the Jews living among us. We can never forget the fact that God made his great revelations to the world through the Jewish race, and that, in a very real sense, they are still his "chosen people." They have been cruelly persecuted for centuries by so-called Christian nations, and the wonder is that they are at all responsive to the gospel appeal. Yet, according to Dr. Magath, there are 50,000 Jewish Christians in America now and there is an open door before us for the evangelization of the race. We ought to enter it as speedily as possible.

THE ZEST OF LIFE.

Let me but live from year to year,
With forward face and unreluctant soul;
Not hastening to, nor turning from the goal;
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past, nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils; but with a whole
And happy heart, that pays its toll
To youth and age, and travels on with cheer.

So let the the way wind up the hill or down,
Through rough or smooth, the journey will be joy;
Still seeking what I sought when but a boy.
New friendship, high adventure, and a crown,
I shall grow old, but never lose life's zest,
Because the road's last turn will be the best.

THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS.

By Wm. C. Allen

In the city of San Jose, California, close by a pretty little park where palm trees rustle and a tinkling fountain sometimes gently plays, stands Trinity Church. My eager steps often lead me along the street where the dim shadow of the cross upon the church-tower slowly changes in response to the swing over the heavens of the glowing sun. I love that shadow and what it represents, though it be beneath my feet. It depicts the cross that typifies the divine love down in the haunts of busy men.

On cloudy or stormy days we do not see the outline on the pavement, but always above us is the cross itself. Just so in the dull and bitter days of life we lose sight of the shadow if we look for it, but, when we cast our eyes toward heaven, we perceive the reality of the great event of 1900 years ago—we see the glory and the hope of the tree on which Jesus died. We heedlessly tread upon the shadow in the street even as too many trample on the cross of Christ itself. What! Shall we disregard the smitten Man of Calvary? How thoughtless, pitiful, ungrateful, cruel!

When men and women think superficially of Jesus they deal, as it were, with the pattern of the cross of which they sometimes speak so fluently. Yet who desires a fading image when the abiding reality may be secured? Who will be content with a little globe of glass when, for the asking, he can receive a priceless pearl? Do we not want Jesus? "Jesus only," becomes our prayer.

Our Lord's cross is eternal; it is always visible; no tempest can hide it; the blackest night of human experience can not conceal it. The cruciform wood on the tower is but a figure of the gibbet on which He poured out His soul because of sin—it imperfectly suggests the agony and blood. The outward death of Jesus was emblematic of the inward crucifixion that He with love unutterable, bids us to submit to if we are to be at oneness with Himself—we, too, are to be crucified, our lusts, our pride, our ease. Shall we profess that we understand the cross, whilst in speech or action we re-crucify Him day by day? If we are to learn the charm of fellowship with Christ, if we are to participate in the deliverance He has wrought, we must gaze beyond all symbols and shadows up to Jesus only, His passion and His peace!

We say that the vague outline on the highway is the shadow of the cross on the church tower; we say that the cross on the church tower is a figure of the tree on which Jesus died; we say that the tree was an instrument of our redemption; we say that this instrument of our redemption is an emblem of the crucifixion of our wills for Jesus' sake; we say that the crucifixion of our wills helps to make us partners with the Son of God; we say that we have become partners of the Son of God because of the forgiving love of the Father; we say that the forgiving love of the Father will carry us to glory.

If we look for Jesus everywhere, we find Him most alluringly and transformingly in the human heart; yet when we see the wounded grass bow before the mower's knife, He speaks to us of His humiliation; when we behold the branches of the palms swaying in the wind, He tells us of His peace; when the water in the fountain softly tinkles, He whispers to us of the choir invisible, and when we see the shifting shadow of the cross on the dusty pavement we are reminded of the abiding glory of our crucified and risen King!

EUROPE'S SUPREME NEED.

We count it a good providence that the two deputations from the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, had the privilege of studying the European situation together. By a happy coincidence Bishops T. S. Henderson and James Atkins and Doctors F. M. North and W. W. Pinson sailed together on La Lorraine on December 23, 1918. This gave an opportunity for extended discussions of plans and purposes during the voyage. We were joined in Paris by the other members of the two deputations, Bishops W. F. Anderson and W. R. Lambuth, and Dr. B. M. Tipple. The first full meeting was held in Paris on January 5 with all the members of both deputations present, consisting of Bishops Anderson and Henderson and Dr. Frank Mason North and Dr. B. M. Tipple of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Bishops Atkins and Lambuth and Dr. W. W. Pinson of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

We had exceptional opportunity for the execution of our task. By the great courtesy of the Protestant bodies we were accorded interviews with their leaders and in public meetings as well as in official discussions we were given full opportunity for the expression of our purposes and for the gathering of facts and impressions concerning their work and needs and conditions of the country.

The French High Commission gave us the unusual privilege of visiting, at their charges and under their escort, a large part of the war-torn area of Northern France and also the meeting of their great leaders. In this way we were able to get a knowledge of the unspeakable devastation of one-eighth of French territory and of the needy condition of the people, which otherwise would have been impossible.

We visited the main centers and some of the villages from Brussels, Belgium, to Naples, Italy, meeting everywhere the same welcome and the same general treatment. Through the influence of Dr. B. M. Tipple, superintendent of the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Italy, the serviceableness of whose work has commended itself to the government of Italy, with the kindly co-operation of the American Ambassador, Hon. Thomas Nelson Page, we were honored by having an interview with the King, Victor Emanuel III. Through these same agencies there was placed at the disposal of the two Commissions a group of military officers from the Supreme Command, thus affording them an unrivaled opportunity to visit the Italian battle front from Trent to Trieste. When America once knows the extent of the devastation in Italy, and also the heroism and sacrifice of her soldiers and citizens, America will have an open heart and hand to minister to this most devoted and loyal Ally in a thorough and adequate way.

Thus there was no lack of opportunity to study the conditions among the people and to get the view-point of their leaders. Availing ourselves of this opportunity during the limited time at our disposal, we have sought to gather the facts on which to base an intelligent conclusion. We cannot now do more than state our conclusions in general terms.

1. We find almost unbounded enthusiasm toward everything American. It was as American Christians that we were received with such unusual manifestations of welcome. The stars and stripes floats everywhere beside the tri-color and the Marseillaise mingles its strains with those of the Star-Spangled Banner. From President Poincaire and Marshal Joffre to the man on the street we heard words of unbounded commendation for America's part in the war and for Wilson's policies of world democracy. The same was true in Italy from Victor Emanuel III, the "Crowned Democrat" of the Quirinal Hill, to the school teacher, who in public address called President Wilson "The president of the world." It is recognized on all hands that the great reconstructive forces reside in America. The whole situation constitutes the challenge of the centuries to the Christian Church of America.

2. The strategic importance of Europe in the programme for world evangelization has been given a new emphasis in our thinking. We have been far too much content to leave Europe out of the evangelical reckoning, too prone to leave her to carry her own responsibility. Now that a world war has upheaved the continent and torn its old traditions asunder, we are made to see things in a new perspective. It is not the needs of Europe alone that stand and cry in this world highway of the new order, but also the larger needs that lie beyond Europe. She is a sort of half-way house to the East. It is not easy to overestimate the influence of Europe on the seething masses of the East, near and far. Her commerce, her colonies, her literature, the vast impact of her moral and social ideals are incalculable in their effect for good or evil. These will not be lessened but rather increased by the war and the new familiarity which has resulted from the ultimate contact resulting from the war and to follow it. The complete evangelization of the East will be most difficult, if not well-nigh impossible, without an immense quickening of the evangelical faith of Europe.

3. Europe is, on its own account, a needy field. We will not here speak of the material needs, great and urgent as they are. These have been set forth over and over. But after all is said, the deepest and most fundamental needs of these needy lands are moral and spiritual. This will appear to any one from anything but the most superficial view. Added to the unbelief and immorality that existed in normal times, the people have suffered the almost inevitable demoralization of a four years' war with its ruthless invasion and confusion of the social, moral and domestic life.

Let no one suppose for a moment that these needs are being met or can be met by existing religious agencies. Whatever may be said of the Roman Catholic Church, one thing is certain: it is not effectively ministering to the people. In France alone there are about 30,000,000 of people who are not in the fold of that Church, or, for that matter, of any church. That is to say, nearly three-fourths of the population have drifted into indifference, or, worse, into materialism. They are scattered abroad as sheep having no shepherd. The native Protestant Churches are feeble and have made but little progress in recent years. Altogether they have only 600,000 adherents. The same conditions prevail in Belgium. These churches, feeble before, are now almost helpless. Their forces have been weakened, property damaged, income greatly reduced, so that any aggressive movement to meet the unusual conditions is with them impossible. Evangelical help for these countries must come from without.

They have no schools, no leaders to speak of, and no means of producing them. Thus, without help from without, the vast majority of the people are left without the comforts or restraints of religion in the midst of the demoralizations and deep sorrow resulting from the war.

4. There is in Europe an inspiring opportunity. Whatever doubts or misgivings one may have had on that score have been effectively dissipated. The fields are white. The reaping will not be without difficulty. There will be opposition from the Catholic Church. But the people are not Catholic. The governments are not Catholic, except the National Government of Belgium. Even there this fact is offset by intensely illberal or anti-Catholic provincial government. In the midst of all their rationalism, they are a people of the warm-heart. They are idealists. They love things of the Spirit, and will respond to the gospel of the warm heart mediated to them by a ministry bearing the credentials of brotherhood. Of this we have seen tangible evidences in city and village where American Methodist Episcopal work has been carried on. This is strikingly true of Italy, where any one can find proof of what has been said above. A free church, without political ambitions representing enlightenment, freedom of conscience and the democracy of the spirit, will meet a ready response.

5. The situation demands a broad and aggressive policy. No narrow, restricted policy will win. The Church must address her ministry to the whole man and compass his total need. This will mean a large and liberal program of social service. It will cost money and trained men and women. In so saying we do not lose sight of the main need of the saving gospel, which must be given to the people in printed page and by living, loving evangelists. All of which should be done without delay. These conditions will not abide.

6. The two Methodisms should co-operate in this program. This should be done in such a way as to present one solid Methodist front to the peoples of Europe. We should combine to furnish the men and institutions needed on an adequate scale. A recommendation providing for such co-operation will be made to the Boards for their consideration and action.

7. What we have said in this description of need applies in the main to France, Italy and Belgium. We would not, however, be true to the facts if we should leave unmentioned other fields in Europe. By a peculiar coincidence which we can only consider providential, we were favored with first-hand information concerning the chastened and distressed land of Poland. The Church should be ready to enter that land at the earliest possible moment. We should also mention the Czecho-Slovaks and the Balkan states. A survey of these fields should be made along with Russia, as soon as conditions will permit, with a view to their occupation. Recommendations will be made to the Boards on this point.

8. All this has driven home the conviction that America must be made really Christian. The compelling appeal of these desperate situations gives emphasis to that conviction. Our responsibility is immeasurable. God has set us in the breach in this great hour. Are we prepared? A nation only half Christian cannot meet such a challenge. We must get ready. If making the world safe for democracy, if the political needs of Europe and of the world moved our people to give lavishly of blood and treasure, what should not this greater need of Europe and the world inspire in the Church of America? It would be a greater tragedy if we failed now than if we had failed in 1916. The issues are so much greater, as the soul is greater than the body. We have fought in vain if we lose the Armageddon of the Kingdom.

"OVER THERE."

Chateau Thierry and Rheims.

Dear Mr. Editor: Having a three-day leave in Paris last week, I had the wonderful privilege of a trip northeastward on the Chemin de fer de Est to Chateau Thierry and Rheims. There is no language available to me that will suffice to describe the tremendous value in interest of a trip like that. In the first place, one has the pleasure of a journey straight through the heart of the Marne Valley, where there was, before the war, some of the best wheat fields of the world. Around Epernay one finds the Champaigne district, where miles and miles of vineyards spread themselves over the beautiful hills. But death has been stalking all through that great country, Mr. Editor. From Chateau Thierry to Rheims is a distance of about 100 kilometers (something like eighty miles), and aside from a short space of about five miles just above Epernay every foot of the ground has been fought over by French and Germans, and French, Americans and Germans.

It was between Chateau Thierry and Epernay, as you will remember, that the Germans broke across the Marne River, little more than a wide ditch here, and in the early part of July made their most dangerous thrust toward Paris, a scant forty miles away. It was within two miles of this railway that the French General in charge of his own troops and some Americans brigaded with him gave the order to retreat and the Commander of the American troops said "Retreat be d——, they don't teach us a word for that in our army; the only command I know how to give is ADVANCE." The French General gave the order along with the American Commander, the whole line advanced and the dirty Huns were driven back across the railway and the river and finally into Germany. That's the sort of stuff the A. E. F. is made of.

Parallel with the railway for some four or five miles, there is a ditch of about thirty feet in width and ten or twelve feet in depth. A French soldier who fought there turned to me and said, "It is full of bodies." The water is a green, murky mess, the banks are all torn with shell holes, and the sides, down to the very edge, are marked with hundreds of fox holes where the infantry dug in to get away from the hellish machine gun, rifle and shrapnel fire. Along this railway one finds an average of a shell hole every few yards, small indentations in the earth, holes into which one might throw himself and be hidden, still larger pits made by giant shells, which threw shrubs and rocks and dirt high into the air and which will be there for months and months before the French can hope to fill them and go on with their interrupted farming. We passed a place where it looked as though a hundred thousand pigs had been industriously rooting for two weeks or more. A veteran with me said, "That's where the Germans shelled an infantry position." Think of that, will you! Do you wonder that thousands and thousands of the men who fought there failed to come off alive? It was a surprise to me to see the wreckage of war still scattered about, even though it is six months since the sound of a gun has broken the silence there. But I remembered that this is the greatest of all wars and that the thousands of tons of salvage that have been gathered up represent only a part of what was really lost on the fields of the mighty struggle. Parts of uniforms, shell splinters, parts of aeroplanes, old trenches, trench knives, camouflaged gun positions, false trenches, may be seen as one slowly approaches the desolate city of Rheims.

Our language will not express the feelings of one who looks out, as it is possible to do, and catches his first view of the battle-scarred city of Rheims, with its magnificent old wreck of a cathedral standing proudly against the horizon. No one can quite catch the glory of the thrill that touches his heart until he actually experiences it. Think of a city of 140,000 inhabitants in 1914, living in comfort, happy, pursuing their way in quietness and peace, suddenly hurled into the midst of the greatest struggle civilization ever witnessed. Then watch that beautiful city crumble under the sledge-hammer blows of the shell of a heartless enemy. The cathedral, the center of the community, the heart of the people, was on fire several days, and though from the outside the appearance is that it has not been greatly injured, it is in reality a total wreck.

It was my privilege to take lunch at noon in a French Red Cross eating place. This place is under the ground out of reach of the greater part of the shell fire that tortured the city for four years. Very interesting indeed it is to be surrounded by all the conditions of war without the consequent dangers. As to the extent of damages to the town—there is not a building of any kind in the whole area that has not either been struck by a shell or injured by a concussion. The Hotel de Ville (city hall) is a total wreck, a victim of the dastardly systematic bombardment of the unspeakable Huns. I have some pieces of slate from the roof of a house a mile or more from the station, on the outskirts, in fact, of the city, which show to what extent the bombardment reached. There are only twenty-five thousand of the hundred and forty thousand of the inhabitants left there, the others not being able to come back because the French Government cannot yet make arrangements for their care. Many of the people who are there live underground, the cellars being the most habitable part of the places they call homes.

You have heard time after time of the cathedral and the crime of its destruction. When you have stood, as I have, under the domes of various cathedrals of this land and have seen the people reverently bow before the shrines and pass on comforted; when you have studied, as I have, the characteristics of this people and found the secret of their marvelous strength to be vested in their religion; when you find, as I have, how totally bound up they are in their cathedrals; when you have felt the presence of God, be you Catholic or Protestant, touch your soul as the mellow light falls through the windows of the glorious buildings; and when you realize that never again can there be produced a window such as these, you will begin to see the crime of the Hun in the destruction of such a work of art and religion. His job was thoroughly done. I went into the buildings in the afternoon. All the center, where the main chapel was, is boarded off, as the roof is about to fall in at that point. The whole building is shot through and through with the giant German shell. There is not a combustible thing about it, as it was on fire several days and everything that could be burned is gone. There was some of the finest glass in Europe in the windows. Only enough of this can now be had to use for souvenirs.

No, I didn't bring any of that away with me. I have some pieces of stone out of the walls, but not any of the glass; one who has seen the light fall through the windows doesn't care to desecrate the glass by making it a cheap souvenir. Under the organ, amidst the wreckage of the open tombs which were rent asunder by the mighty concussions, there lies a giant German shell. It is a "dud," that is, it failed to explode when it struck. It lies there a silent witness to the extreme efforts of the Hun to make a complete finish to his work. But it looks as though the very shell itself had more heart than the scoundrel who sent it on its dastardly journey. It blushed at the mission entrusted to it and in mercy refused to burst and wipe out forever the magnificent organ. If there was any mercy shown to the cathedral, it was rather by the shell that struck it than by the hand that sent it, and not soon will the members of the A. E. F. forget that such was the case.

We are looking homeward these days. A busy pastorate indeed is mine with more than seven thousand men to minister to, but I have fine co-operation and good response. It will be a welcome time when I shall be able to fold my tent and start back across the seas to the ones I left behind. Don't forget the men who are here. Only about three hundred thousand have yet been shipped back to you and that leaves nearly two million still here. The present schedule will not get more than half of these home before June 30. The others of us will be here maybe until October.

Write to us, let us know you are interested in the work we are doing and attempting to do while the months move us nearer home. Pray for us, write to us, remember us, that we may "go home as clean as when we came."

THE CONFERENCE AT BLUE RIDGE, N. C.

By Rev. L. E. Alford.

I have just read an account in the Advocate of the Blue Ridge Conference, as given by Rev. O. S. Lewis, of Vicksburg, Miss. He attended the one just preceding the one I attended.

There were sixty-six delegates present at this Conference, the largest number being from Tennessee, and the next being from Mississippi, with 13 men present. Eight of the 13 are Methodists and five of them are pastors in the Mississippi Annual Conference.

I was asked by the Mississippi Methodist delegation to write a message from that Conference to the New Orleans Advocate.

Brother Lewis' article told you by whom these Conferences are being conducted, and something of the purposes of these Conferences.

Hence I shall confine my statements to the personnel of the faculty and some of the things taught, and the purpose of this work.

Dr. W. D. Weatherford, the Dean of the Faculty, is one of the strong men in his work among young men in the South. For the past 18 years he has been one of the General Secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. And he was one of the leading spirits in training young men for the Y. M. C. A. work during the war. He is doing his best now to help some pastors and laymen to get a vision of the opportunity to touch and help the soldier boys, both religiously and economically, as they return from the camps and the battle front.

He devoted one hour a day for several days to teaching the fact that men are fundamentally religious and that we should help them to find their true relation to God and humanity about them. He also dealt with the practical ways of helping these soldiers. I think no one could listen to his messages from day to day without leaving the Conference with a determination to be a more efficient worker.

Dr. Kesler, of Baylor University, Tex., was there with his presentation of the social teachings of Jesus, which, backed by his deep spiritual life, made an impression upon us all that will do us good many days hence.

Dr. Laprade, of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., was there with his messages on democratic ideals and institutions, viewed from the Christian standpoint, which should make every one of us have a more comprehensive conception of the purpose of Christianity. Two lectures delivered by him on the conditions and terms of peace, and the prospective League of Nations, were worth the time consumed in the whole Conference.

Dr. Branscomb, a returned soldier, spoke to us from the standpoint of the soldier, so that we might the more readily understand him, after passing through some of the great experiences that came to the boy as he passed from the civil life to the military life.

Other instructors dealt with the musical and recreational side of life as we have to deal with it to-day, and these two men did their work well, and I am sure this writer was helped in his life's work by the teaching they give us.

The Y. M. C. A. did a great work during the war. That organization is trying to do even a more effective work now during the months and years of readjustment back to normal conditions. Any man who has an opportunity to attend one of these conferences should count himself fortunate indeed.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

The War Department desires to ascertain the wishes of the families of officers, enlisted men and civilian employees regarding the permanent disposition of the bodies of those who have died overseas. The representatives of the deceased are being called upon now for an expression of their desires regarding the final disposition of the bodies.

It cannot be stated now just when the work of the transfer of the bodies to this country will begin, as it must be deferred until the conditions, including that of transportation, warrant the undertaking. Due notice will be given through the public press.

It is not deemed practicable to grant requests for relatives, friends, or undertakers to go to France to superintend the preparation and shipment of, or to accompany bodies back to the United States. You will appreciate that there were over 69,000 casualties abroad, and to permit even one representative to cross in each case would require a great deal of transportation both on the sea and abroad. Upon arrival abroad they would have to depend upon the Grave Registration Units for information and assistance, which would only interfere with these units in following any systematic plan of sending bodies home. Furthermore, these representatives would occupy space on returning ships which should be used by soldiers.

Organizations have been formed overseas known as Grave Registration Units, whose duty it is to look after burials, to care for the cemeteries, and to preserve identification records.

Details concerning the death of our soldiers are not ordinarily received by the War Department. It is believed that you will appreciate the fact that as a rule it will not be possible to furnish details. Many men were killed during darkness, or on a smoky, dusty battlefield, and no witnesses are available. You can rest assured, however, that everything possible is being done to relieve the anxiety of the relatives of our soldiers who have made the supreme sacrifice in the great cause of liberty.

Inquiries concerning the following subjects should be addressed to the officials or bureaus named opposite the respective subjects.

Exact Location of Grave—Chief, Grave Registration Service, American Expeditionary Forces, France.

Back Pay—Auditor for War Department, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

Allotments—Zone Finance Officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C.

Insurance—Director, Bureau of War Risk Insurance, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

TO THE PASTORS AND SUPERINTENDENTS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

There will go to you in a few days letters from the Chairman of the Conference Sunday School Board and the Field Secretary, urging you to place your order for Sunday School Day program so as to begin preparation for observing the Day, taking your offering and making your remittance to the treasurer of the Sunday School Board.

Heretofore not more than one-third of the Sunday schools of this Conference have observed Children's Day, and while the offering has increased during the past three years from some three or four hundred dollars to one thousand dollars last year, the observance of the Day has by no means been as general as it should be nor was the offering near what it should have been. Please keep the following facts in mind:

First: The law of the Church is that our Sunday schools shall observe this day, take the offering and remit it to the treasurer of the Sunday School Board.

Second: Sunday School Day is the only day set aside for a program and an offering to be used in the betterment of our schools and for furnishing the literature to our convicts and needy schools.

Third: Where it is desired, the Sunday School Board will be glad to furnish you with programs if you will take the offering and send it in as prescribed by law.

Fourth: By May the Sunday School Board will have been operating nearly half the Conference year. Having no funds to begin work with, it has been necessary to negotiate loans, with a view of taking care of them with our Sunday School Day offering.

Fifth: Last year the Haughton and Doyline charge, in the Ruston District, made an offering of $56, the largest offering per capita, and the largest offering as a whole, made by any Sunday school—either station or circuit—in the Louisiana Conference. In token of appreciation, the Louisiana Conference Sunday School Board, at the last Federation, in Ruston, presented to this charge a silver loving cup, which was given to the Board by its Chairman, Mr. W. S. Holmes, of Baton Rouge, and our Conference Field Secretary, Rev. Alonzo Early. At the next Wesley Bible Class Federation, unless the Haughton-Doyline charge observes Sunday School Day according to the plans whereby this cup is to be awarded, it will go to some other school more deserving; but we want to say that the school taking the cup from those who now have it in their possession will have to do things.

The basis upon which the cup shall be awarded next year has not been worked out thoroughly and it may be decided to award two cups instead of one, making it possible for the larger schools to compete with the smaller ones on a basis of equity not to be arrived at in presenting just one cup. However, we might say, now that we are in a position to give you the following information: The school securing the cup must observe Sunday School Day not later than July, must use our Sunday School Day program gotten up by our own Church, and the chances are that the per capita contribution of the school will be taken into consideration, but to just what extent we are not in a position to say at this writing.

Do not wait for personal letters urging you to do the thing that you expect to do anyway; just send your order in for the programs and give your treasurer the pleasure of checking off some fifty or some hundred names of schools having already placed their orders before the full series of letters go out.

Very truly yours,

C. V BREITHAUPT, Treas.,

HE IS AT THE HELM.

By Mrs. E. J. Davis.

Calmly moving onward, onward,
Over Time's swift but silent sea,
The frail old barque is still journeying homeward
To its destined port in eternity,
While safely guiding at the helm is He
Who stilled the tempest on Galilee.

Many and chequered have been the years
That have come and gone in the flight of Time—
Brightened by smiles, and bedewed with tears—
A sorrowful whil and a musical chime;
Through smiles and tears, at the helm is He
Who stilled the tempest on Galilee.

There is much in the past that I deeply regret,
Many sins and mistakes, much good left undone;
My faults, folly and failures I cannot forget,
But they are under the blood of the Crucified One;
The Crucified One—at the helm is He,
The same who stilled the tempest on Galilee.

I know that ere long He will call me away
From this world so lovely, though marred by sin;
Through the grace He supplies, I can trust and obey,
And the place He's preparing will enter in;
For safely guiding at the helm is He
Who stilled the tempest on Galilee.

UNCLE NED'S EBULLITION.

By Rev. Jno. D. Ellis.

When one of the pastors of the Seashore District was planting his garden one day recently, an old negro peeped over the fence, and said:

"Boss, you mus' be a new preacher 'round h'yar?"

"Why do you ask?" the preacher responded.

"Kase I see you wid a spade in yo' han' out in de open."

"Do you mean to say that the preachers in this section do not work?"

"No, sah; not dat eggsactly. Dey work preachin' de gorspil, an' all dat, an' dey work readin' books in de shade, an' all dat, but dey do not hurt deyselves workin' in de open. You am de mos' laborious preacher I've seed 'roun' h'yar lately."

"I'm sure my congregation thinks I'm laborious, especially when I preach more than thirty minutes: but you see, there is Irish blood in my veins, and this accounts for some of my outdoor industry. Moreover, there are several folk at my house who like to pass their plates back, and if I raise a lot of vegetables I'll be helping to salivate the high cost of living. Some preachers may not care for vegetables, or they think that it is cheaper to buy them. It is possible, also, that chicken is more in harmony with the 32d article of their constitution."

"Chickens sho' am a fine thing to hab cacklin' in de yard, an' scratchin' 'roun' on de premises, an' preachers am not de onliest ones dat like 'em: but what I hab to say is, let all de niggers an' white folks go to work an' it'll make livin' mo' cheaper. Folks den who git short in rashuns will have sumpin on han' to eat. Moresomover, when a pusson uses de spade, he keeps hisself in trim physahkerly, an' he enjoys his supper. But ef some folks was to touch a shovel, or a hoe, dey would feel ter'bly scandulized, yes sah, dey would fo' a fac. Ef nobody was 'lowed to eat cepen dem who work, lots ob folks would starve 'fo dis time next week. Stuff am so high dese days it takes consid'hle rakin' an' scrapin' to pay fo' what you eat an' w'ar. Fo'bits used to buy a good size pile of vitties, but it won't buy mor'n 'nough dese days to feed a sucklin' baby. De times sho' am diffrunt frum what dey used to be an' I ketch myself wonderin' what de worl' am comin' to. A few yeahs ago folks had plenty, an' white folks didn't no mo' mind passin' out some vittles to a tramp or a nigger dan a bird minds flying, but dem days am gone, an' lots ob white folks need sumpin passed out to dem. De av'rage nigger who is honest, hab to hustle consid'ble to make a livin' speci'ly when he has a passel ob no 'count trifflin' chillun settin' 'round waitin' to be fed. Bacon used to be 'bout six cents a poun', an' meal 'bout fifteen cents a pec'. All kinds ob meat hab riz in price, an' lard am so high a pusson has to do his cookin' wid skasely no grease a tall. De merchants done quit measurin' stuff by de pec', an' bushel, an' when you goes to a sto' dese days, even 'taters am weighed on a par ob new kind ob scales dat I hab my 'splshuns 'bout. De scales demselves do de figurin', an' all de merchant does is to pour in de meal, or de sugar, an' de scales pint an' tell him what am a dime's, or dollar's worth. A dime used to buy a fus' class snack, an' it would keep a nigger frum gittin' hongry, fo his reg'lar meal time, but it don't do no mo' dese days dan purchas a smell ob sumpin rale good to eat. I ketch myself wonderin' ef de days we used to hab, when livin' was no trouble a tall, am gone, never to git bac'. Ef much stuff was not on han' convenyunt, twarn't no trouble to git what was needed wid bardly no cos' a tall. A nigger could go to a sto' an' hab things charged to him, but de merchants dese days done quit trustin' even white folks. When a fellab bac' in dem days sot down to eat, he wasn't 'fraid ef be et ernough, nothin' would be lef' somewhar on han' fo' supper. Yes sah, Parson, de times sho hab changed frum what dey used to be. You don't keer ef I calls you Parson?"

"Preachers are called several things these days, so I guess it's all right. Sometimes they are called 'sin-busters,' 'sky-pilots,' 'devil-chasers', 'hell-scarers,' 'heaven-persuaders,' and such like. It's the fellow who is arrogant and sacrilegious that needs a pilot."

"Lots ob sin needs bustin' 'round h'yar, lots ob it, sah! Plenty ob cussin', an' stealin' am goin' on, an' even a nigger has to keep his eye on de stuff he gathers 'bout him. Good day, Parson, I'se glad to see dat you am laborious. I mus' be moseyin' long an' do some spadin' myself, kase de scars'ty ob vittles an' de high cos' ob livin' ain't gwine to 'low dis nigger to prop his feet up on de gal'ry, an' read de newspapers in de shade."

COLUMBUS GETS READY FOR THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

The spirit of hospitality in Columbus, Ohio, for the visitors from all over the United States who will go there between June 20 and July 17 to participate in the Centenary Celebration, is shown by a recent action of the city council in which all the parks of the city were placed at the disposal of visitors who might go in automobiles and are planning to camp out.

The resolution, offered by M. W. Westlake, and adopted unanimously, recites:

"Whereas, the Centenary Celebration of the Methodist Church to be held in this city in June will attract over a quarter of a million visitors to our city, a large number of whom will make the journey in automobiles, estimated at 50,000 cars; and

"Whereas, the care and parking of these cars will be an unusual problem; and

"Whereas, many of the visitors expect to live in camps while in the city; therefore

"Be it resolved by the council of the city of Columbus, That the use of the public parks of the city be tendered to the General Committee in charge of the celebration for the purpose of affording camping grounds and facilities for the parking of automobiles, together with the use of the shelter houses, rest and comfort rooms and shower baths, and that provision be made for ample police protection for those using the parks during the time of the celebration."

An engrossed copy of this resolution was sent to H. B. Dickson, organizing secretary of the Centenary Celebration. Mr. Dickson is anxious that the Methodists of the United States be as active and early in their decisions as the city council. Registrations are coming in at the present time, but not at a rate which will prevent congestion towards the last. Mr. Dickson points out that it will not only simplify the operation of registering and assigning delegates, but that early registration will insure far better accommodations to those who come. Single registration fee is $5 and family registration fee including all members under 20, is $10. All those who wish to make early reservations should communicate directly with Mr. Dickson, 71 East Gay Street, Columbus, Ohio.

VICTORY CONVENTION, VICKSBURG.

The Forty-second Annual Convention of the Mississippi Sunday School Workers will be held at Vicksburg, April 15-17. Excell and Roper lead the music. Mr. R. A. Dalth, of Chicago, Superintendent Young Peoples' Division, and Mr. B. C. Cox, Birmingham, Ala., will be with us. George R. Merrill, D.D., of Atlanta, will have charge of devotional period, his subject being "A New Picture of our Lord by the Artist-Evangelist, Dr. Luke."

Vicksburg will provide free entertainment on the Harvard plan, also an auto ride through the National Park, and a steamboat ride on the mighty Mississippi.

Every pastor, superintendent and teacher will get help, and all are invited. Send name to W. W. Ramsey, Chairman.

J. C. CAVETT,
Chairman Executive Committee.

THE COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Columbus District Conference will be held with the Methodist Church at Shuqualak, Miss., about April 15 and 16 inclusive. Bishop Jno C. Kilgo will be present Wednesday, the 16th, and will dedicate our church for us. Will all those who expect to attend let me know at once so I can arrange for their entertainment while here?

GRANDFATHER AND I.

Sometimes, before the lights are lit,
Grandpa and I, we love to sit
Before the fire and watch each spark
Go dancing up the chimney dark.
And then we talk, and we both plan
Just what I'll do when I'm a man.
And Grandpa likes to tell what he Did when he was a boy like me.
But sometimes Grandpa's voice is low,
And then I'm sorry, for I know
He's thinking boys can grow to men,
But grandpas can't be boys again.

—M. W., in St. Nicholas.

NINE TIMES NINE.

Billy could never remember how much nine times nine amounted to. Sometimes he said one thing, and sometimes he said another; but he never had said eighty-one.

"This will never do," said his father. "I can't take you on another trip in the machine, Billy, till you remember how much nine times nine is. Just suppose the hotel man should tell me that my bill was nine times nine, and I couldn't tell how much that was. What should we do then?"

"The hotel man could tell us," Billy replied.

"But, Billy," he said, "you can't go through life depending on some one else. You must know yourself."

"You're going to learn that this week. It's the last chance I'll give you."

"What are you going to do if I can't learn it?"

"I'm going to leave you home next Saturday. That's what I'm going to do."

It was Billy's turn to look grave. Saturday was a day he had been counting for weeks. Father was going to see the ball game at Stamford—his own college. And Billy never wanted anything so much as he wanted to go with him.

"You wouldn't let me stay home just for that?" asked Billy.

"I'd be ashamed to take a boy to college who couldn't remember a little thing like that. What do you suppose people would think?"

"They wouldn't know anything about it," suggested Billy.

"But I'd know. Now, young man, you have three days in which to make good. I'll take a walk around to the school next Friday and see if you know how much nine times nine amounts to."

"All right," agreed Billy. Be sure to come for I'll surely know by that time."

There were a great many other things to learn that week, and Billy found Friday had arrived with nine times nine still to be learned.

"But I can learn that in a minute," he said. "Nine times nine is—nine times nine is"—

He said it over and over to himself all morning. But the only time he got the right answer was when he looked in the book.

Books were put away at last, and the teacher began to give out questions. To Billy came the question:

"How much is nine times nine?"

"Seventy-one," answered Billy, feeling surely he was right.

Some one scraped his feet just then, and the teacher thought he had answered correctly.

"That's right, Billy, I'm glad," said Mr. Davidson.

But when Billy looked in his book, he found he had given the wrong answer. There was a lump in his throat as he went up and told Mr. Davidson. But there was a bigger lump when he saw his father come in.

"I've lost the ball game," he thought. But his father came up and shook his hand. "Billy," he said, "I'm proud to learn that there is one very important thing that you do know. You know how to be truthful even at the risk of losing a ball game. Now you go master that multiplication while I talk with Mr. Davidson."

With his father's commendation still ringing in his ears, Billy went to work with a will, and came off conqueror.—Ida Alexander, in the Sunbeam.

CLEANLINESS OF ANIMALS.

Some people believe that animals prefer uncleanliness, at least that they do not care. Most people have seen the house cat "doll up" by the use of her tongue and paws, but they would be surprised to learn that most other animals, too, prefer to keep clean. I have heard more than one stockman say that cows would stand all night rather than lie down on badly soiled bedding. Sometimes horses all but speak their gratitude to the keeper who curries them. Dogs, too, especially among the house pets, generally show aversion to filth. I have known a fox terrier and a cocker spaniel who would invariably wipe muddy paws on the door-mat before entering the house. Of course, they had been trained, but they learned with significant ease. The terrier once worried himself nearly sick over a smear of green paint on his pretty coat.

All animals of the cat family use the tongue for toilet purposes, washing the face by moistening the paws and rubbing them over the eyes and nose. The prickles on the tongue make a good comb, and enable puss to polish her coat very satisfactorily. These prickles (or papellae) on the lion's tongue are nearly a quarter of an inch long and can be used with the severity of a blacksmith's rasp, when the animal so desires. The rabbit washes its face just as the cat does; and mice and bats also rely greatly on licking.

The honey-bee carries its comb in the foreleg and uses it to clean the antennae. Some beetles are similarly equipped with a comb, which forms a deep notch protected by a spine at the lower end of the front tibia. Flies of all sorts use the fine fur on their legs as a comb for their wings and bodies.

Owls, herons, cormorants, and other birds use the foot for a comb, the claw of the middle toe. Larks and some ducks have a saw-like blade running along the inner side of the claw.

Snakes soak themselves; elephants dust themselves and enjoy their bath. Buffaloes, tigers and some bears like to wallow; the polar bear likes his frigid dive, and spends half his time in the icy arctic waters. Monkeys scratch themselves continually, and this is more an effort at self-currying than a search for parasites. The horse, both wild and domesticated, likes his roll. That wild beasts attach considerable importance to ablutions and drinking is evidenced by their behavior toward each other at the "water hole" when they are seldom attacked by others not of their own kind.

Nearly all birds believe in personal neatness; some take great pains to pluck out with their bills all frayed or ill-shaped feathers. They separate their feathers and carefully pick out all particles of refuse. Pigeons, cockatoos and larks like their bath in the form of a copious rain; game birds and poultry prefer the dust bath; but the sparrow loves to combine these styles—he takes a dry dust shampoo, then plunges into the water.

Close observation will show that practically all insects and animals have some way of preserving cleanliness. The observer will be struck by the pride that most of our dumb friends manifest. From the prancing race horse and strutting peacock down to the humble bat, each has some degree of pride. Watch the care with which the butterfly folds its beautiful wings before going to sleep; some of us are not nearly so careful of our clothes, on retiring.—Our Dumb Animals.

WHICH WAS THE DEBTOR?

A mother found under her plate at breakfast one morning a bill made out by her small son, aged eight:

Mother Owes Bradley.

For running errands	$ .25
For being good	.10
For taking music lessons	.15
For extras	.05
Total	$ .55

Mother smiled, but made no comment. At lunch Bradley found the bill under his own plate, with fifty-five cents, and another piece of paper, neatly folded, like the first. Opening it he head:

Bradley Owes Mother.

For nursing him through scarlet fever	nothing
For being good to him	nothing
For clothes, shoes and playthings	nothing
For his playroom	nothing
For his meals	nothing
Total	nothing

What do you think the boy did? Can you suggest how best to have anticipated his presentation of the demand for services rendered?—Money the Acid Test, David McConaughy.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

JUST A REMINDER.

The special Centenary edition of the Advocate, announcement of which was made last week, will be issued probably the first week in May. It is our purpose to put it in the hands of our people at the time that will be most effective in helping them to see how far-reaching and how vitally important the Centenary movement really is. It is our hope to make it one of the most effective campaign documents that can be prepared for circulation in this territory.

Extra copies of this edition can be had for 3 cents a copy in lots of ten or more to one address; single copies will cost 5 cents. We have put the price at a figure that makes it possible to put the paper into thousands of homes where it does not ordinarily go. One presiding elder has written us that he purposes to see that it goes into every Methodist home in his district. We cannot imagine a better thing by way of preparation for the "Big Drive" of May 18-25.

Our reminder is this: Be sure to send in your orders for extra copies as soon as possible. We must know in advance how many copies to print, and it will take time and work to prepare the mailing list and get the paper in the mails promptly. Please make all remittances by money order or stamps. If you send a check, add 10 cents for collection. This is a charge that we have to pay the banks for every out-of-town check we receive, and it amounts to a heavy item during the year. Let the orders come in.

WHERE ARE THEY?

It has become a kind of habit with us to study the types of people that compose the congregations in the churches where we worship. We are not sure that we are always correct in our conclusions; but we are sure that the number of workingmen who attend church in communities where we have lived is negligible. We mean by workingmen those who earn their living by manual labor. The church attendance of men is restricted almost entirely to those who are engaged in business for themselves or to those who hold salaried positions. The laborers are not in evidence.

Their absence is all the more striking when we remember that the laboring men compose a very large percentage of our population, and that the material welfare of our country is dependent almost entirely upon their toil. Even a threatened strike of the men engaged in any particular line of work is enough to bring consternation to a large part of the industrial world. And their influence and power in the serious affairs of life are attested by the efforts of all parties to gain their favor. It is not too much, perhaps, to say that the laboring men largely control the destiny of all civilized countries to-day.

Where do these men spend their Sundays? It is not enough to say that they ought to go to church—they do not; and, so far as we are able to see, there is no present indication that they intend to change their ways. Actually or theoretically, they seem to have come to the conclusion that they do not need the church—it does not seem to enter at all into their plans or methods of thinking. They go their way and leave the church to its own devices. If they suffer in consequence, they apparently are not aware of it; and if the church suffers, it is none of their affair.

We are not inclined to dogmatize about the situation, but we know very well that it presents a serious state of affairs. We need to give it the utmost consideration.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR THE GOSPEL.

There is a kind of "hand-to-mouth" preaching that makes use of current topics as a means of meeting the inexorable demands of the pulpit for two sermons a Sunday. It involves comparatively little labor on the part of the preacher, and it satisfies a certain craving of the average congregation for a more or less sensational discourse. Its defect is that it leaves practically untouched the deep sources of spiritual life and fails to produce character that can stand the tests of discouragement and temptation.

The hunger of the human heart for a message that can strengthen faith, confirm hope, and make perfect in love, can be satisfied only by the proclamation of the truth revealed in the life and teachings of Jesus Christ. Ethical discourses have a certain intellectual quality that appeals to the man who lays supreme emphasis upon morality as such, but they leave a void in the heart of the man who is yearning for a power that will enable him to overcome sin. This power can be found only in the gospel.

The great preachers of Christendom, whose work abides in the influence they still exert for righteousness, have been men who, week by week and year by year, interpreted to those who waited upon their ministry the deep things of God. By prayer and meditation and laborious searching after the truth, they equipped themselves as teachers of men. When they stood in their places in the pulpit, they had a message to deliver that had been shaped in the recesses of their own souls through counsel with the Infinite. Their reliance was not in the columns of the daily newspapers or the incidental happenings of their own communities. And the hungry hearts that waited before them were fed with the bread of heaven.

The world to-day is full of people who are hungering and thirsting after righteousness; and the gospel is still sufficient to meet all their needs. The faithful preacher will strive earnestly to give them the only thing known under heaven that will satisfy and save them—the gospel of the Son of God, for which there can be no substitute.

THE METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW FOR APRIL.

The prospectus of the April number of the Review promises much to those who are disposed to keep in touch with modern thought. Some of the timely articles announced are as follows: "The Father of Modern Democracy," by the Editor; "Christianity and Democracy," by Dr. C. M. Bishop; "The Book of Unity," by John Wright Buckham; "War and Brotherhood," by R. T. Webb; "The Poet of Democracy," by Bowen; "The Mission of America," by W. B. Duncan; "Wanderings of the Proviso," by John J. Ransom; "The Sin of Over-Legislation," by Temple Bodley; "Religion in the Public Schools," by Ernest Lloyd; "Our Paramount Social Problems," by the Secretary of the Southern Sociological Congress;" "At the Grave of John Stewart," by the Editor. In addition to these articles, some of the great texts of the Resurrection will be interpreted, several editorials on subjects of interest will be given, and important books will be reviewed. No preacher ought to be without this great journal of our own Church, and thoughtful laymen will receive great profit from its pages if they will read it. The April number is of special interest in view of the present world unrest. It may be ordered from Smith & Lamar, Agents, Dallas, Tex., or Nashville, Tenn. The subscription price is $2.00 a year, or fifty cents a single number.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. T. J. Embree, of Slidell, La., writes that all goes well on his charge.

Rev. J. Early Gray, our pastor at Magnolia, Miss., reports that his work is in a prosperous condition. The church attendance is especially gratifying.

We are indebted to that staunch layman, Brother B. F. Goza, of Magnolia, Miss., for a fine list of renewal subscriptions to the Advocate. He is, indeed, a loyal Methodist.

The work at Roxie, Miss., is making progress. The pastor, Rev. W. P. Bailey, has reorganized the Sunday schools on the charge, and a fine prayer meeting is maintained at Roxie.

Rev. S. D. Howard, the faithful pastor of our church at Winnsboro, La., has raised $68.00 for Armenian and Syrian Relief and forwarded the amount to the proper authorities. He has done a good work.

The Chester charge, North Mississippi Conference, is composed of a big-hearted, loyal people, according to the pastor, Rev. J. C. McElroy. They are planning and praying for great success in the work of the Church this year.

Rev. W. H. Lane is pastor of our Rankin Street church, Jackson, Miss. All departments of his work are well organized, and the people show their appreciation of the preacher and his family by many thoughtful acts of kindness.

Mrs. N. H. Heath, of Fitler, Miss., writes of the pleasure she has in reading the Advocate and to be sure that she does not miss any of its issues, she renews her subscription for two years. We thank her for her words of appreciation.

Dr. Julius Magath, of Atlanta, Ga., who is engaged in missionary work among the Jews honored the Advocate office with a call on Saturday of last week. He spoke at the Carrollton Avenue church Sunday morning, and at Second Church at night.

Rev. W. A. Hays, our pastor at Newton, Miss., sends us greetings from Blue Ridge, N. C., where he is attending the Y. M. C. A. Reconstruction Conference. Several Mississippi preachers, and laymen, he states, are in attendance at the Conference.

Hon. Geo. R. Nobles, of Raleigh, Miss., does not profess to be a member of the "Old Guard," though he has been reading the Advocate since his boyhood days. He says he cannot afford to do without it. He writes appreciatively of his pastor, Rev. E. H. Cooley.

The first quarterly conference of the Scott and charge, Mississippi Conference, showed a marked increase in the amount paid on the pastor's salary over previous years. Rev. W. W. Nelson is the pastor, and he reports that his people are interested in the Centenary movement.

Rev. W. J. Walters, pastor of the Waynesboro circuit, Mississippi Conference, writes that thirty-three people signed tithing cards at his services last Sunday. A great blessing will come to those good people as a result of their adoption of this approved system of giving to the work of the Church.

The pastor and the official board of First Church, Baton Rouge, La., have set apart the week of April 6-13 for a protracted meeting. The preaching will be done by the pastor, Rev. C. A. Battle, and the music will be provided by local talent. We pray that great good may result from these services.

Rev. E. C. Driskell, our pastor at Greenwood Springs, Miss., reports that his work is making satisfactory progress, and that he expects to raise all the assessments on his charge. The stewards have advanced his salary $110 over last year's assessment, and the people have generously supplied the parsonage pantry with many good things.

We have received from Rev. Paul M. Brown, of De Ridder, La., the March numbers of the Methodist Messenger, issued by him in the interest of his charge. They contain much matter that cannot fail to be helpful to his people. Brother Brown states that the outlook for the year is encouraging. His two fine sons, Perry and Paul, are still in France.

Beginning on Monday evening, April 7, Dr. U. G. Foote, the pastor of Rayne Memorial Church, this city, will hold services each evening, except Saturday, until Easter. The general theme of the discourses will be, "What We Believe and Why."

According to information received by us, the following are the figures for last Sunday in the Sunday school attendance contest now being carried on by several Louisiana Sunday schools: Ruston, 489; Lake Charles, 418; Noel Memorial, 417; Mansfield, 295; Alexandria, 289; Baton Rouge, 236; Monroe, 171.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Louisiana Conf. Centenary secretary, is aggressively pushing his work. District councils were held at Crowley on March 26, and at Shreveport on March 28. The Shreveport District has made the best record thus far in organization and attendance at the council meeting. This is a tribute to the indefatigable efforts of Brother R. E. Bobbitt, the district campaign director, and Rev. C. D. Atkinson, the presiding elder, and the loyal preachers and laymen who are cooperating with them. Hon. C. M. Roberts, the campaign director of the Ruston District, attended the Shreveport council. Lake Charles, in the Lafayette District, has the best local church organization. Rev. W. W. Holmes is pastor and Brother J. W. Baker is the church campaign director.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

Boston University, which is a Methodist institution, has enrolled 4255 students this year.

The Salvation Army has planned to carry on a Home Service Fund campaign during the week of May 19-26.

We saw the statement recently that there are 30,000 students of college grade in Tokyo, Japan, and that 27,000 of them definitely registered as having no religion.

The fiftieth anniversary of our St. John's Church, St. Louis, Mo., will be celebrated with an elaborate program and appropriate ceremonies during the week of May 4-11.

It has been reported that 30,000 Methodists of China have taken $750,000 as their Centenary quota. The Chinese Christians are evidently well advanced in the grace of giving.

We have been informed that St. John's Church, St. Louis, has one layman who will give $100,000 a year for five years to the Centenary, and several will give $50,000 for five years. This great church will probably give $1,500,000, according to reports.

The General Sunday School Board, in co-operation with the Conference Sunday School Boards, is working out a system of training schools designed ultimately to reach throughout all the Conferences and centers of the Church. This year a school of this system will be held at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, June 10-17, for the West, and at Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 25-August 6, for the East.

In as much as the Board of Missions has changed its date of meeting from May 8-9 to June 3, it has been deemed wise to call the regular Annual Meeting of the Board of Church Extension in Louisville on May 8-9. This will avoid conflicting dates as the bishops were planning to be in Nashville for the meeting of the Board of Missions on this date. The meeting of the Conference Board representatives will be held in Louisville on May 6-7, the days preceding the Annual Meeting of the Board.

PUBLICITY FOR THE CENTENARY.

I have been asked by the Missionary Centenary authorities to do my utmost to get news of the Centenary in the secular papers of Louisiana. To do this requires one of two things: You must either have the money to buy the space in secular papers and use that space to publish your news, or you must have some means of persuading the editors that what you write is real news and should be published without being paid for at advertising rates.

I have tried the latter method with a little success and some failure. I have mailed out articles to all the pastors in Louisiana where secular papers are published and requested them to try to get local newspapers to handle them as news. I will continue to do this. I trust that the preachers will carry the stuff to their papers. If they feel that the same story can be written to a better advantage, and more local color put into it, they have that privilege. But by all means the secular papers should carry news of the Centenary if we have to raise the money in towns where it is declined by editors and put it in on a paying basis.

A NOTE FROM REV. W. B. HOGG.

Having had many calls from various parts of Mississippi, I have arranged to set aside the month of May for lectures in this State. Owing to my physical inability to look after the details incident to fixing dates and routings, I have asked J. B. Holland, Meridian, Miss., to take charge of these details. Any one interested should address him.

CHILDREN OF MINISTERS LEADERS IN LIFE.

It is the children of ministers more than any other class who in England and America have been leaders in art, science and literature. More than any others are they the authors, teachers, college professors, journalists and professional men of note. Nor are their names wanting among successful men in business and politics; witness Woodrow Wilson, the present President of the United States.

A few months ago an article appeared in the Popular Science Monthly containing the following statements: "The English Dictionary of National Biography gives these figures: A comparison of eminent men (of England) shows 1270 to be the sons of clergymen, 510 the sons of lawyers, 350 the sons of doctors, one and a half times as many of the former as of both the latter." Names of some of these were Ben Jonson, Cowper, Goldsmith, Tennyson, Coleridge, Addison, Keats, Kingsley and Matthew Arnold. Daughters of clergymen were represented by Jane Austen, the Bronte sisters, Mrs. Gaskell and Lucas Malet (the daughter of Charles Kingsley).

In America the Who's Who, in a list of something less than 12,000 showed 898 to be the sons of clergymen. If the proportion had been the same as for the other professions and callings there should have been about fifty, but there were eighteen times that number. These included Justice Brewer, Senator Dolliver, Justice Hughes, Levi P. Morton and Presidents Faunce of Brown University, James of Illinois, Wright of Clark and Taylor of Vassar. Among famous professors are Lounsbury of Yale, James of Harvard and Sloane of Columbia. Others were the railroad king, Edward H. Harriman; W. H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools in New York city; Bishop Potter, Henry James, Governors Bates of Massachusetts and Kellogg of Louisiana, David J. Hill of the Department of State, Richard Watson Gilder, Lyman Abbott, William Hayes Ward; among the daughters are Catherine and Harriet Beecher, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Jeannette Gilder and Marshall Saunders.

The hall of fame at Washington has fifty-seven American names. Ten of these, almost a fifth, belong to the families of clergymen. They are Agassiz, Beecher, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry Clay, Jonathan Edwards, Emerson, Lowell, Morse, Bancroft and Holmes.—The Continent.

SORROW.

Strangely do some people talk of "getting over" a great sorrow—overleaping it, passing it by thrusting it into oblivion. Not so. No one ever does that—at least no nature which can be touched by the feeling of grief at all. The only way is to pass through the ocean of affliction solemnly, slowly, with humility and faith, as the Israelites passed through the sea. Then its very waves of misery will divide and become to us a wall on the right side and on the left, until the gulf narrows and narrows before our eyes, and we land safe on the opposite shore.—Dinah Muloch Craik.

What Many Especially Need.

In these days of strain and stress, anxiety and worry, many people become pale, nervous, dyspeptic, in a word, all run-down. Their condition calls especially for iron—but iron in a form in which it is pleasant to take, agreeable to the stomach, easily assimilated and non-constipating. Iron is combined in this form with nux, celery, pepsin and other tonics and digestives in Peptiron, a real iron tonic, which is accomplishing a great deal in restoring health and strength, vitality, vigor and vim.

Iron is indispensable to the perfect nutrition of the body. Peptiron supplies it in therapeutic doses, and in a remarkably short time seems to make a new and perfectly working system out of an old and broken-down one, enriching the blood, giving good color to the lips, cheeks and ears, and brightening the eyes. Peptiron is a product of the C. I. Hood Co., and is sold by all druggists.—Adv.

Freckles
There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.
Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

On the morning of Feb. 4, 1919, at 6:30, at her home at Bayou Current, La., the spirit of Mrs. ELIZABETH KELLER left the body for the mansions not made with hands. She lived a long life of usefulness, and was loved by all who knew her She was 62 years of age when God called her home. She was a member of the Big Cane Methodist Church. She was stricken with typhoid fever last October, and was confined to her bed until God called her home. She was good to everybody, especially her children and grandchildren. She also loved her pastor, Rev. H. B. Vandenburg, and begged so many times to see him while she was sick. She leaves to mourn their loss a husband, four daughters, one son and one sister, besides many relatives and friends. Only God knows how she suffered, but we all know that she was prepared to go, and she is now safe in the arms of Jesus, where she will suffer no more.

Her daughter,
FLORENCE.
Bayou Current, La., March 24.

SARAH HAMILTON PARKER died on February 14, 1919, and was buried by the writer on February 16, amid hosts of weeping relatives and friends. Sister Parker was born on June 8, 1837. She united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at an early age. She was the mother of seven children, five of whom survive her. Besides these there are forty-four grandchildren and twenty-one great-grandchildren who mourn the loss of a godly, consecrated grandmother. Her desire for the welfare of others was shown from childhood to the death-bed. Many cold nights found her spinning and making clothing for the soldiers of 1860-64. Demonstrating her skill, she recently wove a piece of cloth.

She could easily say, "I love my neighbor as myself." Her motherly care will be greatly missed by many who relied on her for the guidance of their physical beings and regarded her spiritual advice as of the very best. Those who knew her best loved her most. May her many friends profit by the influence of her unselfish life of sacrifice for others and God. God bless her mourning loved ones and make them know that our loss was her eternal gain. Her pastor,

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God, in His infinite wisdom and love, has seen fit to remove from our midst one of our most devoted and beloved members, co-worker and friend, Mrs. M. B. Larguler; be it resolved:

1. That we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Keener Memorial M. E. Church, South, of Baton Rouge, La., with sorrowing hearts bow in submission to the will of the loving Father, feeling that He knoweth best and doeth all things well.

2. That this faithful and substantial member, loving daughter and sister, constant friend and unselfish helper, may prove to be as a guardian angel and a daily inspiration to her loved ones and to the members of our Society.

3. That we desire to express to the aged mother, faithful brother and family our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy; and while we know that our loss is her gain, may we truly realize that God and Heaven are nearer because of this treasure that is now over there.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon our minutes, and a copy be sent to the local press and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. O. H. Cline, Mrs. J. D. Doyle, Miss Stella Murphy, Committee.

THE MOVING METHODIST.

By Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

For some time I have wondered just what is the proper thing to do with a church member who has moved nearer to another Methodist church than to the one to which he or she belongs. It is not practical to draw parish lines in cities, and certainly there is no need of it in the country, but there is a problem of the moving member just the same. I have been accused of poaching on another man's field because I was able to interest one of his members in church services in my congregation, when, by the member's own confession, he had not been at a service at his own church for more than six months and had not supported it for more than a year.

I do not think it wise to take any steps to influence a church member who is within reach of his own church if he is attending services and supporting the church, but when a Methodist moves closer to another Methodist church, ceases to attend his former church and ceases to support it, I think it is time to have his membership transferred to the church closest to him. In this way the pastor of the church closest to him can bring pressure to bear to bring him into the services and he may be interested. It should be a fixed rule that when a Methodist moves from one town to another that the pastor elther send his church letter to the pastor of the church in the town to whlch he has gone, or else write that preacher and in that way bring him in touch with the Church.

There are many Methodists in Bogalusa whose names I do not know. Other preachers have their names on the books of their church. They should send me those letters or write me about them. I should do the same with the Methodists on my roll who live in Columbia, Slidell, Covington, New Orleans and other little villages. You need not look for the name of the fellow who is still supporting the Bogalusa church. He amounts to a little to us and may be planning to come back soon. It is the fellow who has moved and ceased to pay here that I want moved and saved to the Church.

Bogalusa, La., March 20.

FROM AMORY, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Though I served as a supply in the North Mississippi Conference for 23 consecutive years, until 3 years ago, my health falled me and I had to drop out. I am now located in a little town five miles south of Amory, in Monroe County. I was licensed to preach rather late in life and never joined the Conference for reasons I thought best. But at the close of my third year as a local preacher, I was drafted into actlve service and remalned there as long as I was able. So you see I was a local itinerant preacher, if there could be such a thing as that. Quite a number of the preachers who were in active service when I first entered the work have dropped out, some of whom are on the retired list, while many others whom I was well acquainted with and loved dearly have crossed over the river and gone on, I trust, to enjoy heaven with all that heaven is. But as these drop out others fall in line and the work of the Lord goes on, and will to the end of time.

May the Lord bless you in the great work in which you are engaged.

Your brother,
L. T. SARGENT.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in quickly healing the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth), into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have a full pint—a family supply—of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is known the world over for its promptness, ease and certainty in overcoming stubborn coughs and chest colds.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

IN MISERY FOR YEARS

Mrs. Courtney Tells How She Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 108 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

"BAYER CROSS" ON ASPIRIN

Always Ask for Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin"

Only Aspirin Tablets with the safety "Bayer Cross" on them are genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," owned and made by Americans and proved safe by millions of people. Unknown quantities of fraudulent Aspirin Tablets were sold recently by a Brooklyn dealer which proved to be composed mostly of Talcum Powder.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" should always be asked for. Then look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on each tablet. Accept nothing else! Proper directions and dosage in each Bayer package.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Coca-Cola

Why Coca-Cola is so refreshing

The refreshing quality of Coca-Cola, which has made it a favorite with the millions, is the result of three factors which are entirely natural and wholesome.

First—Coca-Cola is prepared with cold, carbonated water, which alone is quite refreshing.

Second—Coca-Cola contains natural fruit flavorings, which, with pure sugar, are very refreshing.

Third—Coca-Cola contains a purified extract from tea, called caffein, which is both wholesome and refreshing.

Coca-Cola may therefore be described as "a cold, carbonated, fruit-flavored improvement upon tea, of approximately one-fourth the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Here is a list, in addition to the one sent in last week, of the Sunday schools that have accepted their Five-Cent Allotment: Houston, Tremont, Smithville, Vardaman, Brooksville, New Albany, Richland, Grenada, Kilmichael. So far, the Aberdeen District has sent in reports from seven schools; the Columbus, two; the Corinth, one; the Durant, four; the Greenville, two; the Holly Springs, four; the Sardis, two; the Winona, four. Let us find out who is responsible for having the Sunday school accept the Five-Cent Allotment and for mailing the card to Rev. J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn. The responsibility is on the bishop, the presiding elder, the pastor, the field secretary, the district secretary, but the man most responsible is the superintendent of the Sunday school. More is depending upon the superintendents than ever in the history of the Church. For once in your life, Brother Superintendent, you have a job worth doing. You are not going to fail the Church you love so well in this crisis.

Listen to this: "Every Sunday school in the Ardmore District, West Oklahoma Conference, takes its Allotment in full and goes 'over the top' for the Centenary." The race is now on to see which Conference will be the first to report "over the top." The men are at their guns, the battle is on, and all Methodism will pay homage to the first Sunday School Board reporting in full.

Here is an important point to remember, "Each local Church Centenary Director will have a report to make at the close of the Eight-Day Drive, which will carry blanks for amount subscribed to the Centenary by each church member, amount subscribed by the Sunday school on the Five-Cent Allotment, amount subscribed by the Epworth League on the African Special, amount raised in 1918 by Woman's Missionary Society on dues and pledges, and amount raised in 1918 on assessment for Foreign, Home and Conference Missions, and Church Extension. Will your Sunday school fill the blank place made for it? Do this one thing and let us get at something else.

The next thing is to order your Sunday School Day programs from R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss. If you order from the Publishing House, they will be charged to you; if you order from the Field Secretary, the Sunday School Board pays for them. The order blank has been mailed to you or to your pastor; fill it out and send it in to-day.

The next thing we must look after is The Southern Methodist Sunday School Membership Campaign, May 12-24, 1919. We have lost thousands out of the Sunday schools during the last two years. We must go after them and get them back. Let us give the soldier boys a double welcome and give them something to do; they know how to do big things and they will do them thoroughly. Put them in the lead and try them.

Every man that is any account is getting a lot of mail from headquarters; you may not need to read all of it, but read enough to see what ought to be done. If you cannot get your Missionary Committee to give the program, call them to their knees; when you cannot get any part of the Church machinery to move, you need to pray more and you need help from others in prayer. We have no financial problem and never have had; it is a praying problem.

NOTES FROM MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

I am glad to see that the Louisiana Federation was such a fine success; am sorry to have missed it. I had planned to go.

I received notice to-day that the Junaluska School for Sunday School Workers will hold its session beginning July 23, lasting through August 6. This is a rare opportunity for those who desire to come in contact with the best ideas in Sunday school work.

The third Sunday was spent with Brother C. H. Strait, on the Shiloh charge. Finkbine Camps and Johns were visited. I hope to be able to drop in at another time and complete the rest of the Shiloh charge. They are a fine people and are doing a mighty good work.

From Thursday through Monday was spent at Fernwood. I felt that we had a profitable visit. This is a fine folk and they are planning to do great things, I feel, for the young life of the community.

I really believe that the most profitable meetings have been the week-day meetings. Putting God first and our conveniences next is a mighty good way to be present when God is passing around the blessings.

Those who have not signed the cards for the Centenary pledge, do so. Many are doing more than what the pledge calls for already.

Above all else pray for me and the work.

Mrs. Brame made a fine impression at Fernwood. I was mighty glad of her help. She will do your church and Sunday school, both, good.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Let every Sunday school measure up to the New Standard of Efficiency III Rank. I would like to have every school attaining III Rank report to me.

The W. B. Class Federation was a great inspiration to schools of the Conference.

Your Secretary has been visiting schools in New Orleans the past week. Let us make much of Easter in our schools. Have a program in your teachers' meeting leading up to a decision for Christ. Report to me items of interest in same.

Remember your pledge to Centenary. Make it if you have not already done so.

Plan special activities for your Sunday school and write me about it and I'll co-operate with you. Pastors who serve a circuit, get several of them together and invite your presiding elder and field secretary to come and spend all day with you.

Make Sunday School Day a great day for your school and church.

ALONZO EARLY,
Field Secretary.

NOTES FROM SUNDAY SCHOOL HEADQUARTERS.

The Teacher-training Department announces the following enrollments during the week ending March 26:

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD.

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Weekly Health Talks

The Many Mysteries of Nature

BY L. W. BOWER, M. D.

You can take an onion seed and a pansy seed, and plant them side by side in the same spot of ground. In one case, you get an onion, with its peculiarly strong odor, and in the other you get a flower of rare beauty. You can plant a poppy seed and get opium (a dangerous, habit-forming drug), or you can plant a rhubarb seed and get something that helps constipation. No scientist, living or dead, can explain these mysteries of Nature. Behind the invisible life germ in each seed is hidden the deep secret that nobody understands. Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, bearing-down pains, periodical irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it.

Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in America because it contains no alcohol and no narcotic. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. for trial pkg. Tablets.

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, J. R. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.

NEED THIS SPRING

Is greater than ever before.

The debilitating effects of the terrible influenza, grip and pneumonia,—

The depletion of the blood by indoor life in Winter,—

Have tremendously overdrawn the reserve strength of nearly every man and woman.

For your impure, exhausted blood, and for that extreme tired feeling sure to come, prepare yourself now.

Today begin to recover your lost strength by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the standard Spring medicine and blood purifier, which creates a keen appetite, aids digestion and assimilation. Remember Hood's Pills if you need a mild laxative.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity, will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.—Adv

Coughs Worse at Night

WATERFORD CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: Please give me space for a few lines in your paper, as I would like to write a few lines.

We got to our new field on December 18, and found the parsonage in bad condition. So we stayed with Brother J. K. Brooks until we could get things adjusted. We haven't done much yet; have had bad weather and "flu." But the people of Waterford charge have been very good in bringing us many good things for our table.

We have the lumber on the ground to repair the parsonage, and the work started. I think in a short time we will have a house for a preacher to live in that the people will not be ashamed of. We have received by letter five. I hope to send you some names for the Advocate soon.

Lemons Whiten and Beautify the Skin! Make Cheap Lotion

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen, and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful for rough, red hands.

Your druggist will sell three ounces of orchard white at little cost, and any grocer will supply the lemons.

REPORT OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The eighth annual meeting of the Mississippi Conference Woman's Missionary Society was held in the historic town of Natchez, March 7-11. The opening session was in the nature of a delightfully informal reception in the spacious Sunday school room, so recently remodeled and beautified by the women of the church.

Gracious words of greeting were spoken by one of our hostesses, Miss Mabel Porter, with a response by Mrs. H. L. McCleskey in her inimitable manner. Inspiring music, several charming readings by Miss Crutcher, and dainty refreshments made this an evening long to be remembered.

Saturday morning Rev. W. H. Saunders administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Immediately afterward followed a memorial service for our dear Mrs. La Prade, conducted by Mrs. R. F. Harrell. An exquisite bouquet of calla lilies and ferns rested upon the altar during the service, and at its close was sent to Dr. La Prade as a token of love for her whose memory we honor and revere.

Reports from the various Conference officers showed the work to be in a good condition. Mrs. Middleton, first vice president, brought out the fact that numerically the Young People's Societies were not as strong as in 1917, but financially they were ahead. Falling off in numbers was due to the fact that many had engaged in various forms of war work. Eight Y. P. S. had attained the Honor Roll—Waynesboro, Wesson, Galloway Memorial (Jackson), Gibson Memorial (Vicksburg), Forest, Canton, and Newton.

During the year twenty-three young women have volunteered for definite service. There are eight young women in training at Scarritt from Mississippi. A telegram was received from the "Mississippi Club" saying they were praying for the Spirit's outpouring on the meeting.

Miss Drake was detained at home by illness in her family, but her report showed she had not been idle during the year, for the work among the children had gone steadily forward.

Mrs. Butterfield, Superintendent of Social Service, stressed the importance of reporting the "littles." Many auxiliaries are doing their "bit" to improve social conditions, yet do not think it worth while to report same; this is an injustice to the Conference officer and to the whole work.

Mrs. Dunn reported 32 boxes sent to the Wesley Houses, a number to the Orphanage, as well as cash to all these institutions.

The address of the president, Mrs. Lewis, was one of inspiration and encouragement. She stated with joy that we had just come to the close of the best year in the history of our work; $12,501.38 had been sent to the Conference treasurer, and $27,483.86 was the total amount raised during the year. Mrs. Lewis stressed the fact that never before were we so ready to meet our opportunity. She also said that the heathen are waiting to see what a praying Church is going to do. She felt confident the Mississippi women would not be found wanting, and after enumerating several important tasks closed by saying, "Now then, do it."

Mrs. Hargrove, who was detained by illness in her family, sent a message to the women, saying they were just as responsible for the success of the Centenary as the men; and that every woman and child above twelve years of age must be urged to make a contribution to this great movement.

The Jackson District is the best organized in the Conference, there being a Woman's Missionary Society for every charge. The district secretaries as a whole sounded a very optimistic note. In almost every instance an increase in number of auxillaries, finances and spiritual growth was noted. The needs of our different mission fields were rapidly and clearly surveyed by the secretaries, and many interesting facts were brought out about the work and workers.

Sunday morning Rev. J. L. Neill, Centenary Secretary, addressed a large audience, using as his subject, "The Centenary, Its Story and Its Goal." This was to have been presented to the Conference by Mrs. Hargrove, but circumstances prevented her being present.

He brought out very clearly the fact that the growth of Wesleyan Arminian doctrine goes hand in hand with that of world democracy. The world at this period is hanging in the balance, and with it Methodism is hanging in the balance. The result of the Centenary movement will prove how Methodists measure up to the challenge. As Christ spoke to the disciples to feed the multitudes, he speaks to us through the Centenary and says, "Feed ye them."

Sunday night Brother Neill gave his stereopticon lecture, "Making Democracy Safe." It added emphasis to the words of the morning sermon, and thrilled and inspired the hearts of all, as changed conditions in our various fields were so graphically portrayed.

The women of the Conference heartily endorsed the League of Nations, and pledged their prayers and loyalty to our great President. A resolution to this effect was drawn up and unanimously adopted.

Perhaps one of the most inspiring occasions of the Conference was the "Pledge Hour." After all pledges had been made it was found that the Mississippi Conference had raised her pledge one thousand dollars. While we were grateful for this additional increase of material substance, we thanked God for the spirit of loving sacrifice which made it possible.

Prayer was offered for the restoration to health of Miss Olive Lipscomb and that her fine missionary work might continue in China.

Miss Ida Shannon spoke in an interesting manner of her work in Japan, talking to us of the customs and political conditions of the country.

President, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, Jackson; First Vice President, Mrs. Z. D. Clark, Vicksburg; Second Vice Pres-

The Most Valuable Tonic Strength and Blood Builder Any Physician Can Prescribe.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, one of the greatest musical genius of the age, at a time when his untiring work for Poland overtaxed his strength and impaired his health had recourse to Nuxated Iron to help rebuild his wasted forces and restore his old-time health and strength.

"With the tremendous strain imposed by over two years of almost ceaseless work in the cause of his father-land, of which he is the foremost figure today, it is easily understood why Paderewski sought the sustaining tonic benefit of Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of the virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. To help make strong sturdy men of blood and iron there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron." Mr. Paderewski says: "I am using Nuxated Iron very frequently and consider it as an excellent tonic."

Ignace Jan Paderewski the new Polish Premier who took Nuxated Iron when he was in a weak and run-down condition and needed something to build up strength and energy.

Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine, says: "If people would only realize that iron is just as indispensable to the blood as is air to the lungs and be just as particular about keeping up a sufficient supply at all times, there would in my opinion be far less disease resulting from anaemic, weakened conditions.

"Nuxated Iron, by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy into the whole system whether the patients be young or old. In my opinion Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood-builder any physician can prescribe."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

"I Believe Alkavis Saved My Life!"

Green Forest, Ark., April 25, 1909.
The Alkavis Co.

Gentlemen:—I was bothered with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for about twelve years, and finally got so I could not walk without a cane and had to be careful how I stepped. I tried everything I could get that was recommended for it, but nothing did me any good until I tried Alkavis. I sent for a bottle, which did me more good than anything I had tried. I then sent for six bottles of it, and it cured me. I advise all sufferers from Kidney or Bladder Trouble to try Alkavis, for I believe that it saved my life.

Yours truly,

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Excerpts from Report of the Annual Meeting just held at Mansfield:

About 100 Young Christian Workers were subscribed for by the delegates, most of them to be sent to children of our institutions, French Mission, Houma, Ruston Orphanage, Mary Werlein and St. Mark's Hall. We need another hundred subscriptions to make up our quota. Send them promptly to Mrs. R. H. Harper, or to the newly appointed Second Vice President, Mrs. Elma Drew, Mansfield.

There were over seventy subscriptions taken for the Council Bulletin. The quota for Louisiana is one hundred. In order to furnish the Bulletin at the price of twenty-five cents, each State is asked for a quota. Send your subscription to Miss Lena Freeman, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. Send shortly, don't put it off. The Council meets April 2-8 at Memphis, Tenn.

Mission Study Books went like "hot cakes" at the Conference. Of course, the Centenary Study Books were the most in demand, "Making America Safe" and "Adventures in Faith in Foreign Lands." For the Young People, "Ancient Peoples at New Tasks" is charmingly written, simple in style and thrilling in subject matter. It is so fascinating that it can easily be read at a sitting. Among the books in Bible Study Course, "The Meaning of Prayer" by Fosdick was most in demand. "Thirty Studies about Christ," though intended for Intermediates, is excellent and was chosen by several Adult Superintendents.

We hope to give the full report of the Annual meeting of the Louisiana Conference in next week's issue.

The missionary women of Louisiana hope to go forward in Social Service work during the year 1919. A resolution was passed at the recent meeting at Mansfield to specialize in our work for the foreigner and the negro.

WHAT ONE AUXILIARY DID.

At the regular literary-social meeting of the Ruston Woman's Missionary Society, quite an innovation was introduced by the capable chairman of programs, Mrs. Alice Cary McKinney. She had invited the President of the Colored Missionary Society to meet with the auxiliary and with her came a delegation from her society, eight in number. The subject discussed was "Africa." A large missionary map was used so that the visitors could be shown the exact location of the country which was their original home. They were most appreciative and expressed a great desire to get any old material that has been used in our Sunday schools or auxiliaries, as their need of such help is great. When the President was called on by the presiding officer, she made a very remarkable talk, addressing the body as "Mistress of ceremonies and Ladies," appreciating the spirit of helpfulness exhibited by the ladies in inviting her and her sisters to be present. She had been requested to speak on her problems. She said the scope of their work was chiefly home missionary in character, for as yet they could only pray and think of their brothers in Africa, not being able to send them money now. They, however, support the Homer College at Homer, La., which is doing a good work educationally for her people. She said one of the things they are trying to do is to give their preacher a living wage and to improve the conditions of the homes as much as possible. The wife of the colored presiding elder was present and when called on said, "I tell you, it seems to me since we have been here, I could just feel the Spirit a-movin'." She gave the ladies a cordial invitation to come out and meet with them, which will be accepted at an early date.

The visitors were asked to sing and responded in "God will take care of you."

As a result of this meeting, several of the Negro women employed by their Methodist sisters got off from their work to attend church Sunday.

Calomel Salivates and Makes You Sick

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

Watch Your Blood Supply, Don't Let Impurities Creep In Pure Blood Means Perfect Health.

The average druggist has handled hundreds of medicines in his day, some of which have long since been forgotten.

But there is one that has been sold by the druggists throughout this country, for more than fifty years, and that is S. S. S., the reliable blood medicine, that is purely vegetable. Many druggists have seen wonderful results accomplished among their customers by this great old medicine, and they know that S. S. S. is one of the most reliable blood purifiers ever made. Keep your blood free of impurities by the use of this honest old medicine, and if you want medical advice, you can obtain same without cost by writing to Medical Director, Swift Specific Co., 28 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

A NOTE FROM DURANT.

Dear Brother Carley: Yesterday the Missionary Centenary instruction workers held a meeting here. The District Director, Hon. J. W. Conger, presided. Dr. A. E. Clement, and Conference Director Hall, conducted the exercises. They claimed that the attendance was better than usual. Our presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Mitchell and pastor, Rev. A. C. McCorkle, were both present, and a great many of the preachers of the district; also many directors of the local churches. The outlook is encouraging.

Our pastor, Brother McCorkle, is doing a fine work. Since Conference the debt on our new church building amounting to about $1900, has been paid. About $150 has been paid for furnishing the parsonage, more than $100 has been paid to the orphans, and the collections for the support of the ministry are far in advance of any previous year. The pastor's salary assessment was raised $300 over last year. The pastor has now, in bank, the full amount of all the Conference claims on this charge.

Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo will dedicate the new building the first Sunday in June. We would be glad to have the Editor of the Advocate with us then. Our church is a gem and is worth between $20,000 and $25,000.

With best wishes,

F. A. HOWELL.

FROM ARTESIA, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We are carrying out the Centenary program in our church, and our people are very enthusiastic over the plan. We are going over the top with ours. In as much as the General Conference modified the time limit, and this is my fourth year on the Artesia charge, I will ask you not to say anything about what I am going to tell you. But we have one of the best charges in Mississippi, at Artesia. Our people are big-hearted and broad-minded, and have not only the desire to do things, but the determination as well.

This church is in its second year of station life, and pays its assessments on everything, and does'nt grumble about it. Our beloved P. E., Brother W. L. Duren, held our second quarterly conference a few days ago. We had a very good conference. Brother Duren is a very fine elder, also a very fine preacher, and that is not all—he is a very fine man. We are very fond of him on the district. Everything bids fair for a good year, and full reports. We are happy in the work.

Yours fraternally,

T. J. HALFACRE.

Artesia, Miss., March 24.

A WORD FROM RIALS, ON MAGEE CHARGE.

At present I am serving as pastor of the Magee Methodist charge, which includes preaching at Rials on each fourth Sunday. On my February visit out there, I was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Welch and Mr. and Mrs. Ike May. Thrift and its rewards appear in and about the homes of these citizens. On my recent March trip, besides calling at several other places, I was entertained in the home of Mr. Isom K. Brown, another reliable citizen of Simpson County, whose house overlooks the country for four or five miles back towards Magee. The good Book exhorts: "Sow beside all waters; in the morning sow thy seed; in the evening withhold not thy hand." About eight years ago Mr. Brown's daughter found among her Christmas knick-knacks some pecans. Two of these she planted in corners of the garden. Both sprouted the following spring, and are now becoming trees. The daughter married; and now her little son, on the occasion of his fall-time visits to his grandparents, delights in gathering nuts from these trees. The planting of those pecans and taking care of the sprouts was a benefaction.

Another benefaction is evident every time one drives in sight of the great pond out there. The neighbors do not say exactly when or by whom; but years ago some one thought that by making a bank along a skirt of road this and the rising ground on the other sides would make a depression which the springs above would fill with water. The thought was put into practice, with the resulting pond of thirty or forty acres, giving a splendid landscape, and power that saws and grinds or gins. The fish that dart in its bosom are also valuable; but, unless they serve some purpose which I know not, I wish that some other benefactor would teach us how to rid such noble lakes and ponds of the snakes that frequent them, and especially of the turtles that thrive in them, sitting in rows upon the distant logs to observe the passer-by, and spending part of their time tampering with the patient fisherman's bait, and driving the finny tribe away from his hook. Down with mosquitoes, ticks, snakes, turtles, Bolsheviki!

On the fourth Sunday of April we expect to run according to the following program: Preaching at 10:45 Rev. W. B. Jones, presiding elder; dinner on the grounds; after dinner, quarterly conference; after quarterly conference, addresses on the Centenary.

HENRY G. HAWKINS.

The supreme tragedy of human life is that man thinks so much less of himself than God thinks of him; that man is tempted to satisfy himself with the dust when God has made him for Deity; that man lives upon the level of the earth when God's thought of him is in the height.—G. C. Morgan.

SHIVAR SPRING AS NATURE MADE IT NOW PROTECTED BY SANITARY SPRING HOUSE.

The Guarantee.

Think of it! A mineral water of such wonderful blood-cleansing power that it is actually shipped to every state in the Union and even to foreign lands under a positive guarantee that the price will be refunded, should the user report no benefit.

Shivar Mineral Water is unquestionably the greatest of all American mineral spring waters and there are thousands who contend that it is the best mineral water in all the world.

In Rheumatism and in other forms of auto-intoxication such as Sciatica, Neuralgia, Chronic Headache and Uric Acid Diathesis, Shivar Mineral Water has succeeded where every known medicine had failed. Physicians attribute this to its peculiar power of dissolving and completely washing out of the system the leucomaines, or body poisons that cause these diseases.

Delightful to drink, wonderful in its blood-cleansing power, Shivar Spring Water may be shipped any distance, at any season, without losing its virtues in the slightest.

Though a thousand miles away, you may use it in your home with identically the same results, as if you drank it at the Spring.

The Results.

Read the following letters which are fair samples of tens of thousands that are received at the Spring, then accept Mr. Shivar's guarantee offer. It gives you the equivalent of a three-week's visit to his celebrated Spring, with no charge for the water should you report no benefit. Sign your acceptance on the coupon below.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE INDISPENSABLE CONDITION.

We recentiy came across this striking expression: "There can be no Hoiy Land without holy hearts;" it is weii worth pondering. We have never before known of so many humanitarian and altruistic movements as are engaging the attention of men to-day. The iist runs aii the way from indefinite suggestions for bringing about universal happiness to elaborateiy developed programs for the rehabiiitation of the world. The ideal of Jesus, the Kingdom of God on earth, seems to be in the mind of everybody, but too often the indispensable condition of the establishment of that Kingdom, a pure heart, seems to be overlooked. The principie is as true in religion as it is in art: aii true expression is from within, out. Christ gave expression to this great truth when he said, "Cieanse first that which is within the cup and piatter, that the outside of them may be clean also." Holy hearts wiii make a holy land anywhere.

SELF-PROTECTION.

A feeling of great regret comes over us when we read, as we sometimes do, in connection with a fire or a storm that destroyed church property, "There was no insurance." A good business man wiii not run the risk of losing what he has invested in a home by failure to insure against fire and tornado; the membership of a church can weli afford to pay the smaii cost of guarding against the destruction of its piace of worship by dangers that are ever-present. It is mereiy applying the principie of self-protection.

WHY NOT?

We were forced, not long ago, to spend some time in the waiting room of one of the raiiroad stations of this city. We entertained ourselves by studying the types of people we saw and noting the things that seemed to interest them. A man in the naval uniform of the United States comfortably seated himself, opened his kit-box, took from it a jacket, needie, thimble, and silk thread of many colors, and calmly began to embroider a beautiful design on the jacket. Instantly, at least a dozen people, of whom we were one, began to watch him with amused smiies. He worked deftiy and unconcernedly. Our amusement turned to admiration. We thought of the home-life of this young man who was trained in the delicate art of embroidering; in imagination, we saw his gentle mother, interested in his iove of the beautifui, and lovingly instructing him in the intricate manipulations of thread and thimble and needie; we saw his devoted sisters, praising his skiii and his good taste; we could almost feel the sweet influences of the home from which this faithfui defender of the Flag must have come. Why should he not occupy himself with this beautiful form of artistic endeavor? We went on our way pondering. He was a manly looking man, too.

HAVING THE COURAGE OF ONE'S CONVICTIONS.

A viiiage in Iiiinois is reported to have refused to change the time of the clocks when the daylight saving iaw went into effect, on the ground that the war is over and there is no good reason why the change should be made. We doubt the practicai wisdom of such action, but we confess we admire the courage of the viiiage fathers in maintaining a position that they think is correct. It costs something for an individual to stand by his convictions when the rest of the world is against him; but it carries with it the inestimabie reward that comes from the self-consciousness of rectitude.

THE PERCENTAGE IS TOO LOW.

According to a recent statement of an official of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, eighty per cent of the disabied soldiers applying to the Board for guidance in securing vocational training that will enable them to become wage earners in civil life seek training in commercial and mechanical lines, leaving twenty per cent who are inclined to turn to agriculture. We regret to learn that this is the case. We had hoped that a large number of our returned soldiers would take advantage of unusualiy favorable opportunities to enter upon farming as a life work. Steps have been taken by the Government to encourage in every way possible such an inclination on their part, and strong inducements have been offered these returned soldiers to take up farming. Perhaps much of their unwillingness to do so is based upon the old idea that farming is, at best, a laborious, monotonous, and unprofitable business. Without any expert knowledge of the subject, we undertake to say that no other form of industry offers greater opportunities for the fuii use of aii the essential qualities of the successful business man than does agriculture and its allied branch, stock raising. The percentage of our people who are engaged in farming is altogether too low.

WORSE THAN A CRAZE.

We quote the following from a London dispatch: "The dance craze grows apace in England, an astonishing number of dances being given in the big London houses by exclusive folk who refuse to patronize the baiis in public hails and hotels. Dancing begins with dinner and iasts untii about 5 o'clock in the morning, when the dancers sit down to a breakfast of bacon and eggs." Under some circumstances we might be wiiiing to speak of dancing as a "craze;" but in the present distressed condition of the world, when bloody-uprising are matters of every-day occurrence throughout Europe, and when famine stalks through the land, it seems to us to be an immoral habit. The least that can be said of it is that it indicates a strange caiiousness of heart.

IT CAN BE DONE.

In connection with the Centenary movement, we must never forget that what ought to be done, can be done. In many charges there may be hindering circumstances that seem to make aimost impossibie the attainment of the goai; but these hindrances ought to stir us to greater efforts to accompiish the desired end. A feeiing of despondency or a note of discouragement at this time wiii have a psychological effect that wiii be far more disastrous than the faint-hearted may imagine. The indications are that interest is growing by leaps and bounds throughout the Church in this great cause. We shall not be surprised to hear, when the "Big Drive" takes pace, that church after church has exceeded its quota with tremendous enthusiasm. Let no one become pessimistic in the siightest degree. Faith and hope and hard work wiii overcome the seemingiy impossible.

THE COURAGE TO WAIT.

The progress of the Peace Conference seems to be painfuiiy slow. We have read a good deal of comment from various sources, expressing great disappointment that the Peace Treaty has not been completed and its terms published and imposed upon the vanquished Huns. The whoie world is eagerly awaiting the consummation of the end so long devoutly wished and prayed for; but in view of the tremendous issues involved, we must have the courage to wait. Those who are in a position to know whereof they speak have indicated that we may expect the signing of the treaty some time during this month. It is important now that we "make haste siowiy." We have the utmost confidence in the abiiity of the distinguished statesmen participating in the Conference to work out terms of settlement that wiii justify them in whatever delay may be necessary.

WHERE IS OURS?

We have iost faith in the system of averages to prove the standing of the individuai in financial matters. We read that the amount of money of aii sorts in circuiation in the United States is $5,847,363,651; the popuiation of the country is estimated as being 107,166,000. The average per capita weaith, therefore, of the country is a iittie over $54. Now, where is our share? We have made careful investigation—painstaking investigations we might say—and our part of the "average" does not appear. Away with the faiiacy of the average!

THE LUCKY ONE.

We read the other day that a schooner with a cargo of 20,000 gaiions of rum foundered off the coast of North Carolina on March 30 with the loss of aii hands except one seaman. The wonder is that one escaped. Rum sooner or later destroys aii who have anything to do with it.

MEDITATION—A LOST ART.

By Rev. Garret Hondelink, B.D.

Meditation is very fast becoming a lost art. Those that brood over things until something fruitful is born from them, are very few in number. Our age wants results, and in its mad desire for results leaves us no time for sitting down and quietly and composedly to think over things. We are too clamorous for results.

Both the ministry and the laity need to cultivate the art of meditation. The want of meditation is a very serious robber of the wealth of renewed hearts. It is only by means of meditation that a thing really soaks into the mind. It is meditation alone that makes a thing real to us, and makes it an integral part of our mental organization. Without meditation there is no truth that can ever grip the mind. Meditation is necessary not alone for increasing our mental store, but also for increasing the capacity of our minds for still bigger things. To believe a thing is to hold the cool crystal waters in our hands; to meditate is to drink it. By reading books and listening to sermons and addresses we go forth, as it were, to reap a harvest; it is only by meditation that these harvests become a part of our mental, moral, and spiritual natures. And of all soul fattening processes, meditation is by far the best.

The Cross of Jesus Christ is unappreciated because men fail to meditate upon it. Men are failing these days to see the hideousness of sin because their minds are not made to dwell upon the terrible evil of sin. The power of personal influence does not impress many a soul because they never take any time to contemplate its power. The glories of the spring-time and autumn-time are unseen because men are too busy scraping together dust, to drink in their superb wonders. The great doctrines of Scripture—who care anything about them, and how many can talk intelligently about them? It is simply because men do not make their minds dwell upon them. Virtue possesses no fascination for many a soul, because its surpassing beauty is not contemplated. The shortness of life does not impress men, nor does the length of eternity overwhelm them, simply because men have put these themes out of their minds, and they fail to linger upon them.

Of all possible themes, there is none which is more worthy of our meditation than the great future. It is so unreal to so many because they do not dwell upon it. No one need ever fear that contemplating it will unfit him for this present life. The devil never put a more treacherous lie into any human heart. The only man truly fit for this life is the man who thinks much upon the great future. There are many brief spaces of leisure which we might employ for just such thought. No Sabbath day ought ever to pass without at least a little better knowledge of that great unseen future. But in particular ought seasons of sickness be made to minister to an increase of such knowledge.

Bunyan has told us how that "upon a time, I was somewhat inclining to a consumption, wherewith, about the spring, I was suddenly and violently seized with much weakness in my outward man, inasmuch that I thought I could not live. Now, began I to give myself up to a serious examination into my state and condition for the future, and of my evidences for that blessed world to come. For it hath, I bless God, been my usual course, as always, so especially in the day of affliction, to endeavor to keep my interest in the world to come clear before my eyes." He then added five other paragraphs in which he describes his high religious experiences, and no one has ever written in finer terms of his own experience than Bunyan did therein. He tells us the terrors which fell upon him at the thought of being unprepared to die, and how that all the harpies of hell seemed bent at that time on devouring his very soul. And then he tells us how he found peace by meditating upon the great words of the Apostle Paul: "Being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus through faith in His blood."

Some consumptive may possibly read these lines. It is always the blessed privilege of a consumptive that he has a long period of leisure in which he can think upon the condition of his soul, and prepare himself for entrance into the great future. What is that great future to be? For him who has been redeemed by the blood of Jesus Christ, it is to be a time for fellowships. There is to be fellowship with God the Father. But how ashamed we will be to get to glory and not know all or much of what the Bible tells us of our Heavenly Father! The great future is also to be one of fellowship with Jesus Christ. How can time be employed better than to prepare oneself for the eternal fellowship of Jesus Christ by meditating upon what the Scriptures tell us of Him, and thus learn to know Him well as we have learned to know some of the great outstanding characters of human history?

Heaven will also be a place for fellowship with the great saints that have lived and died to the glory of God the Father—Enoch who walked with God in an early age when other men lived in sin; Noah, the great preacher of righteousness; Elijah, that great startling, flaming prophet of God; Daniel who would rather risk being flung into a lion's den than cease to pray; Paul, the great missionary; John, the beloved; Peter, the so human man. But it is self-evident that not one can enjoy their fellowship except he fondly lingers upon their characters and their deeds. And it is not to the credit of any one of us that we know more about our great Pershing, and about the marvellous strategist, Marshal Foch, and about kings whom we despise than we do about these superlative names of Scripture.

And again heaven is to be a place of fellowship with the great saints of the Church, and all who wear resplendent robes of white washed in the blood of the Lamb. And we ought surely to prepare for fellowship with Augustine and Athanasius and Knox, and Calvin, and Bunyan and Wesley and Livingstone, and Mary Slessor of Calabar, and the Scudders and Verbecks and Patons, and Chamberlains, and such like. Were we to be invited to some banquet and to sit side by side with some of earth's celebrities, we would try to get acquainted with them—their works, their deeds, and their characters before the hour of the feast. There are multitudes of Christians that will some day be in heaven that know virtually nothing of the great saints of God's Word, or of the great saints of history, but humiliation will be theirs if they are asked to fellowship with God's great saints, and they must confess that they know nothing of them.

There are many things that could be changed in order to have leisure for forming the acquaintance of our Heavenly Father, and Jesus Christ, and the saints of God's Word and of history. The many wasted moments might be used for just such a purpose. Some or much of the time spent upon newspapers and magazines and books that are purely ephemeral might be so employed. Our conversations with others might be made to serve to enrich our knowledge of the great souls that have wrought and suffered for the King of kings and Lord of lords. Why should not all make their life of eternal moment, rather than waste it upon the passing, often useless and worthless, things.

Life's final hour is sure to strike some day. Who as he thinks of that great hour does not have some feelings of fear? It is natural to shrink from death. But meditation upon the great future may very largely be made to free us from the bondage of fear of death. As it was to many a great saint whose record has been preserved for us, it may prove a mighty charm drawing us on. And if meditation can make the great future seem to us as it did to Moody and others, then may God give us an unquenchable purpose to meditate.—The Christian Intelligencer.

THOUGHTS ON PRAYER.

III.

Scripture, Is. 6:1-8.

Man's conception of the holiness of God is born in the moments of worship and meditation on Him. Those who neglect worship—neglect the house of God and the place of prayer—never get a true conception of God's holiness.

Visions, such as Isaiah here describes, are only for those who take time to pray and meditate on the things of God. Peter was at prayer (Acts 10) when God called him to break from Jewish seclusion and go to the Gentiles. Paul was in communion with God when he received those revelations that he said were too sacred to mention (II. Cor. 12:1-4). These men were mightily used of God to bless the world because they clung to Him by prayer.

When a true vision of God's holiness penetrates the heart and mind of man, he is thoroughly humbled and made to feel his own vileness. Such a vision shows us the folly of self-righteouness. When a man stands before his Maker face to face, he recognizes his total depravity and unworthiness, and is made to cry as did Isaiah, "Woe is me; for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts." For one to go into His presence without proper preparation and with a sense of his own self-righteousness, is to have the experience of the man who entered the king's wedding chamber without the "wedding garment."

With the cry of repentance and unworthiness, "Woe is me," the way is opened for God to cleanse the heart and take away the iniquity. When Jacob at Peniel met God face to face and confessed his sin, God blessed him and changed his name to Israel, a prince of God.

Where do Spirit-filled preachers and missionaries come from? It is from those worshipers of God who have realized His holiness, humbled themselves before Him, had the coal of fire from God's altar placed on their lips, realized that their iniquity has been taken away, and have then been able to hear the voice of God calling, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" and with humbleness, but with zeal, have answered, "Here am I; send me."

The League of Intercession entered into with proper devotion will cause many to hear God's call to enter the work of helping to reconstruct this old world in accord with the teachings of Christ. In the secret place of prayer, where we behold His glory, is where we receive the command: "Go!"

STEWARDSHIP.

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

The parable of The Unjust Steward, as recorded in the 16th chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke, is the most difficult of interpretation of any of the parables of our Lord. Scholars and Bible students have given us many interpretations, each varying the one from the other. Skeptics have quibbled over what they have been pleased to term our Lord's commendation of the dishonesty of the unjust steward in reducing, without authority, the indebtedness of his lord's debtors, thereby robbing his master of that which was rightfully his. But this difficulty is removed when we remember that our Lord does not, as the critics have said, commend the dishonesty of the steward, only his prudence and foresight in assuring for himself food and shelter against the time when he should be put out of the stewardship. "And the lord"—the steward's master, not Jesus Christ—"commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely;" or, because he had acted prudently. Now, from the prudent action of the unjust steward in wisely providing for himself food and shelter for the future when he should be removed from the stewardship, our Lord draws the conclusion that people of the world are wiser in worldly things than are the children of light. "For the children of this world," said he, "are in their generation wiser than the children of light." Then, as the unjust steward had wisely assured for himself a comfortable future, our Lord exhorts his disciples so to use their money, which he calls the mammon of unrighteousness, that they may provide for themselves friends and the protection of heaven. "And I say unto you, make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." You have heard the statement often repeated that you cannot "pay your way to heaven," yet this exhortation of our Lord teaches the startling truth that we can so misuse our money as to shut ourselves out of heaven, or we can so use it as to prepare for ourselves everlasting habitations. If you will read again the teachings of Jesus Christ, you will be surprised to see how much he has said about money—its use and abuse by his disciples. In fact he has said so much about it, and the relation and attitude of his disciples toward it, that my conviction is that more men and women will be lost by the misuse and abuse of money than any other one thing. Our Lord feared this very thing for his disciples when he said, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

I have stated that the Bible-reading world has been given many and diverse interpretations of the parable of The Unjust Steward; but there is one thought upon which all interpreters agree, and that is our responsibility for that which God has committed to our hands, and that one day we shall stand before the judgment seat of Christ and shall be called upon to give an account of our stewardship. "And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy stewardship; for thou mayest no longer be steward." Stewardship is one of the most important themes in the Bible, and is one which vitally concerns every one of us; so let us think and talk of some of the things of which we are stewards.

I.

Our Stewardship of Prayer.

The time once was in the history of Methodism when Methodist people were a praying people, but I fear it is no longer so. We are too busy to pray. When morning comes the father of the family is in such haste to get to his business, and each member of the family so hurries to his particular work, that there is no time to pray; and when night comes all of them are too tired to pray, and hasten to bed without any indication or expression of their appreciation of the blessings of Divine Providence. Hence, the family altar is rapidly passing away, if it has not already gone forever from Methodist homes.

As individuals, we no longer pray as we should. Christians used to have their secret places of prayer to which they would retire at certain and regular hours of the day to pray; but we no longer have our closets of prayer—our secret places for communion with God.

Prayer is a privilege. To talk with God, our Maker, our Preserver, our Heavenly Father—what a privilege! Prayer is a duty as well as a privilege. The Bible exhorts us to pray. Jesus himself oftentimes went up into the solitude of some lonely mountain and prayed all night, setting us an example. He told his disciples to pray and taught them how to pray. The inspired writers tell us again and again of the privilege and duty of prayer, and Paul said, "Pray without ceasing."

II.

The Stewardship of Talents.

For the purposes of this discussion, we may regard a talent as anything in the way of natural gifts or abilities which we can use for the good of humanity and the glory of God. Your body, mind, and soul, constitute such gifts and abilities. In this connection, you will recall the parable of the talents, wherein our Lord tells us of the servants who received, respectively, five, two, and one talent. The servants who received the five and two talents so used them as to double their value during their master's absence, while the one who received the one talent hid it in the earth. The latter, upon his master's return, had his talent taken from him and he, as an unprofitable servant, was cast into outer darkness. Likewise, your body, mind, and soul are your talents and God expects that you use them for his glory. Body, mind and soul—you are God's steward of these integral parts of your being and responsible to him for their proper use. "What! know ye not," says the apostle, "that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? for ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's."

III.

Stewardship of Life.

You may have heard the expression, "A lost life, but a saved soul," meaning thereby that a man may waste or lose his life by living a life of sin, yet his soul will be saved. I have to say that there is no such thing as a lost life and a saved soul, but both soul and life are either lost or saved together—if you lose the one, you lose the other, and the soul is lost in the process of losing the life. So then, if you would save your soul, you must save your life, and to do either, you must recognize your stewardship of life.

Stewardship of life means that you must give your life in service to God. He has given you life and expects and demands that you use it for him. There are various directions in which you give your life in service to God. A farmer can run his farm for God and a merchant his business, and a lawyer or a doctor can follow his profession for God. A school teacher, with a missionary spirit in her heart, can teach school for the glory of God. The Spirit is calling men into the ministry to-day as he has ever done. Both men and women can give their lives in service as missionaries on the foreign field. Some days ago, while making pastoral visits, I called at a certain home and when I entered the parlor I saw above the mantel a beautifully adorned scroll upon which I read these words: "A man from this house is serving his country in France." Why should not a similar scroll tell the story of a son or daughter from every Methodist home giving their lives in service to God in China, Japan, or some other country where the darkness of heathenism hangs like a pall over the land?

IV.

Stewardship of Property.

The stewardship of property is a question of vital importance to every man and woman, whether saint or sinner, and involved in it is that larger question of the absolute ownership of God. The Bible teaches that everything and all men belong to God by right of creation. He made you and hence you belong to him. For the same reason the world and everything therein belongs to God. So the Psalmist has said: "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein: for he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods." The prophet represents God as saying, "The silver and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts." No man owns anything—he only holds it as a trust from God. The property in your possession belongs to God and you are his steward. This law of God's ownership and our stewardship is universal. It is inexorable and no man can escape from it. He may deny it and refuse to abide by it, but God holds him responsible for his administration.

Now if, as I have shown and the Bible teaches, all belongs to God, then it is obligatory upon man to acknowledge God's ownership. The best and most practical way to acknowledge God's ownership is to give to God that part of our property and income which he requires. The Bible teaches that part is one-tenth.

Now, I believe that the curse of God rests upon the man or nation that withholds from God the tithe, and that God will collect it in some way. It may be that he sometimes uses the doctor for his bill collector. Forty years ago, a returned missionary, addressing an American audience, said that if we did not give the gospel to Germany there would be trouble with Germany some day. If the people had tithed their incomes and supplied the Mission Boards with the money to send the gospel to Germany, this nation would not have had to spend billions of dollars in the war. If the gospel had been given to Mexico, this country would not have had to spend millions of dollars to protect the border. Give the tithe to God, or else he will collect it in doctor bills, war, famine, or pestilence. You can take your choice.

Furthermore, I know that the blessings of God will be upon the man who acknowledges his ownership by tithing. Read Malachi, 3d chapter. Besides, the actual experience of men proves that God blesses those who tithe; witness Abraham, Jacob, the manufacturer of Mentholatum, Mr. Colgate, and a host of others. I am glad to be able to say further that the man who pays the tenth to God is hastening the second coming of Jesus Christ. Read Matt. 24:14.

I must say also that the money and property which comes into our possession here will either bless or curse us in the Great Beyond. This is the central truth which Jesus Christ taught in the parable of The Unjust Steward, to whom his lord said, "Give an account of thy stewardship." How we have made our money, how we came by our property, how we have used or abused both property and money, will rise in the judgment to condemn or plead for us. The eagle upon the dollar will be as the vulture that preyed upon the vitals of Prometheus, or a song-bird to cheer the soul in that land where the sun never goes down. Jesus Christ said, "Ye cannot serve God and money," but we can serve God with money. May God help us in the use of our property—our lands, or houses, or money—to follow the directions of our Lord: "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness: so that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations."

One of the purposes of the Centenary Missionary Movement is to secure the signatures of one million men and women who will pledge themselves to tithe their incomes. And why not? The Methodist Church is to-day among the wealthiest organizations in the world, and Methodist people are the richest people in the world, yet we have been withholding from God annually the sum of $60,000,000 in tithes. If the old prophet could come back to life he would say to us as he said to the Jews, "Ye have robbed God," and if we were to ask him, as did the Jews, "Wherein have we robbed God?" he would reply in a voice that ought to shake us out of our thievery, "Ye have robbed him in tithes and offerings."

Now, all the items in the Centenary program of the Church constitute a stupendous task; but the time has come in the history of the Church when the Church, if she would maintain the respect of the business world and her own self-respect as well, must undertake big things for God. When this great nation entered the world-war, it set for itself the accomplishment of big things and splendid ideals, and when our men who have been across the seas, together with those who are still there, who have been laying their lives upon the altar of their country, all return to the homeland, they will have a contempt for the littleness and parsimoniousness of that Church which has not outlined for herself a world-wide program of achievement, and which has failed to catch a clearer vision of the wonderful possibilities of the new era upon which we shall have entered and at the threshold of which we are now standing.

The Church of God in general, and the Southern Methodist Church in particular, must show herself willing and able to deal intelligently with all those large questions that relate to the evangelization of the world, if she would command the respect of the self-sacrificing men who have been and are offering their lives for the preservation of the democracy of the world. It is no less a duty of the Church to maintain and extend the principles of the kingdom of God than it is the duty of the government to establish, preserve, and defend, with the lives of her citizenship, the principles of liberty and justice which are the chief corner-stones of our democracy. If it be the business of the nation to make the world safe for democracy, it is equally the business of the Church to undertake for herself the greater task of making democracy safe for the world through the world-wide proclamation of the gospel of the Son of God.

As a nation, we entered the war, gave our time, our prayers, poured out our money, and offered the lives of the sons of America, to crush out of the world Prussian militarism and autocracy, as we said, and to establish those principles of righteousness and justice which, we presume, are represented in the word democracy; but democracy has its dangers as well as autocracy. Without restraints, all the tendencies of democracy are toward Bolshevism, which means socialism gone to seed, and the world is headed that way now. As I see it, Christian civilization is facing to-day the greatest menace in the history of the world. I mean the menace of red-handed Bolshevism. The Church has come to the most critical period in all the centuries of her history, yet the dissemination of the principles of the gospel through the Church is the only hope of the world. The Church has undertaken to make democracy safe for the world by saving it from Bolshevism whose propaganda is being extended into all lands and into which Russia has already plunged. For that purpose the Church needs and must have your money. If you do not give the Church your money in this critical hour of the world's need, all your expenditures of time and money, and the shed blood of the splendid sons of America who gave their lives upon the battle fields of France, will be worse than wasted, and the fate of Russia will be the inevitable fate of all the nations of the earth.

You say, "This is no time for the Centenary Movement. We have given our money to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and for the purchase of Liberty Bonds and War Saving Stamps;" then when you are reminded that the last two were not gifts but investments, you change your line of argument and say, "The money that goes to the Church through the Centenary Movement is a gift, not an investment." I most emphatically deny that statement and affirm that the money you give to the Church is the highest and best investment possible for your money. You say that you gave your money to the various war activities to win the war, to save the nations from the domination of Germany, and to make the world safe for democracy. Very well; you are called upon now to give your money to the Church to win the war against the powers of darkness, to save the race from the domination of the devil, and to make democracy safe for the world.

You helped the Red Cross; you helped the Y. M. C. A.; you bought Liberty Bonds and War Stamps; you played the game with Germany. Now, be a true man and play the game with the powers of darkness. Give your prayers, your money, yourself, in the overseas campaign which Methodism is going to make to help the needy nations. They need schools and churches and hospitals. They need sympathetic and heroic workers to live among them the Christ-life. Catch the step. Fall into line. Inform yourself of the great Centenary Movement and do your part to help put it over. You gave your prayers and money to help the boys in France to go over the top, because you were patriotic and loyal; surely, you cannot afford to be less loyal to your Church when she calls upon you to help her to go over the top in her great campaign to make democracy safe for the world by the dissemination of the principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ, who said, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations: and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

WHAT EDUCATION IS OF MOST WORTH?

By Professor J. Reese Lin.

In the insane attempt of Germany to conquer the world by trained and unscrupulous might we see how dangerous education may make a people, unless it is energized and directed by the spirit of true religion.

Since 1870 the material progress of Germany has been the wonder of the world. German "kultur" has been defined as, "The application of a trained intelligence to the practical affairs of life," meaning by "practical affairs" the mastery of the material world, the development of manufacturing, the extension of commerce to every quarter of the world, and the consequent acquisition of wealth. To this end the German government devoted itself for a quarter of a century with astonishing success. The Germans studied the wants of all men—from the Parisians, the Londoners, and the citizens of New York and New Orleans to the naked savages in the distant islands of the Pacific—and they supplied whatever was wanted. During the twenty-five years before 1914 the tonnage of the German merchant marine increased 250 per cent, and one-quarter of this increase was in the five years from 1909 to 1914. There was no part of the world in 1914 in which the German flag was not carried by ships less than ten years old.

In Germany wealth increased by leaps and bounds. The German government devoted itself to the material well-being of its citizens with unexampled results. The German cities were the cleanest, the German finances the best managed in the world. Agriculture was brought to a high degree of excellence, and her manufactures became rivals of those of Britain and the United States. State insurance against sickness, against accidents, against old age guarded the German workman against misfortunes which he could not prevent. Gradually the whole people became imbued with the belief that the acquisition of wealth and the luxury that wealth brings constitutes the main end of life. Power and wealth, to gain more power and wealth, were sought with untiring energy by individuals and by the State.

There had been a grand Germany, but it had passed away. The Germany of Luther, of Kant, of Fichte, of Jean Paul Richter, of Schiller, of Goethe had been succeeded by a Germany dominated by the ideals of Frederick the Great and Bismarck. Prussia, greedy, cruel, unscrupulous, had corrupted Germany. Mephistopheles had bought the soul of Faust. To the "Categorical Imperative" of Kant, commanding righteousness, had succeeded the "Will to Power" of Nietzsche, developing the "Blonde Beast," the coming lord of the world; to the noble patriotism of Fichte had succeeded the conscienceless Super-State of Treitschke, with its doctrine of "Deutschland uber alles." The Scriptural God of Luther had been displaced by "The Good Old German God" of Wilhelm II. A materialistic state education whose end was the forging of "weltmacht," dominance of the world, had stifled the humanities, that the whole energy of the people might be devoted to material advancement.

The professors were as thoroughly mobilized as were the soldiers. Contrast the manifesto justifying the invasion of France, issued by 352 professors in German universities, June 20, 1915, with Martin Luther nailing his theses to the gate of the University of Wittenberg, and the helght from which Germany had fallen will be manifest. Luther's university was a church school, devoted to spiritual education. Unbalanced secular education, divorced from lofty spiritual aims, produced and maintained the German professors who are the shame of learning in the modern world. A materiallstic and skeptical generation had been trained that a man is simply one of the abler animals, and that a man who believed that God revealed himself to men was still in his intellectual childhood.

It has been said that the great war was one between systems rather than between nations, and this is in the deepest sense true. While we abhor the fruits of the German conception of man and the state—the cruelty, the lust, the brutality, the vandalism which marked their warfare—these are but the fruits of the tree. We are more deeply concerned with the philosophy from which they sprang. That tree has always produced such fruit, and it always will do so.

With the chemistry, the physics, and the mathematics of Germany we have no quarrel. All these are but instruments meant by God to be used in subduing material nature to the rule of man. But with the philosophy of Germany and its ally of false religion we must be at war until we have driven it from the hearts and minds of men. It must perish or we must perish. For doctrines mold men and governments, and these in turn mold doctrines until the world is either saved or destroyed by them. False philosophy and false religion, or irreligion, combined with mere intellectual education produce such men as the Germans have been in the last war. False philosophy and false religion, or irreligion, combined with ignorance, produce such men as the Bolshevists. Civilization finds either of them fatal to its existence.

In the settlement of the problems growing out of the war America has, by common consent, been recognized as the moral leader of the Allied Nations. To what can we most logically attribute this fact? Our isolation cannot be responsible for it, for other nations have been isolated but not moral leaders. In our opinion the fact that the majority of the political leaders of this nation were educated in schools under strong religious influences can alone account for this Christian idealism. Those schools which educate both the head and the heart are the best schools. The intellect is the instrument of acquiring knowedge, but the "Good Will" is the source of moral power.

That education is best which creates an atmosphere congenial to the development of the whole man, and religious education alone can do that. By their constitution secular schools cannot enter the sphere of religion, and they are thus shut out from the chief field of the interests of men. Whatever atmosphere of religion envelops a secular institution is due to the prior influence of the church schools, so that the church schools tend to energize the lives of all students in this country, even of those who never enter their doors. Nor can moral teaching adequately supply the lack caused by the absence of religious teaching. Ethics without religion may be a beautiful system, but, as Aristotle lamented long ago, it has no moral dynamic. Religious schools alone can stress the necessity of that personal relation with God without which all moral teaching is beautiful—and dead.

EASTER SUNDAY.

As all Methodists in Louisiana are surely aware, Easter Sunday is Orphanage Day. It is very necessary that all our churches and Sunday schools take collections on this day at their services for the Orphanage. We only hope that not one congregation or Sunday school in the State will fail us. In the first place, it is by Conference agreement, unanimously adopted at the last Conference, and it is fully expected that all will live up to this agreement. Then our Orphanage is dependent for its support during the summer months on the returns from this day. If we are to care properly for the children we now have, keep them in school and do our full part by them, the funds to meet these obligations must come from the Easter collections. Finally, this, with "Work Day" next fall, is all the Church obligates itself to do for the Orphanage. We have no assessments, no soliciting agents, and receive no portion of the Centenary funds; hence if any church fails to observe these days, they fail to meet their part of the obligation to carry on this work, and our Orphanage suffers in consequence. It is the only opportunity many of our people will have at all to help. We hope none will be denied this privilege.

Assuring our people that we are doing our best to merit the continued confidence and support of all, and looking forward to this Easter with perfect confidence that you will not fail us, and praying God to make it a great, happy day for all, I am,

Faithfully,
ROB'T W. VAUGHAN,
Superintendent, Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

DEATH OF A GOOD WOMAN.

Mrs. Mary Kay Isbell, wife of Rev. R. S. Isbell, an honored superannuate of the Louisiana Conference, died at Columbia, La., on Sunday, March 30, 1919, at 3:20 p.m. She was 79 years, 1 month and 30 days old. A long and useful life was lived by this remarkable woman. She was educated in the State of Kentucky and twenty-six years of her life were given to the education of the youth of the Southland. For twenty-three years she experienced the anxiety and hardships of an itinerant preacher's wife, but ever loved and was loyal to the itinerancy. She was a faithful and deeply consecrated member of the Methodist Church. Her chief joy in life was her devotion to her Lord. She was a sufferer from rheumatism for a number of years, but patiently bore her sickness until she fell "asleep in Jesus."

She was tenderly laid to rest in the cemetery at Columbia, La., followed by a large circle of friends. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. T. J. Warlick, who paid a beautiful tribute to her sterling worth.

TO THE PREACHERS AND LAYMEN OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: Please take your collection and forward to your General Treasurer, W. D. Davis, Brookhaven, Miss., for Conference work. We cannot afford to let our superannuated preachers, their widows and orphans, suffer. The 1st of April is here. The Treasurer of the Conference Board of Finance informs me that for this worthy cause he has received from your General Treasurer only $391. It requires about $3200 quarterly to pay these claims. How can we let those who have wrought so well for their Lord be neglected?

Shall we discontinue the quarterly payment?

J. M. MORSE,
Chairman Board of Finance, Miss. Conference.

PASTORAL CHARGES FOR OUR CHAPLAINS.

The following cablegram was received from Bishop Charles H. Brent, Senior Staff Chaplain of the American Expeditionary Forces:

"Request assurance from various denominations that their chaplains serving in A. E. F. will receive due consideration at Annual Conference. They can probably return by August 1. Many anxious to return in time for Conference to obtain assignment. We need their services here. Please cable assurance at once."

The Administrative Committee of the Federal Council passed the following action on the basis of the information contained in the cablegram:

"VOTED: That the constituent denominations be notified of the request of Chaplain Brent and urged to give special consideration to the religious needs of the army during demobilization, permitting the pastors in service to remain as long as needed and that the future interests of the chaplains, when dismissed, be carefully regarded."

"It was VOTED: That publicity be given this action and that it be referred to the General War-Time Commission for the completest possible fulfilment."

Dr. W. Stuart Cramer was instructed to communicate with the denominational war-time commissions, urging upon them the importance of taking whatever steps may be practicable in their respective churches for the securing of appointments of and calls to the chaplains in order that they may not be embarrassed in the absence of pastoral engagements when they return.

"The chaplains have had experience in which they have qualified themselves for unusual service in the Church in the important work of the ministry. As one denomination with whom we have conferred on this subject states it: 'Our chaplains are at a premium with our people and many of them are already being called in anticipation of their return.'"

Our War Work Commission will be glad to serve as an intermediary in helping place our chaplains as they are discharged from the service.

E. O. WATSON, Secretary,
War Work Commission of the M. E. Church, South.

WITH REFERENCE TO CONFERENCE CLAIMANTS IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

It is my duty as Secretary of the Louisiana Conference to certify to the General Board of Finance the number of years of active service given the Church by every superannuated minister in the Conference; also the number of years during which each widow of a member of the Conference was the wife of said member while he was in the active ministry (that is, exclusive of years in the local, supernumerary or supèrannuate relation). This I have done, except in the cases of Mrs. W. Weimar, Mrs. H. Armstrong and Mrs. C. F. Staples. I lack all information concerning Sister Weimar—date of husband's admission on trial, date of her marriage, date of husband's superannuation or death. I have not date of Sister Armstrong's marriage, nor date of Sister Staple's marriage. It is important that I should have these facts at once. I am uncertain of addresses, as answers to letters have not been received.

FITZGERALD S. PARKER,

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE HATTIESBURG DISTRICT.

Dear Brethren: In order that we may make full proof of our ministry and do our very best for the extension of the Kingdom of God, it is my desire to call your attention to the following things that seem to me to be of the utmost importance. I am sure that you have no inclination to disregard anything that makes for the upbuilding of our work, and will enter into the fullest sympathy and co-operation with me.

1. I am of the conviction that we as a Church are neglecting more than we should the baptism of the children; and while we are making "Drives" for the collection of money for various things, I think it would be well if we would make a "Drive" for the baptism of the children, and not rest satisfied till we have dedicated to the Lord every child in our district that we can reasonably hope to secure and should secure. Let's see if we cannot make a fine showing in the reports to the quarterly conferences and to the Annual Conference. I am sure our Lord would have it so. It will help us to get a better hold on the hearts of the parents.

2. I think I can see signs here and there of the deplorable fact that the Communion of the Lord's Supper is not emphasized as it should be, and I want to call attention to this important matter, and ask that as far as you can do so, see that it is administered regularly. This is a great channel of grace and we lose immeasurably when we fail to give it the important place it deserves. Shorten the sermon, if necessary, and take plenty of time.

3. The matter of the support of our superannuates and other claimants is of the greatest importance just now, as at all times. I would beg that you do your best to see that a remittance goes from your charge as early as possible to the Treasurer for Conference Work to be applied for these worthy servants of the Church. Brother Morse, the Treasurer of the Joint Board, writes that only $391 has been turned over to him for the payments to be made for the first quarter. It is easy to see that the brethren will suffer, if the Church does not rally at once to their support.

4. The season for revivals is upon us now. May we not very earnestly pray and labor that great seasons of refreshing come upon us and our people, and there may be as large ingathering of members into the Church as possible? Let us go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in. Let salvation and enlistment be our watchword during our meetings this year.

5. Of course I take it that you are doing all in your power to make the Centenary Movement bring the largest results to your people in every way. It is imperative now that we bend every energy to meet the demands laid upon us in the greatest movement the Church has ever made. If we fail, all fails.

6. The circulation of our Church papers, our Conference Organ and the General Organ, will help as nothing else can, and I again urge that, with the help of your assistant in the circulation of our Christian literature, you do your very best to see that these papers are put into the hands of our people.

Praying God's gracious blessings upon you and yours,

Fraternally,
W. B. JONES, P. E.

THE WORST BREAK.

That baby broke the mirror;
He threw my ball—and hit,
The darling little rascal—
He does not care one bit!

Susanna broke a teacup,
But mother did not blame;
The kitten ran and tripped her;
You would have done the same.

And Bobby broke a window;
He had to shake his bank
And take his own good pennies
To mend that snowball prank.

But Tommy! See poor Tommy!
(There is no cure, I've heard.)
For Tommy feels so wretched
Because he broke his word!

EXCUSES.

"Elinor, did you leave that door open?" called mother. It was hard to keep the house warm anyway, and when the outside door was open it was much harder. And mother was always asking the children to remember to latch it.

"My hands were full," said Elinor, "and then I wanted so much to get in where it was warm, mother, and the door doesn't latch very well anyhow, and—"

"Well, you seem to be able to get hold of excuses enough, at least," said Uncle Talfrey, who was calling at Elinor's house.

It was just before time for Uncle Talfrey to go that Drintha, who had been detained at school, came in. She shut the door and thought it latched, but it didn't. Elinor looked up a moment afterward and saw it was ajar.

"Why, Drintha Jermyn," she cried, "you left that door open, and you know what mother told us. I should think you'd remember."

Uncle Talfrey looked up reflectively. "Wouldn't it be nice," he said, to nobody in particular, "if only we made just as many excuses for other people as we do for ourselves?"

Elinor turned red suddenly, while Drintha looked at him in surprise.

"Uncle Talfrey meant," said mother, "that Elinor left the door open, too, Drintha, and I think she was really more careless about it than you."

"I didn't mean to," said Drintha, "any more than she did. Probably it flew open after she shut it to."

"Why, Drintha does know how to make excuses for other people," said Uncle Talfrey, in great surprise. "Drintha does and Elinor doesn't."

"I—I guess I will next time," said Elinor, whose cheeks were still red.

"Well, I must go along," said Uncle Talfrey.

He opened the door, and, as he thought, shut it, but he hadn't stepped into the street before it flew open again, and back he came.

"Even Uncle Talfrey left it open," was what Elinor began to say, but suddenly she remembered. "Mother," she said, "Uncle Talfrey didn't mean to leave the door open. He thought it shut, and then he isn't used to the lock, anyhow, and—"

"Good for you, chicken," chuckled Uncle Talfrey. "Keep it up when somebody else is concerned besides your old uncle."—Marion Wonson Walen, in Child's Gem.

THE PRETTIEST FREESIA.

Celia Brooks walked along the street through the snow of a January morning. She had gone to carry home some sewing to the large house on the hill, and as a reward had received a box of beautiful flowers from the lady who lived there.

On the way Celia stopped at a little store to buy a few things, and while waiting for her packages to be wrapped up she opened the box for another look at her precious flowers. One by one she held up the individual stalks. There were six of them. On each grew several trumpet-shaped blossoms, pure white save for a small yellow blotch, and with a sweet, delicate perfume.

"'Freesias,' Mrs. Morris called them," she remarked to herself. "My, but they're handsome! Just think of her giving them to me. But then she has so many flowers, she doesn't mind."

"Hello, Celia! What've you got?" she heard a voice call out. Turning, she saw behind her Addie Jones, who lived in the tenement house next to her own home.

Celia showed her one of the flower stalks. "They're freesias." She pronounced the name proudly. "There, my things are ready. I've got to go." She closed the box quickly to shut the blossoms from Addie's sight. She started on toward home. Addie followed and kept by her side. "Say, Celia, won't you give me one?" she asked at length. "I never had any pretty flowers like that."

"I never did either," Celia answered. Yet something in Addie's tone produced a change in her feelings. "I s'pose if she had six and wouldn't give me any I'd think she was stingy," she reflected. "Yes, I'll give you one," she called to Addie; "but you'll have to wait till you get home. I can't take it out here in the cold."

When they had gone some distance farther they met two other children who lived in their neighborhood.

"Celia's got some white flowers," announced Addie; "the prettiest ones you ever saw, and sweet. Why, I b'lieve you can smell 'em right through the box. And she's going to give me one."

"Let's see!" the others cried.

"All of you come into my house," suggested Addie.

"Oh, yes, we will," agreed the other two.

"What shall I do?" Celia was thinking. "I'll have to give them all one, and they were meant for me. But I promised Addie; so I've got to go."

Just before they reached Addie's home two other girls joined them.

"Celia's got some flowers she's going to show us," cried the first three. "Come in with us."

Celia's heart sank. Would she have to give away all her flowers? "I had so many, and I shall have only one," she thought.

"Now let's see them!" exclaimed the impetuous group when all were inside.

Celia opened the box slowly. A chorus of "Ohs" greeted the appearance of the blossoms; then "I wish I had some," was repeated over and over.

Celia looked at the five pairs of longing eyes. "They don't have flowers either," she considered, "and they want 'em as much as I do. I s'pose I'd feel the same if one of them had 'em."

One after another she picked up the slender stalks, with their snowy blossoms, and gave them out to the waiting band. "Don't let 'em freeze," she cautioned. She tore into small pieces the paper which had wrapped the flowers. "Here, put them in this." Then, with her lone flower, she left the house and went on to her own home.

"I b'lieve I've got the prettiest one, anyway," she declared when she took it from the box. She held it up and examined it carefully. "There couldn't be a handsomer one. And maybe, after all, it's better for six people to be happy than just one."

Surely Celia was right, and do you know, I think that it was the sharing of her treasures which imparted such great beauty to the one flower that she kept for herself.—Exchange.

TALKING SHOES.

Like the native Africans, the South Sea Islanders are very proud if they can get hold of a pair of European shoes. They are specially gratified if they acquire a pair that squeak, or, as the Africans call them, shoes that talk.

A story is told of a South Sea Islander, who came into church with shoes merrily a-squeak. He walked proudly to the front and, removing his shoes, dropped them out of the window, so that his wife might also have the pleasure of coming in with "talking" shoes.—East and West.

GROWTH.

A perfect life is not attained in a day. Men cannot cut 'cross lots, or take an air line for the Kingdom of Heaven. If we had our way, we should have the bud, the blossom and the ripened fruit at the same time. But this is not God's method. He gives us "first the blade, then the ear, afterwards the full corn in the ear." Character is a growth, and it requires time to perfect the full rounded Christian.—D. C. Thomlinson.

THE NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The New Orleans District Conference, which met at First Church, New Orleans, April 1-2, was a most interesting and profitable occasion. The presiding elder, Rev. J. G. Snelling, though new in the office, had carefully prepared the program, and he presided over the sessions of the conference with marked ease and dignity. The attendance was good, all the pastors of the district being present, and many of the lay delegates being in their places, especially at the evening sessions. In this connection, it is interesting to note that several charges in the district took advantage of the new law allowing them to elect women as their representatives.

The Centenary movement was thoroughly discussed on Tuesday afternoon and evening, and the plans for the "Big Drive" were perfected. Rev. N. E. Joyner, Dr. A. E. Clement, Mr. F. E. Gunter, and Mr. Donelson Caffery gave inspiring addresses concerning the various phases of the movement and the best ways of carrying out the plans.

The Sunday school program on Wednesday, under the leadership of Rev. Alonzo Early, the Conference Field Secretary, was thoroughly instructive and inspiring. Action was taken providing for the complete organization of the New Orleans District according to the plans of the General Sunday School Board. Brother Early is magnifying his office by his energetic and enthusiastic presentation of the work committed to his care.

Rev. H. B. Alsup, who is serving as supply at Epworth, New Orleans, was recommended for admission into the traveling connection.

The election of delegates to the Annual Conference resulted as follows: W. B. Thomson, S. H. Meyer, O. J. Dunn, W. W. Carré, J. R. Westerfield, Mrs. S. A. Montgomery, Mrs. I. N. Niebergall, Rev. J. H. Stafford. Brother Thomson, according to our information, has been elected a delegate for thirty-two years consecutively. Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Niebergall have the honor of being the first women chosen in Louisiana to serve as lay delegates to the Annual Conference.

The District Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at First Church on Wednesday during the district conference. It was largely attended and great interest in the work was manifest.

The Editor of the Advocate was shown every courtesy by the presiding elder and given ample opportunity to bring the paper to the attention of the conference. Many of the preachers expressed their determination to push the campaign for subscriptions in their charges, and we are confidently expecting a substantial increase in the number of readers of the Advocate within the bounds of the district.

The entertainment of the conference was delightful, the pastor of First Church, Rev. R. H. Harper, leaving nothing undone for the comfort and convenience of the guests. Elegant and satisfying luncheons were served the delegates in the dining room of the church. A resolution of thanks was unanimously adopted by the conference, expressing its appreciation of the many courtesies it had received on all sides.

On motion, a committee was appointed to receive invitations for the next meeting of the conference, the committee to make its report to the presiding elder a a later date.

BEAUTIFUL HAMMOND.

It was the privilege of the Editor to preach last Sunday morning to our congregation in the beautiful little city of Hammond, La., in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Leon I. McCain, who was assisting Rev. J. W. Booth in a meeting at Keener Memorial, Baton Rouge. The congregation was large, and the close attention given to the message was most inspiring to the speaker. We had the privilege, also, of attending the Sunday school, which impressed us as being a wide-awake, aggressive organization under the efficient superintendency of Dr. Lucius McGehee. Just at present, considerable interest is being taken in an attendance contest between the Hammond school and the school of Keener Memorial.

No visitor to Hammond can fail to be impressed by the beauty of the town, as he looks down the long avenues, bordered with handsome residences and shaded by magnificent oaks. The story is told that the original owner of the land, who was engaged in business in the town years ago, made it a practice to have his customers bring to the town young oak trees, which he was careful to have set out along the streets as they were laid off. The wisdom of his action has been justified by the attractiveness of these streets to-day, and succeeding generations will bless the memory of the man whose esthetic tastes and public spirit made possible what is now a source of pride to every citizen of this thriving community. He may not have lived to see the results of his labors—we do not know—but he was wise in planning as he did for the future. We commend the planting of shade trees to every community as a means of developing and cultivating the love of the beautiful, which is an important part of our natures.

Sunday afternoon, we went with Dr. McGehee to a country Sunday school about five miles from Hammond, where we again had the privilege of speaking to a fine group of people, both old and young. The history of this school is interesting. It was organized eleven years ago by Dr. McGehee, who has been its superintendent continuously since that time. Until the war called away so many of its members, the average attendance was about seventy. It is thoroughly organized according to the standards of modern Sunday school work, with every department in successful operation except a home department. The lack of that department was explained on the ground that there is nobody to belong to it—everybody in the community attends the regular sessions of the school. Sixteen young men from this Sunday school entered the military service of the country when we were forced into the war, of whom only two have returned thus far. Dr. McGehee is assisted in the work of the school by other Christian workers of Hammond, in addition to those who have been develped in the school itself. One of the most efficient of these helpers from Hammond is Miss Christine Kemmler, whom we had the pleasure of meeting Sunday afternoon. We are convinced that many other laymen might follow the example of Dr. McGehee in the organization of Christian work in such situations, with great profit to themselves as well as to the communities in which they labor.

We are greatly indebted to Mr. and Mrs. H. H. McCain for extending to us the delightful hospitality of their home while we were in Hammond. We fell completely in love with their beautiful three-year old daughter, Elizabeth. We are greatly indebted, also, to Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Stainback and Mr. O. P. Waldrep for their kindness in using their automobiles for our convenience.

We heard many expressions of appreciation of the pastor, Brother McCain, and his excellent wife. The work prospers in their consecrated hands. We thoroughly enjoyed our short visit to beautiful Hammond.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. R. H. Clegg reports that the Harperville and Lena charge, which he serves, is making progress in the work of the Church.

Rev. E. M. Shaw, of Houston, Miss., writes that the Centenary outlook on his charge is fine. Already, the campaign has accomplished much good.

We acknowledge the honor of an invitation to be present at the dedication of the Methodist church at Shuqualak, Miss., on April 16. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo will preach the sermon.

Rev. and Mrs. C. Wesley Baley, of Shuqualak, Miss., announce the arrival of a fine boy at their home on March 30. He has been named Woodrow Wilson. Blessings upon the little one!

Rev. C. Y. Higginbotham, of Wiggins, Miss., writes that preacher and people are confidently looking forward to the accomplishment of great things on the Mentorum charge this year.

The figures in the Sunday school attendance contest in Louisiana for last Sunday are as follows: Noel Memorial, 538; Ruston, 473; Lake Charles, 390; Mansfield, 324; Alexandria, 294; Monroe, 236.

Dr. John T. Sawyer delivered the invocation at the Confederate memorial services held at Metairie Cemetery in this city last Sunday. The exercises were largely attended, and the addresses were of a high order.

Rev. W. T. Griffin, of Summit, Miss., in sending us the renewal subscription of Brother J. N. Spinks, of Magnolia, Miss., says, "He has been reading it since the first issue." This fact makes him an officer in the "Old Guard."

Rev. T. J. Holladay, of Plain Dealing, La., is a happy preacher. He has a fine garden, plenty of milk and butter, chickens, etc., and a fine people to serve who show their appreciation of their pastor by various acts of kindness.

We are in receipt of the Directory and Year Book of the Lexington, Bethany and Owens Wells churches, of which Rev. W. D. Wendel is pastor. The book contains much information of interest and value to the membership of those churches.

Bishop W. R. Lambuth, Dr. G. D. Bulla, and Dr. E. H. Rawlings are expected to be in New Orleans on Friday of this week to engage in special forms of work in behalf of the Centenary cause. They will probably spend several days in Louisiana.

Rev. M. R. Jones, of Rose Hill, Miss., reports that his second quarterly conference was a pleasant and profitable occasion. The presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Linfield, preached some helpful sermons, which were greatly enjoyed by those who heard them.

The Horn Lake charge of the North Mississippi Conference has shown its appreciation of its pastor, Rev. Geo. A. Baker, by keeping the parsonage pantry supplied with various good things to eat. Lake Cormorant recently bestowed a generous pounding upon the preacher in charge.

Rev. J. D. Ellis, who has recently been appointed pastor of our church at Biloxi, Miss., has been cordially received by the good people of that flourishing little city, and is entering upon his work with encouraging prospects. We thank him for an invitation to visit his delightful charge.

We are just in receipt of a note from Rev. N. G. Augustus, of Coldwater, Miss., announcing the death of Mrs. T. W. Dye, wife of Rev. T. W. Dye, of Clarksdale. A more extended notice will appear later. We extend sincere sympathy to those who have been bereaved by the death of this good woman.

According to reports from Nashville, the Louisiana Conference has enrolled 2702 names in the League of Intercession. The Baton Rouge District leads with 736. It is very important that pastors send all enrollment cards to Rev. S. A. Neblett, Doctors' Building, Nashville, Tenn., as soon as received.

Among the visitors to the New Orleans District Conference last week were Rev. W. W. Holmes, of Lake Charles, La., Rev. J. B. Fulton, of Franklinton, La., and Rev. H. W. Van Hook, of Biloxi, Miss. Brother Van Hook gave a fine account of the work of the Seashore Camp Ground School, of which he is president.

The program of the Greenville District Conference, to be held at Hollandale, April 8-10, is most attractively planned. Bishop Kilgo is expected to be present and preach several times. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. J. R. Bright on Tuesday evening, April 8. The presiding elder, Rev. V. C. Curtis, has generously allotted time to representatives of various great interests of the Church.

Rev. E. D. Simpson, of Lamar, Miss., is happy in his work, and his people are appreciative of his services. The Sylvestria church of his charge recently sent to the parsonage a variety of good things of considerable value, and Brother J. K. Wilburn presented to his pastor a fine flock of chickens. The first quarterly conference made a substantial increase in the assessment for the preacher's salary.

Rev. J. W. Dorman, of Water Valley, Miss., asks us to say that there should be no blanks in the Conference Minutes opposite First Church, Water Valley, since every assessment was paid in full. The amount paid for Home and Conference Missions should be $179 instead of $129. Brother Dorman states that there is every prospect that all obligations of the church this year, including the Centenary apportionment, will be paid in full.

We learn from the Sunflower Toscin, published at Indianola, Miss., that Indianola Methodists are planning to build a $50,000 church in the near future. The finance committee secured $20,000 in pledges on the first day of its canvass, and it is confidently expected that the remainder will speedily be provided for. This great plan is being carried forward under the energetic leadership of Rev. Chas. D. McGehee, the devoted pastor.

We clip the following from a recent number of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner: "Mrs. William Isaac Edwards announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Susie Callender, to Mr. William Edward Thomas, of New Orleans, the wedding to take place on Tuesday evening, April 15, at McKendree Church." Brother Thomas is well known in Louisiana and throughout the Church as the highly efficient superintendent of our mission work in New Orleans. We pray the richest blessings of Heaven upon the union of these two noble lives.

Mrs. H. O. White, of Ruston, La., has received letters from two of her young kinsmen who are still in France and have visited the grave of her son, Private Howard O. White, who died in the Camp Hospital, Le Mans, France, on December 17. Lieut. Horace White, son of Judge H. H. White, of Alexandria, La., visited the last resting place of his cousin, placing flowers on the grave and taking photographs of the spot, which are a great comfort to the grief-stricken mother. Messages from his commanding officer, the Red Cross nurse, and the chaplain of his division paid high tribute to him as a man, soldier, and Christian.

We learn from the Memphis Commercial-Appeal that Sunday, March 30, was observed on the Carrollton charge, North Mississippi Conference, as "Inspiration Day" for the Centenary. The work was presented at various points by Messrs. Evans, Bryan, Jackson, Ward, and Bingham. The enthusiasm of the congregation at Carrollton was so great that it was felt wise to take the pledges, and by Monday noon all the funds for 1919, including the Centenary allotment, were secured, except the pastor's salary—and that could have been secured, too, if it had been asked for. Rev. R. W. Evans is the pastor of this wide-awake charge.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

According to one of our exchanges, Merritt Place Methodist Church, of Indianapolis, Ind., has enrolled 22½ per cent of its membership as tithers.

The Third World's Christian Citizenship Conference will be held in Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 9-16, under the auspices of the National Reform Association.

The American Red Cross will hold Home Service Institutes at Birmingham, Ala., and Baton Rouge, La., April 14-May 24. The number admitted to an Institute is limited to twenty-five.

Press dispatches last week announced the death of Abe Mulkey, a widely known evangelist of our Church, at his home in Corsicana, Tex., on April 5. He was 70 years old. Perhaps his greatest work was in connection with establishing and supporting the Methodist Orphanage in Texas.

We take the following from the Central Methodist of last week: "Bishop Hoss, we regret to learn, has become totally blind and is in a state of delirium most of the time." The prayers of the Church will ascend in behalf of this great man who has been a blessing to Methodism throughout the world.

We learn from an exchange that the patriotic alumni of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., have decided to raise $75,000 to build a modern gymnasium on the Trinity campus as a memorial to the Trinity students who gave their lives for their country in the great war.

Dr. Paul B. Kern, of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, has been granted three months' leave of absence for travel and study in eastern cities in connection with his duties as Professor of Ministerial Efficiency in the Southern Methodist University's School of Theology. Dr. Kern will visit the leading cities and universities of the east, and will return in time to resume his duties in the summer session of the School of Theology.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

The time fixed by the Publishing Committee for pushing the Advocate campaign has passed, according to the calendar; but because of the interest in the work, that really seems to be growing, and because it was practically impossible in parts of our territory to carry on the campaign during the time designated, we are going to continue it a short while. We do this simply because we believe that a great many of our friends who have not been able, thus far, to do much, are really anxious to present the matter to their people and make a creditable showing for their charges. We want to give everybody a chance to do what we know can be done if we make the effort.

One of the most interesting things that have come to our notice during the campaign is the testimony of those who have secured any considerable number of subscriptions, that the work has been done with very little difficulty. Time after time, the statement has been made to us, "I just went at it and secured the subscriptions without any trouble." An earnest effort is almost sure to result in success.

We should like to call attention once more to a very important part of the campaign—securing renewals. Unless we can hold the names we now have on our mailing lists, it will be impossible to report any material gain in our total circulation. We want to keep all we have, and constantly add to the number. For this reason we have made no distinction between the new subscriptions and the renewals in our figures each week—a renewal is worth as much to the Advocate as a new subscription. We hope our brethren will keep this in mind, and send as many of both kinds as possible. We are more than ever of the opinion that a few weeks of earnest work would put our circulation well over the ten thousand mark.

BONUS FOR OFFICERS AND MEN.

We are informed that all men honorably discharged from the United States service, officers as well as privates, are entitled to the $60 bonus. We fear many of the soldiers do not know this, especially those who were discharged before the bonus was decided upon. We suggest, therefore, that every pastor make special note of this fact and announce it to his congregation and especially that he inform discharged men of the facts.

To secure this bonus, address: Zone Finance Officer, Lemon Building, New York Avenue, Washington, D. C., and enclose clearance or discharge papers with statement of name, address, last assignment, rank, organization and station.

While the Zone Finance Officer is flooded with work, we are informed that check may be expected at a comparatively early date after application is filed. E. O. WATSON, Secretary,

Freckles
There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.
Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

J. T. GABBERT was born at Oxford, Miss., on December 7, 1853. He moved to Senatobia, Miss., while a young man, where he resided until his death, on March 24, 1919. He was married to Miss Mildred Meriwether, on November 23, 1876. To this happy union ten children were born, two sons and eight daughters. The wife and eight children survive to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and father. He joined the Methodist Church about 25 years ago and remained a loyal member to the end. As a business man, citizen, and head of his family, he was a great success. He was ever ready to fight the wrong, to establish the right. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him. During his active life, he held many positions of honor and trust in his community. He rendered a great service in giving to the world and Church a large family of Christian men and women, who have taken up the work he now lays down. No man was ever more devoted to his family than he, and no family more devoted to husband and father than his. Thus he served well his day and generation and has gone to his reward. Let us not think of husband, father and friend as sleeping in the silent tomb, but as gone to be with Jesus to await our coming. A. T. McILWAIN, P.C.
Senatobia, Miss.

ALEXIS A. BEASLEY was born on September 4, 1864, and died on February 2, 1919, at the home of his sister, Mrs. T. A. Alexander, in Clay County, Miss. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in his early youth. In 1894 he moved to West Point, Miss., and for several years thereafter he conducted a prosperous furniture business, accumulating a liberal fortune. During much of the time of his stay in West Point, he was active in the work of the Church, serving for a time on the official board, and contributing liberally to the support of the institutions of the Church. He was generous to the poor also. In 1907, he was forced to give up his business on account of ill-health. From then till the time of his death he was a great sufferer, being constantly a source of anxiety for his sister and brothers, with whom he resided. May the comforts and blessings of our Father abide with the stricken family.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has called to her heavenly home Mrs. W. H. La Prade, an honored and beloved member of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Biloxi Methodist Church; therefore, be it resolved:

1. In the transition of this noble Christian character the Church and the Society have lost one who had endeared herself to both. As the beautiful rose, while unfolding its petals and revealing its heart of gold, sheds fragrance on all around, so was her life, and the message which she brought will linger long with those who loved her. She knew her Pilot's face before she "crossed the bar." He was her daily guide.

2. We tender our sincere sympathy to her loved ones, who will miss her watchful helpfulness and the sweet influence of her unselfish thought for others. But the everlasting arms of love are around them, and in this they will find comfort and rest.

3. A copy of these resolutions shall be sent to the family, to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and shall be spread upon the minutes of this Society.
Signed: Mrs. S. E. Chiles, Mrs. Gussie Gilmore, Eleanor O. Van Hook, Committee.

FROM WILSON, LA.

Just a few words from Wilson: We arrived here on January 27, at noon, and were met at the train by a company of our good people and carried to the parsonage, where we were greeted by still another company who were waiting for our coming. We were soon shown through the parsonage, and last, but not least, to the dining room, where a delicious dinner was all ready, and at first sight tempted our appetites. These good people left immediately, leaving us all alone to enjoy the good things which they had prepared for us to eat, and the good rest at home. We found the parsonage comfortably arranged, as "clean as a pin," and the pantry well filled with something good to eat.

This is Wilson's first experience as a station, but they know how to do things. The pastor's and presiding elder's salary is paid on the first day of each month, and in order to become a station, the salary is more than double that of any previous year.

Our congregations are very good every service, and we have received 11 into the Church. When the great "Centenary Drive" goes on, we will go right "over the top." We are looking forward to, and praying for, a great year.

With the best of good wishes for the Advocate, I am, Cordially,

GOOD MEETING AT ITTA BENA, MISS.

Our meeting began the second Sunday in March and lasted twelve days. Rev. Jas. V. Bennet, Mississippi Conference evangelist, did the preaching. Brother Bennet, to use one of his expressions, is a man who has a grip on God. He preaches the gospel pure and simple. His enthusiasm is contagious; but his main forte, it seems, is to drive a truth home to his hearers and let them think it over. It was a meeting of deep thinking, heart-searching. Large crowds attended all the services, and much interest was taken in the services held especially for the children. There were sixty-four accessions to the Church, about sixty of these on profession of faith. At the last service of the meeting thirty-one hundred dollars was raised to pay balance indebtedness on the Church and to repair same.

Much of the success of the revival was due to our much loved pastor, Brother Campbell, who, by his faithfulness, loyalty and love, had prepared the soil for this good seed. The church has made much progress under his pastorate and we confidently expect this to be the greatest year of all. We thank God for it all.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Comb Sage Tea In Faded or Gray Hair

Look Young! Common Garden Sage and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

BONITA (LA.) CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: We are trying to be on the job up here. I think I am the "farthest north;" if I were any further, I would be in Arkansas. What few folk I have known from that State were mighty fine, and these folk have lived here long and close enough to catch the spirit. We have had several appointments, each one just a little better than the one that went before; each time we would think that it could not be beaten for good folk, and here we have found it just a "little better."

There are some good, religious people here, and some of the kind that need some religion. I preach three times every Sunday and will need an extra Sunday, as a new saw mill town wants me to come to them once a month. This country has made wonderful progress in all lines in the past few years, and we are trying to keep our Church up with the other progress.

The people here think that I can't preach; I have only talked and preached Centenary all this year. When this is over I will try to teach them something else, but this Centenary ammunition has been fine, and we are planning nothing else than to get a great blessing out of it and "put it all over."

Brothers Harvell, at Mer Rouge, Neill, at Bastrop, and I are working this (Morehouse) parish as a unit. We are planning a meeting of all the charges at a central point on the fifth Sunday, with speakers from the outside, and then we expect to make a team of three to campaign the parish in the interest of the Centenary Movement. "If it can be done, we will do it."

These people know how to be good to a preacher and his family. It makes us feel unworthy, so many kindnesses, and brings out the best there is in a man. The ladies of Bonita church are continually adding to the comforts of the parsonage, having just had three rooms painted and papered, and are planning to paint the outside, and add some furniture, and paint the church.

We are planning and praying for a great revival this year, and I believe it is coming.

With such people as we have here and the leadership of our real presiding elder, who does things, is there any reason why we should not be happy and press forward?

Fraternally,
W. F. HENDERSON, Jr.

A GOOD REPORT FROM RINGGOLD, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: I beg leave to make a short report of my work. I was very cordially received on the Ringgold charge for the fourth year. My people have shown me a great many kindnesses since I returned. We are moving forward with the work of the Kingdom. I am proud of the work I have in charge; for four years we have been steadily moving upward. My salary has been increased every year since I came to the charge. I am glad to state it was raised without my solicitation; this of course is encouraging to me. I have not received less than 40 members in the Church any year since I came to the charge, and, with Rev. T. J. Martin helping, there has been a new congregation with 32 members added to the work.

At this writing there have been organized four Sunday schools on the charge with an enrollment of 200. I wish to tell also of the great work that is being done in the Ringgold church. First of all is the Sunday school, with Brother E. E. Franklin as superintendent. You will not find his kind just anywhere. He loves his church and is trying, with the help of several of the members in the Sunday school, to make his school one of interest and instruction. The school has accepted the 5 cents per member per month, and is giving the fourth Sunday collection to mission special.

We are planning to organize a Wesley Bible class right away. Our church is trying to hold its young people in and under its influence all the time. On the second Sunday night in March we called a meeting at the church to consider organizing an Epworth League, and the result of this meeting was the complete organization of the League, both Junior and Senior, with a membership of 50, and still growing.

Now, Brother Carley, if you should have any inquiry about this work for another year, you may tell the party that I am willing to move as it is the fourth year.

Wishing you the greatest of success, I am as ever, yours for service,

J. F. DRING.

A NOTE FROM AN OLD FRIEND.

Dear Brother Carley: I was married to Rev. George M. Gilmore of the Mississippi Conference on December 19, 1866, soon after the Civil War. He was a subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate then, and continued to take it until his death in 1884. Since then I have continued to renew my subscription to it every year. I should feel lost without it, after having read it all these years. Its weekly visits are a great pleasure and inspiration to me.

My little grandchildren are always glad when "Grandma's" Advocate comes and are eager for me to read it, especially the home page. May God bless you.

Your sister in Christian fellowship,

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Of course the superintendent is going to sign the Acceptance Card; and if he should fail, the pastor will do it.

The money is the least valuable asset we are after; it is LIFE, consecrated life, trained life, Spirit-filled life, that we must have to make Christ known to the world.

Here is how we stand by districts: Seven schools have signed the Acceptance Card and mailed it to J. L. Neill from the Aberdeen District; three from the Columbus; one from the Corinth; five from the Durant; seven from the Holly Springs; one from the Greenville; two from the Sardis; four from the Winona. It is going to take personal work by every man and woman who loves Christ to get this big job done in time to report "everything in full" by the first of May.

Most of the schools that have accepted the Five-Cent Allotment feel so good over what they have done that they are going to double the amount. Some of them have already paid the year's allotment in full. Start your Sunday school off right and everything else will feel the influence. Try it—don't take my word for it.

There will be held a Conference Institute for Elementary Workers in West Point, May 27-28. Miss Minnie E. Kennedy and other gifted teachers will give our conference the benefit of their experience.

Orders for Sunday School Day programs are coming in and they are being forwarded to the Publishing House. Nothing will be gained by delaying the observance of the day. The time will never come when there will not be something in the way. Go at it and the difficulties will vanish.

We ought to enlist at least 5000 new people in our schools this year. They are not going to come unless an honest effort is made to get them. This is a big part of the Centenary Movement. We must save our own people or we can not hope to be of much help to the lost in other fields.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Organization is power in any school in the land. It is strength to anything. We are counting on methodical Methodists to help organize every school in the Conference. How about your Eementary Department? This includes Cradle Roll, Beginners, Primaries, and Juniors. I will send you leaflets giving the full Standards on request. The next highest is the Wesley Bible Classes. We had 203 Classes in Conference last year, and more now. How many will you organize and enroll in your school? Help me, help you. Several new classes are reported since the great Ruston Federation.

A delightful time was spent Saturday and Sunday at Black Water Church on Baker Circuit. The Sunday school is in the front line at Black Water. The pastor had reports from all his schools and we talked and held institutes in a most profitable way. The Methodist Sunday school man can multiply himself by 10 easily when meetings are planned like Brother W. E. Akin's.

Our first Sunday school institute in a district conference for this year was held at First Methodist Church in New Orleans, Wednesday, April 2. The whole conference was an occasion long to be cherished. The fine people of the district were there and everybody felt his commission to serve. Every department of church work is on the mind and shoulders of the presiding elder, Rev. J. G. Snelling. He has a fine corps of helpers in the pastors and other workers. I did not hear a single pessimistic note. The Sunday school program was carried out by speakers selected in every case except one. Most helpful things were presented by speakers. We will have a strong working organization in the Sunday schools of New Orleans District at once. It was the pleasure of the Field Secretary to be with the Conference the two days, and he was treated most royally.

"Most every baby comes into this world with a good-sized imitater, an' if we don't watch out, when he begins comin' to Sunday schooi his imitater may have more work to do imitatin' our frowns an' fault-findin's than our smiles and contentment. Always be before little folks what you'd like them to be when they're growed up."

"I ain't got much faith in doctors who practice hoss-tradin' more'n they do doctorin', nor in Sunday school teachers who think payin' to the church takes the place of prayin' to the Lord."

"Not 'ntil we reach the limit of our ability on all sides have we measured up to our obligations; an' I'm thinkin' if we ain't all th' while tryin' to increase our ability, why we ain't never goin' to measure up, that's all."

and are gone for good when Grav's Ointment is applied. It enters the pores of the skin, cleanses the wound, soothes the pain, kills the germs and immediately begins healing. The blood is permanently relieved of the disease. Just so with sores, bruises, cuts, burns, stings, eczema and the many similar forms of skin eruption. Its constant use for a century has made it a family word in every household. You should have it on your medicine shelf for emergencies. 'Phone your druggist. FROM SILVER CREEK, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: I wish to say that we are making fair progress in our work here for the Master. Brother W. B. Jones, our efficient presiding elder, was with us on the 7th ult., and held our first quarterly conference. We had a good conference. The reports were all splendid. The officials who were present decided to raise the pastor's salary at each church on the charge except one church, and I am glad to say that the churches have accepted their raise in the salary. Brother Jones preached for us an excellent sermon at the evening hour on "The Stewardship of Life," and all seemed to enjoy his message to the fullest. When we made our appearance at the parsonage on this charge, we found that it was poorly furnished, and we began to bend every effort to have it re-furnished, and in a very short time we had something over two hundred dollars on hand to do the work with. And I am happy to say at this date that the pastor and his family are comfortably domiciled in the parsonage here on this charge now. We have never been thrown with a more cordial and hospitable people. Everything indicates a good year for us in the work. Let your prayers attend us to that end, that it mote be so.

With best wishes for you in the work, I am, Yours faithfully,

HILARY S. WESTBROOK, P. C.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD.

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

For Tired Women With Aching Heads

"They help me so much and I find relief as soon as I begin taking your Foley Kidney Pills." Mrs. Frank P. Wood, Morrill, Maine, R. F. D. No. 2.

Sometimes it seems as if you can't stand the pain across your back. It is just making your life miserable and robbing you of all energy and strength. When you are constantly tired, head always aching, nerves "on edge," kidney action painful and burning, then is the time to start in at once on Foley Kidney Pills.

They strengthen the weak, ailing kidneys, improve their action, enable them to throw off the poisons that cause your trouble. Your nerves grow peaceful, sleep becomes sounder, nervous headaches disappear. As Mrs. Wood says: "I find relief as soon as I begin to take your Foley Kidney Pills." Be sure you get the genuine Foley Kidney Pills, for they are purely medicinal and contain no harmful drugs.

Weekly Health Talks

Where Most Sickness Begins and Ends

BY FRANKLIN DUANE, M. D.

It can be said broadly that most human ills begin in the stomach and end in the stomach. Good digestion means good health, and poor digestion means bad health. The minute your stomach fails to properly dispose of the food you eat, troubles begin to crop out in various forms. Indigestion and dyspepsia are the commonest forms, but thin, impure blood, headaches, backaches, pimples, blotches, dizziness, belching, coated tongue, weakness, poor appetite, sleeplessness, coughs, colds and bronchitis are almost as common. There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and is so safe to take, for it is made of roots and herbs. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., stands behind this standard medicine, and it is good to know that so distinguished a physician is proud to have his name identified with it. When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that these remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

If piles are torturing you, get and use Pierce's Anodyne Pile Ointment. The quick relief it gives is hard to believe until you try it. If constipated, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken while using Anodyne Pile Ointment. Few indeed are the cases which these splendid remedies will not relieve and usually overcome. They are so good that nearly every drug store has them for sale.

WORSE THIS SPRING

Owing to Run-down Condition Caused by the War.

Anxiety and worry have a bad effect on the nervous system, and derange the bodily functions, especially digestion and excretion. Who escaped them during the war? They have made nervousness, paleness, lack of vitality worse this Spring.

The very best medicine to take now is Peptiron. It strengthens and tones the nerves. It gives a good color to the lips and cheeks. It is the great vitalizer, giving healthy activity to all the vital organs.

This good medicine, which is a real iron tonic, makes the blood rich in red corpuseles, an abundance of which is indispensable to perfect health. It promptly relieves mental and physical exhaustion, ereates an appetite, and promotes sweet, refreshing sleep. Peptiron is in the form of chocolate-coated tablets, and is pleasant to take.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twings, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expells the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The Woman's Missionary Conference in session March 18-21, in Columbus, Miss., was voted unanimously to be one of the very best ever held in the history of the Society.

The Conference was held in First Church, where forty years ago the women first organized for missionary work. Like a true mother did this hospitable city take her now big child to her arms, nor fire nor flood were able to interrupt her loving ministrations. Like a petted child did the visiting body accept the generous attentions, and the blessed feeling of "home and mother," which made it seem very good to be there.

If there have been fears that the war would cut short the Woman's work during the past year, they were proved by reports to be groundless. The work has moved on.

A few "gleanings" from the reports, follow:

155	contributing adult Societies	3685 members
36	contributing Y. P. societies	991 members
54	contributing Junior societies	1355 members
245		6031

A net gain of 9 organizations and 369 members. However, 65 new organizations were perfected with 814 members, and 657 new members were added to old auxiliaries. Forty-eight auxiliaries contributed $393.80 to the treasury. Forty were dropped from the roll because they contributed nothing. Sardis District did the best organization work, having 33 new organizations, 23 of which are on the treasurer's record. Corinth District is next with 11 new organizations, 8 contributing. Winona has 5, Aberdeen 4, Durant 3, Columbus 1, and Holly Springs 1—all contributing.

The financial gain is $2810 or 19 per cent. The goal was $1500 gain or 10 per cent. Total amount raised for all purposes, connectional, orphans, and church and parsonage, $32,610.71.

A gift of $500 (anonymously) to the Winona District, two gifts of $200 each to the Greenville, and a number of new specials, help to make the grand increase. Among the new specials, we find a kindergarten in Japan, a native teacher in China, a scholarship in China and another in Japan. A Bible woman in Korea and Japanese Sunday school, besides some shares in a boys' school in China.

The Week of Prayer fund was $1130.14, a gain of $359. West Point contributed the largest amount, $247.15. Only 94 observed this season of prayer and self-denial—just 3 more than last year.

Iuka made one of their number a life member.

The Conference set as their budget $20,000; of this, $10,000 is to go on the Pledge.

A "Rally the Membership" campaign is to be launched by which the Conference hopes to hold the organizations of last year and be able to report more net gain than they were able to this year, and to make the organization work count.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

We had expected to give the Annual Report of the Louisiana Conference, W. M. S., in this issue of the Advocate. It is more convenient to give a list of the officers for the new year, with a message from some of them, and follow with the report later. The officers elected for 1919 are as follows:

President, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, New Orleans.

First Vice President, Mrs. Cunningham, Natchitoches.

Second Vice President, Mrs. Elma Drew, Mansfield.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, Crowley.

Recording Secretary, Mrs. Alonzo Early, Amite.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes, Minden.

Superintendent Study and Publicity, Mrs. R. H. Wynn, Ruston.

Superintendent Social Service, Mrs. W. W. Holmes, Lake Charles.

Superintendent Supplies, Mrs. H. L. Baker, Plattenville.

A Word From the President.

Officers: Will you be sure, through the Bulletin and our page in the Advocate, to introduce the new officers and district secretaries to the auxiliaries? So ask for lists of officers, as many have not sent these in yet.

Let us urge payment of pledge by the quarter; it will not be so hard a pull at the last. We have increased our pledge finely, and I feel we should make a special effort not to leave it until fall, but begin now to stress payment of same.

Mrs. C. F. NIEBERGALL.
New Orleans, La.

Message from Second Vice President, Mrs. Elma Drew.

My Dear Sisters: There is so much in my heart as I take up this wonderful work with God's little ones, that I scarcely know what to say.

We have so often heard that "a little child shall lead them," and so they will, if they are given the chance to interpret the Father's message to their pure hearts. God gives these precious little ones to us out of which to mold great characters—nothing less; are we doing our part? Are we giving them a chance to be leaders for Christ? All the children want is for some one to open the way; won't you give the children a part of your time? I am anxious to help you all I can. Mrs. ELMA DREW.

Mansfield, La.

Message from our New Recording Secretary.

Dear Sisters: After attending for the first time the Annual Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society at Mansfield, I might say that the greatest impression I received was the wonderful things it is our privilege to accomplish for Christ through the ministry of prayer. To obey Christ's command and pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into the dark places of the earth, where the fields are ripe already to the harvest is something within the power of each one of us.

Let us rejoice that we are living in a wonderful age and have the privilege of being co-laborers with Christ, and remember, as was brought out at the Wesley Bible Class Federation at Ruston, that He has no hands on earth but ours; no feet on earth but ours; and no tongues on earth but ours. Yours in the Master's work,

The Romantic Story of Southland's Favorite Shoe, EzWear.

Some five years ago, a prominent citizen of South Carolina, visiting New York on important business, chanced to meet the maker of a shoe built on new and unusual lines; an enthusiastic admirer of its most distinctive features, ease and comfort, had suggested the name EzWear; it was promptly adopted. The business man from the South, knowing how welcome such a shoe would be in his part of the country, urged that its remarkable qualities, including not only comfort, but style, durability and economy, be made known there. That this has been effectively done is proven by the enormous demand that has sprung up in the South for EzWear shoes. It is said that its sale there during the last twelve months has increased fully three hundred per cent. The distributor, Mr. J. R. Simon, of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., says that all who wish to know about a shoe that combines all worth-while shoe qualities, may have a copy of his money-saving shoe book for the asking.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of health bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexions, are those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs.

FROM WEST END, LAUREL, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Our two weeks' revival services closed at the West End Methodist Church Friday night, March 28, having proved a success in rejuvenating the church and getting the work back to normal condition after laxity of interest as a result of the closing during the Influenza epidemic. As a result of the revival, four new members were added to the Church—three by profession of faith and one by letter. The evangelist, Brother J. V. Bennett, did fine work during the meeting, and the services were enjoyed by all who attended. We are looking forward to a good year's work. Pray for us.

Yours in the work,
L. M. SHARP.

Laurel, Miss.

FROM BERNICE, LA.

Just a few words about our work. Dr. Henry was with us last Saturday and Sunday, March 29-30. He preached Saturday at 11 a. m., and held conference in the afternoon and preached again Sunday at 11 a. m.

The quarterly conference was held at Alabama Church, one of our country churches. We had a great feast Saturday, dinner being served at the Church. Of course you city folks don't know much about these great feasts—dinner on the grounds at our country churches; ask Dr. Henry—he can tell you.

The greatest feast was in a spiritual way, though. Dr. Henry is not only a great and good man, but he is a great preacher. We enjoyed his two spiritual messages very much, and our vision of the great needs of the world have been made bigger. I feel sure that the Centenary Drive on Bernice charge will be 100 per cent success.

At the quarterly conference the pastor's and P. E.'s salaries were reported paid for the first half of the year, and the Conference assessments more than half paid in cash and most of the other half secured in pledges. Who else can so report? Whenever church members get their heads and hearts together, led by the Holy Spirit, the Lord's business is going to be looked after in a way that will insure success. Since Annual Conference, we have organized two Sunday schools, one Epworth League and one live prayer meeting.

We have received only five new members this year, but have not held our revival meetings yet. Bernice church is a half-station now, but for next year the Official Board say a station will suit them better—that is a preacher all the time.

PROGRESS ON THE BOSSIER CITY-LAKE END (LA.) CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: Things are moving on in a very satisfactory manner in the Bossier City-Lake End charge. There have been fifteen additions to the church since Conference, and the prospects are good for many more.

We are handicapped to a large extent here at Bossier City by not having a house to worship in. But the outlook is bright in the near future for a $10,000 brick church. The building committee meet every two weeks and report what is being done, and they are bringing in some good reports. Since our last meeting, they were able to report $1700 in good subscriptions. Shreveport is interested in our proposition and will see us through. These people are not so taken up with building a new church as in any way to make them forget their preacher. I never saw such a "pounding" in my life as was given us last week. It's great to serve such a choice people. God is with us and is blessing us. Pray for us. Your friend,

J. M. BOYKIN.

TELLS WHY CHICKS DIE.

E. J. Reefer, America's foremost poultry expert, 4254 Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free his valuable chicken book just off the press entitled "White Diarrhoea and how to Cure It." This book tells how to prepare a simple home solution that will cure this terrible disease overnight and will actually save 90 per cent of every hatch. This book is worth $1 of any poultry raiser's money, but Mr. Reefer is sending it absolutely free as long as the present edition lasts.

To be angry about trifles is mean and childish; to rage and be furious is brutish; and to maintain perpetual wrath is akin to the practice and temper of devils; but to prevent and suppress rising resentment is wise and glorious, is manly and divine.—Watts.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS.

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

A GOOD MEETING AT WINNFIELD, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: We have just closed a revival at Winnfield. Brother Dan Kelley assisted us. He is fine help. He is not only a great preacher, but a remarkably fine personal worker. He endeared himself to many of our people, and those who heard him through were thoroughly convinced that he is a true man of God—one who lives in close touch with his Lord and one who has great love for poor, fallen humanity.

As a result of the meeting, we have added thirty-four members to the Church, and our church as a whole has taken on new life.

TWO HOME SCENES OF LONG AGO

By Margaret T. Russell

The gospel of Luke might be termed "The Women's Gospel," written by one whose calling as a physician gave him a deep appreciation of and sympathy with the needs of women. In its twenty-four chapters there are twenty-eight direct and two indirect references to women, all seen in some relation to the home and family life. Among the women of varied character who ministered unto Christ out of hearts of love and sympathy, one stands pre-eminently representative. We find her with her sister in the ministry of love, graciously receiving Jesus into their home. There at His feet Mary sits, displaying a trinity of womanly graces: humility, obedience and spiritual insight. No home can be called Christian until the woman has taken this place before her Savior, there to learn from him the same lessons.

The scene changes, and again Jesus is found in the home at Bethany, where they made him a supper and Martha served while Lazarus sat with Him at the table. You will recall Mary's act of devotion, which for extravagance has never been equaled. Having broken the precious box of ointment, she wiped His feet with her hair, the symbol of woman's subordination and glory, in this way bringing to Jesus the very glory of her womanhood. Have you done the same? If so, what is commonly called woman's weakness, meaning sympathy, tenderness, love, trust and hopefulness, becomes strength glorified by Him, the perfume of which will fill the whole world.

THIS GIRL IS A WONDER.

Do you want to make more money than you ever possessed? If so, learn to make nut and fruit bonbons—the business will net you $90 to $300 per month. You can handle the work from your own home; all who sample your bonbons become regular customers. You can start by investing less than $10. Mary Elizabeth started her candy kitchen with less than $5, and has made a million. Cannot you make $1,000? I will tell you all about the business and help you start, so you can become independent. Now is the psychological time to make big money, as fine bonbons command phenomenal prices. Write me to-day. Isabella Inez, P. O. Box 1096, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A Stubbed Toe,

a cut finger, a burnt hand, may seem a trifle though painful, and you are likely to let the wound take care of itself. When aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand and by the millions of germs that attack the child every day, however, it is likely to develop into an ugly sore, and if left alone, into blood poison. Don't play with fate. At the first injury apply Yel-O-Pine Antiseptic (formerly Duncan's) Healing Oil. It is made from yellow pine products and consequently safe and effective. It immediately stops the bleeding, cleanses the wound, kills the germs, soothes the pain, and begins healing. Buy a bottle at your druggist's or send 25c to the Yellow Pine Medicine Co., Montgomery, Ala. Keep it on your shelf for the emergency. You will find it indispensable. It is the first and best aid for old sores, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, skin eruptions—such as itch, insect bites, tetter, eczema, ring worm, poison oak and excellent for rheumatism.

"TO FORGIVE IS DIVINE."

We were greatly impressed by the statement from Paris that President Poincare of France has commuted, at the request of the Premier himself, to ten years' imprisonment the death sentence imposed upon the man who attempted to assassinate Premier Clemenceau last February. Whether right or wrong, it shows that the beautiful virtue of forgiveness is still one of the regnant principles of humanity. It reaches its culmination in God's treatment of us.

THE MORE REASON WHY.

The secular press has featured the announcement that Prince Albert of England works as an ordinary clerk in the British air ministry. The statement is made, as if it were worthy of special note, that he is probably the first member of a British royal family to hold such a routine job. We remember to have read somewhere, "Whosoever will be great among you, shall be your minister; and whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all." Our own opinion is that royalty has no right to exist anywhere to-day unless it does serve.

MIGHT AS WELL.

We understand that the Governor of Mississippi will issue a proclamation designating April 26 as "Family Cow Day." It seems to us that nearly everything else under the sun has been given a "day"—why not the cow? She has saved the lives of thousands of little children by her generous provision of a highly nourishing and necessary food. She will probably be unaware of the honor conferred upon her—but the great are usually unconscious of their greatness anyway. We suppose the dwellers in the cities, who are deprived of the luxury of keeping a cow, may celebrate the day appropriately by tying a blue ribbon around the milk bottle.

RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPERS ARE DOING THEIR SHARE.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, the announcement was made that the weekly and monthly publications of this country have contributed space to the value of $600,000 for advertising the Victory Liberty Loan. That is a splendid tribute to the patriotism of the secular press of the nation. It must not be forgotten, however, in this connection that the religious newspapers of the land are just as patriotic in their support of the financial plans of the Government. It would be hard to estimate the actual value of the service rendered the Government in carrying out its war-time program by the publications that are maintained by the Church and religious organizations. We have always held that real patriotism and religion are closely akin.

A STRANGE ATTITUDE.

There seems to be a well organized movement among those who were opposed to the adoption of the national prohibition amendment to prevent the proper enforcement of the amendment when it goes into effect. Meetings of various kinds have been held, ample funds seem to have been raised, and much publicity has been given to the movement through the daily newspapers. The statement has already been made that the amendment will probably not be enforced rigidly, and there is even the suggestion that it will not become operative at all. We do not hesitate to brand this as one of the most dangerous of the movements that have gained more or less headway since the war—dangerous not merely because it proposes to destroy the efficacy of a particular legislative enactment, but also because it indicates a strange attitude on the part of a considerable number of our people toward the fundamental law of the country. We can understand a propaganda for the repeal of the amendment to the Constitution, though we believe it will be unavailing; but we cannot understand how those who believe in law at all can encourage a movement that proposes deliberately to ignore the most sacred of all our guarantees of liberty—the Constitution itself. Disloyalty assumes many strange guises; this may be one of them.

EASTER LILIES.

By Ulysses Grant Foote.

The sunbeams kiss the earth's cold lips,
  Then steal away;
The warmth of life then slowly slips
  Through potted clay.
The rooted bulb for nurture sips
  Where minims play,
While plans for spring and lily tips
  The angels lay.

The garden brook, with music rife
  Is singing sweet;
The jonquils hold new lease on life,
  And nod to greet
The rose; the robin blows his fife.
  While sweet to sweet
The sparrows twit in hurried strife
  And joy complete.

The sun draws up from hidden deep,
  The lily's fold,
And fills the vale with heap on heap
  Of yellow gold.
The angel stands where Marys weep
  From days of old;
While scented notes from trumpets leap
  In triumph bold.

From out deep caves of dawn unfolds immortal light;
While Death nor Fear no longer holds
  By right of might.
As Nature paints the lily's folds
  With mellowed white,
So God will clothe our waiting souls
  In his own light.

"TO YOUR TENTS."

A woman of Brooklyn has written to the mayor of the city, asking that she be allowed to pitch tents for her family on unused municipally-owned lots. The reason of her request is that her landlord has recently increased her rent $10, which she is unable to pay, and she cannot find another apartment within her means. A good many people in the cities throughout the country seem to be in the same condition as this unfortunate woman—they cannot stay where they are, and they cannot go anywhere else. Presumably, rents in their upward climb, are simply following the law of supply and demand; but probably the spirit of greed that makes men take advantage of the necessities of their fellow-men has something to do with the situation. It may or may not be significant of a deplorable state of affairs that more than thirty thousand people are reported to have emerged into the millionaire class through war-profits; but there is a widespread feeling that many supposedly reputable men have engaged in disreputable profiteering. It is an ominous sign when honest, hard-working people are not able to meet the costs of decent living.

THE PROSTITUTION OF A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

The moving picture is really one of the great inventions of modern science. It has within it the possibility of immense good. But like so many other good things, its control seems to have fallen into the hands of men who are utterly conscienceless in its use. Their sole desire seems to be to make money, regardless of the moral effect their pictures produce. We are not unmindful of the fact that many productions of merit are shown on the screen; but we are painfully aware, also, that many of the most widely advertised and most largely attended attractions are, in the opinion of competent critics, thoroughly bad. A deputy police commissioner of New York, a woman, is quoted in the secular press as having said recently: "The clergy, educators, judges, and welfare workers might as well lock up the churches, shut the books, and close the courts if they are going to permit the filthy motion pictures that are being shown in New York and throughout the country." She further asserts that juvenile delinquency is increasing rapidly, and that it is largely due to the poison that is being instilled into juveniles in moving picture houses. It is a pity that a great enterprise should be prostituted to such low ends. We believe the remedy is not in the indiscriminate condemnation of the moving picture as a means of entertainment and instruction, but in the prohibition, by public sentiment and by law, of the showing of films that are not at least morally clean. The Church ought to be strong enough to keep what has become the most popular form of entertainment in the world upon a plane that will enable religious people to enjoy it.

DAYBREAK.

Through silence, gloom, and star-strewn paths of night,
The breathless hours like phantoms stole away.
Black lay the earth, in primal blackness wrapt,
Ere the great miracle once more was wrought.
A chill wind freshened in the pallid East,
And brought sea-smell of newly-blossomed foam,
And stirred the leaves and branch-hung nests of birds.
Fainter the glow-worm's lantern glimmered now
In the marsh-land and on the forest's hem,
And the slow dawn with purple laced the sky,
Where sky and sea lay sharply, edge to edge.
The purple melted, changed to violet,
And that to every delicate sea-shell tinge,
Blush-pink, deep cinnabar; then no change was,
Save that the air had in it sense of wings,
Till suddenly the heavens were all aflame,
And it was morning. O great miracle!
O radiance and splendor of the Throne,
Daily vouchsafed to us! Yet, saith the fool,
"There is no God!"

—Thomas B. Aldrich.

A SIGNIFICANT SIGN.

By Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl.

It was a strange sign that was given to the shepherds by which they were to recognize the Messiah—the Savior of the world. A Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes. But it is very significant.

This we learn: In our search for the Christ we must not go to the things that are exceptional to, but that are in common with all humanity. Correggio paints a halo around the Redeemer's head, and pictures an unearthly glow of light around the Babe, as in his "Holy Night." But no such sign was given to the shepherds in their search for Him as He lay in His mother's arm in the manger.

Nor was there any supernatural halo about Him when He played on the streets of Nazareth as a lad; or as He worked as a young man in Joseph's carpenter shop; or, later, when He mingled with men doing His life-work. He was to be known not by the things He has in distinction from mankind, but from the many things He has in common with humanity.

Time was when he was considered great or greatest among men who differed most in any one or more traits of character from his fellowmen—standing in a class by himself. Hence people built inner courts for their kings inaccessible to the people. To be considered greatest in religion monks bid themselves from their fellowmen in cloisters and desert places.

But to-day he is considered greatest who touches humanity at the most conceivable points. Christ's greatness from infancy was to be found not in things distinctive from but in common with all mankind. He was always to be found among His fellowmen, talking with them, helping them, sympathizing with them in their sorrows, rejoicing with them in their joys. And it is such a Savior we need.

But the sign to the shepherds is significant also in that it teaches us that the power and attractiveness of the religion of Jesus lies in its simplicity. The Babe was wrapped in swaddling clothes, not in purple and fine linen. He lay in a manger, not in a Herod's palace in a sumptuously canopied bed.

Herein lies its perfection. For in simplicity is perfection. Complexity is confusing weakness. The truly great is mostly simple. Great lives are always lives of simplicity. Socrates, Isaiah, John the Baptist, Moses, Paul, Knox, Lincoln are names that stand for simplicity of being. Michael Angelo defined perfection as the "purgation of superfluities." The greatest paintings are those that emphasize some one great theme, not a complexity or confusion of subjects. The greatest statues are not those of complex poses, lines and colors, but simple, unornamental. We are told that when "fine arts entered upon their decline the Venetians began to ornament their statues. Each Apollo wore a gilded crown; the marble cheek of Aphrodite was stained with red; the legs of the dying Gladiator flamed with a bright flesh color; soon all beauty fled away before complexity."

Thus, too, in life. The fewest complications in it make it the most perfect. The best society, that which produces the best and most beautiful men and women, the strongest morally and physically, is not the complicated, the conventional, but that which is marked by simplicity. The generations that have been epochal in all that made for true advancement of civilization in the way of liberty, commerce and religion, have been such as lived in simple home life. The home-loving Hollanders of the 15th and 16th centuries were pre-eminent in the arts of peace, leading the world in educational pursuits, being foremost in physical research, in rational medicine, being, as an historian has said, "the admiration, the envy, the examples of nations."

So, too, the simple Scotch, with their plain living and high thinking, made possible such pictures as Burns gives in "Cotter's Saturday Night," and produced a Knox, a Chalmers, a McCleod, a Guthrie, a Hume, a Carlye. And criticize as one will the Puritanism of our own early history with its severely simple living, yet its discipline made possible the establishment of this great nation.

In literature the same holds true. The literature that touches the human heart and goes singing and living its way down the ages, a perennial spring of joy, is not the stilted, complex, rhetorical writing, but the simple, homely kind. An Oxford professor is quoted as saying that Longfellow had a hundred readers in England where Browning had one. He explained this by saying that the great American poet seems like a simple pasture-grown oak, while the Englishman was a tangled forest where the very richness of the vines hid all trees.

The 20th century is in religion learning the significance of this most positively. In the disclosing of the Christ to the distracted, upset nations of earth the Church is presenting Him not in many layers of creedal propositions, not in complications of ritual formalities; not in fatiguing rounds of committees and societies, and in the whirl of Church machinery, but in a simple, plain, consecrated heart-service and worship. Only thus can the Infinite Love come into sympathetic relation with humanity and can the human heart be made to touch the heart of Jesus.—The Christian Intelligencer.

CHRIST IN THE HOME.

By Rev. Hilary S. Westbrook.

I have just finished reading the Rev. Lewis Powell's splendid book, "Life and Service." It has appealed to me in a forceful way, particularly the chapter on "Home Building." And I feel constrained, since having read this book, to give some pen sketches, if I may, on "The Christian Home," in these times of rush and hurry.

"And the ark of the Lord continued in the house of Obed-edom, the Gittite, three months: and the Lord blessed Obed-edom, and all his household." (2 Samuel, 6:11). Now, the ark was a symbol of the Divine presence. While detained in this private home it was the occasion of a real blessing. Yes, God blessed the house of Obed-edom while the ark of the covenant abode under their roof, and He will still bless the homes where He is loved and honored. This Gittite family was no exception to the rule. Christ, in the home, guarantees a rich blessing. Hence, the Jewish fathers were to hold the Passover service in their homes and they were to explain to their children what they meant by the service, and out of that fact grew up a whole nation that was knit together as one great homogeneous people.

Our homes should be like that of the Bethany sisters, where Jesus so frequently loved to dwell. When needing rest, He could slip away to this quiet retreat and always find a hearty welcome awaiting Him there. Not only the house of Obed-edom, but every other home that opens its doors wide to Christ as a permanent guest, will have "the blessing of the dear Lord Jesus which addeth no gloom or sorrow but maketh rich and happy." It is because the ark of the Lord Jesus Christ is without, that sin has wrought such havoc in the family and home-life of our people. It matters not what societies and organizations there may be for the nurture and development of Christian life, there is nothing to take the place of the ideal Christian home, and there is nothing in the home to take the place of the old-time family worship. A community can be no better than its homes, and a church often lacks spirituality because its homes are deficient in divine things. Let the pastor be ever so good and pious, he is sure to be weak if the parents are not upholding his hands by piety in the home, and leading their children to serve God in the beauty of holiness; the pastor cannot lead the community to follow him as he follows even the Lord. Christ within is the secret of great victory always.

Throw the doors wide open. No doubt Obed-edom felt highly elated in having the ark of the Lord in his house. Indeed, it was a rare privilege; but all of us can have Christ as a personal guest. When He said to the little man that had climbed into the branches of the tree to see Him, "Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down; for this day I must abide at thy house," the astonished—onlooker, despised publican that he was, was thrilled with delight, and with joy he threw both heart and home open to the wondrous guest, with the result that, righting the wrongs of all the past, he henceforth became an ardent follower and worker of the Lord Jesus Christ. But there was no more radical change wrought in the home of Zacchaeus than would occur in many other homes if Christ were admitted. Perhaps such a cleansing would follow as when He drove the dishonest tradesmen from the Temple, for there is so much in the homes that ought not to be—books, papers, questionable company, ungodly practices, wicked habits, in other words, sin intrenched within so many, many homes to-day. The brilliant John Randolph, of Virginia, said he was saved from infidelity by the earnest prayers of a Christian mother. The reckless rushing to and fro, so prevalent these days, club life, father yonder, mother somewhere else, children scattered, or left in the custody of the negro nurse! As I view it, in these modern times but little family life is wrecking many homes. Family worship is largely a thing of the past. Instead of being the rule for church members, it is the exception to the rule and we are beginning to pay a heavy penalty as a result. The Word of the Lord enthroned there would result in the dear Lord Jesus' abiding there through the Spirit, and that would mean salvation to our homes.

The statement coming from Napoleon was a timely utterance, when he said that what France needed was mothers; and may I say that what the church needs first of all is the Christian home. We insist that nothing else can take the place of a Christian home. Both Church and State have their primal springs in the home. Debase these cradles of the nation to-day, and ruin will be the result of the Church and the nation of to-morrow. There is no calculating the power and influence of a life or a home for weal or for woe, for good or for evil, in the community. In these strenuous days, the worldly drift, the irreverent spirit have driven the family altars from many homes and have left them in a devastated condition. I am pleading with the fathers and mothers of our great Church that we might get back in the old paths in which our forefathers trod, "spiritually speaking," and lead our children to a knowledge of salvation," as our fathers did in the days gone by. The ark no longer abides within. Jesus is not dwelling in the house. Sin holds high carnival and the young men and women are rushing on and on from the overshadowing archways of such homes as failed to hold Christ up, little prepared to grapple with the great problems of these days in which we live. Happy the family where Jesus is in the midst. Yes, thrice blessed the house over which Christ, our Lord, is the sovereign and head, for out from "its inward places will indeed flow rivers of living water. Can we afford to do without the family altar in our homes? Some one has told us that such scenes as this made Scotland great as a God-fearing people, or occurred because her people were, and have been, God-fearing. We must make a new effort to establish, or re-establish, family altars and worship in all our homes, to have Christ in the home. Is the meek and lowly Jesus the honored guest in that home of yours, daily and hourly?

"Happy the home where Jesus' name
Is sweet to every ear:
Where children early lisp his name,
And parents hold him dear."

REMINISCENT—AN ECHO OF YESTERDAY.

By Payton A. Sowell.

I.

While in nowise dissatisfied with my birthplace at Williamsport, Tennessee, a little village sitting with her feet in Duck River, I am more and more aware that the world is large. It is a growing pleasure to see what is beyond the rim of hills that encircle the fertile valleys of childhood.

A Methodist by inheritance and by choice, my forbears were "local preachers," from the Old North State. In a free country, I deliberately made choice of Methodism. It is true, in the environment of my youth, "every kind" and "cult" was not present to choose from, but among all "that was visible" I chose to be a Methodist. Forty-nine years ago, I was fascinated with the charm of the poverty and service belonging to a circuit rider. Only a few years after the roar of cannon and the tramp of the struggling armies in the great war between the States, one October afternoon I rode away from the door of the old home where my unsophisticated childhood and youth had been spent. Ross was a fine horse—a bright sorrel, with white feet and blaze in his face. Though young, he was gentle—and when he went down the road in a single foot but few could keep abreast of him. Our lives seemed blended—many a chapter was read, and many a "sermon" (if they could be called that) were declaimed, as we went over the long, unsettled roads; and he was a quiet, if not interested, hearer.

I did not intend to go off at this tangent, but when I think of Ross, and those roads, and that circuit, and the sincere, simple folk, and of that year—the memories of struggles and prayers—it is difficult to keep back the recollections of those earnest and contented days; hence speaking of them is easy.

What I did intend saying was that, being a Methodist 54 years by profession, and a Methodist preacher 51 years "by license," I have come to think in terms and circumstances "Methodistic." And that makes it difficult to keep from thinking of the first quarterly meeting, and of the little log meeting-house, and of the large wooden shelter, and of that glorious Tennessee November Sunday morning, and of our young presiding elder, Brother Dinwiddie, whose rich baritone voice sent swelling through the leafless forest sentences and paragraphs, as he considered, "What is the Almighty that I should serve Him?"

Having received many delicate courtesies from a number of the preachers in Louisiana, despite the fact that I am "a stranger" in "these parts," I have been unable to keep my mind from running among the "folded years" of this Conference, and becoming interested in the history of Louisiana Methodist preachers.

It is with no purpose to essay the role of a historian, and no thought of criticism, but first to please my own mind, and a hope to give a moment's pleasurable recreation to the readers of the Advocate, that I write.

To Brother Carley, the Editor, I am indebted for the pleasure of a few days' perusal of "some old records," which made it possible even to think of these things of "the yesterdays."

When my mind turned towards these "reminiscences," I conceived the idea of recounting the movement of Methodism in Mississippi, and passing in view for a moment a number of the "captains" of the Methodist hosts of that Conference. This seemed fitting, as for so long a period Mississippi and Louisiana Methodism were one. And then, when one begins to search for the beginnings of all these wonderful results, it appears almost "important" to write of Tennessee as well as of Mississippi.

For, in 1798, Tobias Gibson rode six hundred miles over the Natchez Trace to Strother's Meeting-house to report, in Tennessee, the results of his year's work at this southern outpost of missionary operations at Natchez. And he came again to Tennessee the next autumn—when the glory of Indian summer hung like a blue scarf over all the Tennessee hills and unbroken forests—calling for recruits. How can Tennessee, Mississippi, and Louisiana Methodism be considered separately?

It is even more difficult, when we further consider that, in 1804, when Lewis Garrett was P. E. of the Cumberland District, Illinois, on the northwest was one circuit, and Natchez, Miss., was another circuit on the south and Kentucky and middle Tennessee were the central sections of his district. The day has been when we were one. I have my doubts about Presiding Elder Garrett's being present in quarterly conference at Natchez to ask "old Q. 8"—"What has been raised the present quarter for the support of the ministry, and how applied?" I hardly think he could, even if he had had Ross to ride. You will easily see how difficult it is not to "go back" into Tennessee and Mississippi to write about Louisiana. "One family, we dwell in Him"—old-time Methodists were wont to sing this, and we should realize it—if we have forgotten the tune.

The circuit of "Natchez" was taken from the "Cumberland District" in 1806, and connected with the Mississippi District, and Learner Blackman was presiding elder. He was one of the most choice men in the Western Conference; he ranked along with McKendree and Thos. L. Douglass. Then it was that Elisha Bowman was sent as pastor in charge to Opelousas Circuit; and thus the stream of life flowed into Louisiana through Mississippi.

But I am sure—if I get the good graces of the Editor of the New Orleans Advocate to get a hearing—he would be inclined to cut me off from flying wide, and, therefore, I "draw myself" in, and make effort to write chiefly of Louisiana.

ADJUSTMENTS.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

A few days ago I met a friend who put the question, "Well, have you gotten adjusted to your new life?" "Not yet," I answered; and it seemed a question which will require the unlearning of much and the learning how to do otherwise. When I was a boy, I heard, or read, the story of a horse which had been worked in a barkmill all his life, where the pull was round and round from morning till night (I'll let Sam Steel tell the young people what a barkmille is, or was). The story was (and no doubt it was a fabrication) that upon being turned out, the old horse knew nothing but to go round and round. I suppose that the entire connection has heard Lambert Neill's story of the old cavalry horse, which carries the same lesson of habit. Adjust, Webster says, means to make things fit, and the Standard adds "accurately." When I was a boy there was an old "Plymouth HoHow" clock in our home which had not run for years; one day I decided I'd try my hand as a clock-maker. It was easy enough taking it to pieces, but when I began the work of reconstructing, adjusting, if you please, the parts, I found there were more wheels left on the floor than I could get adjusted in the machine. So far as I know, that old clock has never been adjusted—I find it nowhere about the house.

To a man who has spent, without interruption, one line of life, it isn't an easy thing to adjust oneself to anything else; forty years of study in preparation of sermons, to a position where you can only scotch for the other fellow; from pastoral visits, upward of a thousand a year, to looking after the question, "How can I supplement so as to meet the bread and butter question?"—the "what shall I eat and what shall I drink and wherewithal shall I be clothed?" To have no happy young people call that you may add to their lifetime joy; no house of mourning to visit, no sorrowing ones to comfort, no aching heart to cheer. But why enumerate? "As the heart panteth for the water-brook" only answers. Adjust? Well, perhaps so; we are told that time heals (adjusts) all things, and "If by reason of strength it be four-score years," the work may be done, but not in a day.

St. Paul says the minister's function is to persuade men; and to get out of a habit of persuading which has grown with the years to one of stern command, such as one must use in attempting to reconstruct an old home, demands more of the spirit of the military commander, who says "go, and he goeth; come, and he cometh." Washington orders the clocks turned forward to save daylight, to adjust things to labor conditions, but when the cocks begin to crow at four in the morning, the cows to low and the pigs to squeal, one is reminded of the little poem of his childhood—

"Must beast and birds and ants be wise,
While I my moments waste?
Oh, let me with the morning rise
And to my duty haste."

So with a thump we strike the floor and then, when the night draws near, the muscles grow flabby, the nerves more quiescent and "tired nature's sweet restorer" calls to rest at 8 p. m. Adjustment? When it has been for so long, long a time, 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.! In the Christian Advocate (Nashville) of March 23, Dr. Charles Foster Smith, of the University of Wisconsin, has a contribution which, in its opening sentence, is suggestive as to the power of even a pensioner on a Carnegie fund for retired teachers to adjust himself to his new relations, though carrying a comfortable living. For weeks and weeks the wisest heads in all the world have been in conference trying to adjust the affairs of the nations, yet the Literary Digest of just last week has a cartoon giving the dangers yet ahead for those diplomats. And so it goes, and we find ourselves like the Dutchman who, after trying the intricacies of our English pronunciation, cried out in his despair, "Mine Got, mine Got, dis English language! Ven I t'inks I've got him all right, I've got him all wrong." So we flounder about trying to "adjust," sometimes hitting, sometimes missing. I have heard preachers discourse eloquently on what they could do and what great successes they would make after their retirement; but as Old Bullion so often wrote, "Haec fabula docet" (this fable teacheth), that's more easily said than done. Already this has exceeded the limit, but it just must be writ. With apologies to those who suffer, and love to all the brethren, I will stop.

RUSSELLISM: A MENACING CALAMITY.

By Rev. A. S. Byrd.

There is no doubt that the modern farbrication of error commonly known as Russellism, is as great a peril to the Church spiritually as Bolshevism is to the State politically. The very stealthy, yet rapid spread of this pernicious delusion of the evil one should be the cause for great alarm, and much solicitude among the members of the orthodox churches of our land. Our children and young people must be saved from this menacing calamity.

On account of non-church-going on the part of so many people, the preacher finds himself at a disadvantage trying to combat this subtle foe of mankind from the pulpit. The only way to fight this error successfully is through the distribution of books and tracts bearing on the subject. I think it would be a great and commendable work for some men of means to furnish the funds for the purpose of supplying preachers with literature, in the way of tracts and leaflets, free, such as they may need to check the onslaught of this bold and sagacious enemy of the souls of men.

While in our Church just now the Centenary has right of way, and that is as it should be, and many other things of importance are making demands on our energies, I think it is equally important that we guard against this no-hellite peril, operating here under the shadow of our church-spires, NOW.

It is indeed surprising to learn of the great number of our church members, and among them frequently our leaders, that are tainted with this noxious teaching; many of them leaning to it very strongly.

It is passing strange, after six thousand years of preaching by Jehovah, by patriarchs, and prophets, by Jesus while on earth, by His apostles, and the early disciples, and all of the preachers of any renown since, Luther, Wesley, Knox, Finney, Moody, Sam Jones, and Billy Sunday of to-day, and many others, that there is a hell—that is, there is future and eternal punishment for the wicked, and that "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment"—a modern wiseacre has discovered that it is all hocus-pocus, and all of this host of teachers are gigantic frauds, and have been deceiving the people of all the ages that are past. And now light is come: "There is no hell," no punishment for the incorrigible and finally impenitent; and that all will have a second chance after death!

This fallacy teaches that the second death spoken of is a destroyer, that is, in the sense of annihilation, or putting out of existence. Hence, if one misses heaven at first, having a second chance to make his calling and election sure and fails, he dies again, and is no more. The soul is extinct, "which is the second death" (Rev. 21-8), according to Russellism.

They ignore the fact that death is not a destroying, but a separating element, dual in its effect, operating separately on the spiritual and physical life of man; on the former, when sin supervenes and the soul is separated from God, to continue thus separated through this life, unless restored by the means provided in the Atonement, and be eternally banished from His presence in the world to come; operating on the physical life when the time of probation here ceases, and soul and body are separated. (Temporarily, till the respective resurrections.)

The second death, and the consequent first death here inferred, have no reference to the physical life whatever, applying only to the spiritual.

The first death ensues when sin comes into the life, separating the soul from God. The second death comes when the unfortunate one, after having faced the awful judgment, has the just and terrible sentence, which he has brought down upon himself, "Depart from me," pronounced upon him, and he is eternally banished from God, and all that is pure and holy, "into the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death."

This place was not made for man at all, and God never intended that any man should go there. Jesus says that it was prepared for the devil and his angels; but of course, if man whom God made for His giory is so ungrateful as to forget God and reject His Son, Jesus Christ, and make choice of the devil, the arch-enemy of God, and all that is pure and holy, and live for, and with him here in this life, he can but reasonably expect to share his fate in the world to come, "in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone, * * * and be tormented day and night for ever and ever." This is reasonable, even if God had not fixed a penalty to the transgression of His law by man.

It is perfectly reasonable that God should fix this as the penalty for the transgression of His law, as He prepared the lake of fire and brimstone for, and it is His purpose that the devil and his angels shall receive their just punishment therein. If man, making choice of Satan, thus estranges himself from God, it is reasonable that God should determine this aforetime as a meet fate for him. And in reality it will be a merciful fate, for should a sinner go to Heaven, the only place other than hell that he could go to, it would be a greater punishment than hell, for he would be out of harmony with all that appertains to God and heaven.

God casts no man into hell. Yes, He is "too good, and merciful," hence, man goes there from choice, of his own volition, and in spite of all that a good, merciful, and loving God can do to keep him out: even to the sending His Son, Jesus Christ, the brightest jewel of heaven, to earth to pay the penalty to the full, "That He by the grace of God should taste death for every man"—not only the first, but also the second death. In Gethsemane, He said to His disciples, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death." Here, as His humanity would assert itself, He suffered the first death, manifest in the cry, "Let this cup pass from me." Here, as He was in great agony because of the sins of a sin-cursed race alienated from His Father, He suffered the pangs of separation and the tortures of sin, though in Him was no sin. On the cross He suffered all the horrors of the second death, manifest in the cry, "My God! My God! Why hast thou forsaken me?" Here He felt the same sense of banishment from God and of being forsaken of God as the lost soul feels in the nethermost pits of eternal woe.

This was necessary that the full penalty of the law might be met and divine justice thoroughly satisfied, and that a redemption might be complete. In the Russellistic creed, there are some beautiful teachings that are indeed quite scriptural, and by these the unwary are caught, and drawn in. But over against this, there are so many bald errors taught in it, that the truth is entirely overbalanced. Outstanding among these errors, are the "second chance," and the "no-heli" delusions.

I am of the opinion that one very effective bulwark against this enemy of souls would be for all of the preachers of the orthodox churches to preach more on the only two subjects that the Bible really contains—sin, and salvation; sin with its dire consequences, hell; salvation with its glorious reward, heaven.

THE BLUE RIDGE CONFERENCE AS I SAW IT.

Reading Brother Alford's article on the Blue Ridge Conference reminded me that I was requested by the Mississippi delegation of Methodists who attended the fifth session of the conference to write it up for the Advocate.

As I understand the purpose of this article to be for the benefit of those who did not attend any of the sessions of the conference, I will try to begin somewhere near the beginning.

The Blue Ridge Association was organized about ten years ago for the purpose of training Christian workers of the South. It is situated seventeen miles from Asheville, N. C., and three miles from Black Mountain station. The holdings consist of about twelve hundred acres, on which numerous buildings have been erected. Robert E. Lee Hall is the principal building, which is a four-story structure with a rock foundation. The other buildings are a spacious dining hall, kitchen, auditorium, Martha Washington Hall, and some twenty neat cottages. The Association has its own waterworks, electric light plant, sewerage system, swimming pool, playgrounds and athletic fields.

The first conference was held here in 1912, with an enrollment of 1,452, with a steady growth each year until an enrollment of about 3000 was reached in 1917, and still greater in 1918-19.

The principal subjects taught in this institution are Bible Study, Mission Study, Social Study, Personal Evangelism, Methods of Organization, Forms and Methods of Social Service, Ideals of Democracy, Athletics, etc.

This particular school which we attended is known as the Blue Ridge Social Service Conference, and is conducted under the auspices of the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association. It was divided into seven or eight separate and distinct sessions, the fifth of which we attended, where the same subjects were taught and like answers given as at all other sessions.

There were about a hundred Southern men in attendance at this particular session, forty-seven of whom were Methodist laymen and preachers, representing several States and twelve Annual Conferences, as follows: Mississippi, North Mississippi, Alabama, North Alabama, Holston, South Georgia, North Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences.

After it was learned that such a large percentage of the attendance was Methodist, a special meeting was called to discuss and hear reports on the great Methodist Centenary Movement from the various Conferences represented. And I say without hesitation that it was by far the most enthusiastic meeting it has been my privilege to attend since the Centenary was launched.

One preacher reported a thorough canvass of his church which resulted in the enlistment of ninety per cent of his membership as intercessors, and seventy-five per cent as pledged tithers. Good! During the round of discussion, however, it leaked out that there was one man in one of the Conferences represented, who, in a very quiet way, had already pledged two million dollars to the Centenary. But as that seemed to be a profound secret, it was not discussed further. This Centenary meeting, however, was on the side and in no way a part of the school itself.

The specific purpose of the Blue Ridge Social Service School is easily stated:

We have been in a great world war. Things are not normal. Four million men are coming back home who have had their view-point changed. They will not come back the same as when they went away. The Y. M. C. A. is endeavoring to reach these men, and help all of them, and help the Church to reach them and help them, and line them up into real active Christian work, and to fit them back into our civil life again, and turn their great and wonderful experiences into a real community asset, and not a liability.

Withal, the Blue Ridge School is more than a convention; it is a council of godly men from all parts of the Southeastern States, earnestly and fervently planning for Christianity to get into ac-

It emphasizes the value of human life—that of the poor as well as of the rich; the far-away heathen, the blackest negro, down to the so-called scum of the earth. SUNDAY SCHOOL MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN.

By Charles D. Bulla,
Corresponding Secretary of the General Sunday School Board.

"The best means of defense is to attack." So runs a maxim of the world's greatest living military strategist.

Church leaders are face to face with some stubborn facts.

Multitudes are without religious instruction.

We cannot save people unless we teach them, and we cannot teach them unless we reach them.

The Sunday school is the only agency that undertakes to train a whole generation in religion.

If we fail to bring people into the Church school, not many of them will come into the Church.

Eighty-five million people in the United States are outside of Protestant Sunday schools.

There was a net decrease of more than two hundred and fifty thousand in the Sunday school enrollment of the thirty denominations represented in the Sunday School Council of Evangelical Denominations in 1918.

An aggressive movement for the extension and promotion of Sunday school work is demanded.

In meetings of our Conference Sunday School Field Secretaries held in Atlanta, Ga., and Memphis, Tenn., January 7-10, 1919, the Corresponding Secretary submitted a plan for a church-wide Sunday School Membership Campaign. The proposed movement was heartily indorsed by the Field Secretaries and later by the General Sunday School Board. Briefly stated, the plan for the membership campaign is as follows:

Suggestions Concerning House-to-House Visitations.

Let the Workers' Council in each Sunday school, composed of the pastor, superintendent and other officers and teachers, chairmen of standing committees, and presidents of Wesley Bible Classes, thoroughly consider the proposed campaign, decide upon a day during the period May 1 to 15 for the house-to-house visitation, and appoint an executive committee to conduct the campaign.

All Southern Methodist churches in a given community should organize the membership campaign and conduct the house-to-house visitation simultaneously.

Let the campaign committee, in consultation with the pastor, deaconess, Sunday school officers, teachers, and classes, prepare a list of all Southern Methodist homes in which there are Church members or adherents who do not attend the Sunday school, also of other families not identified with any church.

Let the territory be districted and a sufficient number of visitors be chosen to canvass, two by two, the entire field during the day fixed for the house-to-house visitation.

Let visitors secure the desired information by filling out the visitation cards with exactness, keeping in mind that they are not professional census takers and that the visit itself should mean much to the family.

As soon as possible after the canvass is completed let the visitation cards be classified and the names of prospective members, with pertinent facts, be referred to representatives of the several departments of the school. Persistent and prayerful efforts should be made to secure the attendance and enrollment of these persons.

Let all new members be given courteous attention and the school sessions and church services be made so interesting and helpful that they will want to attend regularly.

In order that a complete tabulation of the results of visitation campaigns may be made, superintendents or chairmen of campaign committees are earnestly requested to send reports to Rev. Charles D. Bulla, Corresponding Secretary, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Leaflets giving information concerning the Membership Campaign and House-to-House Visitation will be sent upon request. Visitation cards and wall mottoes will be furnished free upon receipt of Enlistment Cards.

All Sunday school leaders are earnestly requested to co-operate in this campaign for more and larger and better Sunday schools.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

The Baltimore Annual Conference of our Church was held at Staunton, Va., March 25-31. Bishop E. R. Hendrix presided.

The North Carolina Christian Advocate announced that for the first time in its history its edition of April 10 was of more than ten thousand copies to regular subscribers.

An interesting news item that we noticed recently is to the effect that Edwin Marvin, son of the late Rev. Fielding Marvin and grandson of Bishop E. M. Marvin, has offered himself as a Student Volunteer.

Bishop W. B. Murrah has recently been in St. Louis in connection with his episcopal duties. The St. Louis Christian Advocate states that he gave an encouraging account of the work of the Centenary throughout his episcopal district.

Mr. Philip Whitwell Wilson, American representative of the London Daily News, former member of the British Parliament, and author of "The Christ We Forget," is a grandson of Jonathan Baxter, the great Bible publisher of England.

One of our exchanges states that a bronze tablet to the memory of Bishop A. W. Wilson was unveiled at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, on Monday evening, March 24. It was announced that Bishop E. R. Hendrix would deliver the address.

The Salvation Army has decided to discontinue personal and tambourine solicitation of funds for its work, and to raise the money necessary to carry on its operations by annual collections or campaigns by committees of business men and others organized for this purpose.

Mr. M. W. Brabham has been chosen as Associate Superintendent of the Young People's and Adult Department of our Sunday school work. Mr. Brabham is a graduate of Wofford College, and has had wide experience in Sunday school work in South Carolina, North Carolina, and Virginia.

According to the Alabama Christian Advocate, Mrs. D. E. McLendon, of East Lake, Ala., is the first woman in the history of American Methodism to be chosen as a lay delegate to an Annual Conference. She was elected to that position on March 5 by the Birmingham District Conference.

The Alabama Christian Advocate of last week contains the announcement that Mrs. Mary Moore McCoy, the widow of the late Bishop McCoy, has been elected by the Woman's Missionary Council as Home Mission Secretary. She has accepted the position and will make her home in Nashville.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller has announced that he will give $250,000 to the fund being raised by the Northern Baptists for the support of retired ministers and missionaries. He has promised an additional $500,000 if the Baptists will meet certain conditions with reference to other funds for their work.

It has been announced that Dr. H. A. Boaz, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, has been elected as one of the Committee of One Hundred for the Inter-Church World Movement of North America. He has also been selected as a member of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Rev. R. P. Shuler, better known as "Bob" Shuler, has secured pledges to the amount of $165,000 for the erection of a new church building at Paris, Texas, where he is pastor. The pledges were made by 264 people, the largest subscription being one of $10,000. The building will be as perfect in its arrangement and appointments as it is possible to make it.

At a special session of the Illinois Conference of the M. E. Church, it was voted to move the Illinois Wesleyan University from Bloomington, Ill., to Springfield, Ill. Changed conditions of transportation and the growth of cities are given as the explanation of the necessity of the change. The Illinois Wesleyan is one of the oldest and most notable institutions of the M. E. Church.

The eighth annual session of the Southern Sociological Congress will be held in Knoxville, Tenn., May 11-14. This session will be conducted as a great reconstruction conference, with the purpose of mobilizing the moral and civic leadership of the South to safeguard the public against the evils of Bolshevism, to study after-war problems, and to set forth a program of sociological reconstruction.

On account of the postponement of the Centenary Drive, which will take place May 18-25, the annual meeting of the General Board of Missions, which is ordinarily held in May, will convene this year on June 3. The meeting will be held in Nashville, and in view of the Centenary will doubtless be one of the most interesting and important ever held. A full attendance of members is desired, and visitors will be welcome.

THE OPEN BIBLE

God's Best Gift to a Waiting World

THE CENTENARY HAS ONE END—MAKING DEMOCRACY SAFE, AND BUT ONE MEANS OF REACHING THAT END—GIVING THE GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST TO THE PEOPLE OF EVERY RACE AND TONGUE.

Africa

Africa's need is tragic and terrible. Southern Methodism is responsible for the evangelization of the Batatelas, a tribe of 200,000. For this work the Centenary asks for nine men and three women and proposes to reach with the gospel every village within the distance of five days' walk.

China

Old faiths and traditions are passing in China. Christianity, once despised and persecuted, is looked to for guidance and leadership. The Centenary calls for the erection of churches, institutional plants and chapels sufficient in number and quality to command the respect of the Chinese. The World Program calls for 25 evangelistic workers. Who will say, "Here am I, send me?"

Cuba

Of the 860,000 Cubans for whose evangelization Southern Methodism is responsible, only 4,000 have been reached. To send out four additional evangelistic missionaries, to train a native leadership, and to foster self-support and self-propagation of the native Church is a part of the Centenary task in this field.

Mexico

If the Church does not meet her Centenary opportunity in Mexico, 1,750,000 people for whom Southern Methodism is responsible will drift into Free Thought, Spiritualism, and Infidelity. This field is now ready and accessible. Thirteen evangelistic missionaries are needed and as many native workers as can be secured.

America

Leaders are all agreed that the supreme missionary task is to make America Christian. One has said, "He does most to Christianize the world who does most to Christianize America." Of the 50,000,000 unreached people in our own land, at least four million are potential Southern Methodists.

Japan

The Centenary seeks to reach the young life of New Japan and give the gospel message to the dissatisfied multitudes who are turning from the old traditions to test the truths of Christianity. The Centenary asks for 52 new evangelistic missionaries, 12 new evangelistic stations, and 3 evangelistic and social center halls. An opportunity here for life investment.

Korea

In Korea the ratio of Christians is only 1 to each 119 of population. The Centenary task is to seek and to save for Christ the untouched, the unsatisfied, to train and satisfy with Christ the untrained and the heart-hungry. Thirty-six new missionary evangelists are needed to help in this task. Will you be one?

Brazil

The Centenary asks for 31 evangelistic missionaries, 12 deaconesses and Bible women and 42 native preachers to aid in the task of giving the open Bible and the living Christ to the 10,000,000 people for whom Southern Methodism is responsible in Brazil. The counntry is big, so is the task.

Europe

Europe is a ripe missionary field. Her people need all the material help we have to give. But her greatest need is moral and spiritual. No money for which the Centenary is asking can be more wisely and effectively used than that which the Church expects to devote to missions in the war-ravaged countries of Europe.

"GO, YE MESSENGERS OF LIGHT"

The Home Circle

DON'T PROCRASTINATE.

A naughty little weed one day
Poked up its tiny head.
"To-morrow I will pull you up,
Old Mr. Weed," I said,
But I put off the doing till,
When next I passed that way,
The hateful thing had spread abroad
And laughed at my dismay.

A naughty little thought one day
Popped right into my mind.
"Oho," I cried, "I'll put you out
To-morrow, you will find!"
But once again I put it off,
Till, like the little weed,
The ugly thing sprang up apace
And grew into a deed!

So, boys and girls, heed what I say
And learn it with your sums:
Don't put off till to-morrow, for
To-morrow never comes.
To-day pull up the little weeds,
The naughty thoughts subdue,
Or they may take the reins themselves,
And some day master you!

WILD HORSES OF THE PLAINS.

El Comancho.

When the Spaniards came to America they brought the first horses to the continent. The animals escaped and were left behind by the Spaniards to become the parent stock of future herds of wild horses that ranged the plains from Mexico to as far north as Saskatchewan, and possibly further.

Horses from early American settlers escaped from time to time or were run off by the wild horse bands and added to the blood. Indian tribes caught them in numbers and re-domesticated them, using them as a means of transportation which they had never known before the advent of the Spaniards. Indeed, it was the possession of horses that made the plains Indian tribes possible, and later made roaming warriors of them, for they never traveled far before they had horses.

Some tribes became horse-breeders and turned out fine stock; the Comaches of Texas were almost like Arabs in this matter, and the Cheyenne tribe of Wyoming gained fame as producers of the famous "pinto" or "painted" (spotted) horses of the plains.

Bands of wild horses could be found almost anywhere where feed and water conditions were favorable, as late as the eighties. Two such bands ranged in the sand hills of Nebraska between the Platte and Niobrara rivers, the habitat of one band being around the head of Dismal River and the range of the other band being along the Loup River.

Wild horse herds were always led (and strictly herded into individual bands) by individual stallions who looked after their charges with almost human intelligence, leading them to feed and water and guarding them from danger of every sort. These stallions would fight each other and any wild enemy such as the grizzly bear, with all the wild ferocity of a tiger. They would even attack man if he was afoot and alone, as many an Indian or white horse-hunter can testify.

The two stallion leaders of these Nebraska sand-hill herds were well known up and down the plains for a number of years and every device and plan was tried to "get" them. One was a coal-black trotter with long, sweeping mane and tail—as beautiful an animal as ever ran free under the sky. The other was a bay pacer with cream mane and tail that swept the ground and gave him a comet-like appearance while running full speed. Two finer horses never lived. I verily believe. They were much sought by horse hunters for several years and were finally captured.

Indians tried to "walk them down" by keeping them moving slowly all the time, without a chance to feed or get to water, but they never could get either one. Cow-men tried encircling the herds and "roping" them many times. This method resulted in the capture of the bay stallion on the head of the Middle Loup in 1885 (I think it was) by a gang of men from Stems Ranch and other ranches of the region.

The black stallion was "creased" by a rifle shot through the top of the neck by a single hunter who thus captured the big fellow a year or so after the bay was caught. The black was captured miles to the northwest of his old range in the sagebrush desert of Wyoming after nearly all his band had been captured by cowboys on regular organized horse hunts that often resulted in the capture of a whole herd at once.

The horse was the unit of value in trade among all the plains Indians; the man who owned "many horses" was rich—he who owned none was poor. A wife was valued by a certain number of horses, the more desirable the wife the greater the number of horses she would bring to her father when marriage day came around. Next to the buffalo, the horse was the most valuable of all plains animals to the Indian tribes.

Indians had always used dogs for pack animals up to the time they got horses from the increase of the Spanish herds, so it is only natural perhaps to find the Sioux calling the horse Shunkstonka; literally "big-dog," because they could pack all their stuff on his back just as they always had packed it for transportation on dogs before.

The Blackfeet took a somewhat different view of the animal and called it Pono-kom-i-ta, which means elk-dog or more nearly "like-elk-like-dog." Undoubtedly this name was selected because, in size, the horse was "like-the-elk" but without his big horns, and, because they could pack their belongings on the horse, he was "like-the-dog" who had always been their pack animal before. Therefore the name "elk-dog" as above.

The Crow Indians who lived in the Yellowstone River country called the horse E-cheta. Just what this name means I never learned, but it is likely somewhat similar to the others.

The last wild horse herds that I know of were ranging in Washington and Oregon, but these were rounded up and captured several years ago, and as far as I know the real wild horse of the Plains is gone forever now, the nearest approach to-day being ranch horses which still run the open range here and there.—Our Dumb Animals.

AN ORPHAN SOLDIER BOY.

By Willie Conger Page.

Upon the far away fields of Flanders, where the scarlet poppies fling their silken petals to the passing breeze, and where the lilies and wild flowers exhale their sweetest perfume, there gleams a white cross, rising above a mound, which marks the last resting-place of an orphan soldier boy. Softly bathed in dew, the star-decked night glides by with sandaled tread, as if in fear of waking the peacefully sleeping hero. There were no mother's prayers to bless and follow him as he marched away; no sister's caress to rest like a benediction on his brow; no kind father to bid him live nobly, and God-speed, yet he volunteered and went away at the bugle's first call.

He was so young in years, so slender of form—yet he fought, bled and died for his country, for freedom, to make the world safe for you and me. With others, he went over the top at dawn, was severely wounded during the storm of battle, and lay in a shell crater through the long hours of the heat of the day. Twilight had cast purple shadows over the earth before he regained consciousness; then he heard a comrade moaning and pleading for water. Painfully and slowly he crawled through the darkness, leaving a trail of red in his wake. Summoning all of his latent forces, he held his canteen to the parched lips of his unknown comrade, saying brokenly, "Dear Lord, I did my best."

The moon came from behind a cloud and cast a soft radiance over the field of carnage; the night birds flitted by on silent wing; the wind, sweet and low-toned, sang a requiem over the dead and wounded soldiers of that Argonne Wood. When the dawn came to herald the coming day, the searchers found the lad with his head resting on the still heart of his beloved captain both cold and asleep in death. The young officer had placed his arm around the boy's shoulders, and thus they lay for freedom.

I have some open dates through the summer vacation for evangelistic work as chorus leader, soloist and children's worker. Geo. Avery, Jr., Box 275, Houston Heights, Tex.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

KNOWING THE RISEN CHRIST.

The pages of history are strewn with the records of great discoveries without which our civilization could not possibly be what it is. But the greatest of all discoveries is that of the Risen Lord by the individual soul. It was this discovery that made the disheartened disciples flaming evangels of a new hope; it was this discovery that made the persecuting Pharisee an ambassador of the Kingdom of God; it was this discovery that made Luther and Knox and Wesley spiritual dynamos in a morally decadent world.

But there is a strange thing about this discovery. Other discoveries, once made, are available for the rest of the world; but this discovery must be made by each soul for itself. It may be confirmed by the testimony of another—if it need confirmation—but each must see for himself, and not another. Unless we know by personal experience that Christ is risen from the dead, this Easter season can be nothing more to us than a ceremonial, an empty form. Thank God, every man can know it for himself.

Two travelers were going from Jerusalem to Emmaus. They were friends, journeying together for companionship and comfort, for they were sad and disappointed. They were sad because they had lost another friend—one whom they had learned to love passionately; and they were disappointed because they had expected this friend to be the Redeemer of Israel. And yet, in spite of their sadness and disappointment, they were in a state of amazement because a report had come to them that this friend, who, to their certain knowledge had been laid in the tomb, was alive. The report was borne by certain women, who affirmed that a vision of angels had told them that this friend, who was their friend also, had risen from the grave.

Those travelers were talking together of all these things that had happened—communing as only friends can commune. As they talked, another traveler joined them and entered into the conversation. Then a wonderful thing happened—their hearts began to burn within them! They understood it afterwards; but they did not know then that they were talking with their lost friend. He was in their presence and they knew it not!

But a little later, the day being far spent, they hospitably urged the stranger to spend the night with them and to join them in their evening meal. He yielded to their entreaties (has the Lord ever turned away from a pleading soul?) and sat down to eat with them. In the simple act of breaking the bread the great revelation was complete, and they recognized him whom they loved and thought they had lost. It was their Lord!

Companionship, communion, hospitality—what possibilities are wrapped up in those words! If we do not know the Risen Lord but would know him, let us talk about him this Easter season with some friend like-minded. If we will do it to-day, our evening meal will be hallowed by the presence of the Son of God. Our hearts will burn within us, and a strange joy will fill our souls. We shall KNOW that Christ is risen from the dead. And we shall hasten, as did the travelers, to tell the good news to our friends.

THE CENTENARY NUMBER.

The special Missionary Centenary number of the Advocate, mention of which has been made in previous issues, will appear on May 1. Already we have in hand considerable material for that number that will be especially helpful to the Centenary Movement. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo has contributed an article that is a most inspiring statement of the Church's relation to the needs of the world; no man can read it without having his heart stirred and his soul strengthened. The Missionary Secretaries of our three Conferences have prepared statements of the outlook in their respective fields—statements that are inspiring and encouraging. We have asked every presiding elder in the three Conferences to give us a Centenary message; some of them have already responded, and we are hopeful that all of them will do so. This feature will, of itself, be worth much. There will be an editorial discussion of the origin, purpose, plans, and objects of the Movement that will, we hope, further the cause for which the whole Church is working. All the available space of that issue will be devoted to the Centenary Movement.

Orders for the special number, at the rate of 3 cents a copy in lots of ten or more to one address, should be sent at once. Several hundred extra copies have already been ordered.

EASTER OFFERING FOR THE ORPHANAGE.

By Conference action, Easter Sunday is set apart in Louisiana Methodism as a day for making contributions for the support of the Methodist Orphanage located at Ruston. This great institution has done a wonderfully effective work in caring for many helpless children. Its superintendent, Rev. R. W. Vaughan, has demonstrated unusual ability in the management of this institution, and he has, in connection with the board of trustees, laid large plans for its future. We sincerely hope that all our people will take advantage of the opportunity afforded by this officially designated day to make liberal offerings for the maintenace of this indispensable work.

A CORRECTION.

Our statement in the Advocate of April 3, under the heading, "General Church News," that St. John's Church, St. Louis, has one layman who will give $100,000 a year for five years to the Centenary, and several who will give $50,000 a year, was, we regret to say, an error. It was based upon a statement in the St. John's Bulletin of March 23 which clearly bears the interpretation we placed upon it. We give the statement exactly as it appeared: "One layman of our church has signified his intention of giving $500,000 to the Centenary Movement. It is understood that there are several men who are planning to give $50,000 a year, or $250,000 for the five-year period. The Centenary appeals to men of large means." A note from the distinguished pastor, Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, informs us, however, that he meant the Church at large, and not his local congregation. We are sure, however, that this great church will do its full part in making the Centenary Movement a success.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. E. L. Cargill, of Gibbsland, La., is rejoicing over the growing interest in the Centenary Movement in his charge.

Rev. W. B. Baker, of Sherman, Miss., reports that everything goes well with him on his charge. He has been faithful in looking after the interests of the Advocate in his territory.

Rev. B. E. Meigs, of Monticello, Miss., has sent 35 subscriptions to the Advocate this year, and he writes that the end is not yet. We believe that this is not the least of his many good works.

Mrs. M. R. Baker, of Crowville, La., in renewing her subscription to the Advocate a few days ago, stated that it was the forty-third time she had done so. Another member of the "Old Guard!"

Mrs. Jas. Graham, of Waynesboro, Miss., has been a subscriber to the Advocato for twenty years, and a reader of it nearly all her life. She says she enjoys its weekly visits too much to do without it.

Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Lott, of Merigold, Miss., are happy over the arrival in their home on April 10 of a little daughter, who has been named Martha Provine. The Advocate extends congratulations.

We are glad to learn that there has been a noticeable increase in the size of the congregation at Homer, La., especially at the evening services. Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., is the faithful shepherd of the flock.

Rev. W. J. O'Bryant, of Gulfport, Miss., requests us to say that he will be glad to assist any of the brethren in meetings this year who may care to have his services. His address is 1617 Nineteenth Avenue.

Rev. T. B. Winstead, of the Trenton circuit, Mississippi Conference, writes that since the disappearance of the "flu," he has been hard at work on the Centenary plans for his charge, and that the outlook is most encouraging.

Rev. J. Cude Rousseaux, a member of the Louisiana Conference who has been serving as chaplain in France, reached Charleston, S. C., on April 10, with 2500 South Carolina troops. He left St. Nazaire on March 28. He is anxious to return to the pastorate as soon as he receives his discharge.

We regret to learn that Rev. H. P. Lewis, whose serious illness we reported recently, is still confined to his bed, and that his condition remains about as it was. Many of our readers will remember in prayer this faithful servant of the Master who has given a long and fruitful life to the ministry in Mississippi.

The Advocate office was honored on Monday morning of this week by the presence of Dr. C. D. Bulla, Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday School Board, and Dr. F. S. Parker, General Secretary of the Epworth League. Both of these brethren are in Louisiana in the interest of the Centenary Movement.

We regret to learn that Mrs. T. L. Oakes, the wife of our pastor at Sallis, Miss., has recently had to undergo a severe operation at the Lucy Brinkley Hospital, Memphis. She stood the ordeal well, and was recuperating satisfactorily at the time we received our information. Brother Oakes requests the prayers of friends in her behalf.

Rev. T. J. Holladay, of Plain Dealing, La., reports that much interest in the Centenary Movement is being manifested in his charge. The minute men are actively at work and enthusiastic. In addition to his other duties, Brother Holladay is serving as scout master for a troop of twenty-four boys in his town. He finds the work very profitable.

A copy of the bulletin of the First Methodist Church of Texarkana, Ark., has come to our notice. The front page is adorned with a beautiful picture of the handsome church building, and there are many items of interest to the membership on the following pages. Rev. Theodore Copeland, D.D., is the distinguished pastor of this splendid congregation.

Rev. Paul M. Brown, our pastor at De Ridder, La., is making use of the columns of the Methodist Messenger, published by him in the interest of his local church work, to bring to the attention of his people some very important matters pertaining to civic righteousness. He speaks kindly, but plainly and forcefully. Such messages are sure to accomplish good.

The figures in the Sunday school attendance contest in Louisiana for last Sunday are as follows: Ruston, 567; Noel Memorial, 478; Lake Charles, 440; Alexandria, 327; Mansfield, 326; Monroe, 306; Baton Rouge, 297. This movement in Louisiana is arousing a great deal of interest in the schools involved, and notable gains have been made by all of them.

Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Secretary of the Foreign Department of the Board of Missions, and Dr. C. D. Bulla made inspiring addresses in connection with the Centenary at a banquet at the First Methodist Church of this city on Friday evening of last week. Dr. W. W. Pinson and Mrs. M. L. Hargrove were announced to speak at a luncheon at the De Soto Hotel on Wednesday of this week.

Rev. Milton F. Johnson, who was at one time pastor of the Carrollton Avenue Church of this city, is now stationed at Alma, Ark. He is delightfully situated in a commodious parsonage in a fine town. His remarks concerning gardens and chickens stir the imagination. Brother Johnson remembers with great affection his friends in Louisiana, and he keeps in touch with them through the Advocate.

Mr. T. Wynn Holloman, who has rendered magnificent service to the American forces in France through his work in the Y. M. C. A. in Paris, has returned to his home in Alexandria, La. He honored the Advocate with a visit while passing through New Orleans. Many of our readers will recall some unusually fine articles concerning our work abroad from the pen of Brother Holloman, which appeared recently in the Advocate. We hope he will be able to give us others of the same kind.

We learn from the Monthly Messenger, a publication issued by Rev. O. S. Lewis in the interest of his church, Gibson Memorial, Vicksburg, Miss., that the Crawford Street congregation, Vicksburg, of which Rev. N. B. Harmon is the faithful pastor, wiped out a $10,000 debt during the month of March. This is a notable achievement for the loyal Methodists of the Hill City. The Gibson Memorial congregation is planning to pay its debt on the parsonage during this month, with fine prospects of success.

Rev. W. H. Saunders, our pastor at Natchez, Miss., has issued a pastoral letter to his people, urging them to make their Easter offering for the benefit of the Conference claimants of the Mississippi Conference. He expects the full amount assessed to his charge to be raised on that day. He announces that the meeting which was to have been held early in May has been postponed to the first Sunday in June, on account of the postponement in the date of the Centenary Drive. Dr. Theodore Copeland, of Texarkana, Ark., will assist in the meeting.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE IN NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Dear Brother: Your Epworth League Board has the interest of the young people intrusted into our hands, at heart. We must depend on you to put our plans into operation. Will you organize at least one new League in your charge, either Junior, Intermediate or Senior, preach a special sermon to your young people during the month of May, take a collection in each church for Anniversary Day offering and remit to Rev. W. C. Galceran, Jonestown? Also send some of your best young people as delegates to the Epworth League Conference to be held at Holly Springs, Miss., June 10, 11 and 12, whether you have a League or not.

May we depend on you? I am sure you will not fail us this time when it is so important to train our young people for Christian service.

Trusting to have a letter from you endorsing our plans and giving us your hearty and prayerful co-operation, I remain, Fraternally yours,

O. P. ARMOUR,
Secretary of the Board.

Houlka, Miss.

A HAPPY OCCASION.

Celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedded life, Rev. and Mrs. G. P. White were the recipients of most hearty congratulations, a bountiful collection of silver dollars and other useful presents at their parsonage home at Plaquemine, La., on the evening of April 10.

The silver wedding ceremony was solemnized by Justice H. E. Emde in the presence of a host of friends and four of the five children of this happy union now living. One son, Samuel Archie, was absent, being with the American forces overseas. Three of their children are deceased.

In behalf of the assembled friends, Mr. W. P. Obier, Esq., gave a very appropriate expression of appreciation of the services of Rev. and Mrs. G. P. White in the community, emphasizing especially the inspiring example of their noble and pure conception of life.

Wholesome refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream and cake prepared by the ladies of the Methodist congregation, and friends of the couple. The occasion of renewing their nuptial vows, surrounded by numerous friends, attesting their love and esteem, was rendered more impressive by reason of six consecutive years of service dedicated to truth and holiness in the community.

Combining simplicity befitting ministerial life and work with the social spirit inherent in the people of South Louisiana, the event was one worthy of remembrance by the guests who represented many upward striving elements of the town. • • •

"SUCH A MOTHER."

After one of the hard fought battles of the war, a Confederate chaplain was called hastily to see a dying soldier. Taking his hand, he said, "Well, my brother, what can I do for you?"

He supposed, of course, the young fellow would want to cry to God for help in his extremity; but it was not so.

"Chaplain," said he, "I want you to cut a lock of hair for my mother; and then, chaplain, I want you to kneel down and return thanks to God for me."

"For what?" asked the chaplain.

"For giving me such a mother. Oh! she is such a good mother. Her teachings are my comfort now. And then, chaplain, thank God that by His grace I am a Christian. What would I do now if I were not a Christian? And thank Him for giving me dying grace. He makes this hard bed feel 'soft as downy pillows are.' And ah! chaplain, thank Him for the promised home in glory—I'll soon be there."

"And so," said the chaplain, "I knelt by his bed with not a petition to utter, only praises and thanksgiving for a good mother, a Christian hope, dying grace and an eternal home in glory."—Christian Observer.

Freckles
There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.
Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Little EMMA LURLINE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wrenn, died of influenza on January 14, 1919, at the home of her parents near Pine Grove Church on the Sibley charge. Her period of life here was very brief. She lived only eight months and fourteen days to bless and brighten the home. The little life which so enriched the lives of her parents has ended here, but her little spirit has gone to God who gave it. We miss her and the home is poorer without her, but Heaven is richer. We shall see little Emma Lurline again in the eternal world where the spirits of the just are made perfect. May God bless and comfort the loved ones in this time of sorrow and sadness.

Mrs. SARA K. HOWELL was born on November 30, 1832, and died on March 6, 1919, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. B. Holloman, in Harrisonburg, La. Mrs. Howell is survived by one son, Mr. Albert Howell, and three daughters, Mrs. T. B. Holloman, Mrs. Sara Gus, and Mrs. Baker. Her husband, Mr. Oscar Howell, died in 1913. Mrs. Howell was a woman of rare Christian graces. Until failing health prevented, she was a faithful worker in the Slaughter Methodist Church. This, and serving mankind, were her greatest pleasures, and many are they who have received help and encouragement from her. Her home was a home for ministers of all creeds. Mrs. Howell's love of the Bible was beautiful to remember, and her knowledge proved that she had made it the study of her life. During the last days, when her eyes were growing dim, she rejoiced that she could still read her Bible and the Christian Advocate. * * *

Mrs. FANNIE BELLE WHITE HILTON was born near Clear Branch, in Rankin County, Mississippi, on March 26, 1899. She was converted when about eleven years old and united with the Baptist Church. She was a loyal member of her church and tried to live a Christian life. On September 12, 1915, she was married to Mr. Hardie T. Hilton, of Star, Miss. To this union were born two children, both of whom are still living. In addition to these, there are a husband, mother, four sisters and two brothers surviving her to lament their loss. Mrs. Hilton died on March 20, 1919, and was buried from the Mountain Creek Baptist Church, Rev. B. H. Williams officiating. Brother A. P. Dear led the choir. A host of friends and relatives were present to take the last view of the remains.

CLATIE SAMUEL FOSTER, son of M. S. and S. S. Foster, was born in Webster County, Mississippi, on March 23, 1893, and remained in this county until he was called to serve his country. Clatie was a good boy and loved home, and was always found there except when business called him away. Farming was his occupation, and his desire was to be a successful one. Clatie was converted and joined the Methodist Church when nineteen years of age; later, he united with the Baptist Church. He was married to Miss Myrtle Womack, on March 11, 1917. He settled near-by, so he could help to see after his aged parents in their declining days. Clatie was in Co. B., 306th M. G., and was killed on the 14th of October, during the fierce Argonne battle. His Lieutenant said of him, "He was always ready to do his bit, and his memory will always be most sacred to the men of his command."

Clatie was of a family of ten children, all of whom lived to be grown. He leaves a lonely companion, one brother, seven sisters, and aged parents to mourn their loss, but we mourn not as those without hope, for he left the sweet assurance all was well with him. MAMMA.

JOSEPH BENJAMIN LIGHTSEY, son of John and Barbara Lightsey, was born near the present town of Sandersville, Miss., on September 4, 1831, and quietly passed away on March 31, 1919, in the home of his son at Louin, Miss. He had reached the ripe age of four-score and seven years and had gathered around him in the last hours all his living children and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. On February 2, 1854, he was married to Miss Mary E. Moore, and to them were born four sons and one daughter, all of whom are still living, save the oldest son, who died several years ago. His wife died in 1878 and he was married again in 1879 to Miss Bettie Hinton, who also died several years ago.

Brother Lightsey gave his heart to Jesus early in life and joined the Methodist Church at Paulding, Miss. He served his church long and well as steward and class-leader. His chief desire was to walk in the steps of his Lord. He sought so to live that the world would be better for his having lived in it. The spirit of sacrifice ran through his whole life. He was always glad to talk of heaven and heavenly things. His faith in God was strong and he delighted to tell of the sweet communion he had with his Lord. His hope for the future was unclouded. Those he has left behind feel no uncertainty about his having gone to be with the Lord. May they all be as ready for the summons when it comes as he was.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the SOLDIERS AND SAILORS ARE URGED TO REINSTATE LAPSED INSURANCE.

Discharged sailors and soldiers who have dropped their war risk insurance are urged by Ensign E. P. Thornton, Pay Corps, U. S. N. R. F., District Insurance Officer, New Orleans, La., to take steps to reinstate their insurance. His statement is as follows:

"Uncle Sam went into the insurance business for the benefit of the lads who stood like a stone wall between civilization and 'Kultur.' His reason for this was to give his boys gilt edge insurance at the smallest possible cost. With the government backing the company and bearing all operating expenses, it can issue a policy the value of which has never before been equaled.

"After war ceased many of the soldiers and sailors came back to civil life, and, unfortunately, many left the service in the rush of discharges without being made to appreciate and understand the value of their insurance and the method of keeping it up. Hence, many have, because of lack of information, allowed their term insurance to lapse, and many more are on the verge of doing so.

"So the Bureau of War Risk Insurance created a Conservation Section. A mighty campaign is being conducted with the purpose of giving every man with insurance, and every man who has unwisely dropped his insurance, and every beneficiary who is so vitally concerned, the cut and dried facts.

"Why should the men keep up the term insurance?

"Because it is protection against both death and disability, can be carried for a premium within the reach of the flattest purse—(65 cents per thousand per month at age twenty-one, for example)—and because those who carry it are going to have the privilege of converting it at any time within five years after the declaration of peace into the soundest, most liberal and cheapest insurance that was ever offered.

"Uncle Sam's policies will insure against disability during the entire lifetime of the insured, a feature the cost of which, on the outside, would be almost prohibitive. If a man becomes disabled to the extent that he cannot engage in a substantially gainful occupation, $5.75 per month per one thousand dollars of insurance is his for the remainder of his life, no matter if he is disabled at age twenty-five and live to be one hundred. The Government gives this feature free, the premium charge being based only upon the cost of death and not disability.

"Some of the other privileges of the policies are liberal cash and loan values, paid up and extended insurance, incontestibility from date of issue, freedom from all restrictions as to residence, travel or occupation, dividends from any gains and savings, and proceeds of all policies to be exempt from all taxation.

"If a man has dropped his term insurance, he should write immediately to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance Washington, D. C., stating his full name and address, rank and organization at the time of applying for insurance, the date of his discharge or separation from service, month for which last premium was paid, and ask them what to do. It is very probable that he will be reinstated. If he has just left the service he should mail all future premiums on the first day of the month for which each premium is due to the Disbursing Clerk, Bureau of War Risk Insurance, making check or money order payable to the Secretary of the Treasury. Navy men in this district can get further information and advice by calling upon or writing to the District Insurance Officer, No. 1 Canal Street, New Orleans, La. Army men should communicate with the nearest branch of the American Red Cross."

Give Heed to the Warning.

Pimples on the face and other parts of the body are warnings from Nature that your blood is sluggish and impoverished. Sometimes they foretell eczema, boils, blisters, scaly eruptions and other skin disorders that burn like flames of fire.

They mean that your blood needs S. S. S. to purify it and cleanse it of these impure accumulations that can cause unlimited trouble. This remedy is the greatest vegetable blood purifier known, and contains no minerals or chemicals to injure the most delicate skin.

Go to your drugstore, and get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and get rid of those unsightly and disfiguring pimples, and other skin irritations. And it will cleanse your blood thoroughly. If you wish special medical advice, you can obtain it without charge by writing to Medical Director, 29 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Georgia.

Sunday School

LOUISIANA SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The schools of our Church are either doing good educational and religious work, or laying plans to put on a progressive move.

The Sunday School Institute in district conference of Shreveport District will be held at Many, April 23. A good program is prepared. We hope to have 100 per cent of our charges represented.

Will the pastors please send me names of young people or older people who can and who should attend our training school at Dallas? Most leaders are made in training schools; let us not neglect this fact.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Secretary.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES

From March 29 to April 2 was spent with Brother E. M. Allen, on the Americus charge.

Saturday and Sunday were spent at Salem Camp Grounds and we had the Pleasant Hill folks with us and a joint meeting. We had a most precious presence of the Lord Sunday, and feel that good was accomplished.

Monday was the Rosedale Day, Tuesday, the Tanner Chapel Day, and Thursday, Hurley. Large and appreciative crowds greeted us. Several of the day crowds were not very great, but those who had the work on their hearts were there and the Lord enabled us to reach them.

All five of the schools pledged the Centenary fund. Nine pupils for teacher-training were enrolled, five cradle rolls were organized, four beginners' departments installed with the graded literature. These are merely a few of the figures. I feel that there was a spirit in the occasion that will mean much in the days to come. Brother Allen starts off well.

I dropped off awhile with Brother Broadfoot on my way to Magnolia. I always enjoy Fernwood. God bless them.

Magnolia—that is where they call me by my first name, and it was a blessed privilege to be with them. I don't think I have ever enjoyed a visit more. Brother Gray starts a fine year. The rain hampered the Sunday school work some, but there were nine enrolled for the teacher-training class, 8 books ordered, a cradle roll class in the Sunday school was started and supplies ordered for it.

If you have not sent in the signed card accepting the Centenary Allotment for the Sunday school, sign it and send it in to-day.

Pray for the work and the workers.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

LEMONS BRING OUT THE HIDDEN BEAUTY

Make this lotion for very little cost and just see for yourself.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to bleach the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well, and you have a whole quarter pint of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Rev. N. G. Augustus has organized a new school on the Coldwater charge.

Rev. S. B. Craig has five churches and six schools on the Fulton charge.

Rev. Walter Jones put on a campaign for members at Lula and had an increase of two hundred per cent. There are ten thousand people in the North Mississippi Conference that ought to be in our Sunday schools.

We are in the midst of a wonderful revival in the Church now. This is not a spasmodic revival, but one that will abide; for we are emphasizing consecration, prayer, stewardship of life and substance. God will open the windows of heaven as he has promised and pour a blessing upon us that we cannot contain. Our church leaders are leading us to certain victory.

The new church building that is barely completed is too small to care for the growing Sunday school. The same is true at Clarksdale. In twelve months this splendid building will be too small to house the hundreds that will seek instruction in divine things.

The men are signing the card accepting the Five-cent allotment right along. The Holly Springs District is in the lead to-day, Aberdeen District second, and Greenville District third. No charge or district can claim that it has gone "over the top" when it has done no more than promise the allotted amount of money. The big sum of money is the smallest thing in the Centenary.

If you have not ordered your Sunday School Day programs, do so at once. If you have not a sufficient number, send for the number you need. It looks as though the day will be more universally observed than ever before.

Send to Dr. C. D. Bulla, Nashville, Tenn., for everything you need to conduct your campaign for new members. A post card will bring you all the helps free of charge. Let us bring five thousand more people into our Sunday schools by the middle of May. This is a vital part of the Centenary Movement. Do this and it will help to win.

"Jest remember that your scholars won't form any new idees outen what you're agivin' 'em onless you first get 'em interested in it."

"That servant went an' buried the talent in the ground; but it had a resurrection day. An' all our unapplied energies'll have one too."

"We ain't got things ev'nly balanced yet. We think we're adoin' fine to give five cents a month apiece for the Cent'nary—an' then go to a movin' picture show ev'ry Wednesday night at fifteen cents a go."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Rev. H. F. Tolle, D.D., Jackson, Miss., West Capitol Street, has been designated to have charge of the Centenary in the Sunday schools for our Conference. When you sign your Acceptance Card, please mail it direct to him and he in turn will report it to the head office. This will save duplications.

The Sunday School Day Programs are out. Get ready and make it the best ever. JOHN C. CHAMBERS,

FROM HARLESTON, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We are getting along well on the Americus charge. Good things are still coming to the parsonage; the assessment for the pastor is a $300 raise over last year. We have begun our meeting at Tanner's chapel. Brother D. W. Ulmer, of Brooklyn, will do the preaching. I do not expect to stop at the allotment given to our charge for the Advocate. Brother Chambers was with us five days in the interest of the Sunday school work, and did a good work. Pray for us in our meeting.

What Doctor Pierce Has Done For Humanity!

BY DOCTOR CRIPPS.

It has always seemed to me that Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., should be placed near the top when a list of America's great benefactors is written. He studied and conquered human diseases to a degree that few realize. Whenever he found a remedy that overcame disease, he at once announced it in the newspapers and told where it could be bought at a small price. He did not follow the usual custom of keeping the ingredients secret, so that the rich only could afford to buy the medicine, but openly printed the name of each root and herb he used. And so to-day the names of Dr. Pierce and his medicines are widely known, and they stand for better health and better citizenship.

One of this great physician's most successful remedies is known as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground. These Pellets are safe because they move the bowels gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as so many pills do. Very often they make a person who takes them feel like a new man or woman, for they cleanse the intestines of hard, decayed and poisonous matter that accumulates when one is costive. If you are constipated, by all means go to your druggist and get some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They may prove to be the very thing your system requires to make you well and happy.

IN BLOOD DISEASES

Like Scrofula, Eczema, and Many Skin Troubles,

As well as a general Spring medicine for catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, Hood's Sarsaparilla is of great value to men, women, children.

It does its thorough work in these well-defined diseases by cleansing the blood, on the pure, healthy condition of which depend the vigor and tone of the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is equally successful in the treatment of troubles that are not so well defined—cases of a low or run-down condition or general debility, loss of appetite and that tired feeling, or cases in which we see now very plainly after-effects of the worry and anxiety caused by the world war and the debility following the grip, influenza and fevers. In all such ailments it has accomplished a wonderful amount of good.

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

A NEW CURE OF EGOCENTRICISM.

Mr. H. Addington Bruce, the well-known and popular psychologist, has written an able article called "The Psychology of the Red Cross Movement" in the North American Review for January. In this article he brings out a new phase of the vaule of Red Cross work throughout the country. He writes: "Suggestion, in fact, is popularly regarded as an almost magic force, of irresistible potency when rightly applied. Actually there must always be present, on the part of the suggestee, an ardent, however subconscious, desire to respond to a given suggestion. Otherwise suggestion, no matter how deft its presentation, will beat forever against a stone wall of negativism. This, incidentally, explains why suggestion often fails in the treatment of functional nervous and mental maladies, a field of action in which as a rule it is notably efficacious. When, as frequently happens, nervous or mental symptoms give their victim certain advantages—such as being a center of sympathetic interest and attention—which would be lost if relief from the symptoms were gained, a subconscious desire to cling to them may prove altogether too strong for suggestion to overcome. On the other hand when a favoring desire is present and dominant, no great skill in the applying of suggestion is required to secure the end in view. In the present instance, obviously, the suggested idea, "Give to the Red Cross, work for the Red Cross, sacrifice for the Red Cross," must have accorded with the deep-seated and intense desires of the American people. If this had not been the case the systematized campaign of suggestion in behalf of the Red Cross could never have been so abundantly fruitful.

"BAYER CROSS" ON ASPIRIN

Always Ask for Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin"

Only Aspirin Tablets with the safety "Bayer Cross" on them are genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," owned and made by Americans and proved safe by millions of people. Unknown quantities of fraudulent Aspirin Tablets were sold recently by a Brooklyn dealer which proved to be composed mostly of Talcum Powder.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" should always be asked for. Then look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on each tablet. Accept nothing else! Proper directions and dosage in each Bayer package.

The Evening Line-Up

Both children and grown-ups, with coughs and colds, are all the better for a dose of Foley's Honey and Tar at bed time. It wards off croup, stops tickling throat, and hacking coughs, and makes an otherwise feverish, sleepless night of coughing and distress, a quiet and restful one.

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS. Mr. Chas. Baker, writes: "My wife would not think of using any other cough medicine, as Foley's Honey and Tar is certain to bring quick relief. It is especially effective in cases of bad coughs, and we give it to our children and recommend it always as a safe remedy, for it contains no opiates."

CAPUDINE

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Ninth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference was held at Mansfield, La., and was opened Tuesday morning, March 17, with our State President, Mrs. Niebergall, in the chair.

The meeting was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Miss Ella Hooper, Head Resident, French Mission, Houma, La. After singing a hymn, the subject of the Second Coming of Christ was presented in the Scripture selections. Her remarks showed that the greatest and most important fact of to-day is, that Jesus is appearing before the throne of God making intercession for us, and to those who look for him will He appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

Mr. Joyner, our Centenary Secretary, offered prayer.

Our President, Mrs. Niebergall, in her message emphasized the importance of prayer, and of thanksgiving for past achievements, and for the fact that the women of Louisiana do their work so willingly and so well.

Mrs. Cunningham, First Vice President, in giving her record of the year's work with the Young People, drew attention to the large difference in the number of Adult Auxiliaries and Young People's. There are 112 Adult societies and only 26 Y. P.'s. At a later session of the Conference, Mrs. Cunningham spoke on the subject, "What Will You Do to Interest Your Young People in Missions." It is the same old story: each year we are proud of our adult membership, but so few Young Peoples' Societies, which is due to the lack of leaders. In a place where you have no League and have young people, I think some one is going to be held responsible for this. What would this Council be without leaders? Young Peoples' work should be stressed.

Mr. Atkinson then told us of the Training School of ten days to train leaders for Young People's societies, to be held in Mansfield College beginning June 10, under the auspices of the Epworth League Board, the expense to be $1.00 per day.

There were three Young People's Societies eligible to the Honor Roll. The Loving Cup was presented to the one having the highest record, which was Shreveport with a splendid showing of 111 points; Ruston was not far behind with 101, and Mansfield was good with 97.

Report of Second Vice President, Mrs. R. H. Harper was given, in which she pointed out the great opportunities we have in working with the children.

Mrs. Harper talked to us on "Carrying Out New Plans in Children's Work." She emphasized organization and urged that we be loyal to our Conference Second Vice President. The first new thing is the supplement that comes out with the year book on The Japanese work in the home land and in the foreign land. There are a number of fine new plans and programs for developing the children and interesting them in God's harvest fields.

A number of leaflets were shown and also the Certificates, starting with the Baby Certificate, from the Baby to Junior and from Junior to Intermediate. The little mite boxes were also recommended for the Baby Division. The use of the Catechism was also urged.

The program given by the children one evening was full of interest and inspiration and the manner in which each performed his or her part would have done credit to grown-up folks.

Mrs. Harper presented the Blue and Gold Seal to the best society in each district: Alexandria District, Oakdale; Baton Rouge District, Franklinton; Lafayette District, Lafayette; New Orleans District, St. Mark's; Monroe District, Columbia; Ruston District, Homer; Shreveport District, Shreveport.

The beautiful Willie Louise Gahagan Cup was awarded the Oakdale, Jr., society, they having 156 points to their credit, the others being as follows: First Church, Shreveport, 115; St. Mark's, 110; Homer, 99; Franklinton, 92, and Columbia, 88.

Mrs. Wynn, Superintendent of Study and Publicity, gave a review of the Mission Study Books, "Adventures in Foreign Lands," and "Making America Safe." Bible study is also essential, as the Word of God is the living word and living things grow. The importance of subscribing for the Missionary Voice and Young Christian Worker was also emphasized.

In reviewing her work Mrs. Wynn mentioned the great happiness it gives her to serve in this capacity.

The Superintendent of Social Service, Mrs. W. W. Holmes, of Lake Charles, was absent; her report was read, indicating some advance within the Conference of this important phase of religious work.

Report of Superintendent of Supplies, Mrs. H. L. Baker, told that every appeal has been met with prompt and cheerful response, the value of donations being $1.147.80.

In Mrs. Holmes' absence, Mrs. Miller, of Minden, gave the Treasurer's report as follows: Total amount raised during the year, $14,965.60, which, with balance on hand, makes $15,636.88. Disbursements amounted to $14,458.44, leaving a balance on hand of $1178.44. Every district paid the pledge in full. It has also been the best year spiritually, having the best Week of Prayer offering yet received. It was agreed to send Mrs. Holmes a message, thanking her for her most excellent report.

The report of the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, was then received, which gives a gain in membership of 220, it being the best year's work from every point of view.

The President asked that a vote of thanks be tendered Mrs. Holt with the resolve that we give her our earnest support during the coming year, and as a pledge the Convention rose and sang most heartily, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Miss Gibson, of St. Mark's Hall, explained what the Centenary will mean to the Home Field. One of the first mentioned was that of supplementing the inadequate salaries of some of our ministers and of fortifying all the work in our Mission Fields where there are not enough ministers and other workers, notably the mountain whites, the Indians, the Sue Bennett School and others.

Report from St. Mark's Hall was given by Mrs. Parker, who told us that in future the Board of City Missions would be composed of laymen and lay women, the only minister on the board being the presiding elder.

Circumstances prevented the attendance upon the meeting of Miss Graham, our consecrated young Deaconess of Mary Werlein Mission. The women are giving seventy dollars a month toward carrying on this work.

Miss Ella Hooper was presented to the Conference. She showed a map of the particular territory of the French Field near Houma. There are 65,000 to 75,000 people in this district, mostly of the Roman Catholic faith. Three preachers, Mrs. White, and Miss Hooper are our representative workers. Bayou Blue was the first Methodist church organized and Martin Hebert was the first missionary to these people. One of the greatest needs is a church in Houma.

Mrs. French, who was at one time at the head of the Sue Bennett School, being present, was asked for a few words and she told us a little of the beginnings of this great school.

A letter from Miss Randle, missionary in Korea, was presented by Mrs. Niebergall. Miss Randle being in need of a typewriter, a committee was appointed to consider and report, the committee being Mrs. W. D. Haas, Mrs. Noble and Mrs. Schuhle. Later

The distinctive flavor of

Coca-Cola

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name—nicknames encourage substitution.

Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel sallvates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel billous, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children: they like it.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD.

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

the committee reported that they had decided on a portable Corona, costing about fifty dollars. The seven districts are to give this amount.

The question of what the Centenary will mean in the Foreign Field could hardly be answered by one who had never been in that foreign land, but one who has spent some years of faithful service in China, Dr. Hattie Love, profoundly impressed us with the unlimited opportunities and the wonderful things that may be accomplished through this great Centenary Movement. And when she told us that there were 34 missionaries and 18 nurses for 17,000,000 people and 7 doctors to 9,500,000 people, we realized, as she does, that we have been simply playing at missions.

Mrs. Lipscomb's talk on Women and the Centenary was clear and held the interest of the women.

The Pledge Hour was then conducted by Mrs. Lipscomb, who pointed out to us that something more than $3 per year as dues was required of us, and this opportunity is afforded us in the pledge. Last year's pledge was for $6000, but $292.86 more than this was paid and our resolve this year is 10 per cent increase for three reasons: first, the war is over; second, the opportunity in all the world is greater than ever before; and third, we have more money than ever before.

After prayer for God's blessing, pledges were taken as follows: Alexandria District, $800; Baton Rouge, $400; Lafayette, $850; Monroe, $700; New Orleans, $1000; Ruston, $900; and Shreveport, $2600.

Later it was asked that we make the pledge for Louisiana $8000, and this was done.

The crowning hour of each day was at noon, when the Quiet Hour talks were given by Mrs. Lipscomb and Dr. Hattie Love. A message from the Word of Truth, the thoughts of these two women about life and service, and prayer to the Father gave new strength for the new year's work.

The reception, given for the women by their hostesses, the Mansfield auxiliary, was a very happy occasion. The reception rooms of the Mansfield College, cheerily decorated with spring flowers, furnished ample space for the very large crowd. The evening was spent in an entirely social manner, and more charm and beauty were added to it by the entrance of a bevy of college maidens bearing trays of delicious refreshments. The women appreciated the opportunity also of meeting the cultured corps of teachers of this institution.

We thank the women of Mansfield again and again for their hospitable courtesies.

The next annual meeting will be held at Lake Charles.

Dr. Love dismissed the Conference with a word of prayer, and we all went to our homes feeling that we had indeed been on the mountain-top with God.

TELLS WHY CHICKS DIE.

E. J. Reefer, America's foremost poultry expert, 4254 Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free his valuable chicken book just off the press entitled "White Diarrhoea and how to Cure It." This book tells how to prepare a simple home solution that will cure this terrible disease overnight and will actually save 90 per cent of every hatch. This book is worth $1 of any poultry raiser's money, but Mr. Reefer is sending it absolutely free as long as the present edition lasts.

The extension of the true influence of the Church depends upon the intensity of its spirit. Even when most conscious of its call to affect the whole range of national life, to bring within its fold the masses who are straying without, the Church must, by repeated acts of recollection, return to the great saying of its Lord, "For their sakes I sanctify myself."—Selected.

COALING, ALA.

Dear Mr. Editor: May I say a word? Naturally I am feeling a bit "expatriated" out here at Coaling, Ala., but after my surprising superannuation I took the first offer in sight, and have no regrets, though larger things, humanly speaking, were offered to me the day following.

Coaling is highly interesting in several ways, and the demands are positive; a town also of the A. G. S. is quite in touch with general happenings. I have taken the usual route and am putting the parsonage in good condition. The plan is well-nigh completed. In fact, our painter had finished, I thought, but more money was furnished and he is to go on again.

Tuscaloosa is near to us, and Birmingham is not so far away. The famous Geo. Stuart works at this last named place, as pastor at the First Church. It is worth a 50 mile ticket to hear him one time. He gets in earnest, and is gifted and fearless, and has done some thinking. He is immensely alive on the "Centenary of Missions" and $35,000,000.

I do not know what the future has for me. I know I am not superannuated, even though my Conference in my absence, and from some strange cause, said so; a wrong impression I am sure prevailed. Only "worn-out men" can be superannuated, and even for these, if life lasts, there is something to do.

I have much to look after here, aside from the pulpit service, and am thankful to be so well, as generally true, and so willing, and to have the same inspiration and spirit as elsewhere; but no day passes that my heart does not go to God for the former people and territory.

Few districts, I infer, are more awake than the Tuscaloosa of North Alabama. Our presiding elder here is intensely a district dynamic, or dynamo of a Methodist movement on the wheels of the latest in automobiles. His "car," however, is merely incidental, as is true of other features of his eldership office. "A man sent from God" is what he makes you think, whether in the pulpit, the home or presiding at a quarterly or district conference.

My heart is here with my work, and I take, of course, and read the Alabama Advocate, of which Dr. Branscomb is the specially fine and worthy editor; but I open first, naturally, the New Orleans Advocate, now circulating in excess of common, and take note, of course, of the "Editorial Comments," and the notes from North Mississippi.

Artesia, the pastor reports, is still "A1," but they do it "in His name," and will be greater as the years pass, and especially when the new church is erected. Of course they cheerfully adjust to Conference assignments, but others many are valiantly in line, to "subdue kingdoms," to destroy the works of darkness, and to place the stardard of the Cross yet farther upon the territory of Satan. Good people, many, ministers and church members, have gone to heaven from that territory, but because of the foundations which they laid, and the superb example which they set, "greater works than these" shall no doubt be done, so long as righteousness prevails, and the "cloud by day" appears, and the fire by night.

Get Back Your Grip On Health

Physician Gives Practical Advice On What to Do To Help Build Up Your Strength, Power and Endurance—Explains

How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—Helps Put Renewed Vim and Energy Into the Veins of the Weak, Nervous and Run-down—

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron.

To possess the power, energy and endurance that win the blood should be rich in strength-giving iron. For this purpose physicians below explain why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells often quickly transform the flabby flesh, toneless tissues and pallid cheeks of weak, anaemic men and women into a glow of health. It increases the strength of delicate, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

In explaining why he regards iron as absolutely essential to the greatest development of physical and mental power, and discussing the probability of building up a stronger race of people by increasing the supply of iron in their blood, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says:

"Iron is absolutely necessary to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive and for supplying this deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own test of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results. The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, is in itself an evidence of tremendous public confidence and I am convinced, that if others would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down it would help make a nation of stronger, healthier men and women."

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic strength and blood-builder, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said:

"Thousands are held back in life for want of sufficient iron in the blood. A weak body means a weakened will power, and like the race horse beaten by a nose, many a capable man or woman fails just short of winning because they don't back up their mentality with the physical strength and energy which come from having plenty of iron in the blood. That irritable twitch, that fit of despondency, that dizzy, fearful feeling—these are the sort of signals nature gives to tired, listless folks when the blood is clamouring for strength-giving iron—more iron to restore the health by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells.

"In my opinion the greatest curse to the health and strength of American people of today is the alarming deficiency of iron in their blood.

It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. Lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves and utterly robbed him of that virile force and stamina which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

"Therefore, I strongly advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had, in some cases, been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron recommended above is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

H. W. BOWMAN, P. E.

We are not our own masters; we are children and servants, and we depend upon the will of another. Our eating and drinking, our sleeping and waking, our holiday making and our labor—all should be done in the consciousness of God, our Father and Lord. The thought of God should sound constantly like low music in the background of our spirits, and should form the keynote of all our thinking, feeling and willing.—A. Tholuck.

The will of God is done in Heaven without reservation. Each one of those who works the purpose of God does it with absolute abandon, holding back no part of the price, and we are praying that we may do the same in this world; that we may ask no bargain with God as to our surrender, but give ourselves entirely into His hands.—Exchange.

Man's Life.

"Man's life is his fair name and not his length of years;
Man's death is his ill-fame and not the day that nears.
Then life to thy fair name, by deeds of goodness give,
So in this world two lives, O mortal, thou shalt live."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE VICTORY LOAN.

The Victory Loan is well named in more ways than one. It is, of course, the consequent of the triumphant conclusion of the European war. We knew when we went into the war that it would cost us immensely in treasure of men and money. We estimated the cost and were willing to pay it. We knew, too, that we would never end the war until we had gained that for which we entered it. We have won all that we fought for, and the Victory Loan is a challenge to us to pay the price of victory, that we may creditably conclude what we so determinedly began. But it is a challenge in a higher sense than that. It is, in effect, a test of our ability to maintain in victory, as in conflict, those high principles of moral steadfastness that kept us smiling in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles, and of the noble altruism that made us, as a nation, lay aside our characteristic desire for self-aggrandizement. The Hun has been hurled from his high place in the sun, never again to cast a shadow over the earth. Now that the end has been achieved, are we big enough and brave enough to forego the opportunities of self sh gain, and stand by our Government in the end as we did in the beginning, until the whole cost of the war has been paid? In other words, the Victory Loan will determine whether or not we have conquered ourselves as well as our foes. A quick over-subscription of the Loan will prove that the fires of patriotism still flame high in the hearts of the American people.

LET THEM COME HOME.

According to a recent news item, Chicago has more Negro labor than it knows what to do with. Discharged Negro soldiers and war workers are congregating there, and the situation is becoming acute. A telegram to the New Orleans Association of Commerce from the Chicago Chamber of Commerce says, "Do you need this labor? If so, wire right now." It seems just a little strange to us that Chicago should be calling on the South to help solve its Negro problem—we were under the impression that our friends in the Windy City just doted on "the brother in black." However, we believe that the South will be glad to have these colored men come home, and that it will give them a welcome and an opportunity such as they will receive nowhere else. We are not unaware of the difficulties that exist in connection with the relations of the two races in the South; but we believe it is coming to be realized that the Negro has no better friends in the world than the white people below Mason and Dixon's Line. There are disturbing elements on both sides, but the serious-thinking, right-minded, and big-hearted leaders of both races are working together, earnestly and conscientiously, in a way that is most encouraging for the future. This race question can and will be settled in keeping with the principles of justice and righteousness.

THE VALUE OF EDUCATION.

Press dispatches announce that a citizen of Texas who died recently left his entire estate, valued at $500,000, to the Spiritualists of the United States to establish a college. He was wrong in his religious views, but right in his plan for maintaining and propagating them. A well equipped college will last for generations and influence vitally thousands of lives. These lives, shaped by the forces that were brought to bear upon them in their formative period, will go out into the world to reproduce their kind. The Christian Church will realize sooner or later that the maintenance of first-class educational institutions is absolutely essential to its own welfare. Methodism still has a good deal to learn at this point. We are sadly indifferent to many of the pressing needs of our own educational system.

A MARVELOUS DISCOVERY.

We are more or less prepared for anything that happens nowadays. The achievements of modern science have made us very slow to doubt the truth of any claim, no matter how preposterous that claim may seem to be. But we came across an announcement recently that makes us pause. It may be true—the complete confidence with which the announcement is made seems to leave no room for question; but it is so unexpected, so astounding, so far-reaching in its effects, if true, that we have not yet been able to adjust our mental processes to its acceptance. If we do accept it, we shall have to reconstruct our systems of psychology, philosophy, and theology. Many of the things that we have accepted as proved beyond a peradventure will have to be discarded altogether; and in the brilliant light of this new discovery, we shall face a future immeasurably different from anything we had ever even remotely imagined. The discovery, according to the announcement in a reputable secular newspaper, was made by a woman, a physician, who has spent some months in hospital service in England, in France, and in Macedonia. She had ample opportunity for close observation and careful investigation. We quote her own words on this point: "I had to deal with jungle men, straight from the wilds of Madagascar to the French battlefront. They were like big black animals; they could not understand the cannon and thought the noise killed the men around them. They would cower in the trenches and whine like terrified animals until the order came to go over the top. Then they were like demons, with no fear; all they knew was hand-to-hand warfare. In hospitals and behind the lines they were lonely and homesick, but"—and here is the marvelous discovery—"the cigarette was the sign of universal brotherhood that would bring smiles to their faces." There it is—marvelous in its simplicity, stupendous in its significance, staggering in its possibilities—the cigarette is the sign of universal brotherhood! Well! Well!! Well!!!

WHEN IS A MAN OLD?

A French correspondent of the Army and Navy Journal calls attention to the following significant facts: of the 372 chief officers in the French active service, the youngest of the brigadier generals is 44; the youngest divisional general is 50, and all the army group commanders are above 60. A fair conclusion seems to be that, so far as efficient service is concerned, men do not become old nowadays.

JUDAISM IN LINE.

According to press reports, Rabbi David Lefkowitz, of Dayton, Ohio, delivered an address on Saturday of last week before the Central Conference of American Rabbis, in session at Cincinnati, in which he laid stress upon the urgent need of more religious education in the synagogues and Jewish Sabbath schools in the United States. In this connection, he pleaded for greater efficiency on the part of the teachers in their Sabbath schools. This is simply in line with what is being done by the Christian Church throughout the world. Religious education is the great need of this age, as it has been of all ages, and any people who would preserve their own integrity and fulfill their mission to the world must lay deep and broad the foundations of character. The best way to do this is to impart religious training by competent teachers, beginning with the earliest days of childhood. Our own Church needs a great many more properly trained Sunday school teachers than it has at present.

SAVE SUNDAY.

One of the gravest problems confronting the Church to-day is, in our judgment, the preservation of Sunday as a day of rest and worship. There seems to be a growing tendency to think of it merely as a day for recreation and frivolous entertainment, and for the promotion of enterprises that find profit in catering to the pleasure-loving spirit of our people. We rejoice in the great truth that Christ taught, that the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath; we have no disposition to insist upon an observance of the day that would make it a burden to grown people and a punishment to children; but we cannot but view with alarm the conception that it is nothing more than a day of the week to be used simply as other days are used—for business, pleasure, or convenience of any kind, as whim may dictate. It is a divine provision for a fundamental need of human nature, and when we disregard that provision we suffer inevitably in body, mind, and spirit. We do well to set ourselves steadfastly against every attempt to make our American Sunday a kind of national holiday without the restraints of a keen sensitiveness to our moral obligations. We must save Sunday or sacrifice one of the bulwarks of Christian civilization.

GOD'S SPRING.

By Grace Duffield Goddwin.

If this were all, how could we bear
To lie in darkness and forget
That in some upper, golden air
Spring wakes the violet?

That somewhere lifted, sunlit wings
Begin brave journeys in the blue?
Must it be so, poor, dreaming dead?
Has spring forgotten you?

How can it be that amber brooks,
Gold with the suns of all the year,
Shall seek, content, the river's breast,
Knowing you are not here?

If this were all, how could we go
To lie beneath love's futile flowers?
God, Thou wilt grant, on greener hills
A fairer spring than ours!

ACTIONS VS. WORDS.

By Fred S. Shepard.

No religious belief, ethical standard or moral teaching has any value or makes any contribution to the good of the indivdual or of society unless it transforms character and manifests itself in conduct which is in keeping with the truth inculcated thereby. It is not enough to give only intellectual assent to truth, however profound it may be; it must take possession of the heart and find expression in the life, otherwise it is passive and inanimate—admired, perhaps, for its beauty of diction and perfection of form, but exerting no influence and producing no results.

That Christianity which is a mere form of profession, but which produces no fruitage in the life of the professor, is a vain thing, an anomaly, for Christ said to His disciples, "I have chosen you and ordained you that ye should go and bring forth fruit." It is, therefore, important that Christian leaders and teachers should emphasize doing as well as believing, the obligation to pass on as well as to receive, for God's measure is "full, pressed down and running over." Christ's whole ministry was an exemplification of this principle, and experience teaches with great emphasis that "there is that scattereth and yet increaseth." This spirit of altruistic service must be instilled in the individual, the class and the Church, if to-day's problems are to be met and solved.

If the war has taught any one thing more than another, it is the lesson of unselfish consideration of the needs of others. It is this very expression of practical Christianity that has made the work of the Y. M. C. A. and kindred church organizations stand out so prominently during the time of this fearful struggle, and which has given such a vital significance to the religious work accompanying their ministrations. When the Christ spirit so possesses men that they are ready to share cheerfully danger and hardship for the purpose of serving men in their temporal and physical needs, then their presentation of the gospel message and claims has a measure of weight far exceeding any which is unaccompanied by such practical expressions of interest and sympathy. The cup of cold water, or hot tea and coffee, given in the name (spirit) of the Master not only has a promised reward, but is in itself a message of love that speaks louder than mere words or sanctimonious profession.

The Church, the Sabbath school, the Bible class, must not only teach the vital truths of religion, but must give suggestion and leadership to such service of others as will emphasize the truth thus taught and make it a living message to those who are being served.

"If that is religion, it is what we want," was the comment of a bereaved mother as she witnessed the ministrations of a neighbor who had quietly come into the stricken home to assist by performing simple but needed household duties. It ever will be that "actions speak louder than words," and

"So shall our acts and lives express
The love of God that we profess."

THE CHURCH AND THE RETURNING SERVICE MEN.

Welcome, Help, Enlist.

By E. O. Watson, Secretary War Work Commission.

Here is an opportunity to make your Church felt in a large and effective way along practical lines. The United States Employment Service has been obliged by lack of funds seriously to curtail its activities. It looks to the Churches of America for co-operation and practical help. We must not fail to accept the challenge.

Our men of the army and navy are coming back. Boys of yesterday, they come back men of to-day, having seen, suffered and served in relation to great things. We are proud of them. They have done a great piece of work. Love leaps to greet them. Their home-coming will be signalized by military, civic and social organizations. The Church that has followed them through all with vital interest, prayer and service, must and will have active and definite part not only in the welcome extended, but in a program for their future.

In transition from a war to a peace basis, millions of discharged soldiers, sailors, marines and civilian war workers must find employment. This noble army must not be suffered to become loafers, mendicants or petty job seekers. They must be given a fair chance at once to take their place in the great work of reconstruction in the way best suited to individual taste and capacity. The problem of immediate employment for these millions demands the best thought of all concerned. No one agency can work it out. Of all agencies none can do so much as the Churches, and there is no way in which the Churches can render larger service in this respect than by co-operating with the United States Employment Bureau.

The United States Employment Service has been organized to meet this situation and has been, and is, rendering most efficient service. They, however, are at least temporarlly embarrassed by lack of funds to extend their work as widely and adequately as the situation demands. In this emergency, first our War Work Commission offered the co-operation of our churches, and then the General War-Time Commission offered to undertake bringing all the Protestant Churches of America into co-operative service with the U. S. Empoyment Bureau, in finding employment for service men. This offer has been accepted by the United States Empoyment Bureau.

The General War-Time Commission of the Churches appointed Revs. E. O. Watson, Gaylord S. White, Worth M. Tippy, W. Stuart Cramer, Mr. John M. Glenn, Rev. Paul F. Langhorne, and Mr. F. S. Titsworth as a committee with power to act in bringing this important phase of welcome to returning service men to the attention of the Churches and enlisting hearty co-operation.

The plan has been laid before the War Work Commissions or Committees of the various Protestant denominations and has met with an enthusiastic response. Every Protestant pastor in our country is being furnished with an outline of the plan not only for helping returning service men to secure employment, but for giving them proper welcome and recognition by the Churches and enlisting them in Christian service. Each denominational war emergency agency is expected to follow up in its own denomination and develop the idea.

We are anxious that our own Methodism should develop the plan to the highest possible efficiency. With this in view, our territory has been divided into nine districts. Rev. G. C. Emmons has been made general superintendent of this department, located in the office, 40-41 Washington Post Building, Washington, D. C., and the following appointed as district superintendents:

Rev. G. S. Frazer, Secretary Methodist Men's Club, Washington, Georgia, serving North Georgia, South Georgia and Florida Conferences.

Rev. V. H. Hawkins, Anniston, Alabama, serving Tennessee, Memphis, North Alabama, North Mississippi, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama Conferences.

Rev. W. I. Herbert, 1302 Main Street, Columbia, South Carolina, serving South Carolina, Upper South Carolina, North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences.

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Secretary War Work Commission, Louisville Conference, Glasgow, Kentucky, serving Illinois, Kentucky, Louisville and Holston Conferences.

Rev. H. E. Snodgrass, 815 E. Avenue, Lawton, Oklahoma, serving West Oklahoma, East Oklahoma, Little Rock, North Arkansas and Indian Mission Conferences.

Rev. C. C. Selecman, 847 South Grand Street, Los Angeles, California, serving Northwest, Pacific and Los Angeles Conferences.

Rev. R. P. Waters, Box 68, South San Antonio, Texas, serving West Texas, Southwest Texas, North Texas, Central Texas and Texas Conferences.

Rev. W. C. Childress, Deming, New Mexico, serving Northwest Texas and New Mexico Conferences.

1. Each church should at once:

(a) Appoint a committee or committees and organize for this employment service.

(b) Put up the poster "Jobs for Fighters," distribute literature where available, and make public announcement of the work proposed.

(c) Secure employment statistics, transmitting same to the Federal Agent of the U. S. Employment Service Bureau of the State in which located.

(d) Canvass the business interests of the community and secure as many as possible to agree to employ, as far as possible, returning soldiers, sailors, marines and civilian war workers and register their opportunities for employment with the U. S. Employment Service.

(e) Secure data as to arrival of discharged service men; ascertain their needs and assist them in meeting these needs in the matter of employment.

2. Do your utmost for co-operation of the churches of your community, it being recommended, where practicable, that a joint committee be organized, and when there is need, upon consultation with the Federal Agent of the U. S. Employment Service in the State, open an office.

3. Wherever possible, give financial or clerical help in establishing and maintaining a bureau of the United States Employment Service in the community when such bureau is authorized by the Federal Agent of the State and cannot otherwise be maintained.

Summing up: The situation demands immediate action through definite plans; arousing interest, advertising the work; gathering data; helping to place men in suitable jobs—all in cooperation with the U. S. Employment Service.

The simplest organization that will accomplish the results desired is recommended, bearing in mind all the while that any plan should center in and be co-operative in all points with the United States Employment Service.

This is a challenge of opportunity. Some cities blow whisles, erect arches, and have great parades for the returning soldiers. Some, as in North Dakota, give material and financial help. The Church should give glad welcome, real help, and enlist the returning soldier in the world program of the Church.

HOW IT IS DONE "OVER THERE."

By Chaplain A. F. Vaughan.

Our division remained on the St. Mihiel sector for over a month. The men were tired and there had been a considerable loss of life. It is hard to live under such a strain continuously in a normal state of mind. They were bright and cheerful and were always ready for action. But were they normal? Some wise man will write a book on the psychology of trench life after the war and it will be an interesting study. They seemed almost insensible to pain and suffering. When the stretcher bearers brought in the wounded, it was very seldom that a man would give any indication of his suffering. Boys who had been accustomed at home to many comforts, slept in cold, damp dugouts; ate food that was wholesome but always the same thing day after day, and complained very little. Was it because they realized that their lives were merely hanging in a balance and were indifferent to their present condition? I frequently visited them in their dugouts and tried to understand them as best I could. They talked freely about everything, were usually light-hearted and optimistic. There was no question as to their loyalty and firmness in the conviction that they were justified in enlisting in this great war. Firsthand knowledge of Germans and their ways confirmed this opinion, and they knew that the world would never be fit to live in safely until that great power had been entirely conquered. There was not much singing in the front line trenches, but the men seemed to enjoy the good old religious songs that our fathers sang. I do not recall ever hearing the men sing the Sunday school songs that we are accustomed to at home. Occasionally there would be a burst of hilarity and then some man would start a song something like this:

"I want to go home, I want to go home;
The bullets they whistle, the cannons they roar,
I don't want to go to the trenches no more,
Take me over the sea, where the animal can't get at me,
Oh, my! I'm too young to die—I want to go home."

The men were not all kept in the front line trenches constantly. It was customary to keep one battalion in Griscourt, divisional headquarters and a sort of rest camp, a few days at a time; then, send it back to the second line trenches while the front line men went back to the rest area. In that way none would remain in the front lines longer than a week at a time, so that while two battalions were in the front lines constantly, at least one was having a rest. However, it did not make a great deal of difference, as the shelling was about as bad in one place as another, and there was scarcely a night when the divisional headquarters were not bombed by the airplanes. It was also in reach of the big German guns. But it was a great privilege to get back, be "deloused," have a bath and a change of clothing once in three weeks.

There had been much talk about being relieved. Rumors were heard that we were going to Italy, to the Verdun sector, and a practical joker started the report that the 359th Infantry would be sent to Paris for police duty. His popularity knew no bounds up to a certain time. But the penalty for that joke was evidently more disagreeable than the pleasure he enjoyed from having started it. Five heaping tablespoonfuls of salts might be regarded as an over-dose ordinarily, but there was a contention among the men that it should have been just twice the amount.

Finally orders did come for us to move out. There was great excitement; for a while no one knew just where the division was going; a change is always interesting. Perhaps had we realized what was in store for us, we would have been anxious to remain. Orders come in the army as suddenly as storms arise on the Gulf Coast, usually with just enough warning to know that something is going to happen, but when and how no one can tell. Ordinarily a division is not kept on a sector longer than three or four weeks at a time, and we knew we would be moved at any moment. I shall never forget the day when we moved out. I gathered up my clothes, blankets and a few toilet articles that I could store in my pack. When I looked around the old dugout for the last time, there came to my heart a feeling of regret. It was almost like leaving home. This place had been the scene of many trying experiences. Faces of boys lying on stretchers who passed through to be sent to the hospital appeared to me; pleasant hours of fellowship with the first aid men were lived over again. It had protected me many nights from shellfire; it had given me shelter from the rain and storm; it had been my trysting-place with God; and I wondered if I could find another as good when we reached our new sector. When we marched out, I passed the graves of many of the men that we had buried, and though it was a dark night, I could picture them again as I saw them for the last time. I thought of their loved ones at home, and—well, I passed on.

Moving a division is not an easy task, and there is little wonder that it is not done so often. First, the men are sent out of line as the new troops come in. Then, the supply wagons and kitchens are moved. Every division carries its own equipment and much of the artillery must be moved. The roads were muddy and sloppy and seemed utterly impassable for the trucks, but a little thing like that means nothing to a moving army. No lights are carried, the roads are broken up and just how the men drive the trucks is a mystery and is something marvelous. A large number of the drivers were killed by German shells and the trucks blown into a thousand pieces.

It was twenty miles to our billeting place, with one or two stops along the way. A day and night was required for the entire regiment to reach its destination, a little village near Toul, one of the large cities of France. During the war, the French Government made it compulsory for people to take soldiers in their homes while billeting in the towns or villages. A "billeting officer" was sent ahead to make all necessary arrangements and by the time the regiment had reached the place a list was made out and places provided for all the men. Usually the officers occupied rooms in the homes of the people, while the enlisted men slept in barns, cowsheds, chicken houses, or anywhere that shelter could be found. My room was with an old veteran of the war of 1870. He wanted to tell me all about it, but I could not understand his language, so had to be satisfied with his gestures and pictures. Usually the French people received us cheerfully and did their best to put up with our noise and confusion, which must have been a sore tax on their patience. But they had suffered greatly, appreciated the part America was taking in this war, and did all they could to show their gratitude. We were in a large grape growing section; it was harvesting time and the people were making wine. That was a great day for prohibition among the soldiers, for after seeing the process of getting the juice out of the grapes, only those who had passed far down the line of degeneracy could drink the stuff. Immense tubs were used in which the grapes were dumped, and with bare feet, regardless of how dirty they might be, the juice was mashed out and bottled on the spot. One old toper, trying to justify the process, claimed that in the fermentation of the wine all impurities were overcome. To me, the argument was not satisfactory, and I maintain that any man who could drink this French wine after witnessing its manufacture, has something more than an iron constitution and a perverted taste.

The old Frenchman and his wife with whom I stayed occupied the front room, about twenty-five enlisted men slept upstairs in a loft, which ran the entire length of the building, a cowshed was located just by the side of the house with a thin partition separating it from the room in which I slept, and just behind my room was a chicken-house. When the boys became hilarious, which was a frequent occurence during the night, the cow would low, the roosters crow, the old man swear in French and the dear old lady scream herself hoarse in a vain effort for peace. I can never forget that bed on which I slept. It was a large, bulky affair, evidently the senior member of the household, occupying a conspicuous place in the corner of the room, with an immense feather mattress on it, and still another, though much shorter, on top of that, to cover with. There were also sheets—brown with age—and a thick quilt. My first night there will always be remembered. I was tired and had visions of a long, peaceful rest. A short step-ladder was placed by the side of the bed for my convenience, upon which I casually climbed, thinking that I would find a soft spot upon which to rest. I let go and fell in. That was my undoing, for I did not stop soon enough. When I landed on the slats it seemed to me that at least two ribs had been fractured. It was all right when you got used to it—which I never did.

It was during this time that a great many new men came in to fill up the ranks. They were replacements from other divisions, most of them just from America, and none had seen service at the front. They had to be drilled and instructed, especially in the use of the hand-grenades and gas masks. But they were eager to learn, had come with fresh enthusiasm and gradually adjusted themselves to a phase of army life that was entirely different from their past experiences. Men who had been with the organization from the beginning, who had been "over the top" several times, were regarded as old veterans, and they were not unmindful of their position among the new-comers. There is a sort of aristocracy of service that is as conspicuous in the army as aristocracy of birth is in some sections of the country. They were not slow about making distinctions among those who had been in action and the poor fellows who were kept in "S. O. S." As for the men who were used as "M. M.'s" along the roads and in the cities, they had a supreme contempt, unjustified of course, but even an army discipline cannot alter some things.

During our stay in Bruley, the place where the regiment was billeted, news came that peace negotiations were being considered. Germany, Austria and Turkey were all clamoring for peace conferences. It was no occasion for surprise to our men, for they believed that the war would soon be over. At first, their enthusiasm knew no bounds. For months they had lived under a war cloud, their comrades had fallen by their sides, many of them had faced death a number of times. It was not cowardice or a lack of determination to press on until victory was an accomplished fact, but their hearts were stirred with unbounded longings for life and home and native land. In the course of time, they began to realize that peace talk was a very unsatisfactory way of settling the war. Wire messages from home said, "On to Berlin." The officers advised the men to talk of something else besides peace; orders were issued prohibiting the men from gathering in groups to discuss the matter. My Colonel sent me out on the drill grounds to speak to the men and tell them that the war was far from being over and the great problem before us was to determine to go into the next battle with greater courage than ever before.

In just a few days, we were loaded on French trucks and sent to the Verdun sector. It was a never-to-be-forgotten journey. The weather was disagreeably cold and raining most of the time; we were quartered for a few days in old French barracks filled with cooties and other creeping things, and were glad to get out finally and march into line just in front of Montfaucon, a destroyed French town and the scene of many bitter struggles all through the war. A part of one building was left with a high tower, from where it is said the Crown Prince watched the first battle of Verdun. My dugout was on top of a hill overlooking a beautiful valley through which the troops had to pass when they came into line. The Germans were perfectly familiar with the country, occupying a high hill just a few miles away, and they kept up an incessant fire all the time. Many men were killed as they came through that valley. It was reported that we had twenty divisions on that sector at one time and never before had there been such an assembly of artillery. There were guns everywhere and they were firing day and night.

One morning I woke up with a smothered feeling; something was wrong with my throat and when I attempted to walk, everything was whirling about me and I could scarcely talk. It was gas—my second dose. I can't recall a great deal more until one morning I found myself on a hospital train. A little Red Cross worker was bending over my bunk with a basket filled with chewing gum and cigarettes, bidding me good morning and telling me to help myself. Her smile was enough for that day, so I turned over and went back to sleep and dreamed of a land across the ocean and thought I was living once more with my own family, and among my own friends. I could say a great deal about the army hospitals, for I have been a patient in two of them, and am now serving as a hospital chaplain, but will tell you about them in my next letter.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE METHODISTS IN THE RECONSTRUCTION SCHOOL, BLUE RIDGE, N. C., April 7-16, 1919.

It is with real pleasure that we, the seventy-seven Methodists of the Blue Ridge Reconstruction School of April 7-16, 1919, express our high appreciation of the splendid work of the Young Men's Christian Association, under the auspices of the National War Work Council, in putting over this school to train leaders in various communities throughout this territory to help in solving the "after-the-war" problems with special reference to the returning soldier. Just as the Y. M. C. A. was in the forefront of noble activities to aid the soldiers in camp and on the battle front, so it is in the forefront of organized effort in helping the soldier to find his place in the activities of good citizenship.

The corps of lecturers selected for this Blue Ridge School was wisely chosen. Every man is a great scholar with a university degree, yet an humble, devoted, consecrated Christian, putting into practice the teachings of the Master. They are earnest, godly men, capable and powerful, and fit for leadership among the leaders.

The men sent to this school are carefully selected ministers and laymen of prominence and power for leadership.

The whole plan and program was a happy thought inspired by the spirit of Christ, and will be far-reaching in its results. It is greater than a school, a convention, or an institute. It is a council of great and good minds, meeting in different groups of ten days each, preparing for the great task of conserving the good that has come out of the world war. The plan is to make this a safe world to live in and to help the returning soldier to fit into the great scheme of better Christian citizenship and to do his bit in this immense task of reconstruction according to Christian principles. The aim is to help every stratum of humanity—the rich, the poor, the white, the black, the foreigner and the American-born, alike. A more suitable place for such planning could hardly be found than the "Beautiful Blue Ridge" where the participants are braced by the purest atmosphere and inspired by the beauties of natural scenery.

It is our prayer that under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit and the impetus of these ten-day "schools" that these ideals held up here may be woven into the Christian endeavors of every community represented in these various gatherings. We heartily recommend that our people arrange to send their sons and daughters to the various student conferences for young men and young women, where they may receive inspiration and special training in the various activities of student life. The greatest need of all Christian work is trained leadership, and here the training needed by our young people for religious work can be received better than anywhere else. Here a large number, each year, have decided their life work for the ministry, the mission field, the Y. M. C. A., or Y. W. C. A., or some other line of Christian service.

Perhaps in no other one spot in the South have so many young people found their religious calling as at Blue Rige. It has been an inspiration to a large number to give themselves more earnestly to Christian work at home and abroad. The Centenary drive will call for a large number of volunteers for mission work, and our Church should make use of this assembly more than ever by sending its young people to these student gatherings during the summer for training, inspiration and deepening of their religious life.

A GENEROUS GIFT.

We, the Board of Stewards of Bayou LaChute Church, in behalf of the congregation of said church, grateful to Amighty God for his Word and for the privilege of hearing the Gospel preached, and believing this Gospel is able to make wise unto salvation, and desiring that all people may enjoy these blessings, present to the Lockport Quarterly Conference a Ford touring car, to be used by the pastor in carrying the Gospel to the French people of South Louisiana. It is understood that this car shall be used exclusively in connection with the French Mission work. It is further understood that Rev. A. J. Martin, pastor, shall have use of said car so long as he is engaged in this work, and in case of his removal he shall hand it over to his successor.

This resolution was also adopted by the church conference of Bayou LaChute Church.

MONROE DISTRICT NOTES.

The Centenary district council meeting was held on scheduled time. Our original allotment was $103,200. At the Alexandria meeting it was voluntarily raised to $105,000. Then, at the district council meeting, it was moved to increase it to $110,000. When the allotments were made to the various charges, here comes our man of faith and of the world-vision, Rev. W. J. Porter, of Sicily Island, who says he is not content with his portion, which is $6300, but he voluntarily raises his to $7000. This is the true Centenary spirit that will bring things to pass. This is the day of the "forward-looking man."

On the Bonita charge, the pastor, Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., has had eight conversions. This is the chief end of our ministry—to get the people to commit themselves wholly to God. Who else has had conversions?

At Holly Grove, Brother W. T. Woodward has had a fine meeting, in which there were eleven accessions to the Church.

The Monroe District Conference will be held at Winnsboro from June 2 to 5. The brethren will please have the delegates elected by the church conference. ALBERT S. LUTZ.

A CHAPTER ON MAKING THE APPOINTMENTS.

By Bishop Joseph F. Berry.

Two modifications of Methodist Episcopal law have changed the conditions under which the appointments are made. One is the elimination of the pastoral time limit. This modification has rather increased the number of changes and has produced certain complications which were not common under the old order. There is some sentiment in favor of a return to the five-year limit, but that will never come to pass.

The other modification has come through the creation of episcopal areas. By this arrangement the resident bishop has come into more intimate relations with the ministers and churches and is assuming increased personal responsibility for his appointments. With one or two exceptions the bishops believe that the area experiment is a success. It has greatly increased episcopal labors and responsibilties, but it has promoted efficiency. As the earliest advocate in the Board of Bishops of the area idea I am taking not a little satisfaction in seeing how splendidly the theory has worked out. My first speech on the subject was laughed at by certain of the older bishops, and I remember at its close one of the greatest men of the board told me I was a nice young brother, but a good deal of a visionary.

Geography and Appointments.

It is interesting to note how geography seems to affect the attitude of ministers and churches toward our historic system of making appointments. In the great West and Middle West, where Methodism is so strong, the congregational method of "calling" the minister has not yet become the rule. Indeed, in many of the Conferences, the practice is exceptional. Some years ago I presided at Rock River Conference, which includes the great Methodist city of Chicago. It happened to be a "moving year." The term of three district superintendents had expired and an unusual number of pastors desired to go to new churches. I think I never presided at a Conference where so many changes in proportion to the membership seemed advisable. Yet in that great body not one pre-Conference arrangement had been made, and only one committee came to see me during the entire session.

Compare that experience with that which the bishop encounters in the New York, New York East, Newark, Philadelphia and New Jersey Conferences! The church which has not "called" its pastor for next year is out of style. It has become so much of a custom that few ever think of it as un-Methodistic and unlawful. Country circuits, as well as large city churches, appoint a committee on "pastoral relations," which generally insists that the selection made by the committee shall be ratified by the bishop and his cabinet. It must be said that if the prevailing custom shall have approval at all, the sanction must be extended to the little churches as well as the big ones. So prevalent has this practice become that the district superintendents sometimes encourage it. A young preacher, who is conscientiously loyal to our system and who could not be induced to adopt the methods of manipulation which are sometimes employed to secure an invitation, went to his superintendent to talk with him about the possibility of moving at Conference time. "I do not know what can be done for you," the superintendent is said to have replied, "you have no call; if you will go out and get a call from some church I could handle your case. If you cannot get a call you must simply take what is left." I will state as an historical fact that that particular superintendent is not now going about undermining our Methodist system. And as to the young brother aforesaid, I will report that I am personally acquainted with a bishop who gave him a "call" to a good church, where he is now doing excellent service. * * *

Why Not Methodist Calls?

But why should not a committee from every Methodist Episcopal Church have the privilege of selecting its own minister? Simply because such a course would not fit into a connectional organism like Methodism. It is admirable in congregationalism. It works well among the Baptists. There each church is a distinct entity. It is independent of every other church. But our churches are tied together by a connectional bond. In our administration we must consider at the same time the wellbeing of fifty or two hundred and fifty churches. The removal of a minister from one church to another does not affect that minister and that church alone. It may affect five or fifteen other ministers and churches. The church, therefore, which assumes independent action does a wholly selfish thing, a thing which often produces complications that are far-reaching and distressing.

But why should the bishop desire to dictate the appointments? He does not so desire. If he could escape the responsibility he would gladly do so. But he cannot escape. The economy of the Church puts that burden upon him. And the Church holds him to rigid accountability. If he is held responsible for the results of the appointments, is it fair for other people to insist upon making them? A committee on "pastoral relations" sometimes says: "We know what we want and we are going to have it; we will take the responsibility." But the committee cannot take the responsibility. Our system does not allow it. If the minister who may be appointed under such insistence should turn out to be a failure the appointing power, and the appointing power alone, is held accountable by the denomination. * * *

"Subject to Approval."

But it may said in extenuation of the custom under discussion that every invitation from a church to a minister is "subject to the approval of the bishop and his cabinet." Exactly. And suppose the approval of the bishop and his cabinet is not given, then what? You would know if you should read two letters now on my desk. One of the documents informs me that if any minister should be appointed to a certain church but the one who has been officially invited he will have to "go it alone." The other says: "You can refuse to make the appointment, of course, but we now serve notice on you that we fix the salary." This, being interpreted, means that if any minister but the brother the church has selected shall be appointed the salary will be cut. Neither communication manifests a very high type of loyalty.

It is unfortunate that the word "grade" has gotten into our vocabulary, and it is still more unfortunate that in nearly every case the grade is determined by the size of the salary paid. We talk familiarly about $2000 men and $1500 and $1000 men. If a minister is appointed to a charge with a better church building, a better parsonage, a larger congregation and a vastly better opportunity of accomplishing results, but where the salary is slightly less, it is said that he has been "demoted." If, under any circumstances, he goes to a higher salary, he is always "promoted." The salaries are too meager in these expensive times, God knows, but is it a good thing to commercialize our ministry by making money the sole basis upon which to determine what we call "promotion" and "demotion?"

It is unnecessary to say that every bishop is eager for all the light that can be shed upon his problems. He covets suggestions. He recognizes the sacred right of petition and listens responsively to every reasonable request. He rejoices in the confidence of his co-laborers in the ministry and laity. If there ever was a day of apparent autocracy in the office, that day has passed. Every bishop I know anything about will go to the limit to gratify his brethren whenever it can be consistently done. This particular phase of administration requires a combination of courage and tenderness. To disappoint his people is a cross from which the bishop would gladly turn away. But if necessary to displease individuals in the interest of the whole work he will not flinch. He knows that the God above is looking on and some day He will require an account.

Most Pastorates Too Short.

It is my opinion that most ministers move more frequenty than they should. The short pastorate is the result of years of Methodist education. The effect of the two, three and five-year limits abides. The short pastorate has become a sort of tradition in some churches. "Ours is a three-year church," an official said to me the other day. The approach of the Annual Conference always promotes restlessness. Reasons for "a change" then loom large. Mole-hill difficulties suddenly grow into mountains. Certain other churches seem to be tantalizingly attractive. Pastors often run away from what they call "problems," but there are problems in every church, and the minister who escapes them in one church is morally certain to run into others in his next church. He who encourages the spirit of contentedness, therefore, and helps to promote the longevity of the Methodist pastorate may be sure that he is rendering to the Church wise and valuable service.

It is astonishing what trifles will sometimes unseat a pastor. I know a church that has two physicians in its official board. When the pastor's wife became ill the good man coud not very well employ both doctors, so he called in one of them. The doctor who was not called began that very day to create sentiment against the poor minister, and by Conference time had recruited a sufficient number of maicontents to cause the parson to move on. All I blame the young preacher for is that he did not himself get sick about the same time and employ the other doctor to heal his ailment. Another minister used a fine illustration, gleaned from pagan mythology, and the principal family of the church insisted upon his removal because, they declared, he was guilty of making uncomplimentary personal references to them. Still another brother was given his ecclesiastical walking papers because he sang so well in the public worship as to subtract from the glory due to the choir!

The Best System on Earth.

But, after placing the heaviest possible discount upon our appointment-making system, and freely admitting its limitations and embarrassments, it is, after all, a really marvelous piece of ecclesiastical machinery. It is original. It is unique. And it sharply differentiates Methodism from all other churches. Every one knows that our itinerancy excites the ardent admiration of these sister communions. Some of them admit that they look toward it with covetous eyes. Considering the great number of churches which are annually involved and the diversity in the types and tastes of their membership, the amount of friction arising from the appointments is remarkably small. Who would have the temerity to attempt to evolve another scheme that could satisfactorily take its place, even amid the changed conditions of twentieth-century life? There is no general demand either for the elimination of our appointment-making system or for its radical modification. But is there not urgent need to guard against the insidious inroads which are being made to destroy its efficiency? If it has outgrown its usefulness, let us throw it overboard. But so long as it remains our authorized system, and no substitute is offered which embodies anything like its practical excellencies, let us work the system with loyalty and enthusiasm! — Christian Advocate (New York).

THE CATERPILLAR'S MISTAKE.

She was just a green caterpillar, and she was very quiet and good. No one ever heard her make a noise. But she was like other quiet people—she thought.

One day Greeny—that was one of her names, but she had a good many more, some of them Latin!—one day Greeny saw a very beautiful butterfly, with white wings, resting on a beautiful flower that grew by the wayside. Greeny was a little bit tired, for it had been raining, and somehow she had wandered off the grass, and found the mud so hard to walk on. You see, she had so many feet, and always some of them would stick!

"I wish I could have not quite so many feet, and two wings instead," thought Greeny. "That white thing there has no trouble at all to get about."

But just then "that white thing" fell over, right down beside Greeny, on the road.

"Oh," said the stranger, "I do feel so very tired and weak!"

"I don't think you'd better stay here," advised Greeny, who had a kind heart. "Some moving things, very, very big—as big as trees, nearly—come along. It's not easy to get out of their way, all the time."

"Oh, I know," answered the butterfly. "I'll rest a minute, and then I'll make one more fight—to that soft, green grass under that nice, shady bush."

The caterpillar felt very sorry for the butterfly. She was quite glad when the wings moved again, even though they moved slowly, and carried the poor, tired butterly to the place she had described.

"Now I feel better," said the butterfly. "I am going to lay my eggs, and then I shall go to sleep."

And so she did.

The caterpillar looked at the little white eggs.

"It's a pity that she didn't stay awake to look after the little butterflies," she thought. "Perhaps they won't know how to fly!"

But when the eggs were hatched there were no little butterflies! Nothing but tiny, tiny, oh, very tiny green caterpillars.

"How wonderful!" said the caterpillar. "They look just like me, only smaller."

She was very kind-hearted, so she showed the little things where to find nice, soft, pleasant-tasting leaves. And then, too, like the butterfly, grew very tired.

"I have no eggs to lay," she thought. "The butterfly could leave something behind her, but I cannot. I shall only sleep."

She found a very nice, quiet place, all cool and shady, under a big brown leaf.

"I haven't had one good time," she thought; "never once been off the ground. And now I'm sleepy, and it's too late."

But that was the caterpillar's mistake!

She spun herself a nice brown bed, right under the brown leaf. You could hardly tell them apart. Then, when she had sealed it up inside, she lay still, and thought of the blue sky and the green trees, the bright flowers and the pleasant sunshine. But, most of all, she thought of the butterflies, flying about.

"It must be so very nice to fly," thought the caterpillar, as she fell asleep at last.

She slept a long, long time—through all the autumn rains and winds, and through all the winter snows and storms. But when spring came, warm and sunny, she awoke.

For a little while she lay still, looking at the brown walls of the bed she had made. (The right name for that bed is chrysalis.)

"So I woke again," she thought. "And soon I shall get up, and crawl about again. I do not like crawling. I get so tired of always looking down at the earth."

After a little while she began to feel rather stronger. By and by she broke through her bed, and then she found that she was a great deal changed. She had a shorter body, and there was something on it. At first she wanted to shake this something off, but it seemed to stick!

She had not nearly so many feet! That was another thing she found out. And she walked, and did not crawl. Only, the walking was a little bit spoiled by that heavy thing on her back that she could not shake off.

But when she had walked a little, and rested a while, two or three times, she wanted to move the things, and she did. And they were wings! She found that she could move them quite easily, and all of a sudden; they were part of her, as much as her feet or her eyes! Oh, how happy she was when first she spread them and flew!

"So I am a butterfly," she said to herself. "And I need not be sorry for the caterpillars that only crawl, because some day they will be butterflies, too. All will be well!"

And the fresh air, and the bright sunshine, and the flowers, and the river, and the sky all seemed singing one song: "All will be well."—Frances Harmer, in "Zion's Herald."

THE CRADLE IN THE WATER.

By Evangeline Weir.

In a little stream, on its way to the sea, lived Daddy Stickleback. Daddy was a wonderful little fellow, who could weave, spin, build, fight, nurse and educate the children of his family. He wouldn't associate with the other fish in the brook, because they were too ignorant or lazy to build nice houses for their children. There was a little sunfish that built an inferior kind of nest in the sand, but Daddy wouldn't notice him, for he made his wife help him, and the ladies of the Sticklebacks didn't work.

It was the busiest and happiest time of the whole year to little Daddy Stickleback. He had found the limb of a tree with its end sticking in the water, and he decided that it was a fine place for a cradle. The water would flow through it and hatch the eggs and rock the babies while he was eating his dinner.

Daddy went down the stream to find material with which to build the cradle. He poked his little bobbin-shaped body into all sorts of places to gather bits of plants, which he carried in his mouth to the place he had selected.

The cradle must be well built, for Daddy was a particular father. He glued bits of dried grass to the sunken limb for a floor. Then he wove the ends together, adding bits of water plants, and bound them with little threads, which he spun from tiny pores in his stomach.

At last Daddy had a little barrel-shaped cradle open at each end. He went inside to see if it was the right shape. It didn't suit the little builder, however, for he poked it with his nose and body until it was round. Then he went outside and finished his work by spinning threads, which he wound around and around the cradle to make it firm.

When all was finished to Daddy's satisfaction, he invited the ladies of his family to go inside and see his work. They thought it such a nice cradle that each one left a few eggs in it.

After the nest is full of eggs Daddy does not allow any one to come near it. The mothers never come back for they believe the father knows best how to care for and train little Sticklebacks to find food and avoid danger.

The little cradle in the water rocks to and fro, while Daddy stands on guard to fight any busybody or enemy that dares to come near it. He looks so funny when he rushes at them, striking at their eyes or catching their fins in his mouth.

When the babies are ten days old Daddy tears down the cradle and carries it away, for they are now too big to be rocked. He has a hard time keeping his family together. The little Sticklebacks want to go down stream, but Daddy keeps them close beside him. If any enemy comes near his babies he opens his mouth and the little ones rush in for safety. When the danger is past, he opens his mouth and blows them out where they belong. Daddy takes care of his children until they are big enough to care for themselves.—Exchange.

THE CENTENARY SPECIAL—LAST CALL.

The Advocate of next week will be the special Centenary number. In order to supply extra copies, we must have the orders at once. Paper and ink cost too much for us to print a larger number of papers than we have orders for. If any of our readers want extra copies, now is the time to let their wants be known. The price is 3 cents a copy in lots of ten or more to one address. We are doing our best to make it a valuable help in making the "Big Drive" successful in every church in our territory. Its usefulness depends upon its circulation. Order NOW if you want extra copies.

THE CENTENARY A TEST.

A good deal has been spoken and written about the Centenary Movement as a test of the Church's ability to see and meet the needs of a world that is passing through the greatest crisis in its history. We believe it is a test in a very real sense of this ability. If we fail to make possible the enlargement of our mission by adequate financial provision for the growing needs of the world, we make confession of our inability to realize the obligations that are resting upon us.

But there is another sense in which the Centenary Movement is a test of Methodism: it is a test of our ability to handle in a business-like way a great enterprise. We must remember that this Movement involves not only a great spiritual uplift, but also a great financial undertaking. We have undertaken to raise and expend wisely many millions of dollars. We assume that this money cannot be raised unless there is a great spiritual impulse back of the Movement; but, assuming that there is such an impulse, have we the business ability to carry the plans through to a successful conclusion? This Movement is essentially a laymen's enterprise. The laymen of the Church had a large part in the preliminary outlining of the plans at Memphis; they have a large place in the organization for carrying out the plans; and they must give a large part of the money that is being asked for.

Nobody doubts the ability of the men of Southern Methodism to handle successfully the largest undertakings in the business world. They constitute a large proportion of the bankers, manufacturers, merchants, lawyers, doctors, and men of means generally who are having their full share in the marvelous development of the financial resources of the South to-day. They have demonstrated their ability to do great things in so-called secular lines of endeavor; but are they equally proficient in the work of the Church?

We believe that every layman in our Church should realize that he is being put to a test, and through him the Church is being put to a test that will show whether or not we have reached a stage in the management of Church affairs that enables us to undertake really great movements with a satisfactory assurance of success. This test applies to the laymen in charge of the campaign in our local congregations, as well as to those who have been set in places of wider supervision and leadership. Personally, we feel that our men will measure up to the test magnificently during those momentous days, May 18-25. They will prove to the world that they will no more endure failure in the work of the Church than they will in the management of their private affairs.

The preachers, of course, are also being put to the same test.

A PREPARED MINISTRY.

The man who undertakes to perform a highly specialized kind of work without having made every effort possible to equip himself for that work confesses by that failure a small appreciation of the responsibilities that he undertakes to assume. All of us would give scant consideration, for example, to the claims of a man for our patronage as a physician if we knew that he had never received any medical training. He might have acquired, by his own efforts, a considerable degree of skill in the treatment of diseases; but the very fact that he was without official recognition in the circle of his professional brethren would make us douhtful, at least, of his ability.

The ministry is one of the most highly specialized forms of service in the world. We do not mean that it has become professionalized in the sense that technical training is all that is necessary to insure success; there are certain prerequisites of character and inclination, re-enforced by a definite call from God to that particular form of service, without which failure is foreordained. But the many difficult, delicate, perplexing, and supremely important tasks that are laid upon the ministry render highly desirable as complete preparation for the performance of those tasks as possible.

As we view it, there is practically no excuse to-day for a man's entering the ministry without the preliminary training that will greatly increase his possibilities of usefulness. Our own Church has many splendid educational institutions where thorough training in the literary branches may he had; and we have two great Schools of Theology where definite instruction for the work of the ministry is given. It costs something; in time and money, to take advantage of these opportunities, to be sure, but the old rule still holds good: "Where there's a will, there's a way." We venture the assertion that it is possible for every ministerial candidate in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to secure full literary and theological courses if he is willing to pay the price of effort and sacrifice.

We are glad that our two Schools of Theology, at Atlanta, Ga., and Dallas, Tex., are making it possible, by offering summer courses, for our preachers to secure this theological training at a season of the year and on terms that make the burden as light as possible. Dr. F. N. Parker is dean of the School at Atlanta, and Dr. Hoyt M. Dobbs, of the School at Dallas. The School at Atlanta is intended to serve the Church east of the Mississippi River, and the one at Dallas, west of the Mississippi. We earnestly hope that many of our preachers will take advantage of these summer courses to equip themselves more thoroughly for the work to which they have been called.

OBSERVE SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY.

Paragraph 321 of the Discipline reads, in part, as follows: "Let every Sunday school observe with appropriate services the last Sunday in April, or as near thereto as practicable, as Sunday School Day, and take an offering for Sunday school work, the same to be forwarded to the Treasurer of the Conference Sunday School Board."

Paragraph 326 of the Discipline, in connection with the duties of the preacher in charge, reads, in part, as follows: "It shall also be his duty to see that the last Sunday in April, or as near thereto as practicable, is observed in each Sunday school as Sunday School Day, and that an offering is taken, and to forward the same at once to the Treasurer of the Conference Sunday School Board."

Paragraph 329 of the Discipline, in connection with the duties of the presiding elder, reads, in part, as follows: "* * * and to see that Sunday School Day is observed in each congregation in his district."

The law is thus very specific in enjoining the observance of Sunday School Day and in designating those upon whom the responsibility for its observance rests. We do not presume that there are no circumstances which render the day in some instances impracticable; but the reports of last year indicate too great a laxity in carrying out the specific provisions of the Discipline as they refer to this important part of our Sunday school work. By all means, let us observe Sunday School Day.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. Jno. F. Foster, our pastor at Carrollton Avenue, this city, attended the State Sunday School Convention, at Minden, La., recently.

We thank Rev. C. P. Jones, of Long Beach, Miss., for an invitation to visit his charge. We are glad to know that the work prospers in his hands.

Rev. and Mrs. R. G. Lord, of Coffeeville, Miss., are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine son—R. G., Jr.—at their home on March 29. The Advocate extends congratulations to the happy parents.

The Aberdeen District Conference will be held at Pontotoc, Miss., on May 29-30, following the Centenary Drive. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo will preside. Rev. W. M. Young is the conference host.

The Civic Center meetings at Lake Charles, La., and at Alexandria, La., held on April 14 and April 16, respectively, were largely attended and enthusiastic. The Centenary tide is rising rapidly.

Rev. J. D. Harper, of Opelousas, La., was recently a visitor to New Orleans. He is one of the pillars of strength of the Louisiana Conference. He was visiting his son, Rev. R. H. Harper, pastor of First Church.

Rev. E. R. Smoot, of Amory, Miss., has been presented with an automobile by several of his friends at Amory. That was a fine way of showing appreciation of Brother Smoot's worth as a man and a minister.

Practically all the Methodist churches of New Orleans held special services during the week preceding Easter Sunday. The attendance at these services was good, and we have heard fine reports of the results of the meetings.

We are glad to learn from a personal communication that the Columbus District of the North Mississippi Conference is making considerable progress as compared with last year. The presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Duren, is a very busy man.

Mrs. M. L. Hargrove and Dr. Hattie Love, recently returned from China, were in New Orleans last week in the interest of the Centenary Movement. A luncheon in their honor was given at the De Soto Hotel, at which they made inspiring addresses.

Rev. and Mrs. Wiley J. Ferguson, of Meridian, Miss., will celebrate their silver wedding on Friday evening, April 25. A reception will he tendered them at the district parsonage in Meridian on that eventful occasion. We extend hearty congratulations and good wishes in advance.

Our pastor at Minden, La., Rev. K. W. Dodson, reports that his church is well organized for the Centenary Drive and enthusiastically planning to go above its quota.

Rev. J. L. Miller, one of our general evangelists, conducted the spring revival at Meridian College during April. More than a hundred students professed conversion during the meeting.

Rev. R. A. Davis, an honored superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference, is visiting his daughter in New Orleans, Mrs. R. S. Crichlow, wife of Dr. R. S. Crichlow, a professor in the medical department of Tulane University.

Rev. T. J. Hopper, of Abbeville, Miss., speaks in high terms of the sermons of his presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, on the occasion of his recent quarterly conference. "They were great—soul-stirring," he says. And we take it that he is a competent judge.

A large and enthusiastic Centenary rally of the eastern half of the Aberdeen District, North Mississippi Conference, was held at Amory on April 16, C. L. Tubb, of Aberdeen, presiding. Addresses were made by the Conference director, D. H. Hall, and the district director, W. T. Reeves.

President Rolfe Hunt announces that Rev. C. C. Evans, of Canton, Miss., will preach the commencement sermon for the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss., on Sunday, May 4. Rev. W. A. Hays, of Newton, Miss., will deliver the address to the graduating class on May 6.

Mr. S. Hibbert, actively identified with our Church in McComb, Miss., brought his wife to New Orleans recently for a serious surgical operation at Hotel Dieu. She stood the ordeal well, and at the time of our last information, she was making satisfactory progress toward recovery.

Rayne Memorial Church of this city has suffered a serious loss in the death of Mr. J. L. Richmond, an official member of that church. He was a prominent business man of New Orleans, actively identified with many good movements. He passed away unexpectedly in Atlanta, Ga., on last Friday evening.

During Easter week, services were held each night in the Methodist church at Bogalusa, La. On Sunday morning, more people attended the services than could be seated. The attendanee at Sunday school was 286, and the offering for the Orphanage amounted to $158. Rev. A. J. Gearheard is the pastor.

The people at Homer, La., are wide-awake on the Centenary question. A special Centenary meeting was held in the church there on a recent Sunday; after addresses by several speakers, the congregation voted to increase its allotment to $8000. And they will raise it under the leadership of their pastor, Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr.

Rev. W. F. Baggett, of Picayune, Miss., accompanied by his fine young son, W. F., Jr., paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Friday of last week. Picayune Methodism has shown its progressiveness by making provision for the full time of its pastor. Brother Baggett reports a fine outlook on his charge this year.

Rev. L. H. Floyd reports progress on the Kosciusko circuit, North Mississippi Conference. At the second quarterly conference, held recently, the presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, preached a fine sermon, and the stewards increased the preacher's salary $200 above last year's assessment. Brother Floyd serves a fine people.

Rev. W. E. Thomas, superintendent of our mission work in New Orleans, has returned to the city from Nashville, Tenn., with his charming bride. They are temporarily located at 1516 Amelia Street. Brother Thomas is so greatly in demand for various kinds of helpful service that we give his telephone number—Uptown 3383.

Our congregation at Bayou LaChute, La., is planning to build a new church at Caspiana in the near future. Caspiana, being on the graveled road, furnishes a better location for the church than the present site at Bayou LaChute. An increasing interest in the affairs of Methodism is reported on this charge by the pastor, Rev. Sidney A. Seegers.

Rev. A. J. Boyles, our pastor at Rocky Springs, Miss., though just out of the U. S. Army and serving his first charge, is giving full proof of his ministry. On a recent Sunday, he preached at two churches, organized two Sunday schools, and secured 25 subscriptions to the Advocate. He is getting his forces well organized, and reports that the Centenary outook is encouraging.

Brother J. W. Carnes, of Shreveport, La., paid the Advocate office an appreciated call recently. Brother Carnes was formerly an official member of Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, but moved to Shreveport early in the year to take charge of an important department in the service of the Louisiana Railway and Navigation Company. He and his family are identified with our Noel Memorial Church in Shreveport.

The Noel Memorial Sunday school, Shreveport, La., is experiencing a remarkable growth. The attendance has increased within 60 days from 212 to more than 600. The explanation is to be found in the faithful and enthusiastic work of the pastor, the officers and teachers of the school, and its loyal membership. We notice that the school is making large use of the advertising space of the Shreveport newspapers. Hard work and plenty of printer's ink will help any cause.

The attendance contest among several Louisiana Sunday schools is growing in interest and results. The following is the record for Easter Sunday: Ruston, 722; Noel Memorial, 553; Alexandria, 522; Lake Charles, 458; Mansfield, 366; Monroe, 331; Baton Rouge, 270. Contributions for the Methodist Orphanage at Ruston were as follows: Ruston, $711.66; Noel Memorial, $530.88; Lake Charles, $272; Mansfield, $242.80; Monroe, $200; Baton Rouge, $163.

Methodism at Vivian, La., is thoroughly alive and progressive. A parsonage has been bought and paid for this year, all the finances of the church are provided for by the envelope system, and the Centenary allotment will be raised in full. Professor S. S. Thomas is the local campaign director, and Rev. B. T. Crews is the pastor. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo dedicated the church at Vivian on Easter Sunday morning, preaching a great sermon on the Resurrection.

The Southern Methodist Handbook for 1919 has come to our desk. Under the editorship of Dr. T. N. Ivey it has reached a degree of perfection that leaves little to be desired. The information it contains is worth many times the small sum it costs. It may be had of Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., Dallas, Tex., or Richmond, Va., for fifty cents. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher in the Church. And thousands of laymen would find it very interesting and helpful.

We record with great sorrow the recent passing away in this city of Mrs. Elise Ahrens Crebbin, a daughter of the late Dr. J. B. A. Ahrens and Mrs. Ahrens, and wife of Dr. John H. Crebbin. She was also a sister of Mr. H. H. Ahrens, well known to practically all the Methodist ministers of Louisiana and Mississippi. She suffered greatly for many months, but was definitely reconciled to the will of God. She was identified with Rayne Memorial Church, of which Dr. Crebbin is an official member.

Missionary Centenary activities are being carried on in Shreveport with great enthusiasm. One hundred men attended the Civic Center meeting at the Hotel Youree on Friday evening of last week. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo and Dr. F. S. Parker made great addresses. The luncheon given by the ladies at the Youree on Thursday was attended by 327 people, and many were turned away for lack of room. It is said to have been the largest social function ever given at the Youree. Mrs. M. L. Hargrove and Miss Janie Watkins made inspiring speeches.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

The Southern Baptist Convention will meet in Atlanta, Ga., May 13-21.

The Y. M. C. A. in France made arrangements to have American ministers to speak to the 1,400,000 American troops still in France on Easter Sunday.

A trombone choir of 100 instruments will be one of the special musical features of the Methodist Centenary Celebration to be held in Columbus, Ohio, June 20 to July 14. The musicians are rehearsing three times a week under the direction of Frank M. Sutphen.

Dr. Meta Glass is the newly appointed director for the nurses' club work in the Y. W. C. A. in Paris, France. She is a sister of Hon. Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury. Before going to France, Dr. Glass was a member of the faculty of Randolph-Macon College, Lynchburg, Va.

Dr. Charles Parkhurst, for thirty-two years editor of Zion's Herald, one of the great religious newspapers of this country, has resigned that position. He is nearly seventy-five years of age, and has richly earned the rest from constant toil which he now finds necessary. He is succeeded by Dr. E. C. E. Dorion, who has served as associate editor for several years.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE CENTENARY COUNCIL.

The presiding elders, pastors, members Centenary committee of the Conference, district directors, district chairmen of minute men and local church directors are called to meet for conference on Centenary matters at Grenada Methodist Church on Thursday, May 1, 1919, at 1:30 p. m. The session will be concluded with evening exercises, a part of which will be a banquet at Grenada College, so that persons may get away on night trains. Besides one or more bishops, we shall have Mr. A. C. Marts, Dr. E. H. Rawlings, and Rev. R. S. Stewart, our missionary from Japan, to speak. Let no matter of expense or other engagement keep any one away.

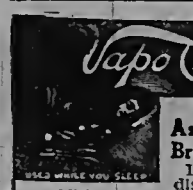
THICK, GLOSSY HAIR
FREE FROM DANDRUFF.

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.



For Whooping Cough, Spasmodic Croup, Asthma, Sore Throat, Coughs, Bronchitis, Colds, Catarrh.

Don't fail to use Cresolene for the distressing and often fatal affections for which it is recommended. It is a simple, safe, effective and drugless treatment. Vaporized Cresolene stops the paroxysms of Whooping Cough and relieves Spasmodic Croup at once. In asthma it shortens the attack and insures comfortable repose.

The air carrying the antiseptic vapor inspired with every breath, makes breathing easy, soothes the sore throat, and stops the cough, assuring restful nights.

Cresolene relieves the bronchial complications of Scarlet Fever and Measles and is a valuable aid in the treatment of Diphtheria.

Cresolene's best recommendation is its 39 years of successful use. Send postal for Descriptive Booklet.

Freckles

There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and be sure to send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. We cannot make discriminations. Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

Mrs. BESSIE ANDERSON BROWN was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Anderson, of Jasper County, Miss. She was born in Jasper County, July 15, 1889. She joined the Methodist Church about nine years ago, and lived a consistent member at Bay Springs till her death, Dec. 28, 1918. She was the wife of George Washington Brown, and the motber of three children—Katie, Burlie, and Addis. Sister Brown's health had been precarious for some months, so that she constantly had opportunity to test her faith. The neighbors testify that she stood the test and proved herself a good woman. Brother Brown has also had opportunity to find the need of sustaining grace and to rejoice in a Divine Comforter.

ROLFE HUNT, P. C.
Montrose, Miss., April 16, 1919.

Mrs. SARAH GREEN, wife of J. M. Green, was born on April 8, 1848, and departed this life on April 8, 1919, aged 71 years. Sister Green was a devout Christian and a loving companion. She was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for a number of years. She loved her Church and its services, and did many deeds of kindness. To know her was to love her. While death came unexpectedly to her, she said a few days before she died that she prayed all the time; and I am sure she did that. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn their loss. Her remains were laid to rest in the Wyatt's Chapel cemetery, near Water Valley, Miss., to await the Resurrection Morn. The writer conducted the funeral services. Her pastor,

G. W. RUSSELL.
Paris, Miss., April 12, 1919.

In the death of Rev. PHILLIP BURKETT, the church and the community have lost one of their most valuable members. He was born in Butler County, Alabama, on May 2, 1841. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of ten years, and was licensed to exhort at the age of sixteen years, and to preach at the age of twenty years. This reveals the devoutness of his parents and the wholesome religious atmosphere of the home of his childhood. At the beginning of tbe Civil War, he entered the Confederate Army, serving with a courage characteristic of the man, and worthy of the highest traditions of that heroic struggle. On his return from the war, he was married to Miss Epsy Myrick, on November 26, 1865. To this union there were born seven children, but ony two, W. L. and Robert Burkett, with his aged and devoted wife, are left to mourn their loss. Brother Burkett moved with his wife to Louisiana in 1878 and settled in Bienville Parish. He came to Ouachita Parish in 1896, and settled near Eros, where he died on March 7, 1919. Brother Burkett was ordained deacon in 1875. He was always loyal to his church, having served eighteen years as supply on different works. In his death, the church and community and those who were closest to him and who loved him, feel an inexpressible loss, to which nothing but the blessed assurance that he was prepared to go, confirmed by his own testimony, can reconcile them.

His life and Christian character had been a benediction to all who had the good fortune to be associated with him. His bright and genial disposition cheered all with whom he came in contact and radiated sunshine into many dark places along the road of life. After his long pilgrim journey, we feel that he is at home at last in the Father's house.

W. B. INABNET.

Life, when one of sunshine, brings its force and influence upon others with its peculiar effects, as was said in Prov. 17:22, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." Such was the life of JOHN W. NOLEN, who died March 23, 1919. Brother Nolen was born in Alabama, June 12, 1856, and moved with his parents to Mississippi in his boyhood, and lived near Eupora a greater part of his life, and the past thirteen years in Eupora. He was married to Miss S. E. Towles, Dec. 20, 1883, and to this union were born five children; two (a boy and a girl) died while small children. The three living are Arthur, Corrie, and Aldred. His wife preceded him just thirteen years. He was again married on April 18, 1909, to Miss Zubie Brown, who was a faithful, true companion to the end of his earthly pilgrimage. When a small boy he united with the Methodist Church, and he was a faithful, consistent member. I have not known a man who seemingly had more true friends than Brother Nolen. When he was first taken ill he, with his vein of humor, said to the writer, "Brother Young, I am sick, and I want to tell you that when I am gone this town will have lost one good man." This he said as a joke, and the words would have humiliated him if, in reality, it had been construed otherwise than a joke. But his words are a reality; we have lost a good man, and, besides, a royal Christian. Brother Nolen leaves one brotber, Rev. R. T. Nolen, pastor of Vardaman Circuit, North Mississippi Conference, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Head and Mrs. Nanny Head, and the three children named above, and his faithful wife. We will miss Brother Nolen, but we know where to find him.

H. M. YOUNG, Pastor.
Eupora, Miss., April 10, 1919.

Mrs. EVA McPHERSON was born March 22, 1861, in Holmes County, Miss.; she was married to Joseph W. McPherson in December, 1882; she died in Pickens, Miss., Feb. 6, 1919. It makes us sad to write the words, "Eva McPherson is dead." She was such a choice spirit; and, in all her ways, she acted under the impulse of high ideals. "A gentle, refined, loving and consecrated Christian woman," is the verdict of those who were in touch with her daily life. God lends such a fine, gracious spirit to earth just occasionally to show us how grace and nature, in blended unison, can, under the loving ministry of the Spirit, create and hold to the divine original a perfect character. In her youth, Eva Hoover felt the force of this law of God, as a law of life to her, and at once responded, with deathless affection, to the love that issued the command: "Love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, with all thy soul, with all thy mind." She joined the Methodist Church, South, in the bloom and blush of life, and was in love with all of its work and worship. Sister Eva loved her neighbors as God would have her love. She loved her home circle, her friends, with ardent affection. Our now glorified friend was made perfect in love. She fell on sleep, and God, in goodness, let her pass to the other side without groans and dying strife. She sleeps well, after the life's fitful fever is over. She was laid to rest by the side of her loved ones in the cemetery at Pickens, Miss. Sister McPherson leaves one son, Marvin, two brothers and a host of loved ones to mourn her going away. They can meet her in the beautiful beyond.

FRECKLES
Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibiy you have imagined that you could not get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Springs are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water that those who have been relieved of their rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisoning matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of Stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefitted. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr Rhodes, of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The Water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McCann of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offered below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the

FROM MAIN STREET, WATER VALLEY.

Dear Brother Carley: North Main Street Church is moving on smoothly enough. We are not taking things by storm, but the indications are very favorable just now.

We are beginning to get pretty busy on the Centenary Movement. We will do our best to "go over" with our part.

The Sunday school work is looking up very nicely of late. We have been organizing our classes, and expect to do some very efficient work. The Beginners and Primaries are using the Graded Series in their classes. The outlook is encouraging. We have schools at both the Taylor and Forest Hill churches. The missionary programs are being put on.

Our revival meeting will begin here at Main Street Church on Wednesday night, June 11, with Rev. W. M. Young, our pastor at Pontotoc, Miss., to do the preaching. We are expecting a spiritual feast when the District Conference convenes with us, May 7, 8, 9. We take the opportunity now of extending to you an invitation to attend same.

Dr. Clement was with Brother Dorman's folks down at the First Church, and some of us from Main Street joined them in the service, which was all that could be hoped for in the way of instruction and encouragement in this great work. All who have heard Dr. Clement will bear me out in the statement that he presents the work of the Centenary move in a forceful and intelligent way. We were glad to have him in our town and give him an invitation to come again. The Centenary work will be put "over" if only our people can be persuaded to do what Dr. Clement insists on being done.

Yours to serve,

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

New Albany is the place where we are to hold our conference for elementary workers, instead of West Point, as announced last week. The time is May 27-28. Miss Kennedy will be the principal instructor, but some of the best teachers in the conference will take part in the program. Write to Mrs. L. G. Fant of Holly Springs, Conference Elementary Superintendent, for any information you may want pertaining to this conference.

Now is the time to put on your campaign for new members. The results of this campaign will be published. You may discover fine people out of whom you can make the teachers that are needed to take care of your increased enrollment. Write to Dr. C. D. Bulla, Nashville, for free helps to make this campaign.

Sunday School Day programs have been ordered for all schools that filled out the card, and to some that did not fill it out. There are other schools that ought to send in their orders. The programs cost too much to send them to schools that do not observe the day. They are $3 a hundred and fifty cents a dozen. If the number you received is not sufficient to observe the day properly, send to me for more.

It is all right to brag on your school, but read the following Standard adopted by our General Board and see what you lack, then go to work and bring your school up to the required goal and you will have something to be proud of.

Third-Rank Standard.

1. Departmental grouping and Beginners', Primary, and Junior classes or departments attaining Third-Rank Elementary Standard.
2. Proper attention to the services of worship and the use of our own literature.
3. At least one class each of Intermediates, Seniors, Young People, and Adults organized and enrolled as Wesley Bible Classes.
4. A definite program for increasing the enrollment.
5. A definite program of Sunday school evangelism.
6. A definite program of education, in temperance and social service.
7. Attaining the Third-Rank Standard for missionary education.
8. Attaining the Third-Rank Standard for teacher-training.
9. Session of the school every Sunday; regular meeting of Workers' Council; accurate records; adequate financial provision.
10. The observance of Sunday School Day, including offering.

Very fine reports are coming from the schools that are observing Missionary Day; some of these schools have not signed the card accepting the Five-Cent Allotment. Sign up and send in the card to-day. It matters not how much money the Church may subscribe, if it fails to give missionary instruction, it fails in the work that means most to the Kingdom of God.

Eight schools from the Aberdeen District have signed the cards; eight from the Columbus; two from the Corinth; six from the Durant; nine from the Greenville; ten from the Holly Springs; eight from the Sardis; Six from the Winona. The Sunday schools are not going to disappoint the needy world in this trying hour.

"A dancin' Sunday school teacher's jest about's likely to lead her scholars to Christ as a 'lectric light bulb is to give light 'thout bein' connected with the dynamo."

"What we say is the sound-echo of our thought-life, an' what we do is the act-echo of our thought-life. That's why the Bible says, 'As a man thinketh in his heart so is he.'"

"There ain't anybody goin' to pay any 'tention to what you say so long's you're 'round doin' somethin' diff'rent."

PATIENCE.

How smooth the sea beach pebbles are!
But—do you know
The ocean worked a hundred years
To make them so?
And I once saw a little girl

IS YOUR CHURCH AND HOME PROPERTY ADEQUATELY INSURED?

This is a question which should be asked very frequently in these days when we remember that all materials and labor entering into the construction of buildings cost far more than formerly. Whether the property be a church, parsonage, school or the home of a church member, who by gifts builds and sustains these necessary institutions, it is "playing with fire" to fail to protect by insurance up to three-fourths of the value.

There is no longer any excuse for not answering this question satisfactorily, when safe insurance can be secured at cost and upon easy terms of payment from The National Mutual Church Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill. This company has made a remarkable record since its organization over twenty years ago, which was in response to the great need for safe insurance for these properties against fire, lightning and windstorms upon easier terms than it was possible to secure from stock companies with their necessarily more expensive methods, including their agency system.

The Twenty-first Annual Report just printed, shows that the business is steadily growing, the total protection extended to policyholders since organization of the company reaching $174,390,954, of which there is now in force $43,598,024.

The company sustained its reputation for being usually the first to adjust its losses after great conflagrations, by sending its adjuster into the devastated portions of Minnesota while the great forest fires were still raging, which covered portions of nine counties, including several cities, good-sized towns and many villages. Ruins were located, official members and individual policyholders hunted up and every loss settled before the representatives of any other company were on the ground.

The high character of the management is indicated by the fact that during its over twenty years, not one dollar has ever been due and unpaid to a policyholder for losses sustained. The company is constantly endeavoring to aid its approximately twenty thousand policyholders in preventing needless destruction of property and in this way effecting a reduction of the country's disgraceful annual "ashheap."

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, J. R. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.

Inactive Kidneys Cause Disease

"I shall not soon forget the benefits I derived from the use of Foley Kidney Pills."—Al. A. Godfrey, Forest Grove, Oregon.

Too much work and too little work seem to have about the same effect on persons past middle age. Proper action of the kidneys is necessary to good health. They act as a filter and remove from the blood poisonous waste matter which if permitted to remain in the system leads to many complications.

Many nervous, tired, run-down men and women suffer from pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, bladder weakness, sore muscles and stiff joints and fail to realize that rheumatism, diabetes or even Bright's disease may result.

If you have cause to believe that your kidneys are weak, disordered or inactive you should act immediately. Foley Kidney Pills have been used by young, middle aged and old with complete satisfaction. They act quickly and surely and have given relief in cases of ten years' standing.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mivture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dompen a sponge or soft mrush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

FROM LULA, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Some of our people wanted to make the Membership Campaign a little earlier than the time set apart for the movement. We encouraged it and they made a remarkable success of it. Our roll was small and the average attendance, I think, was below twenty. The Sunday following the campaign we reorganized the Sunday school with 63 present. New classes had to be formed and all classes well organized. People who had never attended Sunday school were perfectly enthusiastic at this meeting. It has been the frequent topic since the meeting. Three classes, not satisfied with the 5 cents per member allotment for the Centenary, adopted resolutions making the allotment 25 cents per member. The teachers will meet one night in each week to discuss methods and study the lessons. On a recent Sunday morning, we received into the Church fifteen members by letter. Our Sunday school roll now exceeds the Church roll by more than a dozen. The campaign is a success, due to the faithfulness and energy of those who made it.

We have a finance committee to secure the necessary funds for a new brick church, which would have been built more than a year ago had conditions remained normal. Our people are as loyal as you will find in the whole country. They have been untiring in all work pertaining to the war, and we confess that we have sacrificed a little pride in deferring the church building for other things, but it will not be a great while until our people shall be worshiping in the handsome, new church, which they certainly deserve. The W. M. S. accepted an allotment of two thousand dollars for the new church, and recently put a new eighty-dollar range in the parsonage.

The Centenary will be cared for as well as all assessments for benevolences, and the charge will pay the pastor sixteen hundred.

We shall at an early day enter upon our revival campaign. This we consider most important of all.

Fraternally,
W. W. JONES, P. C.

A REAL IRON TONIC

Like Peptiron May Be Just What You Need This Spring.

Probably nine people out of ten have lost or are losing their grip on health in these trying months of awful epidemics, exposure to damp, changeable weather, and association with sick people in overheated homes.

Depleted blood, loss of the red corpuscles, shattered nerves, loss of appetite, dull, dozy feelings in the head, irritability, all loudly call for the real tonic strength and nourishment that Peptiron will give you. It is a wonderful corrective of anemic tendency, paleness, languor, nerve exhaustion.

Peptiron restores the red corpuscles to the blood and gives a natural vigor and snap that keeps up courage, makes you cheery and helpful to your family and friends, and contributes wonderfully to the health of all. Remember this one thing—as vitally, positively true—Peptiron is a real iron tonic.

Renwar Relieves Rheumatism.

It is not necessary any longer for you to suffer those intense pains and aches of rheumatism. Renwar is a salts combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood, and thereby cure rheumatism. Don't wait until those rheumatic pains return. Buy a box of Renwar, and forget about that rheumatism. Renwar is an old, well-established remedy. It is prescribed by the best of physicians, and has thousands of friends. President L. A. Bauman, of Varley & Bauman Company, Nashville, says: "Renwar entirely relieved me of my rheumatism." For sale by druggists. Price 50 cents. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. If your druggist doesn't carry Renwar in stock tell him to order it for you from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets To-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

THIS GIRL IS A WONDER.

Do you want to make more money than you ever possessed? If so, learn to make nut and fruit bonbons—the business will net you $90 to $300 per month. You can handle the work from your own home; all who sample your bonbons become regular customers. You can start by investing less than $10. Mary Elizabeth started her candy kitchen with less than $5, and has made a million. Cannot you make $1,000? I will tell you all about the business and help you start, so you can become independent. Now is the psychological time to make big money, as fine bonbons command phenomenal prices. Write me to-day. Isabella Inez, P. O. Box 1096, Pittsburgh, Pa.

80 YEARS AGO

Mr. Edward Goodenough, of Goodenough and Woglam Sunday School Supply House, secured a remarkable formula for a skin ointment, which he sold privately for a half century by personal recommendation, making up the preparation at his home. So remarkably efficient did it prove for all skin troubles that Mr. Goodenough received large numbers of the most enthusiastic commendations from his customers. His grandson, Mr. F. E. Kirby, as vice-president of The Morgan Drug Co., 1321 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., is still active in the production of this ointment under the name so widely and well known to grateful users as Palmer's "Skin-Success." Mr. Kirby is as enthusiastic as his grandfather over its merits and declares that it is the best preparation of its kind on the market or known to the medical profession for freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema and other skin troubles. MEN AND WOMEN

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness often disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

For good results use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great kidney medicine. At druggists in large and medium size bottles. Sample size bottle by Parcel Post, also pamphlet.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents. When writing mention the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Public Should Demand Original Nuxated Iron

Physician Warns Against Danger Of Accepting Substitutes—Says

That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same

Strength, Power and Endurance

As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron

The remarkable results produced by Nuxated Iron and its widespread sale (it being estimated that over three million people annually are today using it) has led to the offering of numerous substitutes, and these physicians mentioned below say that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron, as these substitutes instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some cases produce more harm than good. Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder, should go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon.

There are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: The widespread publication of the above information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Department) New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author and others so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older, inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

THE SOCIAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

"For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick and ye visited me: I was in prison and ye came unto me."

This is Christian social service, the social service our Master requires of us, and a service that each and every one of us can render.

There is no way of measuring the great service we might render through this department of our organization. We have in our Conference 139 auxiliaries, with a membership of something over 3000, made up of the choicest women and girls of the communities. The work is all around us, and needs to be done; the opportunity for service is truly ours, but without method or program little can be accomplished. The program sent to the Superintendent of Social Service each quarter contains suggestions for the work. In many communities there is a jail, a hospital; these should be visited. There is also in every community the stranger, the sick, the friendless, many who are in need of cheer and attention all around us. Working in our homes, in our places of business, in our fields, is the Negro, our best servant, and we should be his best friend. I would suggest that, wherever it is possible, a community club for Negro women be organized, using the programs sent out by our Woman's Missionary Council. Order from Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. The programs deal particularly with home life; and here, as we all know, is where the seed of good citizenship must be planted. It will be well for the Social Service Committee to co-operate with other agencies working for the social betterment of the community.

Please use the Social Service Program I am sending out for the June meeting, and send reports promptly at the close of the quarter. If you need help, I should be delighted to hear from you; it may be the work is new to you.

Let "Mutual Helpfulness" be our motto. The department cannot be what it should be without the co-operation of every auxiliary. Let us strive, with all our might, to make this year the best year, remembering always, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Conference Supt. of Social Service.

LOGANSPORT AND LONGSTREET AUXILIARIES.

Mrs. Wm. Schuhle sends the following interesting report of what they are doing:

Recently we celebrated at the parsonage the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the first missionary society of our Church, and it was just as interesting as could be. A short history of the beginning of the work was followed by young people in costume representing the work in all fields we have entered during the century. After readings and music, the members of the auxiliary brought in their offerings and told how the money had been made, beginning with a dime a few weeks ago. It amounted to about $80. About 75 people were present and all agreed that "Ol' Miss.' Birthday" was a very happy one. Refreshments were served, too.

Mrs. Schuhle added the very interesting item, found in the History of Methodism, that the organization was formed in answer to appeals from Rev. Mack Moore for help for New Orleans. "Appeals had come from other places and especially from the new Indian work and help had been given from the 'mite collections,' but at the time which we celebrate they decided to organize and collect and help systematically. We were so interested in making this discovery."

"The Longstreet women came down for a joint meeting just after the Mansfield Conference and all the delegates told the best thing they heard while there."

FIFTY YEARS OF NOBLE ACHIEVEMENT.

On March 23d, it was fifty years since the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in Tremont Street Church, Boston. The occasion was fittingly observed at Tremont Street. During the past five years the women have been engaged in a celebration of a very practical nature, striving to have one thousand missionaries on the Jubilee Roll; four hundred thousand members in all the societies; $1,600,000 for the conquest of the world for Christ, and 180,000 subscribers to their periodicals.

In honor of the eight women who founded this Society, a beautiful memorial window was placed in the church mentioned above. A sweet-faced little old lady in black some years ago stood before this window, slowly pronouncing the names: Butler, Parker, Kingsbury, Merrill, Rich, Flanders, Stoddard. Here a younger woman approached and said:

"I always feel as if my name ought to be in this window."

"Why," responded the other, "were you here that March day?"

"No," she replied sadly, "but I had my bonnet on and the storm was so violent that, at last, I untied the strings and stayed at home."

"Ah," rejoined the lady gently, "you see, it is the ones who did not untie their bonnet-strings that are in the window; I fancy no window would be large enough to hold the names of those who from thirty churches were bidden but decided to stay at home."

A SLIP OF THE KNIFE

resulting in an injured finger, a stubbed toe, a splinter or any other of the numberless petty injuries that are likely to happen any day, may not seem serious at first but when neglected and aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand may become infected and develop into an ugly sore and blood poison. Don't play with fate. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately and freely in all skin injuries. It gives immediate relief, soothes the pain, wards off blood poison and immediately begins its healing effect. Its constant use for ninety-nine years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist or write W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, billous atacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowels pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINE B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

WHAT YOU CAN DO.

Copyright, 1918, by H. A. Boaz.

Archimedes said that he could move the world if he had a fulcrum on which to rest his lever. One man can still move much of the world with a proper fulcrum. Let us consider the tremendous force that you may exert, aided by the fulcrum which we can furnish.

Another philosopher has said that the greatest force on earth is an idea. Christ and His ministry furnish striking proof that the philosopher was right. The idea of duty to God and service to fellowmen which Christ brought to us, has moved the world as nothing else has moved it. Implant that idea in a man's mind and he becomes a great constructive force for good. Therefore the most powerful constructive work that men may do is to spread this idea of Christ.

The force of scattered units increases geometrically when they are assembled and organized. A hundred men and women, assembled, organized and working together, accomplish many times the results that they could hope for if each individual worked alone. This is peculiarly true of religious effort. Meeting together, exhorting and encouraging each other, the fires of their zeal burn brightly, their hearts warm, their energy quickens. Such was the organized, eager Christianity that the apostles taught. Such have been the Christian methods that have wrought success in every generation.

The man or woman who builds a church through the Board of Church Extension has let loose a force of incalculable possibilities. A group of earnest men and women will gather in that church. They will sustain the standard of the Cross in the community that is tributary to it. But they will do much more than that. Their home mission societies will help to plant that standard throughout the nation. Their foreign missionary societies will carry it into the uttermost parts of the earth. Their annual contributions to the Board of Church Extension will help to give the cause a home wherever it may go.

Yet these things, great as they are, are but the beginning of its beneficence. The congregation whose home was built with the money that man or woman contributed, will repay the fund it borrowed when it has had time to grow. The Board of Church Extension will lend it to build a home for another congregation. That, in turn, will repay it, after it is firmly established; and after its own societies for church extension are put to work.

So the ever widening circle of gospel influence will spread. Calculate, if you can, the good that never-resting gift would do in fifty years—in a hundred years. And yet its splendid work should hardly be begun a century from now; for the cause that has outgrown civilization for twenty centuries will not pause when other hundreds are added to its years.

We have shown you, in previous appeals, that you may lay the cornerstones of countless churches through a Fund established with the Board of Church Extension. That Fund may bear your name; or it may perpetuate the memory of one very dear to you who has passed on.

You may found it with cash that you can afford to give outright, to-day. Or you may place your gift in the form of Life Annuity Bonds that will pay you a generous income on your capital while you live. Or you may accumulate it by carrying a policy of insurance upon your life; so that, though dead, your work for Christ may live on forever.

Thus, with a lever as powerful as that of Archimedes, may you move the world—move it, not for a day, a month, or a year; but turn it, with ever-gathering force toward righteousness, so long as it shall last. But do not forget the thing that makes this tremendous result possible. Do not forget the mighty fulcrum—the Board of Church Extension — upon which your lever must rest. Do not forget the great Methodist Episcopal Church, South, that created and maintains that board of Christian men whose work makes glad the waste places of our land; whose mighty voice carries the word of God into the mountain fastnesses and across the deserts — into the very wilderness itself. Join hands with them. Supply the lever which their fulcrum needs, for only through them may your dollars do double duty and your work endure with time.

Yet a few days and the earth will claim the body that she nourished. Your eyes will not close upon the world on which they opened. It is a better, bigger, Christlier world—and men, by their devotion, have made it so. Some man—some group of men—of the past, brought the gospel to you. Shall you, a partaker of eternal life through their service, allow the torch to drop as you pass on?

In the name of a common Father who gave you all that you have, lend a hand!

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

FROM SHELBY, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: The Centenary campaign is up to date in Shelby as it is throughout the Greenville District, under the capable leadership of our presiding elder, Rev. V. C. Curtis, and our very efficient district director, Hon. H. L. Wilkinson. Such a team, reinforced, as they are, by the whole-hearted support of all the preachers of the district, spells victory for the Centenary Movement in the great Mississippi Delta.

Everything in the Shelby charge is moving harmoniously and happily. This is a royal people; and they know just how to win the hearts of their pastor's family.

Mr. Wyatt left this morning for Blue Ridge, N. C., having been appointed to attend the Y. M. C. A. Reconstruction Conference, from the 16th to the 26th inst. This work is another great challenge to Christian people. Like our own great Centenary Movement, it is a clear call to release to the utmost, for the healing of the nations, all the dynamic forces of Christianity.

Cordially,
MRS. J. M. WYATT.

Shelby, Miss., April 15.

SOME FACTS FROM THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you please let me say a few words through the Advocate about the work among the French people? As I am a Frenchman myself, I can say more than I will have time to write about, as I have been traveling and preaching to the French people for the last seven years.

A good many things prove to me that this part of the work should be looked after as well as any other place. I often read about foreign missions. Dear brothers, we have right here in our two parishes—Terrebonne and Lafourche—a good many things that are as bad as any in the foreign mission field. We must do all that we can for the foreign missions; I believe in doing that as much as any man, but by doing that let us do more for home missions than we ever did before. I often wish that some of the good brethren could be with me to see how things look down here—it would do you more good for you to see than for me to tell you. Just a few things I will have time to tell you to-day; some other time I will tell you more.

Now, as you know, it is Lent; so the other night I went into a home to stay all night, and there was a home which the priest had control over. At each bed they had prayer beads hanging at the post and holy water hanging at the head. This kind of people, they have in their homes some kind of green grass that the priest has blessed for them; so, when the weather looks very stormy, they put these grass crosses in the fireplace with some salt on it. They think that will keep them from being hurt.

The other day I went to a home where there was a sick lady. She was lying in the bed wrapped up in prayer beads and all kinds of holy images; and there was holy water for her to make the sign of the Cross. She was about to die, and an old hoodoo woman was there to doctor her.

A few months before, I went into another home; and there the old mother had to sit up all night to burn holy candles, with some kind of heart made of thick paper. She had to burn that every night for seven weeks.

Some of these people are living in very small houses. I go to many places where the family of 8 to 10 live in a house made of dirt, twelve feet square, with nothing to eat and to wear.

I am glad that the dear Lord has called me to preach to them. A good many of them have been received into our Church since the last six or seven years. Let us pray and work in a way to bring them to Christ. Many young girls of the age of twelve to fifteen have never been in a church. Many boys at the same age don't know how to read and write, and don't know how a church is made inside. On Sunday they go with their fathers to hunt or fish or fight. We need schools and churches and men and women to go to them with the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Your brother in Christ,
A. D. MARTIN,
P. C. of Bourg Church.

Humors Come to the Surface in the spring as in no other season. They don't run themselves all off that way, however, but mostly remain in the system. Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them, wards off danger, makes good health sure.—Adv.

I hear men speak continually of going to a "better world" rather than of its coming to them; but in that prayer which they have straight from the lips of "the Light of the World," there is not anything about going to another world; only of another government coming into this, which will constitute it a new world indeed; new heavens and new earth: "Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."—Ruskin.

THE MISSIONARY CENTENARY

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 66—No. 18. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3237.

CONDENSED INFORMATION.

Q. What is the Centenary Movement?

A. The Centenary Movement is a celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the first Methodist Missionary Society in America. This first Missionary Society was organized in Forsyth Street Church, New York City, at half-past seven, on Monday evening, April 5, 1819. Dr. Nathan Bangs was made chairman of the meeting. The following officers of the Society were elected: Bishop William McKendree, president; Bishop Enoch George, first vice president; Robert R. Roberts, second vice president; Rev. Joshua Soule, treasurer; Rev. Thomas Mason, corresponding secretary; Daniel Ayres, recording secretary; Francis Hall, clerk.

Q. How did the Centenary Movement originate?

A. At the meeting of our Board of Missions in 1916, Dr. W. W. Pinson, the General Secretary, called attention to the fact that the year 1919 would be the centenary of organized missionary work in the Methodist Church in America, and suggested that a nation-wide celebration, including all branches of American Methodism, be held at that time. The suggestion was adopted, a suitable committee was appointed, and an invitation was extended to the General Conference of the M. E. Church, then in session, to join in the celebration. This invitation was accepted with enthusiasm. A Joint Commission, consisting of three members each, was appointed by the two Churches, and a meeting was held in Baltimore, Md., in April, 1916, at which time thorough harmony and co-operation were established.

Q. How has the Centenary Movement been endorsed in our Church?

A. 1. The College of Bishops commended the Movement heartily in their meeting in September, 1917; 2. A Committee of One Hundred, composed of representative men and women from all sections of the Church, met in Memphis, Tenn., on March 19, 1918, and after an exhaustive study of the situation endorsed the Movement enthusiastically and adopted a program commensurate with our duty and opportunities; 3. The General Conference, which met in Atlanta, Ga., in May, 1918, after listening to the presentation of the proposed celebration, endorsed it unanimously and enthusiastically; 4. Three conferences, composed of all the presiding elders of the Church, held at Lake Junaluska, N. C., St. Louis, Mo., and Dallas, Tex., entered heartily into the Movement and endorsed it without a dissenting vote; 5. Every Annual Conference in the Church, after an entire day devoted to consideration of the Movement, has endorsed it without reservation; 6. Smaller groups of those interested in missionary activities, composed of both men and women, held at various times throughout the Church, have entered into the Movement enthusiastically.

Q. What are the definite aims of the Movement?

A. 1. The first definite aim of the Centenary Movement is to develop in our Church a mighty spirit of intercessory prayer. To this end, the League of Intercession has been formed. Thousands of men and women throughout the Church have signed the cards pledging themselves to pray daily for the coming of God's Kingdom on earth. Without prayer, our mighty program will fail.

2. The second definite aim of the Movement is to bring our Church to a full recognition and acceptance of the principle of Christian stewardship—the principle which makes us use our lives and our possessions as a trust for God who gave them. The consecration of the life to definite Christian service, and the adoption of the tithing system as the basis of our giving, are the outstanding features of the principle of stewardship.

3. The third definite aim of the Centenary Movement is the raising of $35,000,000 in five years for the purpose of enabling our Church worthily to do its part in carrying out the Great Commission of the Lord—to evangelize all the nations of the earth.

Q. How was the sum of $35,000,000 fixed upon as the financial goal of the Centenary Movement?

A. A carefully scientific survey was made of all the fields in which our Church is engaged in missionary operations. This survey took into account the present situation in these fields, and the urgent needs for immediate expansion and growth. It was made by those who are intimately acquainted with the work in each field, and represents, not what could be done if we had limitless resources, but what ought to be done at once if we are to meet the opportunities that face us.

Q. What fields did the survey embrace?

A. 1. The survey embraced our foreign missionary activities, including the woman's work. These activities are going on in Africa, Brazil, China, Cuba, Japan, Korea, Mexico.

2. The survey included, also, our home missionary activities, including woman's work. These activities have to do with the immigrants coming to our shores, the Indians, the Negroes, the Latin Americans and other foreigners within our borders, the mountaineers, cotton mill and factory populations, the crowded sections of the cities, Gulf Coast work, the Orientals on the Pacific Coast, dependent girls, the adequate support of our preachers in rural sections, the circulation of Church literature, the building of churches and parsonages.

3. The survey took into account, also, the problems confronting the Church as a result of the war. A great process of world-reconstruction is going on, in which we must take part if we measure up to our duty.

Q. Does this $35,000,000 include what we are already raising for missions?

A. Yes. We are raising at present, in round numbers, $2,000,000 a year, or $10,000,000 each five years, for missionary work of all kinds. The Centenary program calls for $25,000,000 in addition.

Q. How is this additional $25,000,000 to be apportioned to the various departments of our work?

A. 1. For foreign missions, including woman's work $10,870,000;
2. For home missions, including woman's work 8,780,000;
3. For work growing out of the war ..... 5,350,000.

Q. Are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, able to pay this large sum within five years?

A. We are abundantly able to do it. Accurate statistics show that if each one of us would only tithe his income, we could easily pay $35,000,000 for missions in ONE year, and then have almost as much more for other good causes. Surely we can pay $35,000,000 in five years.

Q. How much of this amount are our three Conferences expected to raise?

A. The Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferences have accepted as their quotas the following amounts, apportioned to the various districts as indicated.

1. Louisiana Conference	$ 750,000
Alexandria District	105,000
Baton Rouge District	100,000
Lafayette District	100,000
Monroe District	105,000
New Orleans District	100,000
Ruston District	105,000
Shreveport District	140,000
2. Mississippi Conference	$1,000,000
Brookhaven District	155,000
Hattiesburg District	140,000
Jackson District	155,000
Meridian District	135,000
Newton District	140,000
Port Gibson District	140,000
Seashore District	135,000
3. North Mississippi Conference	$ 900,000
Aberdeen District	112,000
Columbus District	112,750
Corinth District	111,000
Durant District	110,750
Greenville District	114,500
Holly Springs District	111,000
Sardis District	112,000
Winona District	116,000

Q. Who are expected to contribute to this fund?

A. Every member of the Methodist Episopal Church, South, is expected to make a contribution according to his ability, after earnest and prayerful consideration of the needs of the world and his own duty in connection therewith. Many friends of the Church will also probably want to have a part in this great work.

Q. How will every member of the Church have an opportunity to contribute?

A. A thorough organization has been perfected by which every member of every church in every charge in Southern Methodism will be seen and asked to make a contribution to this great cause. The week of May 18-25 has been set apart for a canvass of the entire membership of the Church. This canvass will be known as the "Big Drive." It doubtless will go down in history as one of the most interesting, exciting, and thrilling periods in the history of our Church. As in the great "war drives," every community wanted to reach its quota and "go over the top" as quickly as possible, so in this great "drive" for the Kingdom of God, every congregation will be eager to do even more than is asked of it. The news will be flashed to district headquarters, Conference headquarters, and to General Headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., every day as to the progress of the Drive.

Q. Is it likely that any church will fail to raise its quota?

A. We cannot think so. The cause is so great, and the plans are so perfect that we believe that the quota will be reached in every church in the early days of the "Drive."

Q. How are the subscriptions to be made?

A. They are to be made during the "Big Drive," May 18-25, to cover a period of five years. The payment of this subscription may be made at once, or it may be in annual installments. For example, if a man desires to give $1000 to the Centenary cause, he will subscribe that amount during the "Big Drive." He may then pay it all at once, or pay it at the rate of $200 a year for five years.

Q. Is the money subscribed for the Centenary Movement to be paid in addition to and apart from the regular contributions to the Church?

A. Yes. It is a distinct fund for which a separate record will be kept.

Q. What part have the Sunday schools in raising the Centenary fund?

A. The Sunday schools of the Church have been asked to accept an allotment of five cents a month per member. Many of our schools have already signed the acceptance card, and all of them should do so.

"A HUNDRED YEARS OF MISSIONS."

By Mrs. Sarah Austin Joyner.

A hundred years of trekking
In African jungles deep,
A hundred years of waiting
Where China's millions sleep.

A hundred years of torture
Under India's blazing sun,
A hundred years of labor
Where Amazon's waters run.

A hundred years of freezing
In land of Esquimo,
A hundred years of burning
On plains of Mexico.

A hundred years of thirsting,
A hundred years of pain,
A hundred years of longing
For the homeland again.

They have sown in the darkness,
They have sown through their tears,
They have sown in loneliness
Through the long hundred years.

And now is here the harvest,
The fields are white with grain.
Whence shall come the reapers?
Shall the Master call in vain?

MISSIONARY WORK AND THE CHURCH.

By Bishop John C. Kilgo.

Missionary work is the normal work of the Church, not an extraordinary expression or an unexpected manifestation of Christian zeal. The missionary idea and doctrine are wrought into the very constitution of the Church and are as old as the commission of the Apostles. There is absolutely no basis for the intimation that missionary activity has evolved out of the social, commercial, and international relations of modern times. Instead of missions coming out of these things, it created them. The world-idea was in it from the beginning. "Thinking in the terms of the world," is nothing new to Christianity; it is not Christianity catching up with commerce and human fellowships, but Christianity doing now what it has always done, except when it was overtaken by some temporary state of apostasy. The Day of Pentecost was the birthday of a world-faith and a world-church, and the ministry of St. Paul was the inauguration of it to the Gentile nations. From that day to this day there has been an unbroken apostolic succession in the work of carrying the gospel of salvation to all peoples. The same faith and spirit that carried St. Paul to Corinth carried Livingstone to Africa and Allen to China.

The measure of all efforts to evangelize foreign nations is the soundness of the faith and the experience of the home Church. This is the foremost, the most vital fact in missionary work. Not until the Apostles had been endowed with power were they to undertake active witness to the uttermost parts of the world. And it is important to keep uppermost in mind the historical truth that Barnabas and Paul were called and sent forth from the church at Antioch, a church whose chief features were that they prayed and fasted, and in a season of prayer and fasting the Holy Ghost appeared and called these young men to this ministry. "Only a living church," says Doctor William N. Clarke, "can be a strong missionary church." It is not a matter of the reflex benefits the Church is to receive from its missionary labors, but the direct blessings of its faith and zeal made manifest to unsaved peoples, that is of primary importance. Sending the gospel to China to get religion in the Church at home is a total reversal of the divine order, hut sending the gospel to China because there is religion in the Church of America is wholly in keeping with God's plan. This is a matter worthy of all consideration.

All diligence should be given to keep our missionary doctrines and work pure from mere secular motives, and this is not the easiest thing to do. Just at this moment the mind of the world is engaged with political and industrial readjustments and the Church is greatly exposed to the danger of mingling these secular affairs with its religious endeavors. Caesar has his rights and his burdens, but they should not be allowed to put their limitations on the redemptive ministry of Christ. There is still a difference between the things which belong to God and the things which belong to Caesar. Besides, there is a heavenly independence in the Kingdom of God which His Church should never disregard. The movements of the gospel are not to be determined by the fortunes of trade or the fluctuations of political thought. Neither the duty of the Church nor the opportunity of it to prosecute its missionary plans arises from the shiftings of secular interests. There is no reason why the political distress and industrial tragedies of the world should revise the missionary faith of the Church or increase by one jot or tittle its missionary obligations. These have their foundations in the purposes which carried Christ to Calvary and the marvelous wonders of grace He accomplished on the cross. They can not be added to, they can not be taken from. The present conditions of the world have not rewritten the Apostles' commission nor added an unanticipated task to the Church.

There is no other work in the world which in its darings, its proportions, its issues, and its all-comprehensive scope is comparable to, or even permissible to be mentioned with the work of evangelizing the world. The gospel missionary is and has been throughout the centuries the foremost man of earth. By the side of the propositions of the gospel all earthly enterprises become commonplace. The complete destruction of ancient faiths and traditions, gods of the ages, and the replacement of them with new and unheard of faith and God, is a proposition too startling to have been conceived and undertaken by a mind less than the mind of God. All these things pass out of the realm of mere ideas when one goes into the land of non-Christian people. The reality of them comes out then with staggering force. A visit among the Orientals with the stretch of centuries behind them, with their heathen learning, their historical temples, their aged associations, and all else of sacred meaning to them, makes actual the tremendous task set apart by the Lord Jesus Christ for His Church. It is no earthly affair. It is no temporal enterprise. It is no adventure for the weak and the unstable.

Apart from supernatural resources, such a proposition would be nothing short of madness. It should cause no amazement that unregenerate men should have no interest in Christian missions, or that worldly churches fall to enter into the soul of them. The work is infinitely beyond the scope of their minds and the type of their interests. The further St. Paul advanced in his ministry among the Gentiles, the mightier the work of it appeared to him; and the more tremendous became the burdens and sufferings in it, the deeper became the great Apostle's reliance upon the Cross and the power of the risen and glorified Christ. Mere compassion aroused by the frightful conditions of heathen nations would have been a powerless and frivolous influence to have kept him steadily on his tempestuous course. But the power that raised up Christ from the grave and exalted Him far above all principalities and powers in heavenly places wrought in him, and hence no earthly force could intimidate his spirit or chill his ardor in the stupendous work to which he knew God had appointed him. Let the Church be mindful of this unalterable truth. Only humiliation and disaster can follow from any missionary project that rests on humanitarian interests or gives undue prominence to secular benefits. This is God's work and His gospel is wholly adequate to all its perils and all its triumphs. There is no need to call for outside help, especially such assistance as the commendations of social profits or the slight patronage of notable persons. The Church should never be afraid to risk its destiny upon an unequivocable fidelity to the Lord Jesus Christ and the administration of His Church by the Holy Ghost.

At this particular time the combined thought and strength of our Church are concentrated upon a special missionary endeavor. To celebrate a hundred years of God's goodness to us as a Church, and to give thanks for all His mercies which have rested upon our labors at home and abroad, is an act of worship into which we all should enter with hearty praise and thanksgiving. But all should be watchful lest what we originally purposed to be a worship of the Great Head of the Church should become tinged with a denominational pride, or some other unchristian spirit. It is of prime importance that our Church should be awakened to a larger interest in missions and an increased consecration of our wealth to the work of the Church, but this awakening should be a permanent awakening, not a spurt of zeal which will pass away with the return of less unusual pressure, and if our faith and ardor are to be dependable, care must be given to found our faith upon the solid grounds of the apostolic faith. We can not save the world with spells of zeal or spasms of giving.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE PROSPECT IN THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

By Rev. Ben P. Jaco, Conference Missionary Secretary.

In the progress of things in this world there are created critical situations, and these situations bring about tragedies and defeat, or glorious achievements and crowning days. To me, it appears that we are come to such a time.

Whatever the causes, and by whatever movements, we are now where men may not be careless or indifferent to the situation.

The leaders in civil life or in religious work must act now for their constituency. What they do and teach others to do will tell a long time hence. The leaders in Methodism have a responsibility and privilege just now that mean much. Like the children of Israel, we have made exceptional history and have come by great leadership and long years of courageous efforts to a time and place when we shall enter that larger world sphere, see a new day and achieve greater things, or, because of cowardly or fearful leaders, see the sun set, darkness appear, and we be turned back to die in shame and inglorious defeat. This is a day when in our Church those in the ranks of leadership have the alternative of courageous aggression in line with providential leadings, or being timorous, undecided, and indifferent, of letting the hosts of God fail in our great Centenary Movement. The pastors, church officials, and recently appointed leaders have a great responsibility and glorious privilege just now.

In the North Mississippi Conference there are numerous and notable cases of magnificent leadership among these classes of persons. With no regular Conference session and instructive and inspirational occasion, with influenza, raging and other confusing conditions, the elders, pastors, and laymen have gone forward to put on the Centenary work, and have promise of splendid success. The spirit now pervades us is, "Move on or get out of the way." It appears now that the very man for Conference director, and the very men for district directors were chosen, and no one else could have been found quite so suitable. The fact that so many were praying for God to guide our affairs accounts for the fact that His choice was our selection. Personally, it is a joy to work with them. May I ask all our people now to put themselves unreservedly at the disposal and under the direction of these men? I believe they will. The evidence that shows that this will be done is appearing. Splendid examples of zeal, consecration, and heroism are seen already.

THE PROSPECT IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

By Rev. N. E. Joyner, Conference Missionary Secretary.

The Missionary Centenary Campaign is in the midst of its most interesting and important phase—the organization of the local church. The work done now will mark the height to which the spiritual tide will rise, and will determine the results of the great eight-day drive. Unquestionably, the Centenary has stirred Methodism profoundly and thousands of the individual churches have responded to its splendid challenge for unswerving loyalty to Jesus Christ. Laying aside their local plans, they have entered whole-heartedly into the campaign, and have perfected the organization of their forces. By a thorough organization of the local church, we shall carry the spirit of enthusiastic devotion to the last man in the church and impart to all our people the inspiration that will come from active participation in a world movement. It is no longer a question, "Will the Centenary succeed?" but "Shall I contribute my part to the task and partake of the joy of this notable achievement?"

There are three outstanding factors in the relation of the Centenary to the local church—the pastor, the minute man, and the church director. This is the supreme opportunity of the pastor to inspire and lead his people. His faith must lay hold upon the vast possibilities of the Centenary, not only for carrying forward the Kingdom of God in its larger relationships, but also for the development of his own pastoral charge. It would be fatal to fail here; the hosts move forward and no local sector must be allowed to lag, both hindering and losing its part in the triumph. His prayers must provide spiritual momentum, his zeal must be contagious until he shall be able to command the service of his people in this Holy War.

The minute man supplies the information, startling, appealing, compelling. No child of God will be able to resist the fascination which these facts will have for him. If his church fails, it will fall for lack of knowledge. At each service he will have some one presenting these great truths of the Centenary. These compact messages will compel the attention, stir the heart and arouse to action.

But upon the local director rests the burden of the responsibility for the 8-day drive. He plans and leads. His is no easy task; but how large and inspiring! He must carefully select his team captains, gather about him his cabinet, hold his Council meetings, prepare with utmost care the list of prospective subscribers to the Centenary and fill out the information card, following closely the "standard plan" in every detail. Nothing may be overlooked, for each item is a vital part and is essential to the outcome of the 8-day drive. It is scarcely possible to exaggerate the importance of the local director, or to overestimate the rare opportunity that has come to him. His work will react in many helpful ways on the local church, besides projecting its resources and its influence into all the major missionary operations of the entire Church.

In years to come, pastor, minute man, local director and each of us who are permitted to have some part in the Centenary, will look back with deep satisfaction and abiding joy to these days through which we are now passing. Already the signs of victory are manifest. With an unprecedented unanimity the Methodist hosts have sprung forward to this task, and the thrill of it is felt throughout the length and breadth of our Church. We are understanding more comprehensively our relationships to the Kingdom, and are going to see to it that those relationships are more sacredly guarded. We rejoice that God calls to us in the midst of these days. Their gloom and shadow are but a challenge to our faith and loyalty.

THE PROSPECT IN THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

By Dr. D. C. Hull, Conference Missionary Secretary.

I am very glad to be able to report that Centenary fires are blazing all over our Conference. There are some dark places, of course, where the flame has not yet kindled; but the interest spreads and the purpose becomes steadily stronger.

The testimony from all quarters is that the movement is taking hold upon the Church. The zeal and consecration of our preachers are already bearing fruit in a deepened prayer life and a clearer recognition of the stewardship of the Kingdom. Occasionally, only, does a preacher sound a despondent note; and these few are abundantly offset by the testimony of scores speaking in terms of high faith and of assured success.

This increasing chorus of assurance is best illustrated by the testimony of two preachers, both on country circuits but in different parts of the State:

The first testified to this effect: "I am on a country circuit with four preaching places. I haven't a church building on my charge. There are about ninety church members all told. I have completed my campaign for the Fellowship of Intercession and have received seventy-five signed pledges. I am not through with my stewardship and tithing campaign, but I have already sixteen tithe cards and expect to get a good many more."

The testimony of the other, on a charge of twelve preaching places, was to this effect: "When I received the Centenary allotment to my charge several weeks ago, I was despondent and discouraged. I could not see how it was possible to raise that much money. I prayed earnestly over it and resolved faithfully to follow the plan. I began at once preaching as best I could on Intercession and Stewardship. I am not through with the campaign, but I have already forty-six Intercessors and forty-eight tithers; and there is one man among these tithers whose tithe will take care of the whole Centenary allotment to my charge. But best of all I have received a rich spiritual blessing out of it. It is the most blessed and the most glorious movement in which I have ever had a part."

I am not undertaking to quote these preachers verbatim; but I think I have quoted them accurately in substance. But the interest of our laity is scarcely second, if indeed it be second at all, to that of our pastors. They are responding with remarkable unanimity to the call of the Church, as they feel the tremendous challenge of the Centenary.

The highest praise is due to Mr. W. T. Denham, of McComb, our Conference Campaign Director, for his spirit of sacrifice and for his able and untiring efforts, building the organization for "The Big Drive." And the same must be said also for our seven district Campaign Directors: Mr. H. V. Watkins, of Jackson; Mr. N. Vick Robbins, of Vicksburg; Mr. Virgil Youngblood, of Wesson; Mr. A. S. McClenden, of Newton; Mr. John McNeal, of Quitman; Mr. Victor M. Scanlan, of Hattiesburg; Mr. J. C. Ross, of Gulfport.

Space forbids the mention of the Local Church Campaign Directors, who will nevertheless be on the firing line, and who will personally direct the workers in the campaign for our financial goal. Space forbids, likewise, the mention in person of our minute men; but they are on the job, and they are doing valiant service, replenishing the fires already started and helping to kindle new fires in the dark spots.

We have held eighteen cultural group meetings, and seven district councils, besides speaking from two to three times every Sunday and on many week days. Our organization for the drive is nearly complete down to "the last local church."

Our appreciative thanks are due to Brother A. E. Clement of Nashville, Field Representative, whose counsel and active assistance have been most helpful.

We are confidently expecting the Mississippi Conference to "go over the top," not only in the financial campaign, but most of all in the great drive for a deeper spirit of religious zeal and a more militant and aggressive church life.

Meridian, Miss.

WHAT THE PRESIDING ELDERS SAY.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Thos. H. Lipscomb, Aberdeen District.

It is a critical hour in Southern Methodism. The reality of the faith and love of our Church is to be tested. It is to be revealed whether we love God or Mammon. When the call came in the name of our country, our flag, our boys, we responded gloriously with multiplied billions for Liberty Loans, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A.

Shall we fail when the call comes in the sacred name of Christ and his Kingdom?

If we recognized that it took money, and much of it, to do the work of the Red Cross, and Y. M. C. A., and if we showed our faith by our works in providing that abundantly, is it not equally true that it takes money, and much of it, to build churches, hospitals, schools, in foreign and home kinds, to send missionaries, preachers, Christian workers of all kinds to spread God's truth among men?

Never did the world more need the Gospel message, and only on this foundation can there be lasting peace on earth and good will among men.

We must not strike or fall in this crucial hour, but go forward in faith and love to victory!

T. H. Dorsey, Corinth District.

Interest in the great Centenary Movement in the Corinth District is growing stronger each day, as the people become more informed. A large part of this district is interior and our difficulty has been getting to the people with the message and keeping them reminded; but our pastors and a goodly number of laymen have been diligent and we are now anxiously awaiting the week, May 18-25. There is no longer a doubt that this district will go "over the top" with its allotment of $111,000.

W. L. Duren, Columbus District.

The Centenary is without a parallel in the power of its appeal to the whole Church. It seems so to combine faith and Christian benevolence with downright audacity as to enlist the interest and support of all. I do not know any man who has given the matter serious consideration who has not been gripped by it. Neither do I know a minute man who has undertaken its presentation, even perfunctorily, who did not become its enthusiastic supporter. And I do not know a church where the Centenary has been consistently presented that does not give promise of meeting its quota easily and gladly; and where the reflex influence is not manifest in every department of its work.

V. C. Curtis, Greenville District.

Your letter came while I was away on the publicity campaign, and I have been in my office but an hour or two at a time since. We arranged to hold services in every church in the Greenville District, which has taken us nearly six weeks; we will finish this part of the work to-morrow night. I have never been in more enthusiastic and responsive services in my life than those have been. The Greenville District will raise its full quota without any trouble.

J. H. Holder, Holly Springs District.

It has been said that God steps on the tops of the centuries. Beyond question, God has timed the Centenary Movement. Never was the will of God more clear in Bible times than it is to-day; never was the call more distinct than in this crucial time; never was the moving of God among the peoples of the earth more distinctly seen than in the tremendous world's events of to-day. God is not asking that we let Him help us in our little undertakings, and to be only a solace to us in our tears, but He has called us to the sacrificial hour. He calls us to action. As our Great Captain, He has mapped out the plan of campaign. He has challenged the enemy to a mighty, supreme struggle, He has summoned us to battle. The world has passed through its Gethsemane and is still in its crucifixion hour. The Church has been called by its great leaders to "tarry in the upper chamber until power comes." Our way is clear, our duty is plain. Another Pentecost awaits only our obedience to His leading. The Church is upon the threshold of a ten-times mightier movement than the world has ever seen. "Greater things than these shall ye do." It is not "get through this and get to the revivals"; the World Revival is on, and God is calling mightily, "Who is on the Lord's side?"

R. A. Meek, Sardis, District.

The Centenary of Methodist Missions in America is awakening widespread interest. It cannot be said that the world's need is greater now than ever before, but undoubtedly the Christian Churches are to-day face to face with larger opportunities than were ever previously open to the followers of Christ. The doors in nearly all pagan lands have been torn from their hinges, and the Macedonian call is coming from every quarter of the globe. Fortunately, the disciples of Jesus at this time have at their command more resources for the spread of the Gospel than in any preceding period of the world's history. Will they turn them to account and set forward the cause for which the Master died, or prove recreant to duty's urgent call in this epochal hour? Let Southern Methodists gird up their loins and lead the way to larger things. We can do so if we will.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Briscoe Carter, Alexandria District.

In the Centenary plan the Church has presented to her an opportunity to recover her place in the estimation of the world, and to give it an illustration of its faith and purpose as the representative of Christ in the world. It comes with the trumpet-blast of the Gospel of the new start. During these days of preparation, instruction and inspiration, preceding the "ingathering," ample time is given in which the dead past may bury its dead. God stands ready with sponge in hand to wipe out the past that the Church has written, and present her a clean slate upon which she can write the record of a faithful present which will be the earnest of a glorious future.

Harry W. May, Baton Rouge District.

The Church has at no time in her history been called upon by her Living Head to express herself in love deeds as in this, our day.

The appeal is a most natural and repeated expression of His confidence. He believes in man, and expressed His confidence in committing to him the keeping of the immortal interest and eternal destinies of the race; "Occupy till I come."

The Bridegroom has waited patiently a marvelous century for the coming of this great day in Methodist history; time has matured and love has grown, and He is now calling in a way altogether commensurate with His claim. His bride is responding, and will respond, until His just dues are received, and His blood-bought honor laid at His divine feet.

I am more than confident; His Church has never failed.

The call to the bride to ask, "the Stewardship of Intercession," has deepened her devotion; the appeal to serve, "the Stewardship of Life," has multiplied her strength and made manifest much latent force. The command to pay tribute, "the Stewardship of Money," is just and right, for He is both Lord and King. The expression of our real self and devotion to Him will be made not many days hence: The faithful will be known.

Thirty-five million dollars can and will be put in the hand of the eternal Son of God on May 25, if we trust and obey. It is not an impossible task; but reasonable and just, in view of the fact that He who appeals to us is the owner of the universe. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof."

The Centenary Celebration is a proceleusmatic song, led by the Son of God. He commands in melody divine, and His bride joins in the refrain.

"Jesus called His disciples and said, I have compassion on the multitude."

"Our heart, O Lord, the summons feel,
Let hand with heart combine
And answer to the World's appeal
By giving that is Thine.
Say to Thy gifted servants, 'Speed,'
Behold the world your field;
Say to the gold, 'the Lord hath need,'
Till hoarded treasures yield."

Confidence, Opportunity, Development — these three, but the greatest of these is Confidence. Possess the grace of confidence and the task is at an end.

Jesus believes in us; let us believe in Him.

H. W. Bowmann, Lafayette District.

The Centenary Movement is the greatest power that has ever come to this section of the Church. Here is a territory of nearly thirteen parishes, with 400,000 inhabitants, of whom probably 10,000 are Protestant.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has virtually one-half of this Protestant force in this great section.

The Centenary means an awakening of the Church to its possibilities, opportunities and privileges, as well as to its duty.

The "new age," the "new social order," the great change in "world affairs," forecast by many writers of the past twenty years, is upon us. It has come, it is here, and the thoughts and ideals of the past are no more.

The Centenary opens the door for the Church to enter, and in this section the five thousand members are going to feel the spiritual impulse of the movement, and the Risen Christ is to be recognized, and his claim allowed and command obeyed as never before.

Abert S. Lutz, Monroe District.

The great aim of the Centenary is to produce a spiritual awakening among our Methodist people that will result in their reaching out the helping hand to a prostrate world, which is calling in accents clear and distinct, "Come over and help us." The Gospel of a present, full and free salvation for all, that the Methodists have been preaching for over a century, has within it the only hope for humanity. The world must be reconstructed upon the sure foundation of a pure heart through the shed blood of the Immaculate One. The kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ.

For the great task that is before us, there must be deep searching of heart. Do we really know what it is to enter the fellowship of intercession? The Methodists of a hundred years ago knew this better than we do. Have we realized the claims of stewardship upon us? To reach the full meaning of these foundation principles will equip us for life's greatest tasks.

In the Centenary, we come to appreciate not only the divine message of God's Word, but we see the work of God among the nations of earth in the fulfillment of that "far-off divine event, toward which the whole creation moves." Jesus said: "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you," and his last words were "to the uttermost parts of the earth."

J. G. Snelling, New Orleans District.

Long have we felt the need of a revival that will stir our hearts and go deeper than the emotions. Older people have said that the Church has lost her old-time fire. Some have claimed that all the great preachers are dead, while others charge that the spirit of the world has crept into the Church and chilled the fervor of God's people.

Perhaps there is some truth in all of this, but if Jeremiah were here again, he would tell us, as he did Israel of old, that our sins and our iniquities have hidden God's face from us, and caused him to withhold his blessings.

The Centenary comes to us in the voice of Hosea and Malachi, saying, "Return unto the Lord thy God; for thou has fallen by thine iniquity. Take with you words, and turn to the Lord; say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously; so we will render the calves of our lips. For be will heal our backsliding and love us freely, for his anger has turned away from us." "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Shall we not come to the Centenary with grateful hearts, seeing that God is offering us through his Church an opportunity in world service for world redemption?

The Centenary is gripping the Methodists of the New Orleans District, and we expect to bring up a full measure.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

W. B. Jones, Hattiesburg District.

It has never been optional with the Church as to whether or not it should be missionary. We must be missionary or we perish. The Church has marked time long enough, and we must go forward. The Centenary Movement, and the collection of the entire thirty-five millions of dollars, is essential, if we as a Church are to make our just contribution to the reconstruction and evangelization of the world. It is fundamental. In a sense we must reconstruct ourselves first, and then shall we be able to teach others also. We have undertaken great work, and we will succeed.

J. M. Morse, Jackson District.

It is not for the Methodist Church to go on without a plan. Our task has been deliberately arranged. We have the compelling voice of Christ ringing in our ears. Our opportunities are great. We must fit ourselves for this matter of Christian service.

It is imperative, if the Methodist Church is to meet the situation in a statesmanlike way, that we have a goal. We must reach it—we cannot afford to fail. Our work is as large, when defined by life's needs, as the world. All that men need it to be, the Son of Man meant it to be, in doctrine and teaching. Our business is to bring men into personal contact with the world's need of the applied Gospel.

We must get in line. Preachers, members, minuate men, Church is looking to us—the eyes of the world are upon us—while ringing through the ages comes the inspired Word of God, "To every man his work."

Geo. H. Thompson, Meridian District.

1. I think the Centenary is necessary to save American Methodism from following in the steps of a decadent ecclesiasticism.

2. Without it, I believe our Church would not and could not do its part in saving America from being thrown back in its advancement one hundred years by Bolshevism.

3. The Centenary appeals to me because it puts the emphasis on the Church, the Bible, and God in making the world over, rather than on soup, doughnuts, and cigarettes.

4. It will appeal to red-blooded Americans because it is a call to the best manhood for the biggest task in the day of greatest opportunity.

5. The emphasis given to prayer and stewardship, and the effort to reach the last individual in the Church, I believe, will bring to the Church its greatest revival for a hundred years.

6. Do I see any dangers ahead? If we allow the getting of money to overshadow the other results, and allow the undertaking to dwindle into a money gathering scheme, the Church will weep over the birth of the Centenary. May the God of all wisdom lead us on.

J. R. Jones, Seashore District.

The Centenary, in the Seashore District of the Mississippi Conference, has received and is receiving every consideration at the hands of our pastors and laymen. Intercession and stewardship have been duly emphasized. The spiritual forces, to some extent, have been aroused and will bring forth large fruitage in the kingdom of our Lord. The Centenary machinery is organized and ready for the "drive." The Seashore District will not fail in this part of the program of our Church to push forward in the reconstruction of the world.

The hour is now here when the Church of Christ must prove itself equal to the mighty task that God has laid out for it. The world needs Christ, and the Christian Church is the vehicle through which he must be carried to humanity's heart. Methodism cannot afford to fail God and the torn and benighted lands in this time of marvelous opportunity for the spread of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The time is now here when the Church of Christ must answer the call of God with all its resources, material and spiritual, to bring the ends of the earth under the banner of the Prince of Peace. In him, and him alone, is found a solution of the conflicts of men and nations.

The armies of the Allies have changed the map of the world, but the unrest and the disturbed condition in the world's affairs must be brought to peace and harmony through the saving power of the Gospel of the Son of God. Nothing else can meet the world's needs in this tragic hour of its history.

I confidently expect the Methodists of the Seashore District to heed our Lord's command to "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," with the answer, "Here am I; send me." The call of God is tremendous; the opportunities are great. Let every Methodist in our district consecrate material and spiritual resources to the spread of the Gospel Message and the salvation of the world from sin. When we think of the Centenary appeal, for $35,000,000, in relation to our resources, the amount is not so large, but the biggest thing our Church bas ever undertaken for our Christ and the extension of his Kingdom. Let us do our part. Under God we can do nothing less.

THE CENTENARY CLOSING CAMPAIGN.

By Elmer T. Clark.

Methodism has reached the crucial stage of the greatest movement of its kind ever undertaken by any religious organization. The closing days of the Centenary campaign are charged with possibilities which may issue either in success or in defeat, and the affairs of the kingdom for all the future will be influenced by what transpires in the next few weeks.

In this critical period the Centenary Commission announces the Closing Campaign Program, and earnestly asks the consecrated co-operation of all Methodists everywhere in carrying it out to the last detail. That Closing Campaign Program means the operation of the Eight-Day Drive according to the Standard Plan after five weeks of intensive cultivation from the pulpit.

The subjects for the last five Sundays are as follows:

April 27 — Prayer, the Dynamic of the Centenary.

May 4 — The Call of the Centenary for Life Investment.

May 11 — Tithing, the Acknowledgment of Stewardship.

May 18 — Methodism's World war—The Centenary.

May 25 — From Victory to World Conquest.

The purpose of this program is apparent. It is to cover the entire range of Centenary objectives and to project the Church on the Centenary plane of spirituality. Unless this is done, the movement fails, for our primary purpose is not to raise a great sum of money.

Beginning with prayer, we must again stress the central doctrine of Christianity in this mighty day—the doctrine of Christian stewardship of life and of wealth. With this foundation firmly laid, the entire Centenary case should be convincingly presented on the opening day of the Big Drive, Then on the closing Sunday we must lead the people in a great praise service because of the Centenary Victory, and at the same time convince them that greater things lie beyond.

Ample literature has been prepared on this program. The Centenary Bulletin for May is full of it, and a special booklet has been issued under the title, "The Centenary Closing Campaign Program." This literature is sent out broadcast and can be had for the asking. Every pastor, presiding elder, minute man, or other person who faces a Methodist audience in these critical days is urged to use the standard topics and schedule of dates.

We have the most complete organization, under the most effective control, ever perfected by any Church. Methodism steps as one man. If the ranks are not broken, if all leaders observe the standard Closing Program, success is assured.

THE BATTLE HYMN OF THE CENTENARY.

By Dr. W. W. Pinson.

We are reading o'er the records of a hundred fruitful years,
In the splendor of a dawning where the Son of God appears,
And we see the radiant future through a mist of grateful tears,
As we go marching on.

Glory, glory, hallelujah—
Glory, glory, hallelujah—
Glory, glory, hallelujah—
As we go marching on.

We have heard the Master's summons peal above the battle roar,
In the challenge of the nations ringing clear from shore to shore.
And the crimson cross is lifted where the banners streamed before,
As we go marching on.

Where our fathers sowed in weeping we will garner with a song;
Where they beat a pilgrim pathway presses on a mighty throng
To build the vision splendid on the shattered thrones of wrong,
As we go marching on.

Gird your loins and lift your banners, for the vision will not stay;
Heed the challenge, hear the summons, Sons of Wesley, while you may;
For a World is in the making in this flaming Judgment Day,
As we go marching on.

A MAN'S JOB AND A PAUPER'S PAY.

By R. B. Eleazer.

"Since we took this charge, five months ago, we have received just twenty-six dollars a month as salary—the sole support of two people and a horse. What would you do about that sort of situation?"

The questioner was a bright, enthusiastic, capable young preacher of more than average education and ability. He had but recently joined the Conference and had been sent to a rural charge in a rich agricultural section. Fine farms stretched out in all directions and the members of his churches were nearly all land owners or business people, comfortable, well-to-do. They considered themselves the equals of the best in culture and character and entitled to as good a preacher as anybody.

And they paid to a struggling young couple, eagerly pouring out their lives in service to the community, $26.00 a month! With corn for the preacher's horse eight dollars a barrel, flour twelve dollars, meal seventy cents a peck and bacon fifty cents a pound!

What do you suppose they expect of him? Do they imagine two people can live on it? Or must the preacher go hopelessly in debt to keep body and soul together? And if he does, what will be the effect on his standing and influence in the community? What of his peace of mind, his self-respect, his spiritual poise? They are good people; they do not wish him to starve, or even to be underfed. But what alternative do they offer him when they pay him less than a dollar a day—less than the cheapest, most ignorant barefooted, ragged tramp or beggar would be expected to work for?

Oh, yes, they expect him to be well fed and to wear good clothes. A ragged coat or a pair of patched trousers in their highly respectable pulpit would shock and humiliate them unspeakably. They expect him to buy papers and magazines and books, and keep his mind fresh and up with the times. They expect him always to be cheerful and hopeful, full of faith and optimism, and able to comfort all who need his ministrations. And they pay him $26.00 a month. Could they blame him should he quit and go back to the office or the shop, his faith shaken, his devout purpose to serve God in the ministry blighted, mayhap his whole life ruined?

There are 866 such preachers of our Church who are receiving $400 a year or less, and nearly 2000 who are laying down their lives in service for $600 a year or less! And they are the men who do the hardest work, travel the longest circuits and serve under the most discouraging conditions. How long will Southern Methodism tolerate such conditions, and still expect men of character and ability to enter her ministry?

The success of the Centenary will mark a decided step toward the relief of these deplorable conditions. It will mean that about 2500 underpaid, struggling pastors will have their salaries supplemented by Conference mission grants of a hundred to three hundred dollars each, in some degree relieving the terrible economic pressure under which they are now living, freeing them for a more effective service, and redeeming the self-respect of a great people who would not treat any other class of employees so inconsiderately. Let us see that this worthy appeal is met in full, this crying injustice corrected. The Centenary allotment in full will go a long way toward that end.

AMERICAN METHODISM VS. A WORLD TASK.

By W. B. Beauchamp.

The call of the world task has been tremendously emphasized by the war and the world situation which that war has produced. We find ourselves compelled to become a part of the world situation. We can no longer think of our nation, or of our Church, as a body separate from all the rest of humanity. We are face to face with world needs; the door to world service swings wide open; whether we would or not we must hear the world call.

No church can find her place in this generation which has not an adequate program to meet the world-wide needs. Every local church and the last member of that church must find his place in this universal program. We can no longer think of ourselves as working apart from world forces. The fact is that any church which does not, in this day, take into consideration the whole world program, cannot serve this generation. There must be a most complete and definite mobilization of religious forces.

The Centenary of Methodist Missions comes in a strategic and providential hour. History and providence make conjunction in the hour of humanity's greatest need. In the providence of God, American Methodism finds the largest opportunity which has ever come to her for Christian service. We dare not close our eyes to the "signs of the times." We must meet this enlarged opportunity for service with an enthusiasm and loyalty that will compel the largest possible service for the Kingdom of God. If the manifest world needs do not stir our Church to the largest Christian activity in this hour, the future is hopeless for us. It is the great hour for leadership for the pastors of to-day; it is the great hour for service of the layman of the church. The Centenary comes at such a time as to give place to every man who is willing to lift, in order that through Christ the world may be re-constructed.

The response to this world situation and to the world call on the part of American Methodism is most inspiring. We confidently believe that the people called Methodists will make good in this great world-crisis which has come to us.

THE MINUTE MAN AND THE DRIVE.

By Elmer T. Clark.

In the ordinary course of Methodist events there are some twelve thousand or more churches which stand vacant each Sunday. Most of our pastors serve circuits, and nobody can occupy more than one block of space at a time. This is a situation which threatens the success of the Centenary Drive, for the Standard Plan cannot be operated without the regular service. Therefore the most imperative duty now before us is to make sure that those pulpits which otherwise would stand idle on May 18 and May 25 are filled.

What can be done in the premises? The answer is the Methodist Minute Man. There are some fifty thousand enlisted lay speakers, and these must go out from our towns to the country churches and take entire charge of the services on the two Sundays of the Drive. Before this duty, all of our other plans must now be subordinated, for if these pulpits are not filled, all of our other plans will come to nothing.

If there is any church from which the pastor will be absent on either of these two dates, the immediate responsibility falls upon the local chairman of the Minute Men. He should take charge of the services himself, if possible, or he should assign one of his associates to conduct them. If there is no one in the congregation who can or will assume the task, the local chairman must at once communicate with the presiding elder and the district chairman of Minute Men. They will assign a speaker to the church, and then the local chairman must give special attention to advertising the services, securing a large attendance, and co-operating with the local campaign director in arranging for the carrying out of the Eight-Day Drive.

There is an especial responsibility upon the presiding elder and the district chairman of Minute Men. The presiding elder will naturally be expected to see that all the circuits of his district are covered, because he is the recognized head of the Centenary movement in his district and because no other person possesses the knowledge of the circuits. But he will co-operate closely with the district chairman of Minute Men, because the latter has the touch with the lay speakers who will be used in the speaking campaign.

The methods which shall be adopted will naturally vary in the different districts. But the leaders should prepare a schedule showing all the vacant churches, their location, the dates on which they will be vacant, and the exact situation as to whether the local Minute Men can take care of the situation without outside help. Perhaps it will be found wise to group the churches about certain large towns and place the responsibility for filling them upon the Minute Men in the town church. But irrespective of plans and methods, it is imperatively important that neither presiding elder nor district chairman of Minute Men rest until it is an assured fact that there will be a service in all the churches of the district on the two Sundays of the Big Drive.

The laymen who fill these pulpits should be carefully selected and instructed. They should adhere closely and absolutely to the subjects announced for those Sundays in the Centenary Bulletin and the Centenary Closing Campaign Program. They should know all about the Standard Plan for the Eight-Day Drive, because they will doubtless be called upon for advice and help. They should be given all the literature on the Closing Program and they should be urged to master thoroughly their duties. The literature consists of the following: (1) The Centenary Bulletin for May. (2) "A Final Word to the Methodist Minute Men." (3) "The Centenary Closing Campaign Program." On receipt of a letter or telegram, the Publicity Department at Nashville will furnish ample supplies of this literature to all interested parties. With this, any intelligent laymen can prepare himself to handle effectually the most important services of the greatest campaign ever launched by any religious organization.

Nothing the Centenary Commission has ever asked of the Church was more important than the thing now before us. With twelve thousand vacant churches during the Drive, the Centenary fund will not be raised; and if it should be raised, the majority of our churches would have missed the joy and the glory of adequate participation. There must be no vacant church on May 18 and May 25. The presiding elder and the district chairman of Minute Men must see to it.

COULDN'T WAIT.

Dear Brother Carley: Please announce that Minter City and Philipp charge, North Mississippi Conference, Winona District, celebrated Easter by raising in full its Centenary quota of $7125—one-third cash. Great credit is due the charge director, Mr. R. C. Townes, his most efficient committees, and the big-hearted and generous congregations for the very happy results of the campaign.

L. W. CAIN.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Dr. Stowe wants the name of every Church, charge or district that signs up and sends in twenty per cent of their membership as tithers. He is compiling a list for the records and for use in connection with the Centenary celebration at Columbus.

Don't stop when the twenty per cent is attained but go on striving for one hundred per cent Centenary efficiency. But just as soon as the twenty per cent point is reached send in the names. Urge your people in filling out cards to write legibly. Send to J. J. Stowe, Box 38, Nashville, Tenn.

TO THE PASTORS OF THE HATTIESBURG DISTRICT.

If you have not already done so, please send me the names of delegates to the District Conference to be held in the Petal Methodist Church, May 6-8, that entertainment may be arranged. Those coming from north on Southern train may get off at Petal. Others will be met in Hattiesburg.

C. E. DOWNER, Pastor.

The Message of the Service Flag.

THAT Service Flag—that bit of muslin or silk which hung in your window—what did it mean to you? What message did it whisper as you lovingly adjusted its folds and fingered the bright blue star?

OR perchance, one day as you watched and gloried in the brave spirit of him who had dedicated his budding youth to the cause of Liberty, a message came, and, while terror clutched at your throat and tore at your heart-strings, ere you could lift your streaming eyes, the Blue Star turned to Gold.

WHAT did the Gold Star say? It breathed low in your ear one little word—Love—a love that dared and was unafraid, a matchless love that gave all that the world might be made safe for all time.

AS with reverent hands you remove the flag and press the sacred colors to cheek and lips a resolve is born. You will finish his work. As your peace and security were bought with his dear blood, you will fulfill your obligation to the dead by meeting your full responsibility for the VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN. The national honor shall be your honor. Please God, that gold star shall not gleam in vain.

THEN, having fulfilled your duty as an American, counting no deprivation too hard, no sacrifice too great for your loved nation, you'll gather yet another message from the star on your service flag. In the same spirit with which you answered the call of the government you'll heed this other call.

AND the answer will not be in terms of Patriotism or Democracy, but CHRISTIANITY. As the star utters its mute appeal for a force that is strong enough to make safe the civilization of the future, you'll make another pledge, a pledge to support with your prayers and with your SUBSTANCE the MISSIONARY CENTENARY—GOD'S LIBERTY LOAN.

A CENTENARY DREAM.

By Mrs. George S. Brown.

The week had been a hard one, for the Centenary Plans kept us busy, and I threw myself upon my bed to rest. Ere long I slept and I dreamed a dream, and the "visions in my head upon my bed were these":

I found myself in a little mission which was presided over by a frail little deaconess. Crowds of ragged children were there, tired mothers and men who seemed to be down and out, all struggling for admission. "Why are so many trying to get in one small place?" I asked. The deaconess replied, "They are weary of sin and eager to be taught the way of righteousness; but what I can do all alone? There are so few helpers."

I turned and found myself in another quarter of the city, where the crowd was even greater, and young people were clamoring to be taught cooking, sewing and carpentering, and the playgrounds were filled to overflowing with boys and girls, who cried, "There is no room for us in the street. Let us in." "Alas, there is no more room here," said one of the workers despondently. We can't take you in until our buildings are larger and better equipped."

Suddenly I found myself among the French people of Louisiana, and I saw some of the ministers and deaconesses I knew running hither and thither. "Why do you hurry?" I inquired and they made answer, "The King's business requireth haste. All through this country there are people who know no more of God than the heathen of foreign countries. They are ignorant and superstitious and dominated by Catholicism in its worst form. Missions should be established in many places. We hasten because the fields are white and the laborers are few."

Again in my dream I was on the Gulf Coast, where fisheries and canning factories abound and where women with babes upon their laps worked long hours for little pay. I felt faint from the sickening odor and was glad to be transported to the mountains; but there I found people uncouth and ignorant, miners going down into the dark earth at the risk of their lives and for miles around no church and only a little mission here and there, where the people walked for miles to hear of the great Burden-bearer.

In my sleep I turned and brushed my hand over my eyes to shut out the vision of the poor, the tired, the hungry and care-worn, but I could hear a voice that said, "Bear ye one another's burdens."

It seemed as if mountains were upon me, so great was the oppression, and I longed to wake; but instead I found myself across the seas and standing before a hospital in China. Some men were bearing on a stretcher an emaciated body and seeking admission, but a white-capped nurse stood at the door and with anguished voice said, "We are so sorry. There is not a bed vacant. Even the floors are filled with the sick on cots. There are not sufficient doctors and nurses." "The man is dying!" I exclaimed. "Can't something be done?"

For answer I found myself in Japan in a large school filled to overflowing with happy children who were learning of Jesus and His love, and I thought, "At last my vision has changed and I am to see something bright"; but as the teacher threw open the door I saw on the outside dozens of girls knocking and begging to come in. "No room—no books—no teachers," said the teachers as they sadly shook their heads.

Then I passed along the roads of Korea and saw missionaries traveling from one mission to another and all along the eager Koreans rushed out and waylaid them and called, "Come in and tell us of the Christ. We, too, want to know of the man called Jesus who takes away sins." But the missionaries, with tears dimming their eyes, were compelled to go on to meet other engagements.

"Is it better here?" I said as I stood in India. Far worse, for I saw little girls weeping over graves of dead husbands and imploring these in authority not to bury them too. I saw women kneeling to idols and crying to them to spare their babies, and I said, "Have we no missionaries here to tell them of Him who said, 'Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy-laden and I will give you rest?'"

In another moment I was in the wilds of Africa, and men and women with their swarthy, black limbs were indulging in wild orgies and looking as savage as beasts of the forest. "Are they human?" I thought, and looking further I saw a little group around a tent and one big black, ferocious in size and appearance but with a look on his face that illumined it, held a little white babe to his breast, and the mother, with no fear in her eyes, smiled upon the black chief as she followed her husband in and out among the blacks, teaching them of a God of love and tenderness and mercy. Just one little mission, making an oasis in a desert land!

Then in my dream I seemed to be going home, and as I passed through South America I heard a familiar cry, "Come over into Brazil and help us. We need more missions." And on and on I went, seemingly in a flying machine, and the Mexicans as they fought, pillaged and plundered, called "If we knew the Gospel of peace and good will to men, there would be no more fighting." And Cuba cried out as I flew over the little island, "Send us the Gospel!"

I was on a train and every passenger held a paper and the headlines were all about the Bolsheviki and the outrages committed in Russia, and I said, "Why, oh, why?" And the whistle shrieked, "They are dying by thousands in ignorance;" the throb of the engine seemed to say, "They know not your God of love;" the clang of the bell said, "Salvation is free! Tell it out among the nations, tell it out!"

I felt a stifling sensation. I choked. I turned myself upon my bed and lo, the vision changed. The Centenary Drive was over, and I was in a large counting-house where were assembled all the heads of the Centenary Movement. A huge blackboard was erected and the returns were coming in. There was more enthusiasm than at any baseball score I had ever seen, or at any election returns. The figures were put upon the board. Lo, a hand was seen writing on the wall. Was it to be "Mene Tekel, Upharsin"—thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting. Ah, no! Before the figures glittered on the board, we knew the Centenary had been put over, for we saw the consecrated men and women as they came from the upper room where they had been upon their knees and we saw the light on their faces. How big the figures were! They filled the board. I had never thought in such large numbers. Women waved their handkerchiefs, men tossed their hats, there were cries of happiness and delight and ever and anon a fervent, "Thank God—Praise the Lord—Amen and Amen!" I watched tremblingly for the New Orleans District, and as the dear old churches I loved so well came in with their totals, all in some of the richer churches showing a spirit of brotherly love by helping the weaker ones, my enthusiasm knew no bounds.

There was weeping and laughing, embracing and handshaking, and the leaders called out, "Keep the wires busy. Send out the good news! Larger, more fully equipped missions in New Orleans and all the large cities—deaconesses and preachers in the French district, on the Gulf and in the mountains—hospitals in China—schools in Japan—churches and missions everywhere. Hallelujah!"

"Ah," said I, "there is lots of money, and money is necessary, but what about workers?" "Put on these glasses," said one of the heads of the Centenary Movement. "With them you see results, and you look into the future." I did so and I saw a Temple, larger than any I had ever heard of, and in the pulpit stood a Preacher and a crown was upon his head. Thousands and thousands and tens of thousands of people filled the temple, and they marched in line and poured out the money from the Centenary, and He who stood in the pulpit received the money and each dime he picked up became a quarter and each quarter a half-dollar and each half, a dollar and so on, as He blessed and gave it out to China and Japan and Korea and Africa, to coasts and to mountains.

I was still restless because I saw no workers, but I was told to look through the windows of the Temple; and I saw a ship, all laden with soldiers, and another with nurses, and I said in wonder, "Isn't the war over?" "Yes," was the reply, "the war of nation against nation, brother against brother; but these soldiers and nurses go forth to war against sin and sickness, sorrow and death, and they will give their lives if need be. They are sailing across the seas to take help to all nations. But these are not sufficient," said the Preacher. "Who else will volunteer to carry on the Master's work at home and in foreign fields?" All over the vast throng I heard, "Here am I; send me," as stalwart young men pressed forward, and a steady stream of young women passed before the altar, singing "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord, I'll do what you want me to do." I looked again and lo, one like the Son of God stood in the pulpit and stretched forth his hands saying, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," and the great multitude, as with one voice, cried, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive glory and honor and power"; and a song from every throat burst upon the air,

"All hail the power of Jesus' name,
Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem
And crown Him Lord of all."

I awoke. The Centenary Dream was so real that I knew it to be a prophecy. It meant that we would put it over and put it over big. One hundred years of Methodist Missions! Before another hundred.

"Let every kindred, every tribe
On this terrestrial ball,
To Him all majesty ascribe
And crown Him Lord of all."

New Orleans, La.

THE HOUR HAS STRUCK.

The coming of the Centenary of Missions just at this time is strikingly opportune. The Centenary clock struck twelve at God's time, not ours. The great war brought with it the spirit of self-sacrifice, of liberality, and of a new reckoning as to the things which are really worth while. It showed men as never before that only the things which cannot be shaken shall remain. The Church of Christ alone is the keeper and dispenser of these unshakable verities. She cannot, she will not prove untrue to the hour and the occasion. On with the Centenary!—Bishop James Atkins.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

DEATH OF BISHOP HOSS.

Bishop Elijah Embree Hoss died at the home of his son in Muskogee, Okla., at 9:30 p. m., Wednesday, April 23. He had been in failing health for some time. About two months ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, after which his strength failed gradually until the end came.

One of the great men of Methodism has passed away. Bishop Hoss had a largeness of mind and heart that made him a notable figure in the Church and in the religious life of the world from the beginning of his ministry until the end. His personal religious experience, his great intellectual endowments, his untiring and effective labors for the Church he loved, made him a conspicuous leader of the Methodist hosts, and a trusted and influential counselor in many movements of large significance. He gave himself unreservedly to whatever task was assigned him, and the distinction he achieved in his various fields of labor was exceeded only by the value of the service he rendered.

Bishop Hoss was educated at Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va. He was admitted on trial into the Holston Conference in 1869. His ability was at once recognized, and he was assigned as pastor to some of the leading churches of the connection. He became successively president of Martha Washington College, vice president and then president of Emory and Henry College, professor of Church History in Vanderbilt University, and editor of the Christian Advocate (Nashville). He was elected to the episcopacy in 1902, which high office he filled with signal ability until failing health necessitated his retirement from active service in 1918.

Bishop Hoss was a remarkably gifted man. As a thinker, he possessed great brilliancy of intellect coupled with a profundity that made him a master in many fields of learning; as a writer, he had aptitude for the use of words that made his writings remarkably clear and forceful and extraordinarily charming; as a preacher, he had the gifts of the orator which appeal to the emotions, with the reach and depth of the philosopher which stir the intellect and the heart. He was as brave as a knight of old, and as quick, in opposing the wrong and defending the right, and as gentle as a child in dealing with those who needed comfort and encouragement. He was a skillful and vigorous antagonist if need be, but his soul was too great to cherish small grudges and hatred. He knew nothing of expediency in his dealings, public or private; principle was the ground upon which he stood, and from which he could not be moved. His Church loved and honored him, and the great world knew his worth. Truly, a great man has gone from among us to his high place with the Shining Ones above.

The press dispatches announced that he would be buried in Green Hill Cemetery, Muskogee, on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with services conducted by Dr. Theodore Copeland, of Texarkana, Ark., and a eulogy pronounced by Hon. G. T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, Tenn. While we join with the whole Church in sorrow over the passing of Bishop Hoss, we rejoice that it was given him to serve the Kingdom of God on earth so long and so well.

CONDENSED INFORMATION.

Q. What part has the Epworth League in raising the Centenary fund?

A. The Epworth League has undertaken to raise a special for missions of $380,000. In addition, the members of the League will contribute as individuals.

Q. What can each member of the Church do in these closing days of the Centenary campaign to make it gloriously successful?

A. 1. Pray earnestly every day for the great work the Church has undertaken; 2. Attend every service, Sunday and week-day, with an eager desire to get as much out of it as possible; 3. Accept cheerfully any assignment to work in connection with the "Big Drive" that may be made by those in charge of it in the congregation; 4. Plan to make as liberal contribution as possible when asked by the committee; 5. In private conversation, try to enlist the interest of any who may not have caught the inspiration of this great movement; 6. Consult with the pastor and local campaign director as to any definite work that ought to be done; 7. Be loyal, confident, enthusiastic, energetic. Above all, have faith in God, and pray without ceasing.

Q. Will there be any way of knowing in detail the outcome of the "Big Drive" in Louisiana and Mississippi?

A. The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE will give in its issue immediately following the "Drive" as complete information as is available at that time.

A NOTE OF THANKS.

We wish to express our appreciation of the cooperation of friends of the Centenary Movement in bringing out the Centenary issue of the Advocate. A number of those we asked for contributions failed to respond; we are sure, however, that it was not for lack of interest, but because they are so hard at work that they have not had time to write. We have done our best to bring to our readers messages that would be helpful in this great work of the Church in which we are all engaged. We must all work and pray until the victory has been achieved.

It may be of interest to our friends to know that this Centenary number is probably the largest edition of the New Orleans Christian Advocate ever issued. We are printing this week 10,800 copies. What a fine thing it would be if we could do this every week!

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. A. S. Brisco, of Duck Hill, Miss., reports an encouraging outlook on his charge.

Rev. W. N. Dodds, of Tutwiler, Miss., serves a fine people. No wonder, therefore, that he writes encouragingly of the outlook on his charge.

Mrs. A. T. Carmouche, a loyal Methodist of Jennings, La., honored the Advocate office with a call on Wednesday of last week.

Brother F. A. Ainsworth, of Jayess, Miss., has been taking the Advocate since 1883. He writes that it has been a blessing in his life.

Dr. C. M. Chapman, our pastor at Waynesboro, Miss., is attending the Y. M. C. A. Conference at Blue Ridge, N. C. He writes that it is a great gathering.

A revival meeting, to last two weeks, began at Covington, La., on April 28. The pastor, Rev. Jas. E. Selfe, is being assisted by Rev. Leon I. McCain, of Hammond, La.

Rev. Jas. M. Lewis, of Prentiss, Miss., is pushing the Centenary cause, and he feels confident that his charge will raise its quota if, indeed, it does not exceed it.

Brother Jas. H. Ramsey, of Houlka, Miss., has been a subscriber to the Advocate for 29 years. We join him in his wish that every Methodist family in our territory would take it.

Rev. Theodore Copeland, D.D., of Texarkana, Ark., will preach the commencement sermon for the High School at Vivian, La., on May 25. Professor S. S. Thomas is the principal of the school.

Rev. J. D. Nesom, our pastor at Oak Grove, La., has received 57 members into the Church since Conference. The assessment for the pastor's salary on that charge will be materially increased this year.

We regret to learn that Rev. H. W. Bowman, presiding elder of the Lafayette District, Louisiana Conference, has been painfully ill recently. We are glad to know, however, that his condition is improving.

Rev. John A. Randolph, who has achieved distinction in his work as a chaplain in the U. S. Army, is en route home from his service overseas. He has requested that the address of his Advocate be changed to 1530 Forest Avenue, Memphis, Tenn.

The figures for last Sunday in the Louisiana Sunday school attendance contest are as follows: Ruston, 697; Noel Memorial, 530; Mansfield, 411; Lake Charles, 390; Alexandria, 322; Monroe, 229. Rain affected the attendance at Monroe and Noel Memorial.

President R. H. Wynn has announced that Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding elder of the Ruston District, Louisiana Conference, will preach the commencement sermon for Centenary College on Sunday, June 1, at the First Methodist Church, Shreveport, La.

Rev. W. F. Rogers, our pastor at Oakland, Miss., writes cheerfully of his work. The pastor's salary has been increased $300 over that of last year. The Woman's Missionary Society at Oakland is doing especially fine work under the efficient leadership of the president, Mrs. B. R. Burt, and her coworkers.

Through the thoughtfulness and liberality of Rev. S. A. Brown and his fine people of Leland, Miss., the Advocate will be sent to all the State educational institutions of Mississippi. By this means, all the Methodist students of these institutions will have the opportunity of reading their Church paper.

Rev. C. A. Battle, of First Church, Baton Rouge, La., announces in the Bulletin of April 20 the reception of 25 members into that church—11 by baptism, 8 by vows, and 6 by certificate. We presume these were received as a result of the revival services recently conducted there, in which the preaching was done by the pastor.

The Sunday schools of Homer, La., and Winnfield, La., have entered a contest to increase their membership. The contest began on Easter Sunday, and will close on the second Sunday in June. The attendance on Easter Sunday at Winnfield was 139, and at Homer, 135. Rev. R. S. Walton is pastor at Winnfield, and Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., at Homer.

Our congregation at Wilson, La., believes in doing things generously and in a business-like way. An "every-member canvass" for the benevolent collections was made on April 13, and on Easter Sunday the report was that every claim had been provided for in cash and good subscriptions. Rev. Thos. Mills is the pastor.

At the Easter service at Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, an offering was taken to complete the payment of the debt on the church building. Of the $1700 needed, more than $1500 was secured on Sunday, and the balance will easily be provided for. Rev. J. G. Snelling, the presiding elder, preached the Easter sermon.

Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has been appointed to have charge of the eighth district of the Church for the assistance of the United States Employment Service in finding positions for returned sailors and soldiers. The eight district includes Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, and Alabama. District headquarters have been opened at 327 Carondelet Street.

The Vicksburg Evening Post makes special mention of the music at the recent sessions of the Mississippi State Sunday School Convention held at Vicksburg. Rev. O. S. Lewis, our pastor at Gibson Memorial Church, had general charge of the musical program. He had the cheerful co-operation of many of the best singers of Vicksburg. One of the most popular features of the program was the singing of the Lewis brothers' quartet.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church of this city recently held a meeting in honor of the memory of Mrs. Lily Meekins, who, for many years, was an angel of mercy in connection with the work of the Mary Werlein Mission in New Orleans. Beautiful tributes were paid her memory by those who were intimately acquainted with her consecrated life. The Missionary Society will place a memorial window in the Carrollton Avenue Church in her honor.

We learn from the Bay Springs News of April 24, that Dr. Rolfe Hunt has resigned the presidency of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss., and has been elected president of Port Gibson Female College, at Port Gibson, Miss. Dr. Hunt has been serving as pastor of the Bay Springs charge, Mississippi Conference, which work he will relinquish on June 1. He has done a splendid work at the Training School, but goes to a larger field of usefulness at Port Gibson.

We learn from the Pittsburg (Tex.) Gazette that Mrs. Nannie Wallace died at Sulphur Springs, Tex., recently. Mrs. Wallace was the daughter of the late Dr. T. L. Boswell, a well known minister of our Church, and a sister of Dr. John W. Boswell, formerly editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, but now connected with the Sunday School Department of our Church in Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Wallace is survived by four sons and one daughter. The Advocate extends sincere sympathy to those who have been bereaved by her going away.

FIVE POINTS FOR WILLING WOMEN.

By Mrs. M. D. Hargrove.

1. Women can join the great Fellowship of Intercession and can assist in securing signers for this Fellowship of Intercession in the auxiliaries, district, and local churches.

2. Women can become tithers. Women have small accounts of money to tithe but they can tithe every dollar that passes through their hands—allowances, salaries, wages and incomes—and bring these sums into the Lord's treasury, setting apart a certain amount for the Centenary.

3. Women can serve on the various Centenary commissions and committees, and by their counsel, pens and influence, can mightily help forward the Centenary Movement in conferences, districts and local churches.

4. Women can do much in securing the foreign and home missionaries required by this Centenary Movement. They can do this by first laying their children on God's altar; by presenting the great needs of the hour to their Sunday school classes, Epworth Leagues, Young People's Missionary Societies, and to their friends who are returning from the camps and from the front, where they have been learning the meaning of sacrifice and world brotherhood.

5. Women can be members of teams in the Eight-Day Drive and bring in large sums by their personal and careful solicitations. They can dedicate to their Lord whatever time is needed to do their part wisely and well, and pledge their service to the Centenary.

WHAT THE CENTENARY MEANS TO ME AS A PASTOR.

By George E. Stoves.

The Centenary gives me an opportunity to impress upon my people the importance of becoming really consistent. For years we have been loudly proclaiming from the pulpit and through the press that we believe mind to be more valuable than matter—that the soul is more important than the body; that the material is simply incidental to the spiritual. We have been unanimous in admitting the above. But if our conduct is to be taken as an evidence of our honesty in these claims, can we believe that society has any confidence in our assertions? It seems to me that we have only believed in the theory of these things, but not the practice. How many Methodists spend as much time and effort adorning their souls as they do their bodies? How distressed we are when our bodies or the bodies of our children are sick or broken! Have we anything like the same anxiety in the presence of a sick or wounded soul?

Where does the business world put the emphasis? On the more valuable or less valuable? Do you take the same care of a donkey that you do a thoroughbred horse? It seems foolish to ask such questions. And yet when it comes to a question of the spiritual kingdom versus the material, in spite of all we claim to believe, we have been feeding the donkey and starving the horse. We have been hoarding rocks and squandering gold. Which is the more valuable, the spiritual or the material, the eternal or the temporal?

The spirit of the American people during the fearful world war attained almost the degree of a divine passion. Our people almost to a man brought what they had and laid it upon the altar of the nation. With a mere pittance of the amount of money which was spent to carry on the great war, the Church of Jesus Christ could so bring the kingdom of God upon the earth as to make war forever impossible. Here is the only principle that will make the League of Nations function as it should. Then why not furnish the money? That we have the money is an undisputed fact. It all reverts back to our question, which is worth more, the spiritual or the material?

As a pastor, the Centenary means that I may point to this movement as an open door to the greatest opportunity which has come to any people since the coming of Christ. It means that I may find in it the inspiration which will enable me to help my people to get into a proper attitude before God. It means the deepening of my own spiritual life so that I may stand in the presence of my fellow-men a consistent follower of Jesus.

WHAT DOES THE CENTENARY MEAN TO ME AS A SUPERINTENDENT?

By E. E. French.

What does the Centenary Movement mean to me as a superintendent? This is a hard question to answer, but, briefly stated, I should say:

1. The Centenary means a great educational opportunity to acquaint our membership with the needs of the world. It is an accepted fact that people are not going to become vitally interested in the missionary program of the Church until this program is set before them in such a way as to enable them to grasp the scope and meaning of it. The various features of the Centenary program should, if carried out, do this effectively.

II. The Centenary is a challenge to every Methodist to take part in the biggest undertaking ever tackled by the Church. Think of the millions of dollars to be raised and the millions of people to be reached and helped. Here is something big enough to claim every person's attention.

III. The Centenary means growth to those who engage in it. Growth spiritually through prayer for its accomplishment and through the giving of both money and service. Growth mentally, through the reading and study of books on the various countries of the world and through the participation in the orders of worship, pageants, cantatas and other forms of activity that will be presented in the Sunday school and elsewhere. Growth socially through the bringing together of many people for a unified and co-operative effort for the accomplishment of a great ideal.

IV. And even greater than all else, the Centenary task, if accomplished, means that we as Christian people are in dead earnest when we pray "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." For "the Kingdom of God" means that some day science and society, commerce and civics, letters and trade shall be sweetened, purified and uplifted till they are in happy harmony with the will and purpose of the divine Father. If the Centenary means these four things to me as a superintendent, it behooves me to make a serious effort to have these impressions become the possession of every member of the school.

WHAT OUR LEADERS THINK.

Nothing More Timely Than the Centenary.

The Centenary of Methodist Missions suggests considerations of deep import. We are on the threshold of a new era. In a profoundly significant sense the world must be reconstructed.

The history of the Church throughout the centuries has been marked by well-defined periods—periods signalized by providential indications. Sometimes these periods have been epochal in their nature, but unfortunately they were recognized only in retrospect after it was too late to seize and improve opportunities. Sometimes leaders who were wise to discern the signs of the times have made these periods memorable by advance movements which have created eras of conquest and victory. Nothing could be more timely than the celebration just now of our Missionary Centenary. It is full of inspiring possibilities and should be gloriously fruitful in results.—Bishop W. B. Murrah.

Timely and Inspiring.

The Centenary celebration of American Missions is timely and inspiring. Methodism and the foreign mission boards and societies are contemporaneous. Indeed, the influence of the Wesleyan Revival is the source from which several boards and societies sprang. It is fitting that this Centenary celebration should be observed, and in view of all that has been done in the past one hundred years, and all that ought to be done now, it is to be hoped that hoarded treasures will yield under the inspiration of the celebration. The needs of the heathen world and the resources of the Church at home are such, the sum of $35,000,000 ought to be secured easily.—Bishop W. A. Candler.

We Must Do or Die.

The Centenary Celebration of Missions is the unmistakable call of God to our Church. The time has come for us to give ourselves to the task assigned us. While we have an honorable record in missionary endeavor, yet we have by no means measured up to our ability. In this celebration we have an opportunity such as we have never had to fix the heart and thought of the Church upon the world's need of our Christ. The doors of the world are open to us and the needs are much greater than we are able to conceive. Our possession and the world's need make the obligation a binding one. The suffering world needs our Christ, and we have the means to meet those needs. What will become of us if we do not discharge our obligation? The time has come for us to do or die.—Bishop U. V. W. Darlington.

An Adequate Program.

The Centenary of Methodist Missions has given us for the first time a program for world-wide evangelization which is adequate to meet the needs. The movement is timed to meet the most potential period in the history of the world, and must, therefore, have the blessing of Almighty God upon it. The advance which is contemplated by the Centenary Movement will carry our missionary forces into the heart of those great unevangelized areas which have long been waiting for the coming of the messengers of light. Last but not least, the missionaries of our Church who have long been waiting for reinforcement will be heartened, strengthened and inspired by these wisely laid plans which contemplate the complete investment of our fields at the earliest possible day.—Bishop W. R. Lambuth.

The Centenary a Test.

The Centenary of American Methodist Missions will put our Church to the test. We have been very slow in meeting our obligations to peoples of other countries. Every one of our mission fields needs reinforcement in men and material. If at this time the Church will respond to the call of those who have been placed in charge of this important work and will contribute the workers and the means to support the workers, she will not be meeting a plain duty; she will receive perhaps the greatest spiritual uplift that Methodism among us has ever known.—Bishop Collins Denny.

THE HOME STRETCH.

By A. C. Marts.

The Centenary is face to face with its supreme test during the next four weeks.

We have planned and conferred, talked and glowed with zeal. Now, will we do the job?

The Centenary has lifted us to heights of vision and stirred the depths of our emotions. Now, what will we do? Will we, as individuals, do the hard, self-sacrificing work that the success of the Centenary demands?

We believe that the world situation presents an opportunity to Christ's forces such as history may never repeat. Let us, as individuals, put the zeal and energy of belief into our work for the Centenary.

We believe that the thrones of the world stand abdicated to-day, and that Christ can be enthroned as the King of kings. Are we reflecting that belief in our works?

We believe that in this reformative period—in the midst of wavering nations, tottering kingdoms—the events of a week are of more moment than the whole years we have lived. Let us concentrate into the next four weeks the Christian zeal and energy of a generation.

No work too hard—no trips too long—no engagements too tiring—no other duty more important when the Centenary calls.

Lord, Thou alone art wealth untold;
To those who know Thee and Thy grace
Gaunt poverty cannot displace
Their joy: far better Thou than gold.

IS A MISSIONARY WORTH WHILE?

By J. F. Caperton.

The scene is laid in a little inland town of eastern Cuba, provincial in customs and standards. The only foreigner in the town was the missionary, and because of the fascination of the people and the activity of the parish priest, he had made small headway in planting the true gospel among the people. The night was inky black and the rain was falling in torrents, and the missionary was enjoying a well earned night's rest after the usual strenuous Sunday's work. He had preached in the morning, then had ridden sixteen miles across the cane fields to preach in the streets of a village, returning to preach in the chapel at night. He was awakened by a loud knocking on the door, and found the caller to be a forlorn, half-clad native boy who begged with tears in his eyes that the padre would come and "rezar" or say a prayer over his dying mother. The priest had refused to be dragged out on such a night, and the poor old mother could not die without her last communion.

Soon the missionary was feeling his way through the muddy streets at the heels of the boy till they came to a little, low palm hut, with thatched roof and dirt floor, where they found the old woman lying on a rudely constructed bed of canvas stretched on four sticks driven in the ground. The husband and father was crouching on the ground at the head of the bed, and surrounding her were the children and grandchildren. She was wasting away with malignant cancer and lay like a shadow ready to flit away with the first ray of sunlight. They made way for the missionary, who knelt down on the floor by the side of the old woman, and taking her bony hand in his, began talking to her. They knew nothing of Christ in a real, personal way, and salvation was a term they did not understand. He told them about Christ and his coming into the world to bring salvation from sins, and, best of all, to conquer death. They could understand death for they were face to face with it. Then he told them about the life beyond the grave that Christ had promised to those who would believe on Him; then he took from his pocket his well-worn Bible and told them that it was the message of love that Christ had left to His children. Then, by the flickering light made by a wick floating in a small can of oil, he read to them of the love of God in sending His only Son to die for us. Then he read them that sweetest of all messages that Christ gave us from the upper chamber on that sad, beautiful night when He was betrayed. There was a breathless stillness in the room as the words of the missionary fell clear and strong, "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you." "This is for you," said the missionary to the old woman, and was answered by a tightening grip of her hand on his. There was stillness in the room for a while, as the meaning of those words penetrated for the first time into the inmost feeling of the hearers. It was the first time they had ever heard those words so familiar to Christians.

The silence was broken by suppressed sobs and then the father spoke. "Can you not tell us something about the home to which mother is going?" he asked. Yes, he could. He turned the leaves of the book until he came to the Revelation given to John and read what that inspired and glorified prophet has told us about our future home. "And the city has no need of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it—for the Lamb is the Light thereof." "And there shall be no night there—for the Lord God giveth them light; and they shall reign forever and ever." "And the building of the wall of it was jasper, and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glass." "And there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth." Then as he closed the Book, he softly whispered the words, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain." Enough. That poor body, tired with pain and sorrow, wanted nothing more than rest. There was a holy quietness in the room while the Spirit worked in all hearts. Just a short while after, the soul of the old mother took its flight to that home it had so recently come to know and love.

Eternity alone will tell the story of the result of that night's visit. One by one the members of that large family came out from the darkness and superstition of Romanism into the blessed light of the true gospel. Don't ask THAT missionary "does it pay." If he had a thousand lives to give, Cuba should have them all.

A YOUTH WHO PRAYED.

How one of the Centenary leaders began his college career some years ago on a capital stock of $32 and an unflinching faith in God and the efficacy of prayer is told by Dr. F. T. Keeney, Centenary Secretary of the Buffalo Area. Part of the $32 went to pay the young man's railroad fare to Syracuse, a week's room rent and the price of a few necessary books. These investments made, the youth went to his room, emptied his pockets and took an inventory. His gross assets were two dimes and two pennies. There followed a period of deep meditation, then a season of Bible reading, and then almost a whole night of prayer.

Dr. Keeney at this time had up for consideration fifty applications for scholarships. He had just two to award. Shortly after the youth's night of prayer, Dr. Keeney again read over the applicant's letters. As he studied a certain one, it was impressed upon him that the man who wrote it should receive one of the scholarships, although Dr. Keeney knew nothing whatever about him or his qualifications.

Meantime the young student had received by mail an anonymous gift of $10. Before this was all expended, a letter from Dr. Keeney reached him, apprising him of his being awarded a scholarship.

This young man was Dr. W. E. Doughty, now executive chairman of the Department of Spiritual Resources of the Missionary Centenary. His fervor in securing a million members for the Fellowship of Intercession to pray for the Centenary is understandable. He knows "Prayer Gets Things Done."—Centenary Bulletin.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED.
Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

CAPUDINE

No Acetanilide Heart Depressant. It Relieves Quickly—Try it.

Try It! Substitute For Nasty Calomel

Starts your liver without making you sick and can not salivate.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no billousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

A TRUE STORY OF THE METHODIST CENTENARY.

By Rev C. C. Wier.

Last night, April 15, 1919, our Minute Man, Miss Roberta Hafkesbring, told the following story of a colored woman named Lodie Bertis, who is a member of the Scott Chinn Chapel, a colored church of our city.

"There is a laundress who has been in that capacity in our family for 30 or 31 years. During the present week she requested some one to assist her in drawing $50 out of the bank, and explained that she wanted to take it to the church on Easter Sunday as her Centenary offering. It was explained to her that she need not send it all at once, but that she could make it in five annual payments of $10 each. But she explained, "If I keep my good health, I expect to pay $50 every year for five years."

New Orleans, La.

A CENTENARY MESSAGE FROM "ONE OF THE LEAST OF THESE."

By Mrs. W. A. Estes.

She lived near our compound, this Chinese woman who longed for the gospel. Poor she was, a large family; the husband scarcely able to get them the necessities of life. She heard of a Savior; she wished to learn of him; she came to our Bible School pleading for a chance to study about him, not able to pay, but willing to do anything. A dollar a month was given her to sweep and clean part of the school and chapel. Home duties were attended to, then she was found at her other work; smiling, rejoicing over the toil that enabled her to learn of Him she longed to know.

The sight was one never to be forgotten, as early one morning we went into the chapel. The dust had been swept to the door, and leaning on the broom handle, with eyes uplifted and shining as though indeed she "saw Him who is invisible," she pleaded for us, for herself, and for loved ones. We left quietly, but the memory of this scene lived in our hearts.

For years she studied as many hours as she could, always asking the privilege of going to every meeting, of engaging in every service. She had no "silver tongue" to charm the multitude, but often eyes were moist with tears as, with a heart overflowing with emotion; she gave her simple mesage: "Once I was blind; now I see. Once I worshiped idols; now I worship the living God. What a wonderful Savior is Jesus to me!"

Returning to our work from a furlough, we found the community was stirred. We heard everything of Mrs. Tsang, who, "being dead yet spoke." She lay dying, in the crowded room as is usual on such occasions in this land. Her eyes were closed and, thinking her gone, her friends went to her to perform the customary ceremonies.

Opening her eyes and seeing the assembled crowds, she said, "Oh, what joy for me!" Then she related the heavenly vision which had come to her. She said that an angel came and offered her a diploma. She said, "I cannot accept it; I am not a graduate of the Bible School." Again the angel came offering the diploma. "No," said she, "I cannot accept it, for it would not be right. I am only a poor, humble student at the school." A third time the angel came, saying: "Take this diploma. It is not given to you because you are great, because you are a graduate of the Bible School or of any school. The Master sends it because you have been faithful to Him and He thus calls you home." Then she smiled, with the light from another world in her eyes, saying, "Oh, he is so glorious in his beauty; my Savior: come all of you, my loved ones and friends, come home to him."

With the smile still lingering, even while the light from her eyes died out, she went home to be with Him she loved.

They laid her to rest in the way that China's poor are laid. They wept as Christians may, and unbelivers may not. We rejoiced and still rejoice that through our glorious Centenary movement the many who are "poor in this world's goods, may be rich in faith, heirs of the Kingdom."

The distinctive flavor of

Coca-Cola

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES

From the 12 to the 14th of April was spent on the Mayersville charge with Brother Ainsworth. He starts the new year well. I enjoyed the visit very much. There is much work to be done, and I feel that much of it will be done.

The Sunday school at Fitler put in the Graded literature for the Elementary Division. They have just organized. I feel that this school will accomplish much. The school at Mayersville is small, but there seems to be a growing desire to do God's work, in spite of the small number.

Tuesday and Wednesday were spent on the Anguilla charge. The school at the Sunflower Chapel responded to an appeal for better and more advanced work. Delta City school put in the Graded Lessons for the Beginners, and both of these schools signed the Centenary askings. The work at Anguilla was confined to the children. The Anguilla people are building a modern brick church, which, from what I learn, will be a credit to the church.

From the 19th to the 22d of April was spent on the Trenton charge. This was in many respects a most successful trip. The New Prospect school met the Third Rank Teacher-training, signed the Centenary card, and organized three Wesley Bible classes. The pupils in this school say they like the Graded literature just fine. Sunday afternoon was spent at Puckett, where one Wesley Bible class was organized and the Centenary allotment was accepted and a teacher-training class of seven was started, and the books were ordered. This work was closed out Monday.

Saturday night it was our good fortune to meet with the community at Rock Bluff Schoolhouse in a welcome to their returned soldier boys. It was a most pleasant occasion, and the boys made a fine impression on all. They were fine, gentlemanly fellows, all.

Sunday night was spent at Cooperville Schoolhouse. There were five professions of faith from this one service. We thanked God and took courage for other work.

Monday afternoon was spent at Trenton. We were here last year in a charge meeting, and it was pleasant to meet these people again. One Wesley Bible class was organized, the Centenary card was already signed, and a class of eight in teacher-training was organized and the books ordered.

Tuesday morning I was with the Burns church. The Centenary card was signed, and a teacher-training class of nine was organized and the books ordered. This was the very busiest kind of a time for those people, who are farmers, and their court was in session, too, but I thank God we still have people who put the work of God first, and are willing to deny themselves for the cause of Christ. The week-day appointments are really the best, I believe.

Wednesday night was spent with the Rankin Street Church, Jackson, in their second quarterly conference. It was a fine conference, and reports showed the work in fine condition.

Pray for the work and the workers.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The school that needs the monthly missionary program most will be the last to take it up.

If we should spend one day in fasting, and pray until we touch God, the workers would be called by the Spirit and we would hear the shouts of victory throughout the Conference. Who is brave enough to put God to the test?

Slowly and steadily the superintendents are signing the five-cent allotment cards, and before the Big Drive comes off in May we will have one-third of our forces on the front line. Get desperate, Brother Superintendent, and bring your school into action. Have you not thought about it long enough? "We must go on, or go under."

More schools have ordered Sunday School Day programs than usual. If this program is rendered as it ought to be, the people will get a clearer outline of religious education than they have ever had. Some of the good people in the Mississippi Conference have been reading these notes and have ordered programs to be sent by this Secretary.

Only a few preachers have planned to put on the campaign for new members. No man is too busy to get people, and more people, into the place where he can get them in touch with God through the study of his Word. The devil is getting in some good work while you are thinking about working. It is all right to think, but don't think too much.

We are right close to the last day of our opportunity for a great victory in our Church. The man that fails to hear the call of God, to hear the call of his Church, that turns a deaf ear to the wall of millions of God's needy children, will be condemned as a traitor.

Let all the schools that were forced to close last winter on account of influenza do double work from now on through the summer. Put on your missionary program, your campaign for new members, and get to work on your Sunday School Day program before hot weather and other hindrances. Write a line to the Advocate and tell what you are doing.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The Shreveport District Conference opened at 3 p. m. on Tuesday. The Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was served by Bishop Kilgo, assisted by Rev. C. D. Atkinson, P. E., Rev. S. J. Davies and Rev. J. M. Brown. It was a heavenly banquet indeed. Everyone was fed on the heavenly manna.

The Sunday school program was followed and everywhere the churches are declaring themselves for more work and better organization in schools.

Two important subjects were urged, viz., Sunday School Day, and Membership Campaign. Let every school in the Conference push these two things. They are uppermost in efficiency of was fed on the heavenly manna.

The sermon by the Bishop, on the Significance of Jesus Christ, was one of the best productions and clearest outline of things fundamental in religion, I ever heard.

The Membership Campaign is set for May 12 to 24 and in this movement we are going to increase our enrollment very much. Can we count on your making this canvass according to directions? Do you have all the literature? It has been mailed you, but in case you have misplaced it, write the Nashville office for it; it is free.

Sunday School Day will be held May 18. Get your programs from C. V. Breithaupt, Alexandria, the Treasurer of Louisiana Conference Sunday School Board. Please send your order at once. The President of the Board, Brother W. S. Holmes, has urged you by special notice to order your programs. We are offering a Loving-Cup to be held by the school which makes the best showing on Sunday School Day, same to be awarded at Annual Federation Meeting.

Do you know where your school stands by the New Standard of Efficiency? We should measure our schools at once and improve them, by bringing them up to the Standard.

Several days have been spent in the Shreveport District and the schools are making marked gains over last winter. The attendance is much better and the spirit of the workers is fine.

Remember that we are working all of the Conference with the District idea. This means that the Louisiana Conference will be worked thoroughly when all Districts are in line. Will you help in your District? Write me about it.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Secretary.

SPRING MEDICINE

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is Needed Now As Never Before—

Because, although the war is over, its work, worry and excitement have undermined your reserve strength.

Because the coughs, colds, grip and maybe severer illness, have broken down your power of resistance.

Because Winter's work and close confinement have worn-out your stomach and exhausted your blood.

Can you afford the good long rest the doctor advises?

If not, take a course of the famous old medicine,—the one that mother used to take,—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It's the finest extract of Nature's purifying, vitalizing and strength-making roots, herbs, barks and berries, such as physicians prescribe, prepared by skilful pharmacists, in condensed and economical form.

If you want the best Spring medicine you'll surely get Hood's Sarsaparilla. Hood's Pills help the liver.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Columbus District Conference met at Shuqualak, Miss., April 15, and was in session for two days. The attendance was fair, and the opinion of the occasion, as expressed by those present, was that it was an unusual district conference in interest and helpfulness. Our popular presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Duren, was in his place, as usual, and presided with grace and ease.

The reports from the pastors showed decided progress in the work of the Church. The spirit of the Centenary is spreading throughout the district and the leaders do not propose to stop until every charge assumes its obligation. The call of the Church to this great task was presented in burning messages by Bishop Kilgo and Dr. A. E. Clement.

No other one thing added so much to the conference as the presence and sermons of Bishop John C. Kilgo. His sermon on Wednesday morning marked the climax of the occasion, and was an inspiration to all. At this time the beautiful church in which the conference was held was dedicated.

The following were elected as delegates to the Annual Conference: W. F. Lagrone, W. E. Stokes, Whitman Davis, Dabney Lipscomb, A. H. Pegues, Dr. S. M. Rainey, L. F. Weir, and B. S. White.

Whitman Davis was also elected lay leader for the district. Rev. R. G. A. Carlisle was recommended to the Annual Conference for readmission.

The following connectional men were present: Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps College; Rev. Robt. Selby, Commissioner for Emory University; Rev. B. F. Lewis, Superintendent for the Orphans' Home; Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary; and Rev. B. P. Jaco, Conference Missionary Secretary. Each presented the interests of the Church to which he had been assigned.

Brooksville was selected as the place for the next meeting of the conference.

Juice of Lemons! How to Make Skin White and Beautiful

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard-white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as sallowness, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful to smoothen rough, red hands.—Adv.

The Many Mysteries of Nature

BY L. W. BOWER, M. D.

You can take an onion seed and a pansy seed, and plant them side by side in the same spot of ground. In one case, you get an onion, with its peculiarly strong odor, and in the other you get a flower of rare beauty. You can plant a poppy seed and get opium (a dangerous, habit-forming drug), or you can plant a rhubarb seed and get something that helps constipation. No scientist, living or dead, can explain these mysteries of Nature. Behind the invisible life germ in each seed is hidden the deep secret that nobody understands. Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, bearing-down pains, periodical irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it.

Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in America because it contains no alcohol and no narcotic. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. for trial pkg. Tablets.

WHAT THE CENTENARY MEANS TO ME AS A MOTHER.

By Mrs. D. Beach Carre.

What does the Centenary mean to me as a mother? Let me see—what does inspiration mean to me? To keep on trying to find the right note to touch in the hearts and minds of my children, to bring forth the melody of a Christian life, a life that will continue to give out sunshine, music and love.

The inspiration that will affect me will affect them, give them the vision of the possibilities of prayer, the consecration of their earnings, the giving of their lives to God's service, whether as laymen or women, or perhaps as missionaries.

The Centenary does not deal with dead issues, but with the vital development of God—inspired, post-war ideals.

Is not the Centenary God's call to arms to the youth of the world, in the name of His missionary martyrs of the ages, linked together with those of our soldiers who have died fighting for the glorifying of the world?

These call to old and young together:

"Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from falling hands we throw
The Torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' fields."

OUR INDIAN WORK AND THE CENTENARY.

By Dr. O. E. Goddard, Secretary Department of Home Missions.

The undivided Methodist Church began work among the American Indians in 1822. When the Five Civilized Tribes were moved to what was called Indian Territory, Methodist missionaries accompanied them. Later the Indian Mission Conference was organized. In 1845, when the Indian Mission Conference convened in Riley's Chapel, Bishop Morris in the chair, the question as to which branch of Methodism the Indians would adhere was submitted by Bishop Morris. The Indians voted unanimously to adhere to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Since then our branch of Methodism has been responsible for Methodist work among the Five Civilized Tribes. We have spent more than a million dollars in missionary work among these tribes. Many stalwart saints have been produced among them, most of whom have heard the call of the church triumphant.

At the last General Conference authority was given to organize the Indians into an Indian Mission. (For many years the Indian members and preachers have been but a small minority of our work in Oklahoma.) In keeping with this authority from the General Conference, Bishop Mouzon met the Indians in Shawnee, Okla., in November, 1918, and organized the mission. The Indians voted unanimously to name their mission, "The Brewer Indian Mission," in honor of Rev. T. F. Brewer, who, in his young life, came with his cultured bride to spend his life as educator and missionary among them. At this writing, Dr. Brewer is still a most useful member of the East Oklahoma Conference. He was the chairman of this delegation to the last General Conference. Bishop Mouzon appointed Rev. R. T. Blackburn, superintendent, and Revs. Orlando Shay and Johnson Tiger, district superintendents. We have about thirty preachers among the Five Tribes and three among what have hitherto been called the "Wild Tribes," the Kiowas, Comanches and the Apaches.

It costs five thousand dollars per annum to maintain the work among the Five Tribes and one thousand among the "Wild Tribes." The Muskogee District in the East Oklahoma Conference has asked for the privilege of supporting the work among the Five Tribes with a part of their Centenary offerings. Some individuals have assumed part of the support of the wild tribe work. A fitting school is to be organized for preparing young men for teachers and preachers among their own people. Some Conference ought to assume the support of this fitting school for five years with their Centenary offerings. As the number of pupils will be small, it will not likely cost over five thousand per year to maintain the fitting school. Correspondence solicited relative to this matter.

MISSIONARY CENTENARY ACROSTIC.

By Mrs. L. M. Lipscomb.

Mexico the Gospel needs.
India for Christ now pleads.
Shall we let these nations die?
Surely we will heed their cry.
In this glad time when war is done
Our thankful hearts should no task shun.
Now is the time to work and pray,
And help somebody every day.
Rally your forces 'neath the Cross—
You must not let it suffer loss.

Come all ye people who are true,
Every day brings tasks to you.
Now is the time for earnest prayer,
The world is full of sad despair.
Enlist and be a volunteer,
No slackers in God's ranks must appear.
Awake, put on your armor bright.
Rescue men and send them the light.
Yes, save them for God, the truth, and the right.

Gentlemen:—I was bothered with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for about five years, and finally got so I could not walk without a cane and had to be careful how I stepped. I tried everything I could get that was recommended for it, but nothing did me any good until I tried Alkavis. I sent for a bottle, which did me more good than anything I had tried. I then sent for six bottles of it, and it cured me. I advise all sufferers from Kidney or Bladder Trouble to try Alkavis, for I believe that it saved my life.

THE SOUTH'S LARGEST IMMIGRANT GROUP.

By Mrs. R. W. MacDonell.

The largest group of foreign people to whom the Southern Methodist Church is called to minister are the Mexicans. A million and a quarter are located along the border lines of our two countries. In Texas alone there is half a million. One-third of the population of Los Angeles is Mexican. Since the United States government has laid aside its immigrant regulations as regards Mexico to accommodate our industrial problems, the Mexicans are coming in large numbers to our ranches, railroads and mining centers. There are several thousand in the quarries of Pennsylvania.

For the most part, these people are wretchedly poor, illiterate, and industrially unskilled. To make these people Christian, to train them into an industrial asset, is the opportunity of the Centenary.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is already at work among these people. They maintain twenty-four preaching places, seventeen traveling preachers, and forty-five Sunday schools with 2244 officers and pupils.

There are four splendid mission schools for Mexicans in Texas—Holding Institute, at Laredo, with three hundred students; the Texas Methodist Mexican Institute, at San Antonio, enrolls 150; the beautiful Lydia Patterson Institute, at El Paso, has 150 students; the Effie Eddington Day School, at El Paso, also enrolls a number of students locally. At Nogales, Arizona, the Woman's Missionary Council has recently opened up a new school.

The Wesley House at San Antonio, reaches in a social, educational and industrial way, a large group of Mexicans. The Homer Toberman Clinic and Wesley House does a large work among the Mexicans living in Los Angeles. A trained nurse, an interpreter, mothers' clubs, are active forces. Fort Worth, Texas, also reaches a number of Mexicans.

The Centenary must bring to these people five missionaries, three kindergartners, eight deaconesses and twenty preachers. The Centenary call is not only for money, but for volunteers to dedicate life service to these Latin peoples living in our own land. Who will answer this call?

SHE DID CAST IN ALL SHE HAD.

The following letter enclosing a dollar bill has been received by Dr. J. J. Stowe, Treasurer for the Centenary. The writer says:

"I am an inmate of the Old Ladies' Home. I enclose one dollar for the Centenary. A friend gave me this dollar, and as I might be tempted to spend it before the Big Drive, I send it to you."

A wonderful "white gift," this, from a wonderful woman—a woman who, judging from her letter, comes from a cultured family and who has been brought up to the comforts and luxuries of life. While she herself is now poor and has no one to care for her save an institution, she realizes how fortunate she really is to have a home at all, a roof over her head and food and fire. She realizes that there are millions of people on this earth who do not have sufficient food, clothing or shelter. She realizes, too, that if some one does not help them they will perish. So, instead of spending her dollar for some personal luxury, she unselfishly sends it to the Missionary Centenary, for she knows that through the Centenary the hungry will be fed, the homeless will be cared for, the friendless will receive consolation. While her dollar alone will not go far toward making this world a better place to live in, added to the many dollars which loyal Southern Methodism is going to give, this dear old lady's sacrifice will be of real value.

This simple, unselfish act of this sweet old woman throws down a challenge to Southern Methodism which can not be ignored. She has not given a tenth of her wealth. Like the widow of old, she has given her all to the Master. Is it not as little as the rest of us can do to give, or pay, our tenth into the Lord's treasury?

A Warning—to feel tired before exertion is not laziness—it's a sign that the system lacks vitality, and needs the tonic effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sufferers should not delay. Get rid of that tired feeling by beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to-day.—Adv.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

Why Nuxated Iron so Quickly Helps Build Up Weak, Nervous, Run-Down Folks — Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It to Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Endurance.

Which kind of man are you?

Which kind of woman are you?

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves and utterly robbed him of that virile force and stamina which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

"I strongly advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood-builder to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package."

In commenting upon the value of Nuxated Iron as a means for creating red blood strength and endurance, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly physician and surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital, New Jersey, says: "What women need to put roses in their cheeks and the spring-time of life into the step is not cosmetics or stimulating drugs, but plenty of rich pure red blood. Iron is one of the greatest of all strength and blood-builders and unless this iron is obtained from our food it must be supplied in some form that is easily assimilated if we want to possess power, energy and endurance. I have found nothing in my experience so effective for helping to make strong, healthy red-blooded men and women as Nuxated Iron.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black or upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is sold by all good druggists.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE MONEY WITHOUT THE SOUL.

Everybody knows that the big thing in the Centenary Movement is not the $35,000,000 that will be raised during the "Big Drive," May 18-25, but the spiritual awakening that has come to our Church with the realization that we are the stewards of God in a world of need. Our prime mission is to the souls of men. The only use we have for money in the Kingdom of God is to make our ministry and mission in every way successful. If we should be content to receive men's money and leave their souls uncared for, we should be as blameworthy as a man who would remove a piece of furniture from a burning building and leave an innocent babe to its fate. In these closing days of the campaign, we need to realize fully that we are more responsible to God for the souls of men than we are for their money. The money will be poured into the treasury of the Church; let us not be content until the souls are ushered into the Kingdom.

"LEST WE FORGET."

The victory over the Huns has been won, but it has not yet been paid for. We cannot forget the victory—we must not forget the cost. Our Government, in order to meet the expenses of the victory and bring our men home, 1,500,000 of whom are still in Europe, is asking its citizens to invest in Victory Bonds. These Bonds pay interest at the rate of 4¾ per cent, which is an attractive rate to the man of means, to say nothing of the patriotic service rendered in purchasing them. But patriotism requires that we help the Government meet its expenses, whether we are paid for it or not. We cannot have much respect for that type of patriotism that demands personal profit as the price of its participation in the affairs of the Government. If we have not already done so, we should invest in Victory Bonds to-day.

NONE OF HIS BUSINESS.

The secular newspapers are quoting Sir Thomas Lipton, the great English tea merchant, better known on this side of the Atlantic as a yachtsman, as saying that he is amazed that the people of the United States have adopted national prohibition, and that he considers it a most laughable venture in the field of morals. Our impression is that Sir Thomas is a thorough-going sportsman, clean and upright in all his dealings with his fellowmen; but we are distinctly of the opinion that it is no part of his business to poke fun at the action of a great people in outlawing a traffic that has been a curse to millions of men and women—yes, and to little children. His sense of humor is evidently very highly developed for him to be able to find a cause of merriment in the adoption of a measure that is expressive of the moral determination of an awakened nation. We commend to him the wisdom of attending to his tea business and of letting the American people deal with the liquor traffic in their own way.

LET THEM NOT COMPLAIN.

Reports from Europe indicate that the German delegates to receive the terms of the peace treaty at Versailles are chafing under the restraints that are thrown about them in their officially designated place of residence. They are not being treated as prisoners, but for their own good they are not allowed to go beyond certain well-defined limits. Our own feeling is that they have no right to complain. They certainly are not guests of honor of the nations who are engaged in the difficult task of settling the problems arising from the criminal attempt of the Germans to rule the world. They plunged the world into war to win for themselves world-wide dominion; they outraged justice, scorned mercy, and did violence to every principle of right conduct among nations. It ill becomes them, therefore, to complain of the petty inconveniences of restricted action. They were proud when victory seemed within their reach; they should not be peevish in defeat. We can even admire a brave enemy; a craven foe deserves only contempt.

PRESIDENT WILSON SENDS GREETINGS TO METHODISTS.

Cables from Paris His Interest in the Success of the Centenary Campaign of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for Thirty-five Million Dollars.

Washington, D. C., May 5, 1919.—The following cablegram from President Woodrow Wilson in Paris was received to-day:

Dr. W. B. Beauchamp,
Director-General, Missionary Centenary,
Methodist Episcopal Church, South,
Nashville, Tenn.

I am deeply interested to learn of the effort you are about to make to secure the needed money for the expansion of the work of the Methodist Church, and wish to extend my most cordial good wishes for the success of the effort. WOODROW WILSON.

MEN ARE GROWN-UP CHILDREN.

Great uneasiness was caused a short time ago by the withdrawal of Premier Orlando of Italy from the Peace Conference. His withdrawal was brought about by the announcement of President Wilson that he would not consent to certain territorial claims of Italy in violation of his famous "Fourteen Points." For the moment, it seemed as if there were danger of serious complications in the negotiation of the peace treaty. But recent dispatches indicate a willingness on the part of Italy to reconsider her hasty action; and Orlando is again sitting with the Peace Commissioners. After all, men are but grown-up children. They have their quarrels, lose their tempers, go home and pout awhile—and then go back to play. We might wish, however, that when children reach manhood they would put away childish things. Children are governed largely by their feelings; men ought to act according to reason.

HAPPINESS.

We meet many unhappy people. Almost every day we hear some expression of worry or anxiety or despair from those who, to all appearances, ought to be gloriously happy. They have health of body and mind; their labor is sufficient to secure them the necessaries of life; they have friends who love and honor them, and homes where pure affection abounds. And still, they are unhappy. They are forever thinking of what they would like to have, instead of what they actually possess. Their standards of life are fixed, not by themselves, but by those who move in a different circle. Forgetting the past, they skip the present and think only of the future. Their wants are greater than their prospects of possession, and their desires outrun their ability to secure. They are waiting for "ships to come in" that have never yet set sail. They dream of buried treasures to be unearthed for their sudden enrichment, or of some legacy from an unknown kinsman. They imagine that another age was the golden age, and that to-morrow is the day of promise. It is no wonder that they are unhappy. They are looking without for what can be found only within. They are trying to estimate a spiritual thing in terms of that which is material. They have brought themselves to believe that money can buy the treasures of heaven. They have tried to breathe the pure air of the mountain top in the low places of the valley. They need to learn, like Paul, the lesson of unselfish service—and then they will have learned, like him, in whatsoever state they are, therewith to be content. Happiness is as characteristic of the Christ-life as unhappiness is of the selfish life.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE SALOON.

We gather from various sources that a good many people are greatly concerned about the kind of institution that will be evolved to take the place of the saloon, the fate of which was sealed by the adoption of the national prohibition amendment. Various substitutes have been proposed, ranging all the way from municipally-controlled social centers to imitation saloons under the auspices of the Church. In our opinion, no substitute is needed. The saloon has long been an evil that right-thinking people have wanted to get rid of. It has been the breeder of crime and the promoter of all kinds of wickedness. So far as we are concerned, we are glad that it is doomed, and we are not anxious to see anything take its place. If something of the kind is a necessity in our social order as at present constituted, it will develop of itself, regardless of what well-intentioned theorists may determine to have. In the meantime, "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Temperance is like a bridle of gold, and he that can use it aright is more like a god than a man; for as it will transform a beast into a man again, so it will make a man a god.—Burton.

WHY THE CENTRAL POWERS FAILED.

By Chaplain Roy H. Kleiser, American Expeditionary Forces.

I. The Failure.

With their careful preparation and their superior war machinery, so far superior in the early days of the war; their superior numbers and discipline; their readily available resources in money and materials; their carefully laid plans and the advantage of the initiative attack; why should the Central Powers have failed so completely? Why should one little blunder, seemingly incredible, force the German army to beat a hasty retreat after it had reached the very outskirts of Paris in 1914? Why was the carefully planned attack upon Verdun a failure when every conceivable eventuality had been provided for and a successful defense of the city did not seem humanly possible? Why were the Germans unable to follow up their successes in the spring of 1918, when they had beaten the Allies to their knees and victory was in their grasp, just as they had planned, before America could come to the rescue? Why were the Central Powers finally beaten down, one at a time—Bulgaria, Austria, Turkey, and then proud Germany herself—and forced to sue for unconditional peace after victory had repeatedly been so nearly within their grasp?

II. The Explanation.

Of course, America says it was because the Yanks got there; and it was—partly. The Britisher, though, says it was because Great Britain acted promptly in flinging her thin lines across the path of the gray masses of the advancing Germans and in bestirring herself to the superhuman effort of turning a nation of home- and comfort-loving people into a great army with such incredible swiftness; and it was—partly. The Frenchmen, politely skeptical of our preaching, and yet immensely appreciative of our aid, has no doubt whatever but that it was the valor of the French poilu and the wisdom of his generals that beat back the enemy from his gates till help could come in such numbers as to turn the tide of battle and insure victory and freedom to a land that loves freedom better than life itself; and he, too, is right—partly. Geologists tell us that no earthly power could have checked that first mad rush of the Germans had it not been for the peculiar formation of the terrain of eastern France and the insuperable barriers constructed by centuries of receding waters to protect this fair land from eastern invasion, leaving only two passes, the Marne valley and the road through Verdun, through which an invading foe might strike at the heart of France; and this, too, is true—partly. But none of these reasons, nor all of them for that matter, may be urged as sufficient cause for the failure of the colossal plan of the Central Empires, who had carefully considered and planned to overcome most of these very obstacles. And as for those impassable hills, they have been surmounted in the past. The wild tribes from the shores of the Baltic and the North Sea swept over them and massacred the Gauls in their drive toward Rome in a day when there were no artillery, high explosives and deadly gases to sweep away the defenders; and it was not superior numbers that defeated them in the end, but the superior civilization of the Romans who met them. I might also add, the Germans know every hill and valley, every stream and bridle-path through these steppes, and had them carefully charted. Thorough as are the French maps which were used by the Allies, I found, while on the Argonne-Meuse front above Verdun, German maps of the terrain occupied by our troops were far more accurate and more complete in detail than anything we had yet seen.

From the very beginning, there was a much more subtle and powerful force pitted against the Central Powers than their arrogance could comprehend; perhaps the only great obstacle they did not consider and plan to overcome. The wonderful superstructure of their civilization was built upon a false foundation, which had begun to crumble long before the assassination of the Archduke Ferdinand stirred the smoldering unrest of Europe into a blaze of war in 1914. As this superstructure reached vauntingly towards the heavens in the beginning of the twentieth century, flashing its materialistic glories to the four corners of the earth, boasting of its great commerce, its mighty armies and its famous schools with their subtle philosophy and their progress in science, truth had already eaten away the vital supports of its foundation, and was beginning to reveal the falsity of the philosophic principle which was its chief corner-stone.

No merely commercial or diplomatic reasons could have possibly plunged the entire world into such a devastating war and divided nations so perfectly into two such opposing camps, based upon such fundamentally and diametrically opposite principles of civilization. This difference of principles was the underlying cause of the conflict. The time was when different peoples could pursue their development along their own chosen lines, but that time has passed forever. When the nations of Central Europe attempted to maintain a civilization based upon a principle that was contrary to the rest of the world, the constantly increasing complexity of human intercourse presaged an inevitable conflict. Outwardly, there was not a very marked difference between these two civilizations. They were so similar in their exterior processes that they were usually considered identical, yet they were fundamentally different in their basal principles. Apparently, they worked fairly well together, but somewhere in their course a death struggle was inevitable. The little Serbian turmoil that brought about the murder of Ferdinand was but the torch that lighted the blaze and plunged two mighty world forces into a conflict which could not end until one or the other was destroyed. Such interests conflicting, only the fittest could survive.

III. The Evolution of Democracy.

The conclusion is inevitable, upon studying the progress of the human race through the various periods of its history, that the principle of autocracy, upon which the Central Powers based their civilization, is but the logical result of certain barbaric principles which guided the race in its early development from savage to more or less civilized men, i.e., a strictly materialistic conception of the law of the survival of the fittest. As their savage ancestors had fought their way to tribal supremacy by sheer physical force, so they now conceived of physical force as the supreme factor in natural progress. Art, religion, philosophy, letters, science, commerce, everything of progress, was co-ordinated with this principle. But, rapid as was the progress by such a method, it was fundamentally wrong and could not last. It had had its place in the ancient world, and served its purpose, as did superstition, idolatry and mythology, but the time came when, outgrown, it must be discarded or crushed. Truth will always disentangle itself from the false in the course of time, and, as a skyscraper cannot be erected upon the foundation of a log cabin, so is it impossible to build an enduring civilization upon the principle of the half-savage ancients. Therefore, at a time when the zenith of the dcotrine of Might had seemingly been reached and the world lay gasping under the iron heel of Rome, there came a new figure into the world's drama; a new prophet, preaching what seemed a most fanatical message. He is mentioned in history as Jesus of Nazareth—the Church calls him the Christ. He laid down certain principles by which he said men should be governed, which were utterly at variance with his times. His doctrines were scorned and rejected, and he was shamefully put to death; but his propaganda lived and spread, destined to become the foundation for a new and enduring civilization.

The new ideals had their first real conflict with the old when the Caesars attempted to stamp out what they conceived to be a new and fanatical religion. They scored a triumphant victory in the proclamation of Constantine when he announced his strange vision of a fiery sword in the skies and his determination to become a Christian, and declared Christianity the State religion. From that hour, in spite of subsequent persecutions, in spite of sin, ignorance and superstition and the demoralizing fanaticisms and hypocrisies, Christian civilization moved steadily onward, impregnating the minds of men everywhere with the fundamental principles of its founder—Righteousness, Justice, Freedom and Brotherhood—till thinking men throughout the world have become convinced that not only the life of the individual, but that of the nation as well, must be built upon these four corner-stones to achieve the highest destiny. For twenty centuries the world has groped its way through the mists towards Christianity without knowing it. Men often spurned the Church and its theories without knowing that they were turning their backs on the very thing they sought. Even now they call the cherished ideal they seek to establish, Democracy; but by whatever name they may call it, infidel, atheist and agnostic, as well as Christian, have come to recognize that these are the four cardinal principles of an enduring civilization. It was only after the doctrines of Jesus had become general that men began to conceive of a basis upon which a Republic could be founded. Previous attempts had proved utter failures. They were built upon a foundation of sand. The pathway of Time is strewn with the wreck of many peoples shattered in their ardent pursuit of freedom because they had failed to see its necessary concomitants of Righteousness, Justice and Brotherhood. When centuries had passed and something of Christ's truth had permeated the density of human minds, a monarchical age was startled by the appearance of two republican cities, Venice and Genoa. In the sixteenth century, seven provinces of the Netherlands, following this lead, broke away from Spain and established a republic. And there was the memorable day when Arnold of Winkiereid threw himself headlong upon the Austrian spears with the wild cry, "Make way for liberty," and gathering a score of their weapons into his great arms plunged them into his own body, breaking a gap in the Austrian ranks through which the little band of fifteen hundred hunters and plowmen fought their way to victory; the beginning of a long struggle which finally resulted in the establishment of a government which has come to be regarded in modern times as the world's purest type of Democracy—the Swiss Republic! The struggle of the American colonies for freedom is a familiar story. France went down through a baptism of her own blood, in the French Revolution, to the deepest agonies of despair, but finally arose, chastened and refined by her experiences, to become the fair republic for which even the meanest of her sons have nobly shown themselves ready to die in this last, not the least, of her tragedies. The South American States are all democratic in form. England, while retaining her king and her titled aristocracy, perhaps for "auld lang syne," has nevertheless shorn them of power, and is an intensely democratic nation.

Thus the world has been working its way through the centuries towards the ideals of this Nazarene; stumbling, faltering, struggling, falling only to rise again under the added weight of some new shame, it has ever groped its way forward towards the light. Then, suddenly, the darkest cloud of all overshadowed it, and it was plunged into a deluge of war, a fiercer, more frightful, more heartless, brutal and destructive war than the mind of man had ever been able to conceive, a veritable orgy of the devils of the deepest pits. During the turmoil of the first months of it no one understood. Those caught in the first wave of it merely set their faces and died, not knowing why. Men anxiously questioned: Is Christianity a failure? Then suddenly the light broke and every one knew. The world had divided itself into two hostile camps. It was Autocracy vs. Democracy; or was it Barbarism vs. Christianity?

IV.

The Autocracy of Central Europe.

While the world had been working slowly toward a hazy ideal, Central Europe, with the practical eye of a narrow vision, had drawn its line of autocracy closer and closer. Borrowing the treasures of the new civilization—blood-bought by martyrs—they nevertheless clung tenaciously to the old principle of barbarism, RULE BY RIGHT OF MIGHT. They appropriated the learning, the religion, the science, the philosophy of the outside world and twisted it till it seemed to fit into their system. They built up a certain culture that, at least prior to 1914, was conceded to be among the best. They assumed the semblance of Christianity, the pomp and ceremony of the Church, without its spirit. Germany, the home of Luther, was among the first to break away from the thraldom of medieval superstition and ignorance and acknowledge the Reformation, yet she never seemed to get the keynote of its message.

While England was granting a parliament to her people, Europe was concentrating power in the hands of hereditary monarchs, France with the rest of them; but France blew up with a crash and, in bitterest travail, worked her way through the anguish of a bloody revolution to the solid rock of a democracy. But the rest of Europe gave no heed to this ominous warning. Its proud autocracies watched with skeptical disdain as other nations blundered imperfectly towards their ideals. Their philosophy was, to them, the only one worth while. By their centralized power they were able to appropriate the best inventions of science, whip them into shape and adapt them to their own particular needs with the highest degree of efficiency, scorning to wait upon the slower, seemingly imperfect, evolution of a world civilization. They built a philosophy of Power and Might about themselves as supermen; they muttered the name of Jesus in religious formulas and spurned his teachings in fact; they prayed to the Virgin Mary and scorned that part of the world which strove to adopt her Son's philosophy. Their Doctrine of Power bred arrogance and a fatal conceit; their civilization became a forced and abortive affair, glittering and flashy in its superficial perfection, but rotten at the core; their successes gave them an insatiable greed for more power and filled them with the wild dream that they could force their "Kultur" upon the world as they had done upon their own people.

While these things were going on in Europe, the rest of the world had realized, in some measure at least, the fundamentals of the ideals it sought to accomplish. Amidst the clamor of many voices and with much suffering, fruit of its frequent blunders, it had worked out, through the slow processes of natural selection, a solid and reliable form of Democracy based upon the principles of the Nazarene prophet. So, when in 1914 the Doctrine of Force met the Doctrine of Right, the sparks flew and the world burst into a blaze of war. An Irresistible Force (as they thought) had met an Immovable Object and, as usual in such cases, the Irresistible Force was destroyed.

With a civilization built upon an ancient principle of savagery, the Central Powers were foredoomed to failure when they entered a death struggle with a civilization which was a product of a divine evolution; and each of us, white man, black man and yellow man, has played his little part, under the guiding hand of an infinite destiny, in lifting the world to this, the noblest period in the history of man, in which we shall gird up our loins afresh and move forward to the accomplishment of a still higher and nobler destiny. We shall meet many dragons by the way that will not wear German helmets; we shall manifest many human frailties and sins; but with it all, God's hand is upon the helm and the world moves forward.

A SUMMONS TO ALL METHODISTS TO ATTEND CHURCH, SUNDAY, MAY 18, 1919.

The hour has come—God's hour and man's hour. Other Churches are also planning to observe this hour but on a smaller scale; but the world is challenged to observe the dignity of the observance of Methodism which at once celebrates a hundred years of organized missionary effort and the close of the world's war. Before peace was planned we were preparing to share in the campaign to follow the great war by a worthy campaign with Christ as our Leader to extend his kingdom throughout a sorrowing world. It was to be a campaign of Thanksgiving, of Consecration, of Re-enforcement, of Reconstruction. It implied the following up the plowshare of war with the seed-basket and the sickle of peace. Every mission field at home and abroad made its askings in the light at once of its needs and its opportunities. With the New Testament now in six hundred languages, we feel that the time is ripe for our Church to send out five hundred additional missionaries in the next five years. What heroes they follow, fit though few, in the great mission fields which have been pioneered! Our conquering Lord has opened the world to us to occupy in his name, has guarded the seas, has shortened the distances until now the world has become a great neighborhood, where the watchmen can see eye to eye.

Let the campaign which opens on May 18 be ushered in by a great Church-going Sunday that shall fill all our churches, both with crowds of worshipers and the spirit of faith and prayer. It is our Lord who summons us to meet him in the place of worship. Let ours be the Church's answer to his gracious call for service. He is mobilizing his army. Let the foundations of hell tremble under the footfalls of the hosts of the Lord as the cry goes up to heaven, "The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge."

We are summoned under a new sense of the unlimited resources of Christ who declares afresh, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." His resources are ours if we seek them. We dare not look alone to our own resources which God has put in our hands until the wealth of the world is in Christian hands. "He giveth thee the power to get wealth." But it is the spiritual resources hid in Christ that we most need. Happy the result of the world war that has given us a deeper knowledge of the resources in Christ, the riches of his compassion, of his patience and his grace, until the bleeding world calls out our compassion as did Jerusalem when our Lord wept over it. The world's greatest need to-day is the necessary Christ and those who know him and his resources. While the world is moved by those who have made the supreme sacrifice during the greatest war in human history, let all men know who made the supreme sacrifice for all men.

It was on the eve of passion week as our Lord's life was closing that "Jesus sat down over against the treasury." He was observing with loving solicitude men in their relation to their property. His eye rested upon the widow, possibly the victim of the rich who devoured widows' houses, yet she cast in her all, being measured in the sight of her Lord not by what she gave but what she had left. It was then "our Lord took the widow's mite and placed it in his crown." He still sits over against the treasury as the multitudes are casting in their gifts into the treasury, and these gifts will be tests of our gratitude and our faith. None will be too large to measure fully our gratitude, or too small to escape his notice as a tribute from a grateful heart. It is the habit and motive of giving that will be most pleasing unto Christ.

"Take and give for me and thee" was what our Lord said in directing the gift of a body-guard apostle. Our gifts may even be vicarious as his sufferings were. If we give with the international mind and heart we hasten the gathering in of the world harvest. The world is watching while we give, and many who have not yet owned him as their Lord will join in our giving if it is worthy. Let it be Scripture measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, and so our promised offering of $35,000,000 will grow to $50,000,000.

E. R. HENDRIX, for the Bishops.

A TRIBUTE TO COL. JOEL G. HAMILTON.

By Rev. W. W. Mitchell.

With the passing of Col. Joel G. Hamilton at the home of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. William T. Detrich, of Pueblo, Colorado, on February 22, 1919, the Durant community lost its oldest, best beloved and most distinguished citizen.

It rarely falls to the lot of a man of Col. Hamilton's strong powers and varied gifts to be permitted to spend the whole of his life in, or near, the home of his childhood. This rare privilege was not only granted to the subject of this sketch, but by him, as well as the people, was appreciated and enjoyed to the end of his days.

Approximately eighty-five years ago, as Alexander Hamilton and his young wife, Sarah Hamilton, were moving from their native State, South Carolina, to Mississippi, they sojourned for a time in Maury County, Tennessee, where, near the town of Columbia, this son who was destined to play so large and important a part in the affairs of the commonwealth to which they were journeying, was born to them.

When he was yet but little more than an infant of days he was brought by his parents to Holmes County, where, just north of the now prosperous little city of Durant, a comfortable and commodious home was established.

Here young Joel was reared; here he spent his childhood, his youth; here he attained his majority. From here he went away to college; finishing his course, he returned with his degree from that historic institution of education, Emory and Henry College, Emory, Virginia.

It was here in 1861 he won, as the bride of his young manhood, Miss Emily Victoria Lockhart, who was born on the day Queen Victoria ascended the throne of England, which coincidence occasioned the illustrious name she bore so gracefully throughout her life. She was not permitted, however, to continue long in this happy relation and share with him the pleasure and privilege of rearing the little ones God had given them. When yet comparatively young she was called away, leaving them to his tender care.

As a result of this union, there were five children—three sons and two daughters. The sons, George Taylor, John Victor, and Madden West Hamilton, all entered the medical profession, but died early in their careers. Two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Hamilton Hoyt, now of Pasadena, Calf., and Miss Alice Evelyn Hamilton, of Cincinnati, O., still survive to mourn the loss of an aged and honored father of whose record they are justly proud and whose name they sacredly revere.

In later years, Col. Hamilton was again married to Mrs. Josephine McDonald, whom he survived after many years of congenial and happy association. At the beginning of the Civil War, he entered the Confederate Army as a lieutenant, making a brave and valiant soldier, serving with distinction to its close, and emerging with increased rank. When the war was over and Col. Hamilton had returned to his home, he was not only interested in, and identified with, every movement or

BISHOP E. E. HOSS.

A Memory Word.

By Payton A. Sowell.

Only out of my heart would I presume to venture a word concerning the great man whose name forms the caption of this modest paragraph. For a number of years, he dwelt at Nashville, in the center of the Tennessee Conference; and we came to think of him as our own. Through those years, opportunity was ours to know him—even intimately. He had heroic, patriotic ancestry.

At King's Mountain, where the strength of the British line crumbled, among the brave men in that struggle he was represented by his ancestors; and they helped to bring the dawn of the day of freedom. In this line not only the spirit of the soldier was seen, but of the statesman as well; one of them was Governor of Tennessee.

In his mother there were the strains of patriotism and religion. Bishop Hoss was a great American. Tennessee is honored to have him as one of her sons. He loved the East Tennessee mountains; there will be many who will regret that he will not sleep, with his illustrious fathers, under their shadows.

Of course he was human, but he was profoundly reverent and religious: he feared and loved God with the beautiful simplicity of a child. I have frequently had the pleasure and been honored to have him as guest in our home, and have him pray at our altar. He became a great preacher, and delivered to the Church through the years of his episcopacy many lofty messages.

Knowing the heroism of his faith, I hoped, at the last, he would be allowed to "walk through the valley"—and sound, in its shades, notes of victory, which would exhilarate the hosts of God in this age of unbelief. I have heard passages in his sermons, clothed in the purest English, whose beauty and eloquence marked him as one of the Church's greatest preachers.

To know I shall see and hear him no more, causes the deepest personal sorrow, and leaves my life emptied of one of its richest fellowships.

A LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN ROUSSEAUX.

Dear Advocate: As it has been some time since I have reported to you, and as I am just as much morally responsible to you and to the Church as I am to the Government, to which I am in duty bound to report, I shall briefly let you know what kind of life I have been living on board the U. S. S. Powhattan.

After having served in the Port Chaplain's Office at Hoboken, N. J., meeting the ships coming back with soldiers, I was unexpectedly given my orders to report to the Commanding Officer of the Powhattan. I had only twenty-four hours in which to pay the landlady, get my things together, procure my passport, and provide myself with needed French money, before the sailing of the ship. We had a very good trip over the water. I have not been seasick any at all, but homesick a great deal. We were about two weeks on the way over, and about two coming back. We had been ordered to reduce the speed, as the engines had been used to their limit in taking the men over, and they feared they might have serious engine trouble that would cause them to have to stay in for several months repairs, and thus delay the bringing back of the men who have done so well over on the other side. Uncle Sam is doing everything he can to get the boys back as quickly as possible. The Navy men on these transports deserve a great deal of credit.

The greater part of my work on the transport is on the return trip, as the Navy chaplain on board looks well after the interests of the crew.

The welfare workers on board have added a great deal to the comfort of the men. Only three of these workers are allowed on board, the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross, and the K. C. These workers distributed candy, oranges, lemons, comfort-kits, stationery, and other useful things. The books on the ship, placed there by the A. L. A., were handed out by the Navy chaplain and myself. The men are very eager to read magazines and books of all kinds. I spent three or more full days down in the book room on the lower deck giving out books to these readers. There was a constant line all day long, and we could not begin to satisfy the demand.

I used every opportunity I could to confer with those who cared to do so on work, education, and moral and religious work. At the close of our last Sunday morning services, the men besieged us for the New Testaments the Y. man had announced he would give to them.

On the return trip I held seven services, consisting of songs, prayers, Scripture reading, and brief sermons. The colonel, to whom I had previously resorted in an effort to curtail the wholesale gambling, and who had issued orders concerning the same, also ordered that all decks be taken up from the deck, and all games be closed up during divine services, to which I said "Amen." We had a splendid service. The band played the hymns well, and the men sang them well. I spoke on the opportunities awaiting the men back at home.

Of course, all these men are glad to get back home, and as a rule they will be glad to get out from under the rigid rules of the army. If the returned soldier has anything to do with it, you will not have very much militarism in this country. Many of them have the same feeling about it as the soldier who said to me, "If ever my kid steps off on his left foot, I'll wear him out." For there are many things in the army that you get tired of. It will either make a man or ruin one. And then, too, in France especially, the conditions are so wholly immoral, or unmoral, that the soul revolts against it. Men can have all the booze they want, and they do not drink altogether the very light French wine you have heard so much about. They get the heavier sort more that one would think. The temptations are so fierce in this direction and vice conditions are so very bad, no doubt aggravated and augmented by war conditions, that it is no small wonder that so many of the men are coming back clean at all. Physicians tell me that the type of social disease is more malignant than in America. It is, indeed, a sad sight to see little girls fourteen or fifteen years of age soliciting for an immoral business.

We prayed to our God to end this war, and our prayers have been answered, and God gave us the victory. It was a glad day when we knew that the war was over. And it will be a grander day for us when we get the last American soldier back home.

In many ways my experience to me has been disappointing in the army. I have learned things that I shall never regret. But it will ever be a disappointment to me that I did not get to do the things that I expected to do. I have felt very small on the ship and in France alongside of the men who went through the hell of the front. Yet I find even these hardened men filled with the milk of human kindness, attentive at the services, and reverent toward God. I trust I may have been able to help some one to a better life.

I am longing now to get back into the pastorate again, and hope soon to be able to get my discharge, and perhaps do evangelistic work, until Conference. I can not make up my mind to get out and just loaf. We are all happiest when busiest, and I think when we are the busiest for the blessed Master.

I ask an interest in the prayers of my friends.

Yours sincerely,

J. CUDE ROUSSEAUX,
U. S. Army Chaplain, U. S. S. Powhattan.

REQUEST FOR PRAYER FOR THE MEETING OF THE JOINT COMMISSION ON THE UNIFICATION OF AMERICAN METHODISM.

The Joint Commission on the Unification of American Methodism is called to meet in the city of Cincinnati, O., Thursday, July 3, 1919. The request for this meeting came from the commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The General Conference of our own Church in adopting Report No. 3 of the Committee on Church Relations went on record as desiring to continue negotiations on the basis approved by the General Conference meeting in 1914. In conformity, therefore, with the spirit of the General Conference and in obedience to the highest authority of the Church, we have arranged this meeting.

The eyes of all the people called Methodist will look toward this important meeting in Cincinnati, and their hearts will turn that way. The purpose of this announcement is to call on the members of our churches everywhere to pray for the outpouring of the Spirit of God upon us in our deliberations at Cincinnati. We need Divine guidance that we may know the will of God, and wisdom that we may do it. EDWIN D. MOUZON,
Chairman Executive Committee.

Dallas, Texas, April 30.

NOTES FROM THE DURANT DISTRICT.

Mr. Editor: I take this occasion to say that our first round of quarterly conferences closed well. Almost every phase of the work gave some indication of progress. Approximately $1500 more was paid for support of the ministry than last year. Twenty-three out of twenty-five charges have advanced salaries of the preachers, ranging from $100 to $500 each, making an aggregate gain for the district of over $3000 over last year. More charges have paid the benevolences "in full" than ever before.

We have marshaled our clans and are training our forces for the big Centenary Drive. What we are to accomplish cannot yet be definitely determined, but we hope to be in the counting at last.

Cordially and Fraternally yours,
W. W. MITCHELL.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WAR WORK COMMISSION.

The War Work Commission of our Church is called to meet in Centenary Church, St. Louis, Missouri, at 10 a. m., May 13, 1919. A full report of the year's work will be presented and plans for future work perfected. This is an important meeting and will have many vital questions to consider. It is hoped that every member of the Commission will be in attendance.

LITTLE TIRED FEET.

Little, tired feet, creeping up to bed,
What a weary way it seems
To your little cot o' dreams
Now that day has fled!

Little, tired feet, pattering no more,
After scampering all day
Here and there and yon in play,
Now at dreamland's door.

Little, tired feet, only angels know
Sweeter sleep than you will find;
Cares and troubles out of mind,
Rocked by dream-winds low.

Little, tired feet, ever do we pray
That your doubtful steps may grow
Ever stronger as they go
On life's upward way.

Little, tired feet, creeping up to bed,
He who loved the children keeps
Watch where every wee one sleeps,
Till the night has fled!

THE LAWYER CAVED IN.

"No," said the lawyer, "I shan't press your claim against that man; you can get some one else to take your case, or you can withdraw it, just as you please."

"Think there isn't any money in it?"

"There would probably be some money in it; but it would, as you know, come from the sale of the little house the man occupies and calls home; but I don't want to meddle with the matter, anyhow."

"Got frightened out of it, eh?"

"No, I wasn't frightened out of it."

"I suppose likely the old fellow begged hard to be let off?"

"Well, yes, he did."

"And you caved, likely?"

"No; I didn't speak a word to him."

"Oh, he did all the talking, did he?"

"Yes."

"And you never said a word?"

"Not a word."

"What in creation did you do?"

"I believe I shed a few tears."

"And the old fellow begged you hard, you say?"

"No, I didn't say so; he didn't speak a word to me."

"Well, may I respectfully inquire whom he did address in your hearing?"

"God Almighty."

"Ah, he took to praying, did he?"

"Not for my benefit, in the least. You see"—and the lawyer crossed his right foot over his left knee and began stroking his lower leg up and down, as if to state his case concisely: "You see, I found the little house easily enough, and knocked at the outer door, which stood ajar; but nobody heard me, so I slipped into the hall and saw, through a crack in another door, just as cosy a sitting-room as there ever was. There on a bed, with her silver head away up high on the pillows, was an old lady, who looked for all the world just as my mother did the last time I ever saw her on earth. Well, I was right on the point of knocking when she said, as clearly as could be: 'Come, father, begin; I'm ready.' And down on his knees by her side went an old, white-haired man, still older than his wife, I should judge; and I could not have knocked then for the life of me. Well, he began; first he reminded God they were still His submissive children, mother and he; and no matter what He saw fit to bring upon them they shouldn't rebel at His will. Of course, 'twas going to be terribly hard for them to go out homeless in their old age, especially with poor mother so sick and helpless; but still they'd seen sadder things than ever that would be. He reminded God, in the next place, how different all might have been if only one of their boys might have been spared them; then his voice kind of broke, and a thin, white hand stole from under the coverlet and moved softly over his snowy hair; then he went on to repeat that nothing could be so sharp as the parting with those three sons—unless mother and he should be separated. But at last he fell to comforting himself with the fact that the dear Lord knew it was through no fault of his own that mother and he were threatened with the loss of their dear little home, which meant beggary and the almshouse—a place they prayed to be delivered from entering, if it would be consistent with God's will. And then he fell to quoting a multitude of promises concerning the safety of those who put their trust in the Lord; yes, I should say he begged hard; in fact, it was the most thrilling plea to which I ever listened. And at last he prayed for God's blessing on those who were about to demand justice"—the lawyer stroked his lower limb in silence for a moment or two, then continued, more slowly than before: "And, I believe, I'd rather go to the poorhouse myself, to-night, than to stain my heart and hands with the blood of such a persecution as that."

"Little afraid to defeat the old man's prayer, eh" queried the client.

"Bless your soul, man, you could not defeat it!" roared the lawyer. "It doesn't admit of defeat! I tell you, he left it all subject to the will of God; but he left no doubt as to his wishes in the matter; claimed that we were told to make known our desires unto God; but of all the pleading I ever heard, that beat all. You see, I was taught that kind of thing myself in my childhood; but why I was sent to hear that prayer I'm sure I don't know, but I hand the case over."

"I wish," said the client twisting uneasily, "you hadn't told me about the old fellow's prayer."

"Why so?"

"Well, I greatly want the money the place would bring; but I, too, was taught the Bible all straight when I was a youngster, and I'd hate to run counter to such an harangue as that you tell about. I wish you hadn't heard a word of it; and another time I wouldn't listen to petitions not intended for your ears."

The lawyer smiled.

"My dear fellow," he said, "you're wrong again; it was intended for my ears, and yours, too, and God Almighty intended it. My old mother used to sing about God's moving in a mysterious way, I remember."

"Well, my mother used to sing it, too," said the claimant, as he twisted his claim-papers in his fingers. "You can call in, in the morning, if you like, and tell mother and him the claim has been met."

"In a mysterious way," added the lawyer, smiling.—New Zealand Methodist Times.

THE GOD OF THE LIVING.

Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.—John 11:26.

The departed have not ceased their communication with us, though the visible chain is broken. If they are still the same, they must still think of us. If they live there, they love there. "God is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living." Then it is true, that they live there; and they yet speak to us. From that bright sphere, from that calm region, from the bowers of the life immortal, they speak to us. They say to us, "Sigh not in despair over the broken and defeated expectations of death. Sorrow not as those who have no hope. Bear calmly and cheerfully thy lot. Brighten the chain of love, of sympathy; of communion with all pure minds on earth and in heaven. Come, children of earth! come to the bright and blessed land!"—Orville Dewey.

LINCOLN AND THE CHILDREN.

The very few children knew him, for there was not one of them for whom he had not done some kind deed. "My first strong impression of Mr. Lincoln," says a lady of Springfield, "was made by one of his kind deeds. I was going with a little friend for my first trip alone on the railroad cars. It was an epoch in my life. I had planned for it and dreamed of it for weeks. The day I was to go came, but as the hour of the train approached, the hackman, through some neglect, failed to call for my trunk. As the minutes went on I realized in a panic of grief that I should miss the train. I was standing by the gate, my hat and gloves on, sobbing as if my heart would break, when Mr. Lincoln came by.

"'Why, what's the matter?' he asked, and I poured out all my story.

"'How big's the trunk? There's still time, if it isn't too big.' And he pushed through the gate and up to the door. My mother and I took him up to my room where my little old-fashioned trunk stood, locked and tied. 'Oh, ho!' he cried, 'wipe your eyes, and come on quick.' And before I knew what he was going to do, he had shouldered the trunk, was downstairs, and striding out of the yard. Down the street he went, fast as his long legs could carry him, I trotting behind, drying my tears as I went. We reached the station in time. Mr. Lincoln put me on the train, kissed me, and told me to have a good time. It was just like him."—American Messenger.

EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE CALLED OFF.

At a Centenary Conference held at Grenada, May 1, after consultation with all the presiding elders and with other ministers and laymen present, it was decided best to call off the meeting of the North Mississippi Efficiency Conference scheduled for Grenada College, June 3-6. The date would fall just after the Centenary Drive, which calls for strenuous efforts, and many of the brethren have attended a number of meetings already, besides having been interrupted in their work to a considerable extent by the epidemic of influenza. Hence, it was thought wise not to hold a session of the Efficiency Conference this summer.

J. R. COUNTISS,
Chairman Program Committee.

NOTICE.

The preachers of the Meridian District will please send me the names of the lay delegates who will attend the District Conference from their charges. Do this at once to help me with the entertainment.

R. R. Schedule.

Those coming from the north will reach Quitman at 4 p. m. and 3 a. m.

Those coming from the south will reach Quitman at 12 a. m. and 11 p. m.

A TRIBUTE TO COL. JOEL G. HAMILTON.

cause, political, social or religious, that was for the improvement and reconstruction of his devastated country, but he was foremost in all of these movements.

The unselfish abandon with which he threw himself into every good work, the jealous concern which he manifestly felt for the well-being of his people, the sound judgment displayed in the adjustment of the affairs of his community, soon set him forth as a capable and trustworthy leader. Hence, he was often called into positions of honor and distinction in State and Church.

He ably represented his county for a time in the State Legislature; was for many successive terms State Senator; served as a member of the famous Constitutional Convention of 1890, there taking his place and playing well his part with such men as General J. Z. George, Governor A. J. McLaurin, Judge E. O. Sykes, Colonel H. L. Muldrow and others.

Twice he came within one vote of nomination by the convention, which would have been tantamount to an election to the Congress of the United States, and while Col. Hamilton's official career covered a period when political prejudices and animosities ran high, when criminations and counter-criminations were common, no aspersions were ever cast upon his good name: no stain ever attached to his moral or political escutcheon. Col. Hamilton, it may be truly said, was an unusual man; while there may have been here and there one who appeared more brilliant, who was more eloquent of speech, one better poised, more symmetrically proportioned, more generously furnished with the essential qualities of noble and exalted manhood, I have never met. For soundness of judgment, evenness of temper, sincerity of purpose, manliness of spirit, sturdiness of character, I know no one who excelled him. He was an ideal citizen, a true patriot, a brave soldier, a model Christian, a chivalrous gentleman. Not only was he richly endowed with these sturdy qualities of stalwart manhood, but he possessed, to an eminent degree, the graces that charm and hold. In nature he was modest, in tastes simple, in spirit genial, in manner affable, in conversation deferential, duly considerate of all; politically and socially a democrat; in appearance, bearing, and instinct, an aristocrat. In the strength of his splendid manhood, before time had whitened his hair, dimmed his eye, furrowed his face, or weakened his frame he seemed to stand apart, unique, even in the midst of a favorable environment, the tall sycamore towering above his fellows.

But that which especially distinguished Col. Hamilton was his strong Christian character; his exemplary Christian life. In his boyhood be was possessed with an irrepressible longing to know God, to have conscious communion with Him; he sought Him through faith and prayer, was converted and entered the Church when yet in his teens. Ever after she was to him a foster mother, nourishing him in his youth, strengthening him in manhood, comforting him in old age. His devotion to the Church, which grew with the accumulating years, amounted to a passion. He loved her doctrines, supported her polity, was comforted by her ordinances. He served her with ever-increasing loyalty; her humblest offices were not despised, her loftiest positions were not shunned. He was one of her office-bearers for perhaps more than a half-century, and died a steward and trustee of the congregation to which he gave his life in childhood.

His faith in the Christ of the Gospels was as simple as a little child's and as strong as his sturdy powers; it was the foundation of his manly character, the inspiration to his noble life, the secret of his ultimate triumph. When shall we see his like again? No more will we meet him in life's way. We will miss him, but we may well say:

"Soldier of Christ, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the victory's won,
And Thou art crowned at last."

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

Those who have attended the Divinity School on the old Seashore Camp Ground at Biloxi, Miss., during previous years will bear testimony to the excellence and instructiveness of the high-class programs that have been provided each session. The platform speakers have always been high-grade—often of the very highest—and each year has been an inspiration to those privileged to attend.

The session of this year, June 24 to July 3, 1919, offers the same high-class attractions. The program committee is to be congratulated on securing for this year's session those whose names give sufficient pledge of an intellectual and spiritual feast, and that those preachers and laymen who are privileged to share it will be most fortunate.

Rev. Camden M. Cobern, Ph.D., D.D., Litt.D., whose superb lectures on Scripture interpretation in the light of recent archeological discoveries created such profound impression last session as to call forth a unanimous request for his return, will be present for the entire nine days, and will occupy the platform at 9 a.m. each day. Every one who has heard this great investigator and fascinating lecturer will know at once that it will be well worth while to attend the Divinity School this year.

Rev. Stonewall Anderson, D.D., Secretary of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has consented to deliver the course of theological lectures which he gave last year at Cersey, delighting and capturing all the preachers in attendance. The judgment of a discriminating hearer is, "They were splendid addresses."

Rev. Frank Gunsaulus, D.D., LL.D., of Chicago, whose nation-wide reputation as an instructive and captivating lecturer is so well known, has also engaged to be present, and will deliver the morning and evening addresses each day during the first half of the session. We have tried repeatedly to secure Dr. Gunsaulus, but he is so popular, and always in such demand, that heretofore we have been unable to do so. Be sure to hear him.

Our own Bishop John C. Kilgo, D.D., LL.D., has consented to be present and do the preaching on Sunday, June 29th, 1919, and that is to be the great day of the spiritual feast. Bishop Kilgo knows the old Gospel and its application to human need, and his preaching always has the true evangelistic ring and fervor. All our pastors should be present to share the inspiration of that occasion.

The last General Conference showed special appreciation of the instruction and examinations being given at such gatherings when it placed it by the side of the Correspondence School and officially ordered recognition of its examinations. Let the undergraduates bear this in mind. The Divinity School doubles the facilities of the school, as it has both textbook and the present instructor. And the examinations of the Divinity School are acceptable by the Conference as heretofore. Come down and get through with the Conference course in the middle of the year.

The session opens with the address of Dr. Gunsaulus at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, June 24, and will continue through nine days, to July 3, 1919. These will be days of high privilege, of physical rest and recuperation, of blessed Christian fellowship, and of laying up in store fresh mental and spiritual power.

It would abundantly compensate every church and circuit in the three States to pay its pastor's expenses for attendance on this year's session of the Divinity School. But, should the charge fail of its opportunity, the preacher cannot afford to miss the School.

The railroads are making special summer rates, and board on the Camp Ground and near is to be had very reasonably. After the stress and strain of the past unusually strenuous months, the rest and inspiration of the coming session of the Seashore Divinity School will prove a benediction to each one, as well as a preparaton for more buoyant and satisfactory service of the Kingdom.

For further information address Rev. W. H. Van Hook, Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or the undersigned.

AN ADEQUATE PROGRAM.

"The part Southern Methodism is now taking in the Centenary of American Methodist Missions is deeply gratifying to me. The present condition of the world, the past history of Methodism, the ever youthful spirit of Christianity as it abides in Methodism calls for world-wide missions that surpass in depth of conviction, wisdom of movement, and power of execution anything ever witnessed in the life of the Church. A drive can now begin that will mean the world for Christ."—Bishop R. G. Waterhouse.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

THE CENTENARY EDITION OF THE ADVOCATE.

We stated last week, in the Centenary number of the Advocate, that we were printing what was probably the largest edition in the history of the paper—10,800 copies. After the edition had gone on the press, additional orders from the Centenary authorities of the Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferences ran the total up to more than 34,000 copes. We may say, therefore, without any qualification that that issue was the largest that has ever gone out from the office. Our earnest prayer is, that the information contained in that number of the Advocate may be genuinely helpful in promoting the Centenary work.

A GOOD TIME AT GRENADA.

Greneda, Miss., is one of the most attractive little cities we have visited in a long time. Its streets are well paved and clean, its business houses are modern and substantially constructed, its residences are beautiful and comfortable, and its people are cultured, hospitable, and thoroughly progressive.

The occasion of our visit was a meeting on Thursday, May 1, of the Centenary forces of the North Mississippi Conference, both men and women, for the purpose of making sure that everything is in readiness for the "Big Drive," May 18-25. The Conference Campaign Director, Judge Hall, was there; the Conference Secretary, Rev. Ben P. Jaco, was on hand; all the presiding elders and practically all the district campaign directors were present; many of the preachers and local church directors were in attendance; the women of the Conference came together and were addressed by Miss Mahel Howell, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Mr. A. C. Marts, Dr. A. E. Clement, and Rev. R. S. Stuart, of the Centenary Headquarters force, added greatly to the value of the meeting by their presence, counsel, suggestions, and inspiring addresses. We can think of nothing that was lacking to make the meeting serve the purpose for which it was called. Basing our prediction upon the personnel of the North Mississippi Conference, the hard work that has already been done, and the fine spirit of enthusiasm that prevails, we do not hesitate to prophesy that the Centenary Movement in North Mississippi will be carried to a brilliantly successful conclusion. If there are still any Mississippi Methodists who douht the greatness, the timeliness, and the ultimate success of the Centenary Movement, it is because they have failed to catch the vision that has inspired the leaders who were assembled at Grenada.

The banquet in the dining-room of Grenada College on Thursday evening was elegantly served and largely attended. Judge G. L. Jones, of Corinth, served as toastmaster, a position in which he excels. We were unable to remain throughout the exercises, but we know that Mr. A. C. Marts set a high standard for the addresses of the evening, which insured a fitting close to the inspiring exercises of the day.

We were douhly glad to visit Grenada because it gave us the opportunity of seeing Grenada Female College, which, under the presidency of Rev. J. R. Countiss, has become one of the leading educational institutions of the State. In company with Dr. A. E. Clement, we had the privilege of visiting the college at the chapel hour. We have never looked into the faces of a more intelligent, beautiful, and happy company of girls than the student body of Grenada College. There were more than one hundred of them, most of them hoarding pupils. President Countiss informed us that the total enrollment of boarding pupils for the year was in excess of one hundred and fifty. We could very well understand, therefore, what the new building, now in process of construction, will mean to the college. The over-crowded condition of the old buildings will he relieved, and facilities and equipment will he furnished that will leave nothing to he desired for carrying on the work of the school in the most modern and efficient manner.

The building itself will be a thing of beauty. At a cost of about $150,000, a three-story brick structure trimmed with stone, with imposing stone columns across the front, is being erected that would he a credit to any institution in the land. So far as we could see, the plan of the building embraces every detail of beauty, comfort, and convenience. Work is being pushed rapidly, and the building will be ready for occupancy at the opening of the fall session. We congratulate President Countiss, Commissioner Brownlee, the trustees and friends of the college, and North Mississippi Methodism in general, upon having at Grenada an institution that is an embodiment of the highest educational ideals.

We had a good time at Grenada with our brethren of the North Mississippi Conference. They treated us royally, heard us patiently, and invited us to come again. Rev. R. A. Tucker, our popular pastor at Grenada, made an ideal host. We are indebted to him for brotherly courtesies.

A Stop-Over in Jackson.

On our return from Grenada, we took advantage of the opportunity to spend Friday in Jackson, Miss., where the Centenary leaders of the Mississippi Conference were holding a meeting to consider the outlook just before the "Big Drive." The State Campaign Director, Mr. W. T. Denman, of McComb City, presided over the meeting, which was attended by most of the presiding elders and district directors of the Conference. Dr. Rawlings and Mr. Marts, who were at the Grenada meeting, were also present. The Jackson meeting was purely a business gathering to get, as far as possible, the exact situation with reference to the Centenary Movement in the Conference at the present time. If we are any judge of indications, we are perfectly safe in saying that the Mississippi Conference will do its full part in raising the $35,000,000 the Church has asked for during May 18-25. The State Director and the district directors are in close touch with all parts of the field, and the presiding elders, pastors, and laymen are giving themselves unreservedly to the work of the campaign throughout the Conference.

A stop-over in Jackson would be incomplete without a visit to Millsaps College, an institution of which the entire Church is proud. President Watkins was out of the city, therefore we missed the pleasure of seeing him; but as we walked over the campus and saw the evident signs of activity and prosperity, we felt sure that this has been a good year for Millsaps. A chance meeting with Commissioner Black and Dr. J. M. Sullivan confirmed our impression—their reports were most encouraging. It will be of interest to Methodists throughout the State to know that the contract for the new dormitory will be let within a few days. Two units of the building are to be constructed at the present time, complete in themselves. This dormitory will be ready for use at the opening of the next session of the school, and what has been one of the urgent needs of the institution for a long time will be met.

While in Jackson, we had the pleasure of meeting Rev. Robert Selby, Commissioner in Mississippi for Emory University, Rev. C. W. Crisler, the pastor of Galloway Memorial Church, and other prominent leaders of our Church, clerical and lay, from various parts of the State. The note of optimism was sounded by all of them.

The citizens of Jackson were rejoicing on Friday night that almost their entire quota of Victory Bonds had been subscribed for in the great "drive" on Friday. We were not surprised to learn that the Methodists of the city are prominent in all patriotic movements, as they are in everything else that is for the good of the community.

FOLLOW THE PLAN.

The importance of following the Plan for the closing days of the Centenary campaign cannot be too greatly emphasized. The topics for the services for May 11, 18, and 25 should he followed without fail. We give them: Sunday, May 11, "Tithing, The Acknowledgment of Stewardship"; Sunday, May 18, "Methodism's World War—the Centenary"; Sunday, May 25, "From Victory to World Conquest." It is exceedingly important that no pulpit in our Church be unoccupied on these crucial days. Presiding elders, pastors, and minute men should see to it that a speaker is provided for every church on every charge on May 18 and May 25, and that the plans for making the canvass are fully laid and thoroughly understood. We are on the eve of the successful accomplishment of the greatest task Methodism has ever undertaken; every Methodist must be at his post and do his full duty.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR.

We feel that we owe it to Rev. Thos. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, North Mississippi Conference, to say that the word, "strike," in next to the last line of his Centenary message on page 3 of last week's Advocate is a typographical error; it should be "shirk." Brother Lipscomb's manuscript was perfect in form and as legible as type could make it. The error grew out of the fact that proof-readers are not yet perfect. We assume entire responsibility for the error and beg Brother Lipscomb's pardon. Just in passing, we remark that we found a similar error in our own contribution to last week's issue. We know, therefore, exactly how Brother Lipscomb must have felt when he saw one of his words misprinted.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

"We are moving along well on the Pelican charge," writes Rev. S. S. Holladay, of Pelican, La.

Rev. W. W. Nelson, of Wesson, Miss., writes that his charge is ready for the "Big Drive," with every prospect of "going over the top."

Rev. J. W. Raper, of Kilmichael, Miss., thinks highly of his people, and they think highly of him; no wonder, therefore, that the work prospers.

Rev. W. M. Williams, of Collins, Miss., writes that he is pushing the Centenary Movement on his charge. We trust his people are helping him.

Rev. R. M. Brown, our pastor at Oakdale, La., has launched a movement for a new church. It is proposed to erect a modern, two-story brick and concrete building.

Rev. W. D. Bennett, of Courtland, Miss., reports that his work is making progress. He has been sowing Centenary seed, from which he expects a bountiful harvest.

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Coaling, Ala., writes hopefully of the work in his hands, especially the Centenary cause. Complete plans have been made for the "Big Drive."

Rev. J. W. Booth assisted Rev. J. L. Cady in a meeting at Natalbany, La., recently. The spiritual life of the community was deepened, and several family altars were established.

Judge Percy Saint, of Frankiin, La., whiie in the city recently, made an address on the Centenary Movement at the Algiers Methodist Church, of which Rev. C. C. Wier is pastor.

Our church at Iuka, Miss., paid its Conference assessments, amounting to $575, in full on Aprii 24. The pastor, Rev. L. A. McKeown, writes that his people are now ready for the Centenary campaign.

Rev. H. H. Waliace, of the Arkabutia charge, North Mississippi Conference, reports that the Centenary interest on his charge is good. He finds a great deal of work to be done, but he finds happiness in doing it.

Our work at Canton, Miss., is advancing along all lines. The Sunday school has about outgrown the present church buiiding, and there is taik of a new church. Rev. C. C. Evans Is the popular and successful pastor.

Bishop Jno. C. Kiigo wiii dedicate our beautiful church at Durant, Miss., on June 1. Rev. A. C. McCorkle is the pastor, to whom much credit is due for the payment of the debt which makes the dedication possible.

Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, a superannuate minister who is now living at the Seashore Camp Grounds, has been taking the Advocate for forty-eight years. He, too, is entitled to a high position with the "Oid Guard."

Rev. A. Inman Townsley, pastor of Felicity Church, New Orieans, will preach the commencement sermon for the Oakdaie High Schooi, of Oakdale, La., on May 25. Professor R. E. Bright Is principal of the schooi.

The Sardis District Conference wiii meet at Oakiand, Miss., May 27-28. The pastor, Rev. W. F. Rogers, requests the preachers of the district to send him at once the names of all those who expect to attend the conference.

Rev. S. D. Howard, of Winnsboro, La., reports that interest in the Centenary Movement is growing rapidiy on his charge. He had a fine service at Crowviiie on April 27. The congregations were large, and he received two members into the Church.

The figures for the Louisiana Sunday school attendance contest for last Sunday are as foiiows: Noel Memorial, 521; Ruston, 517; Mansfield, 383; Alexandria, 298; Lake Charles, 117. Rain affected the attendance at ali the schools, especially at Lake Charles.

Rev. Robert Selby, of Jackson, Miss., will deliver the baccalaureate address at the Woman's Coiiege of Alabama, Montgomery, on May 27. Dr. M. W. Swartz, well known in Mississippi as a former professor in Millsaps College, is president of the Woman's College.

It has been announced that Bishop W. R. Lambuth wiii spend several days in Louisiana in the near future in the interest of the Centenary Movement. He wiii speak in the principal cities of the State, winding up his tour with a great meeting in New Orleans on May 18.

Our church at Ponchatoula, La., made a liberal offering to the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage on Easter Sunday. Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, the pastor, announces that he wiii begin revival services on May 18, assisted by Rev. R. A. Bozeman. The Centenary "Big Drive" wiii be observed, of course.

Mr. Frank S. Wiiliams, son of Rev. W. M. Williams, of Coiiins, Miss., who has been connected with the American Trading Company at Shanghai, China, has been made manager of the branch house of that organization at Hankow. He receives the New Orleans Christian Advocate reguiariy.

Dr. D. L. Mumpower, returned missionary from Africa, is expected to be in attendance at the Hattiesburg District Conference, which convened at Petal, Miss., on Tuesday of this week. Dr. Mumpower has been rendering distinguished service to the Church since his return home. Rev. C. E. Downer is the host of the conference.

Rev. G. P. White, our pastor at Plaquemine, La., reports great services on his charge on Easter Sunday. The collections for the Orphanage amounted to $200, of which amount $83.43 was contributed by a total Sunday school attendance of 56. Eight persons were received into the Church from the Sunday school. The collections this year are just doubie those of last year.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, Louisiana Conference, spent a few minutes in the Advocate office on Saturday of last week. He was on his way to hold a quarterly conference at Franklinton, La. He was accompanied by Mr. W. S. Holmes, the district director of the Baton Rouge District, who has been indefatigabie in his iabors for the Centenary cause.

Rev. W. H. Lewis, our diiigent and successful pastor at Brookhaven, Miss., has appointed Miss Anna Middleton to secure subscriptions to the Advocate. She has met with gratifying success in her work. Brother Lewis very aptly suggests that it would be a paying proposition for the official board of local churches to include in its budget a subscription to the Advocate for every family in the church. We agree with him.

Rev. Robt. W. Vaughan, the Superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, at Ruston, La., announces that the Easter Sunday offerings for the Orphanage have already amounted to about $12,500, and many places have not yet been heard from. He feeis confident that the total amount wiii be in the neighborhood of $15,000 by the time aii returns are in. This is a splendid showing, for which we should ali be profoundly grateful.

Rev. J. B. Conner, pastor of the Longtown charge, North Mississippi Conference, gives a fine report of his work. Ail Conference collections have been piedged in full, and other claims are being met promptly. He states that his second quarterly conference was an inspiring occasion, Dr. R. A. Meek, the presiding eider, preaching a great sermon that helped his people spiritually. By the way, we understand that seven subscriptions which we recently credited to Crenshaw, Miss., should have been credited to the Longtown charge.

President Watkins has announced that Bishop John M. Moore wiii preach the commencement sermon for Miilsaps College on Sunday morning, June 8. He will also preach the sermon before the Young Men's Christian Association on Sunday evening at Galloway Memorial Church. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, of St. Louis, will deliver the baccalaureate address on Tuesday morning, June 10. The usual commencement exercises will be held on Monday, with the Alumni meeting Monday night. The Board of Trustees will meet in the College Library Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

The Centenary meeting at New Orieans last week indicated that the Louisiana Conference has every expectation of raising its quota eariy in the "Big Drive." The meeting was largely attended by the presiding elders and district campaign directors, and several pastors and laymen were present. Dr. A. E. Clement and Mr. A. C. Marts represented the Nashville Headquarters. State Director Gunter and Conference Secretary Joyner were enthusiastic and hopeful. Every report we heard was most encouraging. The luncheon at the St. Charles Hotel was delightful and inspiring. Louisiana will be one of the first States to enroll in the "Over The Top" column.

We have recently received some interesting information concerning Whitworth College, of which Dr. I. W. Cooper is president. During the seventeen years of Dr. Cooper's administration, there has been an enrollment of 3740 students; free tuition and reduction on board and extras for ministers' daughters has amounted in value to more than $20,000; students who have done industrial work have saved $24,000 in expenses in that way; worthy girls, who otherwise would have been unable to attend college, have been assisted by loans to the amount of $6000; improvements have been made on the college property during the seventen years to the amount of $60,000, and not a single biii has gone unpaid in all that time; when the president's iease is out in two years, at least eight or ten thousand dollars' worth of furniture, pianos, etc., will become the property of the college as the gift of the president; the Mississippi Conference has not given a doliar to the administration for current expenses in sixty years. We doubt if there is an unendowed school in the land that can show a better record.

Faith in the justice and love of the Father is the best and, indeed, the only support under the sufferings of this iife. The foundation of ail our pains is unbelief; we doubt whether what happens to us ought to happen to us; we think ourselves wiser than Providence.—Amiel.

Freckles

There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

A NOTE FROM NATCHEZ.

Dear Brother Carley: Yesterday was a good day for Jefferson Street, Natchez, both morning and evening. The congregations at both hours were the best since I have held the pastorate of the church. The evening service was given over to the children and they surely acquitted themselves creditably. The treasurer of our board told me that the collections for the old preachers were good. The whole situation here is looking very much better as the days go by.

Last Sunday, or yesterday a week ago, our youthful and very active presiding elder was with us and preached a very fine and helpful sermon at the evening hour. He was called to Washington at the eleven o'clock hour to attend the funeral of one of the best men it has ever been my pleasure to know and be associated with in the work of the kingdom. One of the first men I met, seventeen years ago when I became pastor at Fayette, was Brother John Irland, of the Washington charge. As a citizen of the highest rank in the useful circles of life, where a man's influence is felt for good, he measured high, and as a Christian man and a servant of the kingdom, none held a higher place in the whole county, and, for that matter, in the whole Conference, than Mr. John Irland. He will be greatly missed, and the pastor of the Washington charge will feel the effects of his going more than any one else, as he was the preacher's friend and brother.

FROM GREENVILLE, MISS.

Mr. Editor: Our Easter service was a joy to us all. Great crowds—the largest of the year—attended the services and manifested the keenest interest. Twenty were received into the Church, twelve of them on profession. Forty-six have been received since the first of the year. Our Sunday school attendance was the largest on Easter it has been in the past eighteen months. We expect Chaplain W. B. Hogg to spend two weeks with us in June and we are looking forward to his coming with a great deal of interest.

FROM EUNICE AND GUEYDAN.

Dear Brother Carley: At the latest session of the Louisiana Conference Eunice and Gueydan were combined and the writer appointed as preacher in charge.

After a strenuous trip from Bernice, the P. C. arrived in his car and received a cordial welcome. He found the parsonage property in a very dilapidated condition and has toiled continuously since in making it "a fit place in which to live."

The Centenary has right of way, but all other interests of the Church are receiving attention. We have organized one prayer meeting and one Sunday school.

The salary of the preacher in charge at Eunice is 60 per cent paid.

How about that, Brother Mangum? We request the prayers of God's people for a great revival. Sincerely,

P. H. FONTAINE, P. C.
Eunice, La., April 26.

FROM BIENVILLE, LA.

This charge is moving to the front in church work. We are making ready for the Centenary Drive, and really pushing forward with the spirit of the times. Especially is this true with our church here. The assessment has been raised to $600 for ministerial support, and pledges for over $700 have been subscribed. We have the best prayer meeting it has ever been my privilege to be pastor of. These services are being conducted by the laymen, save the last Wednesday night of each month, which is reserved for the Centenary. We have a splendid choir, led by Brother G. W. Bolton and his daughter, Miss Joy, as organist. Our Easter offering was very good.

The revival services at this place will begin June 20, with Rev. W. H. Jordan, of Arcadia, La., assisting. We need a great meeting here and request the petitions of all those interested that we may be successful.

R. V. FULTON, Pastor.
Bienville, La.

TIDINGS FROM A QUARTERLY CONFERENCE.

Much interest, enthusiasm and expectancy were manifested by the Mentorum charge (of the Mississippi Conference) when, upon the occasion of the second session of our quarterly conference (April 12-13), we met with the approval of the Divine and the cooperation of man in an eventful season. Momentous resolutions were implied, and greater things revealed. Among other things achieved were increased assessments, and greater obligations were assumed.

Brother J. R. Jones, our presiding elder, came to us—after having been prevented by ill-health from reaching us before—with his characteristic personality and magnetic charm. He, I notice, faces his business with a poise which proves him capable of his task. He preaches with a degree of dynamic power and earnestness that "steals" a place in the hearts of men for the Gospel truths. These elements truely marked the proceedings—both the official management and the preaching of the above named occasion.

Our people out here are a hospitable and congenial type. Besides, they are appreciative, earnest, prayerful and loyal. We, both young and old, pray privately and publicly; and then we set ourselves at work for the Master of souls. We aspire to "big things," and in the name, the life and the power of Christ, whom we serve daily, we expect to succeed. I tell you brethren, I rejoice to be with such an elder and such folk. Pray for us.

C. Y. HIGGINBOTHAM, P. C.
Wiggins, Miss.

THE HEAVENLY LIFE.

The heavenly life must be a resourceful one, full of activity of some nature, ever carried on in the presence of God. But the crowning joy of all will be the Master, for we are told that we shall see him as he is. Ah, all eternity will never exhaust the joys of the risen life; and there must be an ever-increasing knowledge of God, with a deeper understanding of his unfathomable purposes. This little world has been one where the mystery of suffering has held sway, but there in the Land of Light there will be no more pain.—Selected.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens Hair so Naturally that Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxurlantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

SEND THE PREACHER.

Every preacher in Methodism ought, for his future usefulness to the congregations he is to serve, to attend the Centenary Celebration, at Columbus, Ohio, throughout, from June 20 to July 7. It is to be the greatest gathering of Christian people to put over the greatest program for the Kingdom the world has ever seen. It is the opportunity of a lifetime. There is great danger that thousands of worthy, wide-awake preachers will not be able to attend. While wages of all sorts have doubled and, in many instances, trebled and quadrupled, to meet the high cost of living, the preacher alone is serving for about the same salary he did before prices went soaring. The requirements, however, upon him remain the same.

The pastor of a very prominent church said to the writer recently, "I would like very much indeed to attend the Centenary, but I do not see from a financial standpoint how it will be possible." A few members of his flock, learning of this obstacle, very quickly removed it by notifying both him and his wife to get ready to go and stay the entire time and they would take care of the expense.

Every church in Methodism ought to see to it that its pastor is abundantly provided with funds to attend this great gathering. It will return many fold, for every wide-awake preacher will shake a dozen or two sermons out of that gathering. If the church fails to embrace this privilege, let some consecrated layman whom God has blessed with abundance slip enough cash into the preacher's hands to make it possible for him to go and feel comfortable while there.

SOOCHOW HOSPITAL

An enterprise whose "Iron Box" is always heavy and which never closed its books with the balance on the wrong side of the ledger is an enterprise which commands the respect of every sound-minded business man and makes a peculiar appeal to astute, far-seeing Americans.

It is a matter of interest that such an institution is doing business 365 days in the year in the wonderful old city of Soochow, China. This noteworthy enterprise is the Soochow Hospital and is the result of the effort of Dr. W. R. Lambuth, now Bishop Lambuth. Under his direction, medical work was started in Soochow in 1882 and the Hospital was built in 1883.

Dr. W. H. Park, now the oldest medical missionary in China, pioneered its work, and is still a member of its staff. It is said of Dr. Park that in making professional calls by sedan chair, the usual mode of travel in China, he has probably been carried on the shoulders of men more miles than any other American who ever came to China.

The Soochow Hospital is a charity-pay hospital, and the more charity it does the more pay it gets. It makes no paupers, for all have to pay who can, but it never turns the poor away because they are not able to pay the fees.

The work of the hospital is of the highest type. From 13,000 to 20,000 patients are treated during a year, while in surgery it stands second to none. In this connection, special mention might be made of Dr. Snell's four successful removals of the Gasserian ganglian for trifacial neuralgia, and Dr. Russel's operation of thyroidectomy for goitre.

Although, as was mentioned in the opening paragraphs of this article, the Soochow Hospital is self-supporting, it will be understood that the term "self-supporting," as applied to missionary institutions, does not include salaries of missionaries, nor any large building enterprises. For many years now the demands for an increase of staff and an enlargement of plant have been most urgent. The needs of this institution as set forth in the Centenary askings afford a wide opportunity for the consecration of gifts and service that will enlarge its sphere of usefulness and help in carrying on the great work of relieving suffering and reaching the heart of the people of the great city of Soochow.

Dr. Park, the senior member of the staff, in a few words, gives the key to the wonderful success which has attended the enterprise since its beginning. He says: "The Hospital opens its day's work with prayer; its doctors and helpers move in a Christian atmosphere, and many of the men Church members now coming into our Church are started in the right direction by kind treatment in its clinics."

Abundant Health is assured when there is good blood in the veins. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine to make good blood. Begin taking it now. It is just what the system needs at this time and will do you great good. Sharpens the appetite, steadies the nerves.—Adv.

REMEMBER THE GOLDEN RULE.

Perhaps the person is not living who has not certain little peculiarities; but that is no reason why some narrow-minded individual should take it upon herself to weave into whole cloth those tiny, discordant ravelings, and then pass on her "discovery" to any one who will listen. If the listener is a believer in the Golden Rule, she will not only turn a deaf ear to such a recital, but dismiss her uncharitable informant as quickly as possible.—Exchange.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief; too much can not be spoken in behalf of 'Renwar' for rheumatism." Sold by druggists; price 50 cents, or by mail from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

A MAN AND THE WORLD.

The world owes you nothing, unless by your own achievements you have made it your debtor. The man who imagines that the world owes him a living has taken the first step toward knavery; the second step is taken when he tries to collect the debt which is not due him. The greater his success in this, the greater thief he is, if he takes out of the world more than he has put into it.—Lyman Abbott.

Do not be afraid of being on the losing side. Defeat in a good cause is infinitely better than helping to win a victory for a cause in which you do not believe. Stand by your convictions. One who surrenders them in order to win is really on the losing side.—Exchange.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS.

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

Weekly Health Talks

Where Most Sickness Begins and Ends

BY FRANKLIN DUANE, M. D.

It can be said broadly that most human ills begin in the stomach and end in the stomach. Good digestion means good health, and poor digestion means bad health. The minute your stomach fails to properly dispose of the food you eat, troubles begin to crop out in various forms. Indigestion and dyspepsia are the commonest forms, but thin, impure blood, headaches, backaches, pimples, blotches, dizziness, belching, coated tongue, weakness, poor appetite, sleeplessness, coughs, colds and bronchitis are almost as common. There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and is so safe to take, for it is made of roots and herbs. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., stands behind this standard medicine, and it is good to know that so distinguished a physician is proud to have his name identified with it. When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that these remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

If piles are torturing you, get and use Pierce's Anodyne Pile Ointment. The quick relief it gives is hard to believe until you try it. If constipated, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken while using Anodyne Pile Ointment. Few indeed are the cases which these splendid remedies will not relieve and usually overcome. They are so good that nearly every drug store has them for sale.

A CALL TO BE FAITHFUL IN PRAYER.

From the Department of Spiritual Resources, Dr. S. A. Neblett, Secretary, comes an urgent request that the women be faithful in prayer. It is by prayer, and through prayer, that the gift of the "Eight-Day Drive" will be consecrated. The following are suggested topics to include in "Our Daily Intercession" for the days immediately preceding the "Drive" and the opening days of the "Drive:"

14. All pastors and campaign directors.
15. Team captains in the Centenary Drive.
16. Day of prayer, confession of sins, and reconsecration.
17. All workers on Centenary teams.
18. Concerted prayer at 11 a. m. for victory.
19. Centenary campaign on all foreign fields.
20. Centenary Drive in difficult pastoral charges in the home land.

May we women be preparing our sons and daughters in such a way that God can call them. Let us pray that God will call them. Highly honored was the home which placed in its window a deep blue star, signifying that a son had answered his country's call.

Mightily honored will be the home, though no star show in the window, perhaps, where the light and might of God's presence shall abound and bring forth a son or a daughter to answer the magnificent call of the Centenary.

WHAT THE CENTENARY MEANS TO ME.

The Centenary means God's answer to one passion and prayer of my heart for seven years. Ever since my health has not permitted my return to Mexico as a missionary, God has led me to be an intercessory worker in all the world. There has been the burden, in prayer, of the Church at "ease in Zion," self-seeking, pleasure-loving, not only indifferent, but prejudiced against our Lord's last command to take the Gospel to "every creature." There has been an equal burden for the salvation of the millions without a knowledge of our Savior.

The Centenary means to me God chooses to use human instruments to show his power in prayer. I could tell, if space permitted, how God has answered me here, in India and in China.

The Centenary means God delights in boldness in claiming the humanly impossible. In hours alone with God, daily in prayer, when I have been led in passionate yearning over some individual, or over some country of the world to the point where I can say to God, "Thou must, I cannot stand it," He has answered then. The Centenary is such an answer given in the wonderful message to Habbakkuk i, 5: "Behold ye among the nations and look and wonder marvelously; for I am working a work in your days which ye will not believe though it be told you."

So I behold and wonder, praise and pray. LINNIE BARCROFT.

THE CENTENARY MOVEMENT.

The Centenary Movement is not a milestone, but a triumphal arch, spanning the highway of Methodism. On one side are chiseled the names of those who have served and sacrificed, to sow the gospel seed; on the other the signs of the harvest, in a reconsecrated Church, which will be a vital factor in the evangelization of the world. Gleaming on the crest, we read C-hristianize E-very N-ation, T-ithe, E-ntreat, N-obilitate, A-cclaim, R-econsecration, Y-e.

The glory of this archway has been reflected in the heavens, and others, seeing it, have been inspired to erect a similar monument, so that to-day the Christian churches of America are marshaling their forces, under the banner of King Emanuel, to drive Satan to his nether abode, and establish upon earth that "peace which passeth understanding."

BERTHA McGEE SCALES.

DISTRICT SECRETARIES, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The following are the names of the District Secretaries for 1919, which were omitted in the Annual Report:

Alexandria, Mrs. T. E. Brown, Oakdale; Baton Rouge, Mrs. C. S. Stewart; Amite; Lafayette, Mrs. C. E. Fike, Rayne; Monroe, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, Rayville; New Orleans, Mrs. R. H. Harper, 1108 St. Charles Avenue, New Orleans; Ruston, Mrs. S. J. Harrell, Box 35, Haughton; Shreveport, Mrs. Ben Johnson, Mansfield.

WHAT IF THERE WERE NO CENTENARY MOVEMENT?

Where the "people" have "no vision,"
Taught King Solomon of old,
They must "perish" in their blindness;
Let us then the light uphold.
To proclaim His blessed Gospel,
It will you and me behoove,
For the world is full of chaos—
If you're in this movement, move.

If there were no Centenary,
Bolshevism would have sway,
And our problems "Adriatic,"
Be postponed another day:
None would dare rebuke the "grafter,"
Nor the demon "rum" reprove,
In these times of tribulation—
If you're in this movement, move.

'Tis no "hap" or chance, my sister,
While war leaders peace debate,
That one hundred years of effort
We are called to celebrate!
We believe we are "in order,"
And the time we should improve;
Pray, give, work, and go if called on—
If you're in this movement, move.

(Mrs.) A. C. McKINNEY.

THE MASTER'S CHILDREN.

Adapted by Annie Locke MacKinnon.

A weary missionary once fell asleep as she rested after a hard day's work. And as she slept she dreamed that word reached her that the Master was coming. At once she began to make ready for His coming. She sent messengers north, east, south, and west, to call all the children together.

Day dawned, and there were children from all over the world.

There were brown children from India and Persia; there were black children from Africa, and yellow children from China. There were red children and there were white children.

Then she began to arrange them on benches. There were rows and rows of benches as far as the eye could reach just filled with children. She did so want them to be all alike in the eyes of the Master when He came, that she placed the white ones in front, then the red, then the brown, then the yellow, and then the black. But when she looked them over she didn't like to have the black ones so far away. So she brought the little black ones all down to the front, but that left the yellow ones so far away—so far that they would never hear the Master's voice or see His face. Then she brought the yellow ones down in front, but that left the brown ones far back among the shadows.

She did not know what to do. She was anxious to have them ready and right for the Master's coming.

She bowed her head in thought, and as she thought the children began to play with each other, and so became all mingled together. No two alike were at any one place.

Suddenly they heard the steps of the Master approaching, and the missionary bowed her head still lower in shame because she was not ready. But she felt the Master's hand in blessing on her head, and when the Master spoke she looked up at the children, and something wonderful had happened. She saw no little black, red, yellow, brown, or white children. They were just children, and were all alike in the presence of the Master.

"BAYER CROSS" ON ASPIRIN

Always Ask for Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin"

BAYER

Only Aspirin Tablets with the safety "Bayer Cross" on them are genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," owned and made by Americans and proved safe by millions of people. Unknown quantities of fraudulent Aspirin Tablets were sold recently by a Brooklyn dealer which proved to be composed mostly of Talcum Powder.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" should always be asked for. Then look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on each tablet. Accept nothing else! Proper directions and dosage in each Bayer package.

Here's Speedy Relief from Kidney Troubles

"Foley Kidney Pills have done me a heap of good." A. T. Bartlett, Brockton, Mass.

Some days it seems as if you can no longer bear the pain and misery you suffer from kidney and bladder trouble. The ache across your back grows worse with every move you make, and with every step you take. It not only robs you of all your strength and energy, but it affects the other important organs of the body as well. Nervousness, headache, disordered stomach, liver trouble, bad eyesight, are only some of the conditions that follow kidney trouble.

Foley Kidney Pills help the sick weak kidneys to regain their normal healthy state and activity. When they are again able to do their work effectively, your system is no longer choked and blocked with poisonous waste matter. Your symptoms clear up, your weariness, pain, misery and weakness go away. Foley Kidney Pills can do you also a heap of good."

SAVE YOUR SHOES.

Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, not only stops the pain of corns and bunoins, and gives quick relief to sweating, callous, tired, aching, tender feet, blisters and sore spots, but Allen's Foot-Ease rests the feet, keeps them cool and comfortable all the time, saving the constant wear on shoes caused by nervousness of the feet. Shoes and stockings wear twice as long when you walk in comfort. Try Allen's Foot-Ease to-day.

The Romantic Story of Southland's Favorite Shoe, EzWear.

Some five years ago, a prominent citizen of South Carolina, visiting New York on important business, chanced to meet the maker of a shoe built on new and unusual lines; an enthusiastic admirer of its most distinctive features, ease and comfort, had suggested the name EzWear; it was promptly adopted. The business man from the South, knowing how welcome such a shoe would be in his part of the country, urged that its remarkable qualities, including not only comfort, but style, durability and economy, be made known there. That this has been effectively done is proven by the enormous demand that has sprung up in the South for EzWear shoes. It is said that its sale there during the last twelve months has increased fully three hundred per cent. The distributor, Mr. J. R. Simon, of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., says that all who wish to know about a shoe that combines all worth-while shoe qualities, may have a copy of his money-saving shoe book for the asking.

TO THE PASTORS AND PRESIDENTS OF EPWORTH LEAGUES, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Sunday, May 11, is Epworth League Anniversary Day, and I urge that it be properly observed. I would suggest that the night service be given to the League, and the program prepared by the Central Office be used, with such modifications as local conditions warrant. I would be glad if the pastors who have no Leagues would have a service for their young people, and besides the part assigned to the young people, the pastor can make a talk on the League looking to the organization of one. In case it is not convenient to hold the service on the 11th, hold it at a later time. Be sure to take the offering, and impress the need of a liberal one.

Be sure to announce the date of the Annual League Conference, Laurel, June 10, 11, 12, and 13, 1919, and have your Leagues to be represented; and let the church where there is no League get two or more young people to agree to attend.

Let us have your co-operation in making the Anniversary Day a splendid service.

Remember the date of our Conference at Laurel—June 10, 11, 12, and 13.

PEPTIRON IS GOOD

Made from a formula that uses iron in most digestible form, pepsin and gentian, great stomach tonics, nux and celery, the best vegetable remedies for the nerves, and also manganese and other valuable nutrients—there's no question of the value of Peptiron as a blood builder and strengthener.

The larger size of Peptiron contains enough for a full month's treatment, while other so-called iron preparations contain only one-half or less.

The "pep" or promptness with which Peptiron does its work is noted by everyone who takes it.

From the first dose the system responds to the treatment, and you realize you are at last using a medicine that begins right, continues and ends right. Better get a bottle of Peptiron today. Take two Peptiron after each meal—then comes good blood, good appetite, and—pep.

MOST EFFECTIVE AND ECONOMICAL.

An expert pharmacist says that the best treatment he knows of for those whose blood is poor, nerves are weak, livers torpid, or whose systems are generally rundown, is: Hood's Sarsaparilla before eating, Peptiron after eating, and Hood's Pills as necessary.

The ingredient of these medicines are indicated, he says, in most cases of blood impurities, nervousness, paleness, constipation, and are prescribed every day by physicians who have long known their efficacy. They are put up for physicians in preparations whose formulas are similar to those of Hood's Sarsaparilla, Peptiron and Hood's Pills, but these already prepared medicines so combine them as to have superlative merit and to be the most effective and economical preparations in which to take them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, Peptiron and Hood's Pills are products of the C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass., and form their Triple Combination Treatment.—Adv.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Are you planning to attend the conference for elementary workers to be held at New Albany, May 27-28? Mrs. Fant is going to give us a splendid program. This is the first meeting of the kind ever held in this Conference. You must not miss it.

We ought to have fifty of our teachers attend the greatest school of religious education on the continent. That school is at Lake Junaluska and is to be held from July 23 to August 6. Go once and you will want to go again.

How about that campaign for new members? It is time to put it on and bring in the soldier boys that have come back home, and thousands of others. When you bring them in, give them something worth while or they will leave you within two weeks.

Have you received the password of the Centenary? Here it is, "Stewardship." Not only the stewardship of the tithe, but the giving of your entire self and all that moves around yourself. Talk about revivals, this revival of stewardship means more to the world than any of the great spiritual upheavals of the past.

The following facts show how seriously we are taking this revival. To May 1, the Aberdeen District, 8 schools in the Centenary movement; the Corinth, 7; the Columbus, 10; the Durant, 9; the Greenville, 12; the Holly Springs, 21; the Sardis, 11; the Winona, 8. Total, 86. Three more weeks and the great Drive will be over. What part is your school taking in the greatest religious forward movement of the ages? The responsibility is upon us all, but the main responsibility is upon the preacher in charge. Put one hour of prayer behind it and ten minutes of work and the thing will be done and thousands will be happy.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE AT MANY, LA.

The place of the Sunday school in the Church was fully presented on the second day of the conference. Every charge in the district was represented. The speakers on the program gave information and inspiration. It was well attended—we had fully 200 people to hear us. The paper of S. H. Porter, of Zwolle, was ordered to be presented to the Advocate for publication.

Dr. C. K. Ray, of Vivian, gave a strong speech on the duties of the superintendent. The after-dinner speeches were great.

Rev. C. B. Carter gave a toast to the Wesley Bible Class Federation, and interested his hearers, and spoke in great praise of the Methodist Statewide adult Sunday school meeting.

Dr. Geo. Sexton pleased everybody with his toast to the Sunday schools of the Louisiana Conference.

The meeting was managed so well by the local church at Many that everybody was delighted with it. The P. E., Rev. C. D. Atkinson, was always doing the right thing to improve the conference. ALONZO EARLY.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The last Sunday in April was spent with Brother Alford at Kingston and Brother Sharpe at West End, both in Laurel. There was one conversion at Kingston, and quite a number asked for prayer at both places. Eleven pledged to take the training course at Kingston and two at West End. The books were ordered for them. Kingston is planning to build a new church, and from what I can learn of the plan it is a very attractive and, best of all, a most usable building.

Monday, I had the privilege of being with the preachers in their Monday morning meeting. Monday night was spent at Ellisville and we had a fine meeting with Brother Howse and some of his workers.

Wednesday, the District Institute of the Seashore District was held in connection with the district conference. We had two hours given and I think it was a most profitable meeting. Mrs. S. S. Brame, our Conference Elementary worker, was at her best and made a fine impression on all. The district officers who were present gave most interesting and instructive talks. The officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

Active Secretary, George L. Carley, Gulfport; Home Department, J. H. Miner, Lumberton; Teacher-training, Col. J. C. Hardy, Gulfport; Elementary, Miss Stella Provost, Poplarville; Wesley Bible Class, J. A. Vanderwall, Moss Point; Missions, H. B. Rush, Biloxi.

The reports of the preachers were fine, indeed, and many told of professions of faith already in the work. I regretted very much the necessity of having to leave. Pray for me and the work. JOHN C. CHAMBERS
1528 W. Capitol St., Jackson, Miss.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

First: The Sunday School Day programs should be in the hands of each pastor by the time you read this. Let each superintendent ask his pastor for them. Sunday School Day is the same as Children's Day of former years. Only a program for each teacher is necessary to give it.

Second: The Mississippi Conference Sunday School Board is offering a banner to the district which has the largest offering, and the most schools observing the day.

Third: A banner is offered to each district for the charge showing the largest percentage of increase over last year, the number of schools observing the day, and the amount of offering.

Fourth: A banner charge of the Conference will be named and perhaps an award will be given.

Fifth: These announcements will be made and banners given at the Annual Conference at the anniversary of the Sunday School Board.

THIS GIRL IS A WONDER.

Do you want to make more money than you ever possessed? If so, learn to make nut and fruit bonbons—the business will net you $90 to $300 per month. You can handle the work from your own home; all who sample your bonbons become regular customers. You can start by investing less than $10. Mary Elizabeth started her candy kitchen with less than $5, and has made a million. Cannot you make $1,000? I will tell you all about the business and help you start, so you can become independent. Now is the psychological time to make big money, as fine bonbons command phenomenal prices. Write me to-day, Isabella Inez, P. O. Box 1096, Pittsburgh, Pa.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Spring,
Box 17B, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. GOOD SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

The Workers' Council of the Methodist Sunday school held its quarterly dinner at 7:30, Thursday evening, April 10, in the dining-room of the church. Covers were laid for twenty-five guests. We were privileged to have with us Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary. He delivered a most inspiring message, urging us to make the most of our wonderful opportunity for service in the Sunday school.

Friday morning he met with teachers of the Beginners' and Primary Departments, and Friday afternoon, with the Junior teachers. As a result of these meetings, the teachers of the Elementary Department of the Sunday school have ordered teacher-training books and at once will begin work of training all teachers in the prescribed course. SECOND ANNOUNCEMENT.

A Jewish Overture to Christian Clergymen.

So many requests have come to J. M., P. O. Box 202, Noroton Heights, Conn., in response to the offer of a copy, absolutely without charge, of Rabbi H. G. Enelow's "The War and the Bible," that the first edition is exhausted and another edition of the book has been ordered, and is now printing. The Committee is delighted with the number and character of the applications that keep coming in and repeats its invitation to those who have not accepted. So many requests have come from non-clergymen to be allowed to purchase copies, it may be well to say that "The War and the Bible" is a regularly published book which can be had of any bookseller.

Salts if Bachachy and Kidneys Hurt

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a while if your Bladder Troubles You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

Editor Advocate: As we are approaching the end of the first half of our second year on this charge, and having written but once since coming to this field of labor, we will venture a "squih" about what we are doing.

By referring to the Minutes of last year you will observe that Mangham paid out on all its assessments, which were one-third more than that of any previous year. Besides this, we exchanged the small parsonage for a larger one, which is among the best and most comfortable homes in this community. This was done with a cash consideration of $1600 difference, one thousand dollars of this amount being paid by four members. These were Brother J. G. McCormick and Mrs. W. B. Humble, of Mangham church; Brother C. M. Noble of Union Church, and Dr. A. R. Sartor of Little Creek Church, each of these giving $250. Brothers Bascom Chatman and Frank Hatch gave $100 each, and Dr. C. E. McConnell, Brother Tom Bell, Mrs. Dr. Wooton, and Brother Sim Sayro gave $50 each. A number of others gave $25, and smaller amounts.

The house was insured for three years and a supply of nice furniture was purchased. We are now comfortably quartered in one of the best parsonages in the Conference, and conveniently situated for both the town and school, being about the same distance from each. The house has six large rooms, besides three roomy porches, with store and bath-rooms. There is just a fraction less than three acres to the plot of ground. There are a number of fruit trees, and a fine young pecan orchard just beginning to bear. There are two driven wells, one on the porch and another in the lot. There is a good barn and a garage.

We are to have Dan Kelly, of Mississippi, the middle of June, who will hold two meetings for us. I have taken in some "new ground" this year. We are holding services once a month in communities near here, where our people have, with members of other denominations, built union churches. At one of these places, we have recently organized a church with twenty-three members. We have two Missionary Societies which are doing excellent work.

As I did not get to the Conference last November to represent this work in person, I hope this lengthy article will not burden you, or tax the patience of those who may read it. This part of the State is developing wonderfully fast. Many are coming from Mississippi and other places and buying homes. The prospects are that this country, in a few years, will be one of the most thriving sections of the State. Four large brick business houses have been constructed since our coming to this town. One of the buildings is said to be the largest in Richland Parish. A new brick school building was in course of construction when we got here. So it can be seen that the Mangham work is taking rank as one of the strong charges of the Louisiana Conference. We are going to do our best to conserve our forces and take care of the interest of the Lord's cause as championed by Methodism in these parts.

The Rev. Albert S. Lutz, our presiding elder, has just made his first visit to us, having been hindered because of the influenza. This was a great quarterly conference. Brother Lutz preached three excellent sermons on the Centenary. His lecture Sunday night was nothing short of a masterpiece, and was delivered to a crowded house. He is great both in the chair and in the pulpit.

My board of stewards very kindly advanced our support $300 over that of last year. The assessment for ministerial support, as it now stands, is $2070—$270 for the P. E. and $1800 for the P. C. Our assessment for the benevolences is about $500, a little advance over last year, and our quota for the Centenary is $6000. So you see we are planning great things for our Lord's kingdom at this place.

I am, yours in Christ,
J. M. ALFORD, Pastor.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing.

GENERAL FOCH FINDS TIME TO PRAY

A California boy—Evans by name—with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, has recently written a letter to his parents in San Bernardino, in which he tells of meeting General Foch at close range in France.

Evans had gone into an old church to have a look at it, and as he stood there with bared head satisfying his respectful curiosity a gray man, with the eagles of a general on the collar of his shabby uniform, also entered the church.

Only one orderly accompanied the quiet, gray man. No glittering staff of officers, no entourage of gold-laced aides were with him; nobody but just the orderly.

Evans paid small attention at first to the gray man, but was curious to see him kneel in the church, praying. The minutes passed until full three-quarters of an hour had gone by before the gray man arose from his knees.

Then Evans followed him down the street, and was surprised to see soldiers salute this man in great excitement, and women and children stopping in their tracks with awe-struck faces as he passed.

It was Foch. And now Evans, of San Bernardino, counts the experience as the greatest in his life.

During that three-quarters of an hour that the gentleman of all the Allied armies was on his knees in humble supplication in that quiet church, ten thousand guns were roaring at his word on a hundred hills that rocked with death.

Millions of armed men crouched in trenches or rushed across blood-drenched earth at his command; generals and field-marshals, artillery, cavalry, engineers, tanks, fought and wrought across the map of Europe absolutely as he commanded them to do, and in no other manner, as he went into that little church to pray.

Nor was it an unusual thing for General Foch to do. There is no day that he does not do the same thing if there be a church that he can reach. He never fails to spend an hour on his knees every morning that he awakes from sleep, and every night it is the same.

Moreover, it is not a new thing with him. He has done it his whole life. —Los Angeles Times.

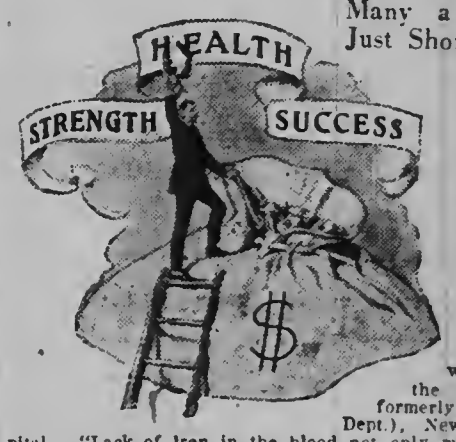
Why Lack of Iron In The Blood May Be Costing You Money Every Day

Many a Capable Man or Woman Falls Just Short of Winning Because They Don't Back Up Their Mentality With Physical Strength and Energy.



Get some of the money—don't let the other fellow have it all just because you are too weak, nervous and run-down to go after it with the same vim that gets him what he wants. Make yourself a man of blood and iron—a woman of power and vitality.

"Many a capable man or woman falls just short of winning because they don't back up their mentality with the physical strength and energy which come from having plenty of iron in the blood" says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital. "Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina, and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians and which is now being used by over three million people annually, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well-known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

What If Your Own Were Starving?

From a suffering, devastated nation comes a Macedonian cry—the cry of a homeless, hopeless people, the cry of starving widows and orphans. They are starving for lack of food, clothing, shelter, Christian guidance and love. What are YOU going to do about it?

These heathen hosts need our help. They need our schools, our hospitals, our civilization.

They need our Christian religion and all that it will mean to their dull, despairing lives.

Is It Through Any Special Merit of Yours That You Are Not As These?

This Might be Your Own Little Girl, You Know

She isn't ten years old, but some days she picks 150 pounds of cotton. She needs a chance—a chance for an education, Christian training, for play and childhood's right to be happy. Our country can never be really "safe" for anything as long as its children are not protected. The Centenary comes as a ransom to childhood.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU THAT THESE NEEDY ONES PERISH FOR WHAT YOU HAVE TO GIVE? THAT MONEY, THAT PROPERTY WHICH YOU CALL YOURS is only held in trust. God, the owner, your father and theirs, wants these, his other children, to share what you hold for him. THE TENTH IS THE LORD'S. THE TENTH IS THE MINIMUM. Your part may be more.

FOR THE SAKE OF HIM WHO HAD NOT WHERE TO LAY HIS HEAD—will you not have pity on such as these and pay your full part of the $35,000,000?

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE VICTORY LOAN SUCCESSFUL.

According to official reports, the Victory Loan has been oversubscribed by more than fifteen million American citizens who were able and willing to assist the Government in meeting its obligations incurred in its fight for freedom throughout the world. We are glad to note that Louisiana and Mississippi did all that was expected of them. These two States have stood in the forefront of patriotic endeavor.

THE MARTYR NURSE.

The body of Edith Cavell, the English nurse who was summarily executed by the Germans in 1915, has been exhumed and carried to England for interment in its native soil. Military honors will be given at the funeral services, which will be held in Westminster Abbey. This event, in addition to the recognition it gives to the services of the heroic nurse, serves to call attention to the heartless brutality of the Huns at a time when they are complaining of the harshness of the peace terms. We wonder on what grounds they expect to be admitted to the League of Nations in the near future.

THE FIGHT AGAINST PROHIBITION.

Ordinarily, the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States is supposed to put an end to whatever controversy there may have been concerning the matter at issue. But the adoption of the prohibition amendment has not so resulted. The liquor forces of the country seem deliberately to have set themselves to do everything in their power to discount the validity of the amendment and to make its enforcement impossible. We read that they are planning a monster parade to take place in Washington when President Wilson returns from France to show him that the sentiment of the country is opposed to prohibition. They claim that they will have 250,000 men in line as a protest against what they are pleased to call "interference with personal liberty." They may be able to secure that number of men to march under their banners; we presume that as much as is necessary of the millions of dollars they are reported to have at their command will be used in getting together their supporters from all sections of the country. We should think it not a difficult thing to arrange in any large city in the land with a considerable "floating" population and good railroad connections. But a parade of the kind indicated will not prove that the American people did not know what they were doing when they outlawed the most pernicious business that has ever fastened itself upon a free people. Neither will the loudly acclaimed "indignation" of the returned soldiers at finding a "dry" homeland accomplish the purpose of the brewers and their agents. This country has adopted prohibition after many years of education and agitation concerning the evils of the liquor traffic. "This thing was not done in a corner." And, so far as we are concerned, it would make no difference in our opinion if every soldier who went overseas had returned in favor of the licensed saloon. Their absence has not especially qualified them as censors of public morals and economic reform, and it certainly has not given them the right to dictate the policies of their fellow citizens, right or wrong. But we do not take it for granted that the majority of our returned soldiers are in favor of saloons. We believe that the soldier vote would strengthen the majority that has been steadily growing in this country for the elimination of the liquor traffic. We must, as prohibitionists, however, be on our guard lest we become over-confident because of the victory we have gained and allow our opponents to make void what we have labored so hard to achieve. As we have suggested before, demobilization of the prohibition forces has not yet taken place; and until it has, we must be ready for any situation that may develop.

CAN IT BE POSSIBLE?

Miss Elizabeth Marbury, a war worker under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, is quoted in a newspaper interview as saying: "I think anybody who has control over a young woman is doing very wrong to let her go to France to entertain soldiers and dance with them, and so on. Of course young girls were needed for nurses, and it was doubtless all right for them to go in that capacity; but as canteen workers and entertainers, no. * * * Seventy-five per cent of the young women who went to do war work smoked cigarettes." We are glad this note of warning has been sounded, by one who is evidently qualified to speak, about overseas service for immature and inexperienced young women—Miss Marbury's opinion is based upon observation. But we are amazed at the declaration she makes concerning the smoking of cigarettes by these girls who have gone abroad. We have been opposed all along to the persistent campaign to make our army a cigarette-smoking army; we knew, from the very nature of the case, that a great many boys and young men who had never formed the habit would succumb to the temptation so insidiously presented to them in camp and on the battlefield. After making full allowance for the good motives of those who have been instrumental in distributing cigarettes to the soldiers, we still believe that it was a part of a well-conceived plan on the part of the tobacco manufacturers to extend their business after the war. But that our girls should take up the habit! We sincerely hope that Miss Marbury is wrong in her estimate of the number of girls who have succumbed to the pernicious cigarette. Public opinion in the United States should make it impossible for this thing to become fixed upon our womanhood. A generation of cigarette-smoking mothers will lower the physical and moral standards of the race beyond computation.

THE PEACE TERMS.

We take it that everybody is pretty well satisfied with the terms of peace offered the Germans except the Germans themselves. And they were not expected to receive them hilariously. We have read the synopsis of the peace treaty as given in the press dispatches as carefully as we could. We do not profess to be able to understand fully and exactly what has taken the great statesmen of the world months to produce; but our conviction is that a most difficult task has been admirably done. Without vindictiveness, the Allies have laid down terms that comport with justice in establishing responsibility for the war, in securing reparation, so far as possible, for the evil that has been wrought, in imposing penalties for the violation of the laws of nations, and in securing protection for the future. The extradition and trial of the ex-Kaiser, the imposition of heavy damages, the territorial limitations of the German Government, and the practical destruction of the military and naval power of the Central Powers, are conditions that will meet the approval of a world that was brought almost to destruction by the reckless acts and unprincipled conduct of a whole people led by their selfish and imperious rulers. A "soft peace" should have been as unthinkable to the Germans as an unjust one was to the Allies. The deliberate, passionless criminal has no right to expect a maudlin sentimentality to sway the scales of justice. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap," expresses a principle that is as eternal as it is just, and that is as applicable to a nation as it is to an individual. The opinion seems to hold in some quarters that the Germans will not sign the treaty; our opinion is that they will—we recall something of a familiar adage about "jumping out of the frying pan into the fire."

IT MUST STOP.

The countenancing of lynching is as direct a thrust at civilization as anything we can conceive of. It means that law is not regarded, life has no protection, morality has sunk to a low ebb, and the pillars of society have crumbled at their foundations. Lynching is as much a crime against the individual and against society as premeditated murder. It substitutes violence for the orderly processes of court procedure, and allows passion to usurp the throne of reason in administering justice. It sneaks to its dastardly work often under the cover of darkness and hides its face behind masks. It is essentially lawless, cruel, and cowardly. We do not believe that a considerable proportion of the citizenship of any community approves lynching; but there is an inertness of public opinion that makes it difficult to lay hold of the members of a mob, and a false conception of duty that makes it hard to convict them if apprehended. Too often the officers of the law are perfunctory in their efforts to discover the perpetrators of the outrage, if not actually faithless in the performance of their sworn duty. This crime against humanity can be stopped by the determined efforts of law-abiding citizens, and the time has come for them to assert themselves in unmistakable terms.

THE NIGHT PERFECT.

I thank Thee, God, for the perfect night,
The crown of a perfect day.
As the sunset fell in its glowing light
And the dear day passed away,
The calm moon rose in the eastern sky,
While the stars came, one by one,
And I bade farewell to the vanished day,
With its mission of service done.

Came the perfect night, and all was still
Save the thrush-note's distant call,
And I felt again the tranquil thrill
Of a Presence Divine o'er all.
Then my grateful soul knew the spell of prayer
Unuttered, but all sincere,
As I gave myself to the Shepherd's care,
In the sleep that knows no fear.

VANISHED HANDS.

By J. Marvin Nichols.

The twilight hour had come. The last lingering rays were fading beyond the western hills. The stars had appeared on duty for their long night vigil. The soft southern zephyrs were fanning my tired brow. The fragrant aroma of the tall magnolia and the full-blown lilac were borne to me on the evening breeze. Somewhere from out the evening hush my listening love heard the rustle of a wing. I caught the vision of a baby's face that vanished in the long ago. How thin the veil! Just beyond the flesh, the air was populous with the spirits of my loved and lost. Across the vale of tears, beyond the valley of sighs, I reach toward a beautiful Isle of Somewhere and dwell again with her whose footfall I no longer hear. In that hour of reverie, suddenly a merry child burst into my room. In a clear, flute-like tone, it broke into a wild ecstatic glee. A piano sat in the shadow of the opposite corner. Its keys were without the touch of human hands. The silver chords were dumb and silent. The moment the child uttered its cry of joy my ear caught the sound of soft and distant music. I listened intently. The child's voice had started a sound wave and the piano was gathering it all into one sweet and delightful harmony. And the happy child went away. Like phantoms, multitudes of thoughts trooped in upon me. The dying melody of those silver chords, whose silent tongues were set a-going, stirred me profoundly. Whittier's soliloquy, in "My Soul and I," came to me with renewed power:

Like warp and woof all destinies
Are woven fast,
Linked in sympathy like the keys
Of an organ vast.
Pluck one thread, and the web ye mar;
Break but one
Of a thousand keys, and the paining jar
Through all will run.

Are not our hearts like harps of a thousand strings? Do they not gather unto themselves the vanished voices and the memories of the long ago? Will not the music be like that of some grand cathedral choir whose melodies will reach a distant shore? Ah! your soul may be silent now. But in some twilight hour your ear shall catch the sound of distant voices and your soul will feel once more the touch of a vanished hand. If your heart-chords are swept by spirits who live beyond the shadows, the music will never die. But there is a note whose harmony is soon gone—it soon fades away, for

Time has laid his hand
Upon my heart, gently, not smiting it,
But as the harper lays his open palm
Upon his harp, to deaden its vibrations.

"OVER THERE."

The "S. O. S."

By Elmer C. Gunn.

V.

Dear Mr. Editor: When I landed at Brest, France, last year, I was very much a "rookie" in regard to the terms used to indicate movements and sections of the A. E. F. Among the first expressions that puzzled me was "the S. O. S." People talked casually about that as though the whole ocean had spread itself out over a certain area of the A. E. F., and ships of all descriptions were calling by wireless in all directions for help. That was because I had never heard that term used except in connection with wireless telegraphy at sea. But I made some important discoveries before I had been here long, and one of them is that the "S. O. S." is about the biggest thing in connection with our part of this war. It means simply "The Service of Supplies" for all the armies of the American Expeditionary Forces, without which the Army itself would be at the mercy of the elements, the enemies, and an almost infinite array of loathsome and pestilent disease. We get into the habit of feeling that all war begins and ends in the trenches and hospitals. It is true that all war gets its advertisement, if I may use that word, from the trenches and hospitals, but it is also true that even the work in the trenches and the efficiency of the hospitals depend upon the effectiveness of the Service of Supplies.

Take a pencil and trace a line on your map beginning at Le Havre, on the northern coast of France, taking a southerly direction to Paris, thence south-eastward to Lyon, thence to Bordeaux, and you will have practically all the area covered by the vast system of the Service of Supplies. This system undertakes to do, and this time it actually did, what Napoleon made so bleak a failure of in one or more of his campaigns—that is, it kept the men who are fighting well supplied with necessary food, clothing and ammunition. Let us remember that any port of debarkation is at least three thousand miles from any port of embarkation; let us remember, also, that the railroad facilities found here by the U. S. were hopelessly inadequate to supply even the French armies; let us remember that the man-power when the need was greatest was no more than fifty per cent of what it should have been, and in the light of these facts let us give credit to the men who fought so well the battles of service in the "S. O. S." as to be able to say in the light of experience that no soldier went so hungry as to make him a prey to disease or the enemy, that none went with insufficient clothing, and that no gun was surrendered to the Hun because of lack of ammunition. Behind the Armies that won the day at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne has stood the tremendous organization of Supplies and when the story of the war is justly written not the least of the services of salvation for the world will be found to have been done back here. I wish to tell specifically about one station from which a great deal of the work of supplies has been done. That station is Gievres, where General Intermediate Supply Depot No. 2 is located. There are here five subposts, namely, the Engineers, the Ordnance, the Medical (within which is a great Signal Service Depot), the West and the Quartermaster. It is with the Quartermaster Subpost I wish to deal, since I am the Chaplain here, also since it is far and away the largest of them all. As indicated by its name, it has to do entirely with supplies for armies, and through its warehouses millions of tons of stuff have passed these last twelve months. Located within the bounds of this subpost and worked by its personnel, is the largest ice plant in Europe, and second largest in the world. The man in charge of the plant is head of one of the biggest packing firms in the world, but over here he looks after the details of this work and draws a captain's pay. His income is $750,000 per year, and he is working for $200 per month. When the Armistico was signed, material, carpenters and personnel were at hand to double this plant, making it just twice as large as it is now. The end of the war put a stop to construction, but this would have been a whale if they had carried out their intentions, wouldn't it?

There are within the bounds of this subpost over one hundred warehouses, with an average length of 500 feet. There are 7,500 soldiers living here in nearly 150 barracks, when, on January 1, 1918, the building consisted of one lonesome warehouse and one shack for an officer. By the way, it is on record that one of the tremendous projects located near here was submitted to the French on paper, with a request that they bid for the business of constructing it. After a long time of figuring and consultation, the French answered that they thought it would be possible for them to do the work required and that they would contract for it agreeing to finish it by 1928. Our leaders smiled, went ahead with the work in their way and completed the entire plant in little more than half as many months as the French had wanted years. Something in American efficiency after all, it seems. Within this great system of warehouses one may find anything he wishes in the way of supplies or equipment, "from a box of matches to a Cadillac eight;" foodstuffs, such as beans, flour, corn, fresh beef, canned meats, all kinds of soup, canned milk, etc. Also more than two thousand tons of smoking tobacco are kept on hand. Enough, it is said, is here, if every New York man, woman and child "rolled their own" to issue each one of them a four-tenths ounce daily allowance for one year and four months, while at the same time every one in Chicago could be furnished with chewing tobacco for 11 days and still there would be enough cigarettes to give a day's ration to every person in Philadelphia. Hundreds of thousands of blankets, puttees and O. D. furnishings of all sorts are kept here. The Red Cross had at one time last winter one hundred thousand pairs of pajamas in their warehouses, all of which are available for the boys who are fighting the battles and finishing the work.

The total length of the warehouses is nine miles. There are in the yards here more than four hundred miles of railway, all of which has been put here by American engineers in the last 14 months. The railroad work is done by American engineers who pull only American engines. American cars also are very numerous, though they are not used altogether. To see two of the great "gons" with a tiny French car between is really ludicrous. Frequently the engine drivers forget where they are, slam one of our cars into a French "toy" and the result is French kindling wood.

At the time of the Armistice we had practically completed a coffee-roasting plant with a capacity for roasting, grinding and sacking one million rations of coffee per day. We had on hand 858 tons of manilla rope, 1497 tons of horseshoes and mule-shoes and 45,442 bake pans.

We have our own electric lighting plant and the camp is as well lighted as any modern city. We have a shoe repairing shop which works 15 to 40 men.

Just by my hut there is a small, black pile consisting of thirty thousand tons of coal. If I were to get too restless and homesick, I could go out and shovel some of this along with the hundreds of men who are working there, but I have not grown quite so desperate as that yet.

Our school system in the subpost is working nicely. We have several hundred men enrolled both for elementary and advanced classes. While it is not possible to give the men all the technical work of the high school and college, we have found it a practical thing to give them advanced courses in any study they desire. It is a well organized and a well worked system we are using and it gets results.

Not many of our men are going home yet and this is because the work of Supplies has to be carried on as long as there are troops to be supplied. January was the biggest month we have had as a depot, three hundred and twelve thousand tons of supplies having been handled at that time by our subpost. Since one-fourth of the A. E. F. has already returned home, it is natural to suppose that our work will begin to decrease in the near future, but in the meantime we want you to keep in touch with us. Try to get a view of the vastness of the work that has been undertaken and put over here in the last fourteen months and remember that the men of the "S. O. S." have had their trials and difficulties just as much so as those who have fought at the front. Here we have had all the burden and weight of the war without its thrills, all the work without the romance, all the heartbreaking effort without the uplifting enthusiasm of travel, risk, or adventure. University graduates have been pegging away as stenographers, millionaires working as day laborers, high-class professional men doing their bit checking on the yards, spotting cars, taking dictation, copying orders, typewriting and all the other work incident to such an institution as this, but they have done it gladly and willingly and they deserve all credit, do they not, as REAL soldiers of Uncle Sam?

Gievres, France, March 29, 1919.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Shreveport District Conference met in opening session at the Methodist Church, Many, La., on Tuesday, April 22, 1919, the Rev. Bishop John C. Kilgo in the chair. Bishop Kilgo led the devotional exercises and administered the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

The roll of the Conference was called and forty-three were reported present, representing 20 pastoral charges.

Rev. W. W. Drake was elected secretary and, upon nomination of the secretary, Leland Clegg was elected to serve as his assistant.

The roll of charges was called and a number of the pastors made their reports. Rev. W. S. Henery, of Leesville, reported $17,000, raised for erecting the new house of worship. Rev. S. A. Seegers, from the Bayou La Chute charge, reported that a Ford car had been bought and turned over to the Mission work in South Louisiana, and that a new house of worship would soon be erected by the congregation at Bayou La Chute.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, P. E., of the Monroe District; Rev. Alonzo Early, Field Secretary of the Conference Sunday School Board, and Rev. Briscoe Carter, P. E., of the Alexandria District, were introduced to the Conference.

Bishop Kilgo preached at the evening hour.

Reports from the different charges were resumed on the second day, and R. T. Ware reported a Bible class of fifty. The report from First Church was very interesting, being one of the features of the Conference. Rev. W. W. Drake told of the wonderful development of the Noel Memorial Church, especially of the Sunday school.

The hour having arrived for the program of the Sunday School Institute, Rev. Alonzo Early came to the chair, and Mr. S. H. Porter spoke on "The Relation of the Pastor to the Sunday School;" Rev. P. O. Lowrey spoke on "The Necessity of More Accurate Records." The address of Mr. Porter brought about much comment, and, upon motion of Rev. S. J. Davies, he was requested to prepare it for publication and place it in the hands of the secretary. The hour having arrived for the preaching of the Word, the Conference stood adjourned to hear a sermon on "Christian Education," by Rev. W. W. Drake.

The Sunday School Institute was continued in the afternoon, and Dr. C. K. Ray spoke on "The Duties of a Superintendent." Prof. R. E. Bobbitt discussed the importance of teacher-training, and the Institute closed with ten-minute-talks on the Sunday School Campaign, by H. W. Ledbetter and S. A. Seegers.

Mr. Jas. B. Grambling, President of the State Epworth League, was introduced to the Conference and spoke briefly on the work in the State, especially of the Assembly at Mansfield in June.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Missionary Centenary Secretary, was introduced to the Conference.

The roll of local preachers was called, their license renewed and their characters passed.

There was no application for license to preach or for recommendation to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

Rev. Robert Bozeman was recommended to the Annual Conference for deacon's orders.

The following were elected as delegates to the Annual Conference: W. T. Dowling, J. W. Dean, E. L. Joyner, J. M. Robinson, Dr. C. K. Ray, Mrs. P. H. Moon, Dr. J. M. Middleton and J. C. Foster. S. H. Porter, Walter Mitchel, A. H. Horton, Mrs. Ben Johnson and A. J. Scott were elected to serve as alternates.

Rev. A. S. Lutz preached at the evening hour.

On the third day the Centenary Program was taken up, and C. D. Atkinson and Prof. Bobbitt spoke on the Centenary.

The need of men to fill the pulpit in every church in the district, May 11 and 18, was discussed and a committee was appointed to meet the need.

Rev. W. W. Drake reported for the committee on resolutions. The report was adopted, and resolution 2, 3, 4 and 5 were ordered published in the Advocate.

This was pronounced the best District Conference in the history of the district, and especially of the last four years.

The Conference stood adjourned, sine die, to hear a sermon by Dr. S. A. Steele, on "Missions."

The hospitality of Many was great; the efforts of Rev. J. B. Williams, the host, were untiring; the preaching was deeply spiritual, and the spirit of unity and brotherly love unexcelled.

CLUB-FIST.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

During one of the winter evenings I sat in a circle where the children had great sport, and also renewed my youth by the games that they played; among the amusements was one known, from all time, as Club-Fist, in which, with hands piled upon hands holding to extended thumbs, the question began, "What you got there?" "Bread and cheese;" "Take it off or knock it off!" at which the party holding hand replies as he may wish, and acts accordingly. When the last fist but one has been either taken off or knocked off, as may have been chosen, then the question further is, "Where's my share?" and so on—as doubtless every reader of this knows better than I can tell—about the rat, the cat, the dog, and the ox, and the rope, and the butcher, the church door, the smile or grin, etc.

Hearing the question, "Where's my share?" put so often, I began to muse and in my ruminations I said, "Yes, for forty and five years I've been in the service of the public; and out of it all, "Where's my share?" Curiosity led me to begin a research, so with pencil in hand and the file of the Conference Minutes running from 1874, I began investigation, based upon salaries assessed and receipts upon the same, those forty and five years. First, I made discovery that the pastorates had been an average of three years, making an aggregate of fifteen charges. Second, I find that only five of these charges paid what they promised, and that "my share, which is still in the pockets of others, amounts to $2018, which would go far in these latter years in making a home, furnished with a few of the conveniences of these modern days.

As I went through the records, my curiosity was stirred; so that in the "recapitulation" column I made the almost alarming discovery that in these forty-five years the pastors in the Mississippi Conference had suffered the loss of the enormous sum of $350,000 "hire of laborers which had been kept back by fraud," as St. James puts it.

Early in my ministry I learned that the salary was based upon, not what are his qualifications or what may we expect from his ministry—not what will be the value of his services, but "How much can he live upon?" Indeed, the president of the board of stewards of the largest and wealthiest church I ever served put that question to me direct, to which I made reply, "That depends how and where you expect me to live." Doubtless the how and where of the pastor's living has had much to do with his success or failure to meet the demands of his church.

Again, I find that in some of these deficits the amounts are so small that there were individual members who could have met the deficit, and, divided among the members of the boards, would have been a mere bagatelle. It also appears that the largest percentage of deficits came when the salaries were smallest, and at the time when books must be brought, if I kept the injunction of St. Paul to his son in the ministry, "Study to show thyself approved of God, rightly dividing the word of truth." In this study, as I have recalled the evident inability of some, I have been forcibly reminded of St. Paul's commendation of the churches in Macedonia. One charge which fell behind $175 the first year, on the same assessment paid in full the remaining three; another charge of three years increased from $720 to $800 and came out with a surplus. And that which pleases my vanity most of all is that, almost without exception, my successor received an increase of assessment, the reason for which must be determined by the reader.

One very encouraging feature of my research has been that within the past decades the salaries assessed have been more liberal and the percentage of deficit has been greatly reduced—our people are beginning to value their ministers more highly for their work's sake; and so may it continue until the minister shall receive for his services as other men and not upon the basis of "what can he subsist upon." To some this may be dry; if so, "So mote it be."

REPORT FROM J. W. BAKER, LOCAL DIRECTOR, LAKE CHARLES, LA., APRIL 28, 1919.

My organization is complete, my teams selected, lists and cards all prepared and ready for Saturday, May 17; arrangements for suppers and lunches made, and have gone over the plan of campaign with everybody connected with the drive; and on Friday night last I staged a rehearsal of the drawing to take place the night of the 17th, having the 12 teams all seated at their respective tables and using lists and cards, which I had prepared for the occasion, using fictitious names. The rehearsal was a success and I think our machinery is well greased. Lake Charles is in every way ready for the drive, with 12 trained teams.

REMINISCENT—AN ECHO OF YESTERDAY.

By Payton A. Sowell.

When, on March 5, 1835, Bishop Wm. McKendree "fell on sleep," his going marked in a more or less perceptible sense a recession from the really heroic period of the planting of Methodism in these United States. It is true that for a long time the itinerants did valiantly; but the spirit of real forgetfulness of self, and the lavish use of all strength in the wonderful service, was never so great after McKendree died. He was the first great American leader—an American who had followed the flag of the thirteen Colonies; he it was who led the thin but growing line of itinerants into the wilderness in its conquest.

The name of Bishop Waugh appears in the Minutes in 1836. Elijah Steel came into the itinerant ranks in Mississippi this year. Without information, there is room to suppose our own eloquent Dr. S. A. Steel is related to this pioneer itinerant.

Thirteen were admitted into the Mississippi Conference in 1837. The same year, Mark W. Gray, a half-brother of Robt. J. Harp, of Louisiana, was admitted into the Tennessee Conference.

At this date—1837—there were 113 white members in New Orleans—eighty-two years ago; at Baton Rouge, 95; at Vicksburg, 100. At that time, Wm. Winans was presiding elder of the New Orleans District; and Jefferson Hamilton, preacher in charge. Those early Methodists, whether their membership was large or small, or the salary full or meager, of one thing the historian can feel safe in writing—they had great preaching, for these were giants. This same year Thos. L. Boswell, father of Dr. J. W. Boswell, once the editor of the New Orleans Advocate, entered the Tennessee Conference.

Before 1839 the States of Mississippi and Louisiana were in the Mississippi Conference. At that time, two districts in Texas—San Augustine and Rutersville—were included. Certainly under such circumstances there was no dearth of territory. By 1841 there were two charges—Poydras and Spain Street—in New Orleans; and soon or at that time, Lafayette Street and a mission also. In 1842, Moreau Street and Carrollton existed. Through these years, the names of Pipkin and Winans frequently appear in connection with New Orleans. In 1844 Poydras Street had 216 members; Moreau, 122; Devergeburg, 284; the German church, 60. The men who wrought in those days must have had great difficulties, but, considering those things, they had frult for their toil. About this time, maybe 1843, Malachiah DuBose was received into the Conference. One queries, "was he a relative of the Bishop?"

This year—1844—the fateful separation came. Men on both sides, of brain and loyalty, finally passed the "Plan of Separation"—and there was a Methodist Church, North, and a Methodist Church, South. We can have but one conclusion: If they had remained united, in spirit and service, the results in the United States, and in the world, would have been much more stupendous. Both sides—both Methodisms—have, in these seventy-five years, performed great tasks. Some day, when they finally see eye to eye, may they be one again. Mr. Lincoln said: "The Methodist Church sends more prayers to heaven and soldiers to the camps than any other church." So Mr. Davis could have said of the M. E. Church, South.

In 1845, our bishops were Soule, Andrew, Capers, and Paine. There were physical changes made in the General Minutes this year as to convenience.

This year, 1846, the Louisiana Conference took its place among the sisterhood of Conferences. The secretaries were either modest or conserving of work and records, for they do not give the place of meeting, or the action of the General Conference authorizing the formation. The only record is "January, 1847," showing the Conference year to be 1846-1847. The Conference began to grow at the first, not by strides, but moderately. Admitted: Christopher C. Preston, Wm. C. Chamberlain, Alex E. Goodwyn, and Zach Thompson—4. Remaining on trial: Henry B. Page, Thos. J. Lacy, David S. Watkins, Reynolds Trippitt, and Uriah Whatley—5. Coming into full connection: Lewis A. Reed, Ed. F. Thwing, R. J. Harp, Chas. J. Halburg and Wm. R. Gober—5. R. J Harp, was reared, and perhaps born, in Lawrence County, Tennessee. When a boy he lived at least a few years on a farm that adjoined the one which afterwards became my father's, and which was my boyhood home. It is more than possible that he was converted at the Old Pleasant Grove Camp Ground, which was in sight of our house. I have many, many times been under the great wooden shelter where he and hundreds were converted. Mr. Murrah said of the young man when he left his home to begin the ministry, "He is smart enough to preach." Ordained Elder: Stephen J. Davies, Frederick P. Nixon, Thos. C. Tinder, John M. Titcomb and Philo M. Godwin—5.

Located: Malachiah DuBose, Daniel Dealy, Thomas Price and Lysander Wiley—4. Perhaps these good men had gone to their lengths in sacrifices and sufferings, and this undeveloped field now stretching before them was a greater sacrifice than they could make. Supernumerary: Wm. Stephens—1. Superannuated: Samuel Walker—1. Withdrawn: Wm. Nicholson—1. Expelled: Farquhar Mathieson—1. Everything Methodistic was carried out at this first Conference.

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

The seventy-sixth session of Port Gibson Female College has passed into history, and, considering the difficulties under which we labored, we must pronounce it quite a successful session. We opened on September 4, 1918, with our dormitories almost full. Soon we were visited by that very unwelcome visitor, influenza, which walked up and down the land seeking whom he might afflict, which thinned our ranks considerably; but we did not lose a patient, and did not close our doors a single day.

Rev. M. L. Burton, pastor of the Port Gibson Methodist Church, preached our commencement sermon on April 27. The day was almost ideal. The house was filled with eager auditors. The preacher was at his best. For purity of diction, profundity of thought and forceful argumentation the sermon could hardly be surpassed.

Monday morning, April 28, Brother Burton delivered the baccalaureate address. This address was indeed a masterpiece. Such flights of oratory, such logical reasoning, such striking presentation of historical facts, such thoughtful suggestions, such forceful and timely illustrations we seldom hear.

Nine of our pupils received degrees. Ten received certificates and department diplomas. Eleven received from the State Board of Education, upon their examinations here in the College, State Teachers' Licenses.

This closes our five-year contract with the Board of Trustees here. Five years of hard work and checkered experiences these have been. Some successes we have achieved, some reverses we have suffered, but the many kind words we hear from our friends, and the successful career of many of our graduates, persuade us that our work here has not been in vain.

We shall go from Port Gibson with many happy memories clustering around our sojourn here.

Just here we wish to congratulate the Trustees and patrons of the school, and the entire Church, on their good fortune in securing Dr. Rolfe Hunt for president of the school. Without reserve in any degree, I heartily recommend Dr. Hunt as worthy of the full confidence and support and patronage of all who are interested in Christian education. If the Church will give to Dr. Hunt the support that his ability and the merits of the institution should command, I prophesy for the institution, under his presidency, unprecedented prosperity.

T. J. O'NEIL.

IN MEMORIAM—MRS. W. H. LaPRADE.

By F. N. Parker.

A large circle of friends have sustained a great loss in the death of Mrs. W. H. LaPrade. Gracious memories throng our minds as we realize that she is no longer in our midst. To recall something of her life and work will be a benediction to those who knew and loved her.

Mrs. LaPrade was Miss Carrie Smith, a daughter of Rev. Dr. Luther M. Smith, a distinguished minister and educator. He was for many years Professor of the Greek Language and Literature at Emory College, and afterwards president of the Southern University at Greensboro, Ala. Her mother was the daughter of Mrs. Greenwood, who married Bishop Jas. O. Andrew.

Mrs. LaPrade was a native of Oxford, Ga., and never ceased to cherish the warmest affection for the scenes of her early life, especially Oxford, the old college town with rich memories of the good and great whose lives passed that way. Here her husband and son both graduated and entered into the heritage of blessing which this Christian college has given to Georgia and the South.

Mrs. LaPrade graduated from Wesleyan Female College in 1869. On December 2, 1873, she was married to Rev. W. H. LaPrade, of the North Georgia Conference, M. E. Church, South. Of this marriage, two children were born, Carrie Smith and William Henry, now an honored minister in the old Conference where his father's ministry began.

Mrs. LaPrade was widely known as an active worker in the missionary organizations of the Church. For several years she was President of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Georgia Conference. After the transfer of Dr. LaPrade to the Louisiana Conference, in 1890, she became president of the Louisiana Conference Society. She was afterwards corresponding secretary of the Mississippi Conference Society, Dr. LaPrade having transferred to that Conference in 1904. She was for many years a member of the Missionary Conference of the M. E. Church, South, afterwards known as the Woman's Missionary Council.

Mrs. LaPrade was thoroughly at home in all departments of our church life, but she was preeminent in her wide knowledge of missionary facts and principles. It was not merely a matter of Church loyalty or religious sentiment. The movements of the kingdom of God created the supreme issues. Missionary policies looked forward to the ultimate welfare of States and nations. The measure of the Church's enlightenment and power for service was its grasp upon world-wide evangelism. How she would have rejoiced to participate in the present great Centenary campaign! Her conceptions were large. Narrow plans and slow responses in view of great opportunities fell short of her faith and vision.

She knew and loved the doctrines and principles of her Church. She was an intense believer in its polity, but was progressive in the best sense. She had a comprehensive grasp of Christianity as a whole and knew the special place of Methodism in the larger sphere of Christian history.

Mrs. LaPrade was an ideal minister's wife. Her culture and power of adaptation were great. She possessed the gift of doing things well and seemingly with little effort. She made friends and held them. Her energy and hopefulness attracted old and young and her kindly spirit induced many to share in the work which was so near to her heart.

She was especially helpful to young ministers. Her sympathy and counsel were inspiring. It is now twenty-six years ago since I first met her. In all these years I bave never heard of her losing courage in any work of Christ or failing in tbe serene spirit of tbe goodness that was ber native air.

Mrs. LaPrade said that she had never known tbe time when she did not love God. She grew in tbe nurture and admonition of tbe Lord. Communion with God was the joy and habit of her life. Sbe was enthusiastic with tbe fullness of spiritual joy. The peace of God ruled in her heart. She knew in whom she bad believed. She was one of the chosen spirits, rare gems in the Master's crown—strong and true. Her works follow and will appear yet more and more in lives made richer by her faith and love.

In the eventide of life she came home to the State she loved so well. But it was only for a brief interval of waiting. She suffered an attack of influenza, and, as a result, in a few weeks she died at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. C. Howard, at Emory University, on February 13, 1919. Her remains were buried in West View cemetery, Atlanta. Her immortal spirit has joined the Church Triumphant. A mighty company of the saints were there to welcome her. May we follow her as she followed Christ. Such a life is vocal; arise, let us be going.

WINONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Winona District Conferencc met at Webb, Miss., April 23, and was in session for two days: The attendance was especially fine and tbe conference througbout was a manifestation of spirituality and brotherhood. Our popular and much beloved presiding elder, Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, was in his place and presided with grace, gratitude, love and appreciation.

The reports from the charges from pastors and laymen showed decided progress in the work of the Church throughout tbe district. Tbe intense interest being manifested in the Centenary is indeed gratifying, and from all reports the Winona District is certain to go "over the top" in short order. This great call was presented by Rev. B. P. Jaco, Conference Centenary Secretary, and Dr. R. S. Stewart, returned missionary from Japan. The message of Brother Jaco was filled with inspiration and zeal, and his love for the great cause for which he labors seemed to be sbed abroad in the hearts of his bretbren and to fill eacb one with a desire to do more for the Master in the high and noble call. Dr. Stewart's addresses were inspirational, masterful, and exceedingly helpful.

The following were elected as delegates to the Annual Conference: J. J. Board, J. J. Beck, J. R. Stokley, J. H. Price, Rowen Thayer, E. V. Cato, A. L. Marshal and T. M. Coleman.

R. L. Ward was unanimously elected district lay leader.

The following connectional men were present: Dr. Robert Selby, Commissioner for Emory University; Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps College; Rev. B. F. Lewis, Superintendent of the Orphans' Home; Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary; and Rev. B. P. Jaco, Conference Missionary Secretary. Each of these presented the In[illegible] of the Church to which he had been assigned.

Indianola was selected as the place for the next meeting of the Conference.

S. H. CAFFEY, Secretary.

Moorhead, Miss.

Resolution of Thanks and Appreciation.

Since this is the fourth and last year of our capable and beloved presiding elder, L. M. Lipscomb, and since he has done such a great work in bis field of labor:

Be it resolved, That we, the preachers and laymen of the Winona District, go on record as commending tbis great man to tbose of our Cburch who know him not.

Be it resolved, further, That we express, by a rising vote, our thanks to him for his services during tbe past four years; also resolved that the Secretary send these resolutions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed: W. N. Duncan, W. S. Shipman, J. J. Brooks, Chas. D. McGehee.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother Carley: I suppose it is rather late for me to do so, but, as pastor, I feel that I should give you a short account of the Columbus District Conference which was held here, April 14-16. The opening sermon was preached on Monday night by Olin Ray, pastor at Macon. Brother Ray preached an excellent sermon on "Growth in Grace." Tuesday at 11 a. m., J. T. McCafferty, our pastor at Starkville, preached a good sermon on "The Old Paths." In this sermon Brotber McCafferty urged tbe importance of a return to tbe old paths.

Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo arrived here Tuesday evening at 3 o'clock and occupied the pulpit at the evening hour and preacbed a great sermon from 1 Jno. 1:9. Then again Wednesday, at 11 a. m., Bishop Kilgo preached a soul-stirring sermon from Mat. 28:18-20, after which be dedicated our church. Bishop Kilgo lived up to his reputation while here as being one of Southern Methodism's greatest preachers. Those who had the privilege of hearing him will not soon forget his great messages. Bishop Kilgo won all hearts while he was here and he will have a warm place in the hearts of the people of Shuqualak as long as they live. He is not only a great preacher and bishop, but he is a brother among his brethren and wins his way readily into tbe hearts and affections of his brethren.

The District Conference was a source of great blessing to our church and town and I feel quite sure that it will be a great help to our work. The only regret we have is that we could not do more for the comfort of the visitors while they were here. C. WESLEY BALEY, Pastor.

THE NEW WOMAN'S MEDICAL SCHOOL IN SHANGHAI, CHINA.

Miss Mabel K. Howell, Secretary Oriental Fields, Woman's Missionary Council.

Of the Centenary askings for Woman's Work, none are more important or more appealing than the askings for the new woman's medical school in Shanghai, China. The facts in the case are these: For twenty-five years the women of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have been conducting in Soochow, China, the Mary Black Hospital, and the Soochow Woman's Medical School. Since 1909 they have also been conducting a Nurse Training School in connection with the hospital. The Medical School is the oldest medical school for women in all China, a pioneer in the training of Chinese women in the medical profession. It was developed by Dr. Margaret Polk, and has been continued by Dr. Ethel Polk, Dr. Hattie Love, Dr. Louise Ingersol, and Miss Mary Hood, R.N., and Miss Alma Pitts, R.N. During the years it has rendered a most effective ministry to the women and children of Central China.

For several years, however, the Council has realized that the equipment of past years would not meet the needs of the great new day in China. They have known that if the work was to be continued, and maintain its high standard of other years, it must be conducted on a larger scale, with better buildings and laboratories and a larger staff of workers. Then, too, the development of the Laura Haygood Normal School has created a demand that the adjacent property of the Hospital and Medical School be turned over to them. The experience of the years has also taught that Shanghai, with its population of over a million people, affords a larger clinical opportunity and a greater opportunity to secure an adequate staff for a medical school than does Soochow. All these considerations led the Council two years ago to vote to move, at as early a date as possible, its medical plant to Shangbai, and to seek to secure adequate buildings and equipment for the new school.

During the last few years a careful investigation of the medical needs of women and children in China has been made, and it has been found that one hospital and medical school in Central China is the only institution of its kind in the rich, fertile Yangtse River Valley, that stretches from the coast 1500 miles to the western border of Thibet — including eight provinces, with a roughly estimated population of 226,000,000—half of the entire population of China, a population more than double that of the United States. The Council has been convinced that this unparalleled opportunity could not be met by one Board alone, and that the Medical School should be a union enterprise of all the Woman's Boards working in Central China. Other Boards were approached, and the result is that a Union Medical School for Central China, to be located in Shangbai, is about to become a reality.

The women of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, desire to take a full share in tbe capital stock of the new enterprise (which will take the place of their former work in Soochow), and are proposing to build the Administration building. They will also share with other Boards in staffing the institution and in providing annual maintenance. The money needed for this new enterprise is being asked through the Centenary. The askings for the work are $75,000 for land and buildings, $22,900 for equipment and $3000 each year for five years for annual maintenance, a total of $112,900. This money, together with the money in hand for this purpose and the assets of the old Medical School and Hospital, will make it possible for the Church to do her full part. The item termed "equipment" can be sub-divided into smaller items. This money will be used for furnishing and equipment of classrooms and laboratories, each of which can be a named room and taken as a "special." The Foreign Department, Woman's Work, can supply such a list. The Centenary affords no more attractive "specials" and "big gifts" than the medical school. It is a call to give medical help to the millions of Chinese women who, because of the absence of medical care, live lives of unspeakable physical suffering, and, through this medical means, an opening is made to point to the greatest of all Physicians.

SARDIS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Sardis District Conference will be held at Oakland, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 27 and 28. The opening sermon will he preached Monday evening, May 26, at 8:30 p. m. (new time), by Rev. E. G. Mohler, of Sardis. Bishop J. C. Kilgo will be present, and it is expected that he will preach on Tuesday at 11 a. m. All pastors in the district are requested to call attention to the meeting of the district conference from their pulpits and in the local papers, and to urge the members of the conference in their charges to attend. The names of all delegates who expect to be present should be sent at once to Rev. W. F. Rogers, Oakland, Miss.

The following committees are appointed:

On Orders— Rev. F. H. McGee, Rev. H. E. Carter, and Rev. W. A. Bowlin.

On License To Preach and Recommendation for Admission on Trial— Rev. N. G. Augustus, Rev. W. D. Bennett, and Rev. E. G. Mohler.

Other committees will be named after the assembling of the conference.

The various representatives of connectional interests are cordially invited to be present.

R. A. MEEK, Presiding Elder.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Aberdeen District Conference will meet in Pontotoc, Miss., on Thursday morning, May 29. Bishop Kilgo will he with us. We desire that all members and delegates get in on the evening of the 28th. We have evening trains both north and south, but no early morning trains either way. Let all members and delegates be here at the opening. W. M. YOUNG, P. C.

THE CENTENARY----Methodism's World War

THE CENTENARY is Methodism's World War. It stands for those principles for which our warfare against Hun militarism was waged.

VICTORY over autocracy did not settle all things. Our boasted democracy for which we fought and sacrificed must be made safe; and democracy will never be safe until it is Christianized.

The CHRISTIANIZATION of the world is still before us. It is a long and difficult task—a task that challenges the best there is in us, a task most fittingly undertaken by a people who have been led by the outstretched hand of Divine Providence through one hundred years of missionary effort. It is for this task that the Centenary is mobilizing her forces, for the Centenary is Methodism's World War.

The war from which we are just emerging saddened, devastated, ruined, killed. The world war of the Centenary will cheer, comfort, heal, rebuild, and give the message of new life through Christ Jesus. Methodism proposes to plant the banner of Christianity on every outpost of her World Parish.

She will give to the heart-hungry hosts of heathenism the gospel story and the Christian culture they crave.

She will carry the healing touch of love to bruised and bleeding Europe, rebuilding shattered homes, and strengthening broken morale.

She will wage a vigorous warfare against the evils of Ignorance, Poverty, and Vice in our own land.

Methodism's World War is a holy war. If it were a crime to be a slacker in the War for Democracy, so, too, it is an unspeakable reproach to be a slacker in the war which seeks the enthronement of world-wide Christian ideals. The Centenary comes to save.

WEATHER-VANES.

The weather-vane on grandpa's barn
  Is like a rooster made of gold
With head thrown back as if it crowed
  A cock-a-doodle-doo so bold.

And on the big house by the beach,
  Where fishing people keep their things,
The weather-vane is like a fish,
  All shining in the wind it swings.

I've seen one like a little horse,
  That's just about to run a race;
I've seen an arrow and a ship
  With every tiny sail in place.

They don't seem made for grown-up folks;
  They seem like strong and splendid toys.
The man who makes the weather vanes
  Must think a lot of little boys.

MARY CONTRARY.

On the top step of the back porch sat Mary Belle with her doll Nancy in the pleasant spring air while the sun dropped down into rosy and peach-colored cloud blankets. Mother was cultivating her tiny lettuce plants, and father was setting out tomato plants. When he had finished, there was a little space beween the last sturdy tomato stalk and the lettuce bed.

"There's almost room for another bed here," he said.

"Hardly a whole bed," said mother, smiling; "just a little crib."

That caught Mary Belle's ears. She jumped down the stairs, calling, "Oh, give it to me, please, for my own little garden crib! Please say it is mine before Curtis wants it for carrots or Helen begs it for more peppers."

"Will you truly try to make it grow something that people can eat?" asked mother.

"I truly will," answered Mary Belle, "and I shall have more time, because I go to the kindergarten only in the morning."

And indeed it seemed that whenever Mary Belle was wanted it was wise to look first for her in the back yard. And every day doll Nancy wore her oldest gingham dress, so that she could go out, too, and sit in a grape basket while her little mother watched and weeded the five short rows. The two outside rows and the one in the very middle were going to be beets, as round as a ball and as red as a ripe apple. The two rows in between were to be radishes.

"That's a fine plan," said father, who had thought there could not possibly be more than two rows of anything in the crib garden. "The radishes will grow quickly and give you something to eat this spring, and they will be gone in time to give the beets more room when they get big enough to need it. And they will give you a crop for late summer."

But there were troubles, too, with that garden crib. Even before the tiny plants were up Dorothy came over from next door with her hand half-full of big, flat white seeds.

"I brought them for your garden crib," she said. "They will grow into great big squashes. Let's plant them before school."

"Oh, I wish I could have squashes growing in my garden," said Mary Belle, "but there isn't any space left."

The next week Cousin Beth came over with a pill box full of surprise, more big seeds, which were gay in color. "Even the seeds are good to eat," she told Mary Belle, "but if you plant them they will grow as high as the garage in one summer."

"Oh, what are they?"

"They are sunflowers," said Beth, "and I brought them to plant in your garden crib."

"Oh, I'm sorry," said Mary Belle, "but I have to stick to the beets and radishes. They take all the room I have."

Beth was not very polite about it.

"You're a regular Mary Contrary about your old garden," she said.

It was a week or two later that Curtis brought home from the grocer's a package with a handsome picture on it of cut-open melons.

"Muskmelon seeds," he said. "I'm going to raise a bushel of melons."

"But your space is given to sweet corn and carrots," said Helen.

"Well, I'll stick them in, anyway, and later if it's too crowded I'll decide which I want to pull up and throw away," said Curtis. But he came to Mary Belle with some of the tempting seeds, too.

"You'll let me plant some of my muskmelons in your crib garden, won't you? I'll share up even with you on the melons, and you know how well you like muskmelons."

"But I can't, now. My beets are so big and strong!" Mary Belle felt almost like crying. "I wish I had a whole farm full of land; but I can't have muskmelons this year."

Curtis was a good deal disappointed, or he would never have said, "Cousin Beth is right. You ought to be named Mary Contrary."

After that, some of the other children picked up the nickname and used to sing at her, "Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how does your garden grow?" Mary Belle wished she could talk it over with father, but she did not want to tell tales. She did not know that he knew all the time.

Then one day the whole family were out looking at the garden after supper. Mother's rows had all grown very well, and had been giving them many good things to eat. Father's tomatoes were ripening fast, and his string beans had climbed all over the iron fence. Then they came to Curtis' space. It looked like an African jungle, crowded with a dozen new things that he had planted since he put in his carrots and corn in the spring. None of the plants could grow well; so there was not anything good to eat either above the ground or beneath it. Curtis just made a funny face at it and said, "Next year I guess I'll stick to what I choose in the spring."

Then they came to the crib garden, with the forest of tomato plants on one side of it and, hugging it close, on the other side, the salsify that mother had planted after her lettuce was gone. The radishes had been served for breakfast weeks before, scarlet and crisp, but the beets had grown so big that they filled all the space between the rows. Mary Belle pulled up one. It was as round as a ball and as red as a ripe apple. Mother and Helen and Curtis all said, "How fine! How big and red!"

Daddy said nothing for a moment. Then he reached down and took Mary Belle's hand and squeezed it hard as he said, "I wish we had more Mary Contrary's in this family. It would be good for gardens and for our country."

And Mary Belle told doll Nancy all about it because she was so happy over it.—Emma Mauritz Larson, in The Youth's Companion.

WHAT LOVE CAN DO.

Little Robert had been visiting a family of cousins, and though he had been away from home some weeks, he was not anxious to leave the spot where he had been so happy. "I liked to stay there," he told sister Alice; "they have such a beautiful home."

Alice was five years older than Robert, and she did not always pay much attention to what he said; but this remark seemed so odd that she closed her book and stared at him. "Did you say that Aunt Emma had a beautiful home, Rob Ryerson? What a funny idea. It's just a plain little cottage."

Rob looked puzzled and did not reply.

But his sister continued: "And their furniture is really old, and some of the carpets are 'most worn out, and they haven't nice pictures like ours. What makes you think her house is so beautiful?"

Rob thought a minute before he answered, "I guess it must be because everybody is so nice to everybody else, and nobody scolds or teases."

At first the older sister smiled, and then the color rose in her cheeks. She saw that her brother was nearer right than herself. A fine house, and expensive furniture, and pictures on the walls are not the things most important. Love and courtesy and kindness can make the plainest, poorest home beautiful, and the lack of them will spoil a palace.—Afton Free Press.

There is but one rule of conduct for a man—to do the right thing. The cost may be dear in money, in friends, in influence, in labor, in a prolonged and painful sacrifice, but the cost not to do right is far more dear; you pay in the integrity of your manhood, in honor, in truth, in character.—Selected.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

THE TIME HAS COME.

The time of the "Big Drive" is at hand. For months the Church has been carrying on a campaign of information, inspiration, and preparation, looking to the realization of its hopes and plans during the week of May 18-25. So far as we can see, nothing has been left undone to make the "Drive" successful in every particular. We have been more or less in touch with the work of organization in our three Conferences, and the reports that have come to us have been exceedingly encouraging. We have been told confidentially of charges in all three Conferences that had all their plans completed and their quotas secured weeks ago. "Over the top" has become a familiar term in speaking of what is to be accomplished during this memorable week.

But it is just possible that there are still some charges that are not thoroughly organized, and that are looking forward to the "Drive" with more or less fear and trembling. We should like to say that there is still time to do much by way of preparation. The pastor, the local church director, and even a few earnest and faithful men and women can work wonders within the next three or four days if they throw themselves unreservedly into the work. The plan of the campaign is, after all, simple enough for its outstanding features to be mastered in a short time and put into execution effectively. If there are still those who are not ready for the "Drive," we hope they will make these next few days a time of tremendous energy and enthusiasm.

We confess that we have a strong hope that every charge in the Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferences will reach the quota assigned it. The goal that has been set is not an impossible one, and we want to see a 100 per cent record made by our churches. This is Methodism's world war, in which our loyalty is being put to a test, just as our patriotism was put to the test in the great conflict that has just closed. We covet the inscription, "One Hundred Per Cent Loyal," for every charge in Southern Methodism, when the record of the "Big Drive" comes to be written. All together, now, for success and victory, May 18-25!

THE HATTIESBURG DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

By a happy turn of events, we were able to attend for a very short while the recent session of the Hattiesburg District Conference, held at Petal, Miss. It is true that the motion to adjourn finally had been put and the minutes of the closing session were being read when we arrived on the scene. But the technicalities of parliamentary procedure were cheerfully disregarded, and we were given all the time we wanted for words of greeting and a statement concerning the Advocate. And we had plenty of time to enjoy the bountiful "dinner on the ground" provided by the hospitable people of Petal for their hungry (we were) and appreciative guests.

We learned that the attendance had been unusually good throughout the conference. The number present on the closing day seemed not to have been smaller than is usually found during the busiest part of the program; and the interest in the work that was done was as great, we judged, as the attendance. The presiding elder, Rev. W. B. Jones, had directed the proceedings of the conference skillfully and profitably, and the host, Rev. C. E. Downer, had done everything possible for the comfort and convenience of those who were in attendance. It was good to be there. We trust the efficient secretary, Rev. H. G. Hawkins, will furnish the Advocate with a full report of the proceedings.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AND THE CENTENARY.

Reports indicate that the Sunday schools throughout the connection have entered heartily into the Centenary Movement, and that they have enthusiastically assumed their apportionment of five cents a member per month. We fear, however, that some schools have failed to sign the allotment cards that they may be put on record at Headquarters. We suggest that every Sunday school superintendent in our three Conferences look into the matter, and if he finds that his school has not been properly enrolled, that he secure the enrollment card at once, fill it out, and send it to the proper office immediately. Without any specific authority to do so, we suggest that the cards be sent to the Conference Sunday School Field Secretaries, as follows: North Mississippi Conference, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.; Mississippi Conference, Rev. John C. Chambers, Jackson, Miss.; Louisiana Conference, Rev. Alonzo Early, Amite, La.

MEETING OF THE COMMISSION ON UNIFICATION.

We printed last week a call to prayer by Bishop Mouzon for the meeting of the Joint Commission on the Unification of American Methodism to be held at Cincinnati, Ohio, on July 3. We are sure all our people will respond to this call with sincere and devout hearts. In the settlement of this great question, upon which so much depends, we need Divine guidance above all things. It is not so much a question of convenience or of expediency as it is of the fundamental relationships of great communions within the Kingdom of God. Those who are for unification and those who are against it will agree that the question can never be settled right until it is settled according to the will of God. All parties, therefore, should heed this call for prayer that God may direct the deliberations of the Commissioners as they meet in Cincinnati.

SHALL WE HAVE A REIGN OF TERRORISM?

We have read lately of the sending of infernal machines through the mails to various private individuals and public officials in different sections of the country. Serious results followed the explosion of one in Atlanta. Somebody with an idiot's sense of humor sent what were at first supposed to be bombs to prominent officials and citizens of Mississippi. The "Reds" throughout the country have persisted in trying to hold incendiary meetings and revolutionary parades in spite of the efforts of the officers of the law to prevent them. The boast has been made that every delegate to a meeting of agitators in one of our great cities has served a term in prison for violation of the laws of the land. We can no longer afford to look upon these things with indifference. The United States, as well as Europe, is passing through a period of critical change. Forces are at work that threaten to overthrow our most cherished institutions and customs. Some of the leaders in these movements openly advocate the use of force to bring about their desires. Sound reason and calm judgment are cast aside and men's passions are deliberately appealed to. The time has come for us to realize fully the conditions that exist. Good citizens everywhere must give support to law enforcement that will make those who are criminally inclined fear to bring themselves under suspicion. The "land of the free and home of the brave" is no place for the dissemination of teachings that corrupt the individual, make unsafe the lives of good men, and threaten to overthrow the established form of government. If we would escape a reign of terrorism in this country, we must act vigorously in the adoption of measures that will eliminate the anarchist, the Bolshevist, and the propagandist of violence from among us.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. John W. Ramsey, of Daleville, Miss., has sent 37 subscriptions to the Advocate from his charge this year.

The reception tendered Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Thomas by the Methodists of New Orleans, at St. Mark's Hall recently, was a largely attended and delightful occasion.

Bishop W. R. Lambuth will address a great mass meeting of the Methodists of New Orleans at the First Methodist Church next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Rev. R. H. Harper, the eloquent and scholarly pastor of First Church, New Orleans, will preach the commencement sermon for Mansfield Female College on Sunday, May 25.

Hon. Donelson Caffery, district campaign director for the New Orleans District in the Centenary "Big Drive," will speak in the Carrollton Avenue Church next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour.

Brother J. S. McDonald, of Brandon, Miss., has been reading the Advocate for many years—and he still likes to have it come to his home regularly. He writes in the highest terms of his pastor, Rev. C. H. Strait, and his presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Linfield.

Our church at Lake Charles, La., has presented to Millsaps College the historic bell that was unhoused by the storm of last August. The Lake Charles American-Press of May 5 publishes a letter of thanks from President Watkins to the church through Brother A. M. Mayo.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Galloway Memorial Church, Jackson, Miss., has been greatly bereaved by the death of Mrs. Mary Brown Swann, who passed away, after a long illness, on April 12. The Advocate extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved family and friends of the deceased.

Rev. C. Norman Guice, one of our general evangelists, recently assisted Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., in a meeting at Homer, La. Reports reaching us indicate that much good was accomplished. Brother Guice is well known in Mississippi, having formerly been a member of the Mississippi Conference.

The Brookhaven District Conference will meet at Tylertown, Miss., on May 27. Rev. H. A. Gatlin, the host of the conference, requests us to ask the pastors of the district to send him the names of delegates at once, in order that he may make arrangements for their entertainment.

There are two members of the Advocate's "Old Guard" on the Rocky Springs charge, Mississippi Conference, of which Rev. A. J. Boyles is pastor: Brother A. Faulk, who has been taking the paper for more than 40 years, and Mrs. M. L. Moody, who has been a subscriber for more than 30 years.

Rev. W. H. Giles, our pastor at Donaldsonville, La., honored the Advocate office with a call recently. This fine young preacher, who came to the Louisiana Conference from Georgia, is doing a great work in his difficult field. He expects the Centenary "Drive" to be successful in his charge.

Rev. L. N. Hoffpauir, of Zachary, La., reports that things on his charge are in good shape. His people are ready for the "Big Drive," salaries have been paid in full to date, and a teacher-training class of twenty members has been organized recently. We do not wonder that he is happy in the work.

The figures in the Louisiana Sunday school attendance contest for last Sunday are as follows: Ruston, 661; Noel Memorial, 516; Alexandria, 396; Baton Rouge, 394; Lake Charles, 374; Monroe, 340; Mansfield, 300. Alexandria, Baton Rouge, and Monroe reported their largest attendance thus far in the campaign.

The attendance contest between the Sunday schools of Homer, La., and Winnfield, La., resulted last Sunday as follows: Homer, 182; Winnfield, 181. This marks an increase of about fifty per cent in the attendance of each school.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, our pastor at Harrisburg, La., paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Tuesday of this week. He was in the city to secure medical treatment for his wife, who has been a great sufferer for some time.

The Sunday school at Lake Providence, La., has entered an attendance contest with the Sunday schools at Waterproof, Tallulah, Deihl, Rayville, and Oak Grove. Tallulah reported 55 present on the first Sunday of the contest, and Lake Providence, 54. We have no information at this writing concerning the others.

We learn from a press dispatch that our church at Monroe, La., of which Rev. E. K. Means is pastor, is having a tablet prepared, containing the names of 78 Methodists who served with the U. S. forces in the war, to be placed in the church with appropriate ceremonies. The list contains the names of three young ladies.

We acknowledge the honor of an invitation to attend the commencement exercises of Whitworth College at Brookhaven, Miss., June 1-2. There are seven members of the graduating class, and four department graduates. Dr. U. G. Foote, pastor of Rayne Memorial Church, New Orleans, will preach the commencement sermon and deliver the baccalaureate address.

We learn that our work at Flora, Miss., where Rev. B. W. Lewis is pastor, is in a flourishing condition. The Sunday school was unable to hold sessions during January, but it has paid, to date, $90 for missions. The Woman's Missionary Society is unusually well attended, and its members are working earnestly for the furtherance of the great work in which they are engaged.

The Sunday school of the Second Methodist Church of this city is making a fine record. The attendance on Easter Sunday was 152, and the collection for the Orphanage amounted to $61. The superintendent of the Cradle Roll and the Beginners' department has pledged $50 a year for the Centenary cause, and the whole school is heartily supporting the Centenary. The total collection from the church and Sunday school for the Orphanage amounted to $150. Rev. J. A. Alford is the diligent and consecrated pastor.

A telegram from Rev. W. J. Porter, of the Sicily Island charge, Louisiana Conference, received on last Monday, brought the information that the preceding Sunday had been a great day at Pine Hill church, one of his appointments. Rev. A. S. Lutz, the presiding elder, preached a splendid sermon, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered, a baptismal service for infants was held, $3500 was pledged for the Centenary cause, and a monument to the memory of Rev. T. H. McClendon was unveiled. It was, indeed, a great day.

Rev. Robert A. Clark, pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Covington, Tenn., formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference, has recently issued a directory of his church that is attractive in appearance and interesting in contents. There are 650 members, with an official board of 25 members. The pastor's salary is $2500. The Centenary allotment to the church is $25,000, which the pastor says will be raised in full. Brother Clark has engaged Rev. C. Norman Guice to assist him in a revival meeting to begin on May 18.

On April 29, 1919, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. T. Clark, at Cleveland, Miss., Mr. David La Valle House and Miss Helen Elizabeth Clark were united in marriage, Dr. R. A. Meek officiating. The bride is a granddaughter of Governor Charles Clark, one of the war governors of Mississippi, and a daughter of the late Hon. Fred Clark, who was one of the leading lawyers of Bolivar County. She is a most accomplished young lady, having been educated at the Ward-Belmont College of Nashville and Hollins College, Virginia, and has a large circle of friends and admirers. Mr. House, who is now a prominent young business man at Shaw, Miss., saw service over the seas, being a first lieutenant in the aviation service, and is held in high esteem by all who know him. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Rev. A. J. Boyles, of Rocky Springs, Miss., has shown what can be done in increasing the circulation of the Conference organ by definite and persistent effort. When he reached his present charge, he found only thirteen subscribers to the Advocate; he has sent us a total of sixty new subscriptions and renewals. He gives great credit to Mr. Kline Stanford, who acted as commanding officer of the campaign committee, and the following young ladies who assisted him: Misses Dorris Gilbert, Virgie Marie Hicks, Lida Lloyd, Montlle Henderson, Mildred Howard, Jessie Ford, Julia May Lum, Lissa Agnes McCoy, Roxie Hill, Lillie Alice Pickett, Dollie Curtis, Maggie Greer, Verna Belle Van, Edith Marie Trevilion, Gertrude Taylor, Lucy Taylor, Annie Lee Faulk, Margaret Hallam. We desire to express our appreciation, also, of the fine work accomplished by these splendid young people.

ANOTHER AND DIFFERENT WORLD.

The Centenary Movement will doubtless produce three results:

1. It will expand the thinking of the Church at large. The idea of a world work will produce a world thought, which has never before grasped the multitudes. That world view will produce a sense of world obligation in those whose ideas of obligation have hitherto been only local.

2. This broader view and expanded sense of obligation will open the avenues of liberality and raise the floodgates for the outflow of money to meet the outcry of heathenism and bring the "water of life" to refresh the long-famished millions of the pagan world.

3. The Centenary Movement, together with the present world war, will bring the world to feel its need of Christ as never before.

Christ will be more real, both to the darling son as he dies on the battle field and to the broken-hearted parents receiving cablegram, 'Killed in action!' Christ in the future will be recognized in his true relation as the one and only absolute need of humanity.

This will make our world another and different world from what it has been since the tragic death of the Son of God.—Bishop H. C. Morrison.

THE NEW DEAN OF THE LAW SCHOOL OF EMORY UNIVERSITY.

Judge Samuel C. Williams, an eminent lawyer of Johnson City, Tenn., has been elected Dean of the "L. Q. C. Lamar School of Law"—the law school of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

Judge Williams served some five years or more as a member of the Supreme Court of Tennessee, succeeding Chief-Justice John K. Shields, when the latter was elected to the Senate of the United States.

Judge Williams is a man of accurate and extensive scholarship, as well as a jurist of great legal learning. When he retired from the Supreme Court of Tennessee, Hon. W. H. Swiggart said of him, "No justice of the Supreme Court of Tennessee has ever made so great an impression on the jurisprudence of the State in so brief a period," and Chief Justice Neil said of him, "It is a matter of regret that the State is to lose as a member of its highest Court this wonderful lawyer, great jurist, and upright man."

It is a matter of record that more than one-third of the written opinions of Dean Williams, after their publication by the State of Tennessee, have been re-reported in volumes of leading cases of "Lawyers' Reports Annotated," and "American and English Annotated Cases," thus making him a large contributor to the jurisprudence, not only of America, but also of England.

Emory University is to be congratulated on securing such a man for the deanship of the Lamar School of Law, and his election puts the school among the leading law schools of the country.

With its magnificent building, large library, and able faculty, the Lamar School of Law offers the highest advantages to the young men of the South who wish to prepare themselves, thoroughly, for the high profession of the law. In this school at Atlanta, they will find as good opportunities as are offered at any of the great law schools of the country.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Brookhaven District Conference will convene in the Methodist Church in Tylertown, Miss., at 2:30 o'clock p. m., May 27, 1919. Rev. W. W. Graves, of Hazlehurst, will preach the opening sermon in the evening at 8 o'clock.

The pastors are requested to elect their delegates and forward their names to Rev. H. A. Gatlin, Tylertown, Miss., and to me at Brookhaven, Miss. The following committees are appointed to serve during the Conference:

For License to Preach—W. W. Graves, J. L. Decell, W. B. Alsworth.

Admission—W. H. Lewis, W. W. Moore, B. E. Meigs.

Orders—J. E. Gray, H. A. Gatlin, J. W. Thompson.

Local Preachers—J. S. Purcell, A. M. Broadfoot, W. T. Griffin.

Quarterly Conference Records—C. A. Schultz, A. B. Barry, J. T. Weems.

Freckles

There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Obituaries.

J. H. KIDD was born on March 1, 1842, and died on February 19, 1919. Brother Kidd was born and reared in Benton County, Mississippi, and was married in early young manhood to Miss Susan Ann Harris. To this union were born thirteen children, three sons and ten daughters. His wife and seven of the children had preceded him to the spirit world. Brother Kidd joined the Confederate Army in March, 1861, Col. Benton's regiment, Co. G, 34th Mississippi. He went through the war and was in several hard-fought battles—the battle of Shiloh, the battle of Corinth, and others. He was once wounded. He professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. Church, South, when about 15 years old. The writer knew Brother Kidd in the last few years of his life. He was thoroughly religious, loved his church, and gave his presence at the public services regularly, and gave loyal support to his church. A good man has gone to his reward on high in a ripe age in years and grace.

W. M. YOUNG.
Pontotoc, Miss., April 17.

"Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like a shock of corn cometh in his season." Such was the end with Mrs. ISABELLE JOSEPHINE HALE KITCHELL, who died at her home in Lafayette County, Miss., near Freesprings Church, on the 11th, inst., aged 79 years. She had been a member of this church for several years, having come to us from the Presbyterian Church. The last five years of her life she was an invalid from rheumatism and was a great sufferer. In patience she possessed her soul, however, and witnessed well for Christ. In her last hours she woke to consciousness, singing, "Alas, and did my Savior bleed?" and said "I am very happy!" This good woman leaves as a monument to her memory three sons and two daughters, who make themselves useful to their day and generation by sustaining, body and soul, whatever movement for righteousness is propagated in their sphere of operation. The God of the saints of all the ages "stablish, strengthen, perfect them!" We laid Sister Kitchell to rest beside her husband, who had preceded her 13 years, in the Freesprings cemetery on the eve of the 12th inst., the pastor officiating.

Her pastor, A. M. BENNETT,
Tyro, Miss., April 16, 1919.

Mrs. WILLIE EVANS EASON, wife of Dr. J. S. Eason, Coldwater, Miss., first gladdened the parsonage home of Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Evans at Shannon, Miss., July 21, 1891. She died on February 8, 1919, at Lucy Brinkley Hospital, Memphis, Tenn., where she was carried a few days previous, hoping that her useful young life might be prolonged. All that skill and loving hands could do was done, but she answered God's summons to "come up higher" with that stanch Christian faith that characterized her life, with this farewell message to her loved ones: "All is well with me." Reared under the most pious Christian influence, she at the early age of eight years consecrated her heart and life to God and united with the M. E. Church, South. At Courtland, Miss., on December 8, 1909, she was happily married to Dr. J. S. Eason, who, with two small children, a father, two brothers, a sister and a host of friends, mourn her going away.

Miss Willie, as she was familiarly known, was a superior woman, cultured, refined and noble in thought and act. Her intellect was of high order; she loved God's house, and was a worshipper in deed and truth. Her unselfish, uncomplaining life was a benediction to this community. But as a wife and mother her character was more fully revealed. As a helpmate for a doctor, she was ideal, ever ready to lend a helping hand, to comfort the distressed or encourage the downcast. The impress of her beautiful life can already be seen on her two sweet children. She is gone, but her life is a priceless legacy to all who knew her. We laid her body to rest at Magnolia cemetery, Coldwater, Miss., under a profusion of beautiful floral offerings, so typical of her lovely life. To the bereaved ones we say: "You can soon meet her where no bitter parting tears are ever shed and farewells are no more."

Her friend,
Mrs. C. L. GRAHAM.

While the still hours of the day passed away on April 4, 1919, the Death Angel came and called from earth the spirit of Brother JOHN W. CHAMBERLIN, one of the oldest and most beloved Christian workers of our country. Brother Chamberlin was born in Madison County, Tennessee, on April 4, 1826. Possibly his last prayer was answered, as he prayed to live to his next birthday, on which he died, being his 93d. The close of his life found him a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was the oldest reader of the New Orleans Advocate and true he was to his Church. As long as he could go, those on his street looked for the gleam of his lantern to walk by to the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, and I say for generations yet to come we shall walk by his light. He leaves to mourn his loss an aged wife, who, for forty years, has been a devoted companion; a daughter, Mrs. Bettie Bridgeforth, of Pleasant Hill, Miss., and a host of grandchildren unto the fourth generation. Those he has left behind feel no uncertainty about his having gone to be with his God. May we all be as ready for the summons when it comes as he was. Brother Chamberlin was laid to rest in Pleasant Hill cemetery, services being conducted by the pastor, assisted by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney.

W. W. BRUNER.
Nesbit, Miss., April 22, 1919.

She left us "with lips fragrant with her blessing that soothed the weary and warmed the cold" and her passing leaves us sorrowing. One had but to come into the presence of our sainted friend, Mrs. MARY BROWN SWANN, to be impressed with her unusual personality; a winning gentleness that drew all to her, and a sympathetic heart that held them fast. She possessed a bright, cheery nature, a brilliant mind, and a tireless strength for the never-ending tasks she was called on to perform for the Master she loved: "Her touch will ever linger, where her hands were pressing the wounds of those she drew within His fold," so her place in the Woman's Missionary Society, the Galloway Memorial Church and community will indeed be hard to fill, and while we question not the wisdom and goodness of our Heavenly Father, yet we grieve for our friend and will miss her unto the end. To the loving loyal sister, our Mrs. Buck, and her brothers, we extend our deepest sympathy, and commend them to Him who alone can heal all sorrow.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTES.

Mrs. Corinne Coitrane Patrick, of Greensboro, N. C., has recently estabiished with the Board of Church Extension a memorial on the Annuity pian.

A good friend of the Church Extension cause recentiy sent in his checks amounting to $3000 estabiishing the "V. Loan Fund." This money will be ioaned for the buiiding of churches, and wiil be doing good throughout all the years to come.

Wiiiam E. Griffin, of Miami, Florida, a loyai Methodist, has recently deeded to the Board of Church Extension property valued at $20,000, on the Annuity plan. Brother Griffin has thus established for himseif a memoriai as iasting as time.

Mrs. B. P. Wilson, of Lake Butler, Fiorida, sent her check some time since for $200 estabiishing a memoriai on the Annuity pian.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ciark, of Videttc, Ga., iifciong Mcthodists, have estabiished a $3,000 memoriai with the Board of Church Extension on the Annuity plan. After these worthy people have been carried home by the angeis they will be making possibie the preaching of the gospel they so much enjoyed while here.

Miss Anna L. Woods, of Roanoke, Virginia, has adopted a unique plan in taking out three one-hundred-doiiar Annuity Bonds with the Board of Church Extension, making the Annuity payable to her two nephews and niece, the amount being payabie just before Christmas. This Annuity comes annuaiiy as a Christmas gift to these iittie foiks, and wiii be continued during their entire iives.

Rev. W. W. Spates, of Fiemingsburg, Ky., recently sent in his check for $500 estabiishing a memoriai with the Board of Church Extension for himself and wife.

Miss Jessie Schriver of Fort Thomas, Ky., recently estahiished with the Board of Church Extension a $1000 Memorial Fund in memory of Miss Jessic Lee.

Mrs. Martha J. Ross of McLoud, Okla., recently sent in her check for $300, and received an Annuity Bond bearing good interest while she lives. This money goes to swell the Loan Fund Capitai.

A good woman from West Virginia recently sent her check for $1000, making a straight donation to the Loan Fund Capital.

Dr. H. A. Boaz, in his report to the Annual Meeting of the Board of Church Extension, states that during the past eleven months as secretary of the Board, he has visited twenty-one Annual Conferences and sixty-nine pastoral charges, traveling more than 53,000 miles, a distance reaching more than twice around the giobe. He has spoken publiciy in deiivering addresses or preaching sermons more than one hundred times, and has assisted in raising $203,958 for the building of new churches or the payment of church debts. In the meantime he added $417,301 to the Loan Fund Capitai.

FROM GLEN ALLEN, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: I wish to say that things move niceiy on the Gien Ailen charge. We are busy and making progress in ali lines of the church work. Our Sunday schools are well attended and doing fine work, and the outiook is fine for a good growth. The Avon school gave on Easter $7 to our Orphans' Home at Jackson. We have raised in cash a little above $500 at Avon to buy pews for the church. When this church is seated, it wiii be one of the neatest iittie churches in the Conference.

The pastor has received 18 members by certificate, or near 20 per cent increase. Our congregations have more than doubled, the resuit mostiy of new comers and good roads. We serve a fine people and they know how to make the pastor and his wife feel at home with them.

As to the Centenary, we expect to go over the top at each church in the charge. Best wishes to Advocate.

Yours for the Master,
C. T. BARTON.

Gien Aiien, Miss.

RESOLUTIONS.

(Adopted by the Franklinton Epworth League in Honor of the Memory of Vira Richardson.)

Whereas, our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom removed from our midst our friend and comrade, Vira Richardson; therefore be it resoived:

That the League has iost one of its most vaiuable members, whose absence we depiore, whose association we miss.

Resolved further, That the Church and community have iost one of their most iovahle Christian characters, who was worthy of our imitation.

Resoived further, That we extend our sympathy to her family and bereaved ones and ask them to iook to our Heavenly Father to guide them over these dark piaces in life.

Resolved further, That we furnish a copy of these resolutions to the family, one to the New Orieans Christian Advocate, the Epworth Era and a copy to be spread on the minutes of our League.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Begins Its Reconstructive Work.

First, it creates an appetite.
Second, it aids digestion.
Third, it perfects assimilation.
Fourth, it carries 100 per cent. of the nourishment in the food you eat into the blood and the body, thereby enriching and vitalizing your blood, which in time renews your strength and builds up again your reserve strength and vitality.

This makes Hood's Sarsaparilla one of the great remedies of the world. From the first dose you are on a definite road to improvement. It is of inestimable value just now to restore the health and nerve force so greatly exhausted by war excitement, the grip and influenza epidemic and the changing season. It is the right medicine for you this Spring. Get a bottle today.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harrassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle to-day at any drugstore, and you will see results from the right treatment. The distinctive flavor of

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE

First Vice Presidents, Attention!

Have you organized the young people into a Y. P. M. S.?

The Centenary call is for 500 of our brightest and best young Christians—are you training the young people in your church for missionary work and praying for volunteers?

How happy it would make you to know that through your training some one of your young people had listened, and heard and heeded the Master's call to "Go ye into all the world!" There are such wonderful possibilities wrapped up in the life of every young person!

Do organize a Y. P. M. S. this quarter and claim these young lives so full of energy, ambition and unbounded interest in things for our Master's service.

I wish you could have been with us at our annual meeting in Mansfield. Tuesday night, March 18, was young people's evening and a splendid program was given by the Mansfield Y. P. M. S. Mrs. C. H. Sheppard, their leader, is untiring in her efforts and she is winning these young people into the Beautiful Way. Oh, my dear First Vice Presidents, it is such a blessed privilege!

Katherine Irby, from the Ruston Orphanage Y. P. M. S., gave a beautiful Bible lesson on "Why every girl should be a Christian." Katherine's Society made 101 credits for 1918, and is the only Y. P. M. S. in the State meeting four times each month. We all love and admire this band of splendid Christian girls.

Mrs. J. C. Foster, First Vice President from First Church, Shreveport, and four girls from her Y. P. M. S. attended the meeting and carried off the honors. This Society made 111 credits in 1918, and this being the highest, the silver loving cup given by Mrs. A. W. Baird was presented to these young people. Mrs. Foster gives faithful, loyal service to her Y. P. M. S., and in return she has a society of bright, happy Christian girls.

Keep these items before your young people this year!

A Christian Service Flag in your church and definite prayer for volunteers. June is the month for new organizations.

Send for Mission Study Book, "Ancient Peoples at New Tasks." $250, our Pledge for Mexico and Brazil.

Send to Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, Nashville, Tenn., for new record books.

Let us make our watchword the slogan for this year, "Each one win one," and then for our goal in the Centenary we want: Each auxiliary 100 per cent in intercessors and tithers; every member contributing to the Centenary; our Y. P. M. S. furnishing its full quota of workers in the Home and Foreign fields.

I know you will do your best. May His blessing abide with you constantly. Most sincerely,

Mrs. W. T. CUNNINGHAM,
First Vice President,
Natchitoches, La.

One of the most wonderful things about the world war was the fact that no one was left out. It was not only the soldier who went to battle and was in the firing line, or the soldier who trained in camp, or the fathers and mothers who gave their sons, who had a part, but the farmer who plowed his fields and the men who put over the Liberty Loans and the women who economized and saved food at home, and those who did without and the children who sold and bought war saving stamps—everybody helped and we knew before the war fairly began that we would be victors with all of one heart and mind.

And now the most beautiful part of this Centenary Campaign is that again we may all have a part. It is not just the rich man's thousands and the average man's hundreds and the laboring man's tens, but dimes and nickels and pennies will help. Women, who were last at the cross and first at the sepulcher, can pray, and young people can consecrate themselves to God's service; and so one and all can have a part. The Centenary is going to be put over. It remains for you to say whether or not you will have a part. When the world is won for Christ, would you be willing to say you did nothing to help? What can you do? What will you do?

Mrs. GEORGE S. BROWN.

MEN, OR MONEY—WHICH FIRST?

In putting into effect our great Centenary campaign we need men and money. Upon which have we been laying the greater stress in the months just past? For which have we been interceding daily at the throne of grace? Which quota has been kept constantly before us as a conference, as a district, as a local church—our quota in men or money?

In satisfying my own mind as to the relative importance of these necessary elements, I imagined two scenes in my own church. I saw a church full of money—gold dollars, silver dollars, paper dollars, bank notes, and government bonds, piled away up to the ceiling. Then I saw the church surrounded with men and women on the outside, standing with bowed heads, saying, "I will not go; I will not go." The money became only hard metal and worthless paper.

I looked again, I saw a church full of earnest men and women. A strong young man and a bright young woman with shining faces were standing at the altar offering themselves to the service of Christ and the Church. Then I knew that money would follow them. For when our boys and girls went to France the money followed them. It followed in Liberty Bonds; it followed in Red Cross funds; it followed in the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and Salvation Army funds. And it is still following them in the Victory Loan. When our boys and girls go to China, to Japan, to Cuba, to Mexico, to Brazil, to Africa, to France, and to the needy places in America, as Christian missionaries, our money will follow them.

Miss Belle Bennett, in her address at Memphis, said: "The Centenary will bring moneys for the establishment of buildings and the better equipment of the work, but the whole progress depends upon the women who shall offer themselves to this service. We do not hesitate to say that the largest demand of the Church and the Centenary is for women." In the report of the Committee of One Hundred we find this statement: "The need of men and women of capacity, courage, high purpose, and deep consecration is even greater than the need of money." Miss Cordelia Irwin, of Korea, in a four-minute speech at the Memphis Council, said: "I wish to make four points in four minutes. We need missionaries. We need more missionaries. We need some more missionaries. We need still more missionaries."

Let each district furnish its quota in men and women as well as in money.

Mrs. T. W. BAKER.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

You want to know who should attend the Elementary Institute to be held at New Albany, May 27-28? All the district Elementary superintendents must be there if they want to learn how to do the work committed to them. Cradle Roll superintendents ought to be there to learn something concerning the most important work that a mortal is permitted to do. The superintendents of the Beginner's Department, the superintendents of Primary and the Junior Departments, also the teachers of all these departments, are under obligation to be there. Any young mother that yearns to know something of the precious life committed to her keeping will be welcome. Last hut not least, young people out of whom we are to make our future teachers ought to attend. No such institute has ever been held in the Conference and it will be a year before another can be held. Write to Rev. J. E. Stephens, New Albany, Miss., that you expect to attend and he will provide a home for you. This is the proper thing to do and you will not neglect doing it.

Recently Rev. E. Nash Broyles, pastor at Clarksdale, received forty-four young people into his church. The teachers of the Primary and Junior departments did some intelligent work to help in bringing ahout such results. It is understood that these teachers and the parents of the children must continue to teach and train until the children are rooted and grounded in the knowledge of God.

The Holly Springs District has 26 schools that have signed the card accepting the Five-Cent Allotment and have mailed the card to Rev. J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn. Several superintendents in the Conference have signed the card, but have failed to mail it or else the card has been lost. The only thing to do is to sign another and mail it to me. You see, our reputation is at stake, if not our honor.

Let us set apart Friday, May 16, as a day of fasting and prayer. We have worked a great deal and prayed a little, now let us take the Master's instruction, fast and pray. Do this and our God will not fail us—he cannot. The silent, unseen forces are the ones that will hring the victory. Write me a card and say you will be one to join me in this last great struggle against spiritual wickedness in high places.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The schools of the Louisiana Conference are the product of the labor of consecrated Methodist men and women. From the sacrifices of these God-fearing workers, we have 350 schools located in the great center of population and in the most ohscure places. Some of these are more than self-supporting, and out of their generous gifts are making it possible for our Church to do effective work. Every school in our Conference is asked to support most loyally and enthusiastically the Church that gave them a religious training, furnished them a pastor, and sheltered them from every storm. The best service you can give, the best investment of your life as well as money, should he in your Methodist Church.

The district Sunday school officers for Shreveport District will wisely lead the forces of our Church to success. The District Secretary is C. O. Beauchamp, Shreveport, and he is a leader. We have the following departmental superintendents: Elementary Superintendent, Mrs. S. L. Williams, Shreveport; Intermediate-Senior Superintendent, Mrs. T. W. Hardee, Pleasant Hill; Young People's Superintendent, H. J. Bussa, Vivian; Adult Superintendent, S. H. Porter, Zwolle; Missionary Education Superintendent, Mrs. T. H. Morris, Mansfield; Teacher-training, Prof. R. E. Bobhitt, Mansfield.

Let every pastor and Sunday school superintendent help make all schools of his district 100 per cent efficient. Keep in mind that the presiding elder is our chief schoolman in the district, then the pastor of the charge and down to the school superintendent.

Every man on the job, every school organized and at work to serve God and humanity—this is your obligation to God through your own church first, and then others.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Secretary.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Last Sunday was spent on the Blodgett charge. On account of rain and sickness we were not enabled to carry out our program as first arranged. We hope to be able to go hack to this charge.

Tuesday afternoon the District Institute was held at Petal for the Hattiesburg District in connection with the district conference. Rev. J. H. Jolly made a fine Teacher-training speech. Mrs. W. C. Hathaway gave a demonstration of Graded Sunday school work and it made a fine impression upon those in attendance.

The district officers were elected for next year as follows: Active Secretary, Mr. G. G. Hurst; Elementary Superintendent, Mrs. W. C. Hathaway; Teacher-training, Rev. J. H. Jolly; Home Department, E. L. Calhoun; Missions, K. T. Moore; Wesley Bihle Class, C. D. McLemore.

Rev. W. H. Saunders brings to our attention a very inspiring opportunity for our churches to he of real service to our returning soldier boys. He has organized "The Young Men's Victory Bible Class." Motto, "Fellowship," having as their object, the improvement of the church life of the congregation. He is planning also to organize a young woman's memorial Bible class, with the motto, "Improvement;" object, to keep alive the memory of our soldier hoys, hy memorials, observing memorial days, etc.

I hope that this worthy movement will meet a most cordial reception and that we will have quite a number of Victory and Memorial classes. These classes can also be enrolled as W. B. C.

These classes can he composed of the boys coming home, and need not interfere with classes already organized; hut where this is not possihle, it would seem to me to he worth while to take a class already organized or in existence and give it this worthy direction.

I think we owe Brother Saunders a vote of thanks for this idea. Who will he the next to report a "Victory" and a "Memorial" class?

Pray for the work and the workers.

GOOD WORK AT BRANDON, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: The following might be of interest to you: On the Brandon and Pelahatchie charge, one hundred and thirteen Fellowship of Intercession cards have heen signed, and fifty-one Tithe cards signed, fourteen new suhscribers to the New Orleans Advocate, ninety per cent of Conference collections in cash, and the Centenary allotment overscribed.

When our congregation in Pelahatchie assembled to worship on Easter morning, it laid upon the altar of the Resurrected Christ a little more than its entire Centenary allotment in cash and pledges.

OUR GREAT WORK.

Dear Brother Carley: With the coming of the great Centenary of American Methodist Missions is an opportunity unlike anything we have ever had before. I am glad to live to see our great old Church put on such a worthy and needed program, and I feel that it is the time when we all should renew with full hearts and soul-deep loyalty our oath of allegiance to God, who is our strength; to home, which is our inspiration, and to country, which is our shelter and hope.

While the forces of civilization stood massed in awful battle array against the onslaughts of barbarity and hate and wrong, our leaders everywhere seemed to catch, at the same time, the great heavenly vision, to hear the pitiful world-cry; and not being "disobedient to the heavenly vision," they began at once to pledge our faith, our toil, our treasures, our sacrifices, to rebuilding a torn, bleeding, devastated world upon the only sure foundation—Christian ideals.

It does seem to me that it is no longer the individual need or hope or ambition that counts—the great World Program is the thing. No longer may we live through the ordinary routine of our work or our pleasures, giving what little odds and ends that remain to the Master's work; we must reverse this program. Saving humanity and rebuilding a shattered civilization comes closest to us and should make up the absorbing aims of our days and nights. Our ease and recreations must come now when they can. This work must be done by the whole Church, for the good of the whole Church now and hereafter.

No longer may we live as the flesh would choose; our lives are not our own, for not only as a whole people, but as individuals, are we pledged to this great work. Not one prayer of our hearts, not one dream or one endeavor of our lives but that should be saturated or permeated with the Centenary aim, a worthy cause to which the personal honor and faith of every separate one of us is pledged.

The more we love God and our neighbor, the more we love peace, the more desperately will we work at this thing—as we would put out a fire as we would defend our home and loved ones, or as we would stanch a flow of blood, with no thought of personal interest, or what others think or say, until this overwhelming task is done. And we shall have power to do it when the Holy Ghost is come upon us.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON CONFERENCE SUPERANNUATE ENDOWMENT FUND.

(Published by request of the Greenville District Conference)

We, your committee on Conference Superannuate Endowment Fund, beg to make the following report:

We have in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 1000 retired ministers who are wholly dependent upon the Church for support. We now have a Board of Finance in behalf of these men, brought into existence by our last General Conference.

Think of the Red Cross: why not have a comradeship in the Methodist Church known as the Triple C, with a membership fee of one dollar a year? With over two million Methodists, if we will adopt this plan, we can easily raise two or three million dollars each year. Insist on your friends joining; every preacher should consider himself an agent.

Our Church has about 7000 active ministers. These men are paid an average salary of $800 or $900. Out of this meager sum they cannot accumulate anything for a "rainy day." There is a dearth of preachers—few men are entering the itinerant ranks. Has God quit calling men into the ministry? No, God is still calling, but men are not yielding. Why not? They dread the last period of their ministry from the standpoint of finance.

Our Church is doing less for her worn-out preachers than many other denominations. We rejoice that our beloved country has heart and vision enough to be the marvel of the world. Certainly this idealism was not born in the saloon—it is the result of preaching Christian ideals. They are great men, yet many of them are forced to retire without funds; they are almost beggars. Is it right, is it just, is it Christian? The minister is the only man who gives his life for the welfare of others.

Respectfully submitted for the committee by C. A. NORTHINGTON.

FROM SENATOBIA.

Dear Brother Carley: The past few days have been great days for Methodism in this part of the country, beginning last Friday night with a Centenary banquet. The Woman's Missionary Society tendered the men of the Senatobia and Tyro charges a banquet in the interest of the Centenary movement. This banquet occasion was in every way a great success. The courthouse was used for the purpose, and when the decorating committee got through beautifying the main auditorium, one could hardly believe his eyes as he beheld the change. The spread was a most elegant one, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all the men. About one hundred plates were fixed, and there were but few vacant seats at the table.

But the supper was not all that made this a great occasion. The speakers' program was indeed interesting and inspiring. Brother E. W. Varner, one of our active young laymen, acted as toastmaster and did credit to the occasion. The following topics were discussed: "The Why and Wherefore of the Centenary;" "The Centenary from a Business Man's View Point;" "What the Centenary Means to the Ministry;" "The Centenary and the Local Church;" "The Centenary Movement Discovering Men in the Church." These topics were ably discussed by the following: Rev. Carroll Varner, Hernando; Mr. C. H. Gunn, Memphis; Rev. N. G. Augustus, Coldwater; Mr. H. I. Gill, Senatobia; and Mr. J. B. Marmon, Memphis. Rev. A. M. Bennett, H. Holmes and others also made short talks, all to the point, and put the Centenary movement well before the people. Rev. R. P. Neblett was present and led in singing the Centenary Battle Hymn. The Centenary "Pot" has reached the boiling stage and by the 18th we expect it to be boiling over. Our laymen are taking hold, and all say it is going over the first day. Mr. J. B. Snider, Jr., our efficient local director, is the right man on the job. He is making things hum.

Following the banquet Friday night, Chaplain W. B. Hogg, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society, delivered his famous lecture, "Christmas On the Rhine," Saturday night, and preached Sunday morning to perhaps the largest crowd ever gathered in Senatobia for a religious service. I had heard that Brother Hogg was better as a lecturer than as a preacher, but I found, after hearing him preach, that if there was any difference it was in favor of the preaching. He is a man with a message and captivates his audience every time. We were fortunate enough to secure his services for a meeting in September. Everything looks bright for our new church building and we hope to have it under way in a short time. Pray for us, brethren, that God may continue his blessings upon us.

A. T. McILWAIN, P. C.
Senatobia, Miss.

Lemons Beautify! Make Quarter Pint of Lotion, Cheap

Here is told how to prepare an inexpensive lemon lotion which can be used to bring back to any skin the sweet freshness, softness, whiteness and beauty.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see for yourself.

Ever Salivated By Calomel? Horrible!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfect-

A GREAT REVIVAL.

Dear Advocate: Chaplain Wm. B. Hogg just closed a very successful revival meeting here of ten days' duration. It was truly a revival in the church. Chaplain Hogg preaches the old-fashioned gospel. He uses no high-pressure methods, but appeals to reason, as did Paul, for "righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come." He left an impression upon men of all walks of life, and of every denomination. In a financial way, the people showed their appreciation very cheerfully. A purse of $500 was presented to him for faithful and efficient service; as well as $80 which was presented to the pastor, John W. Robertson. The chaplain also raised the entire assessment for benevolences for the entire charge; making an aggregate of over $1000 raised during the series of services. The benevolences were raised in exactly 12½ minutes. The pastor was literally banked in flowers by the people of the entire community of all denominations.

In all, it was the greatest revival ever held in Hollondale. Visitors from Greenville, Leland, Arcola, Estill, Murphy, Percy, Nitta Yuma, and Anguilla were present. We were glad to have with us at several services the following preachers: Rev. E. S. Lewis, Greenville; S. A. Brown, Leland; J. and J. E. Ferguson, of Anguilla, Miss.

CENTENARY BANQUET AT COLDWATER.

At the suggestion of Brother Augustus, their pastor, the good ladies of our church at Coldwater gave the men of the Coldwater, Cockrum, and Arkabutla charges a banquet at Coldwater on last Wednesday night in the interest of the Centenary. Covers were spread for about 60 and a very tempting menu was served, the ladies themselves acting as waiters. Brother Augustus, acting as toastmaster—and he showed himself a master at the art—introduced the Hon. Herbert Holmes and Brother McIlwain of Senatobia, and Hon. Grady Johnson and the writer from Hernando, who made short addresses on different phases of the Centenary, while Brother Bowlin of Cockrum and Brother Gunn of Como were called on for impromptu remarks. The closing address was a stirring appeal by the Hon. Mr. Beattle of the Memphis bar. Before the benediction, Brother Neblett of Como led us in singing an inspiring song quite appropriate for the occasion. CARROLL VARNER.

FROM LAKE CHARGE.

We have four Sunday schools, some of which have put on new life and are increasing in membership. Our newly organized Epworth League of about 35 members is doing splendidly. The Woman's Missionary Society has an interesting reading circle, and is doing many other useful things as well. Congregations are good at the various churches on the charge. Twenty-six have been added to the church membership—six by baptism, one by vows and nineteen by certificate.

Our presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Linfield, is a stirring man and is using his energies to carry out the Centenary program in good order.

The good women are making some valuable and much appreciated improvements about the parsonage and the church here.

We are planning to make the Centenary Drive. By the help of God we are expecting a revival of religion at each church. R. E. RUTLEDGE.

Why Red Blood Rich in Iron Helps Make Women Strong, Healthy and Beautiful—

While Lack of Iron Keeps Them Weak Nervous, Fretful and Run-down.

How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—helps Solve Problem of Supplying Iron Deficiency, Thereby Increasing the Strength and Endurance of Delicate Care-worn Women in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

Many a woman who ought still to be young in feeling is losing the old-time vim and energy that makes life worth living simply because her blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body and enables the blood to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain.

In commenting upon the alarming iron deficiency in the blood of the average woman of today, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey said:

"What women need to put roses in their cheeks and the springtime of life into their step is not cosmetics or stimulating drugs, but plenty of rich pure red blood. Without it no woman can do credit to herself or to her work. Iron is one of the greatest of all strength and blood builders and I have found nothing in my experience so effective for helping to make strong, healthy, red blooded women as Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results."

Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author says: "I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard looking women patients. Lack of iron in the blood may often transform a beautiful sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable—one who makes life a burden to herself, unbearable for her husband, and disagreeable for her children. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases, they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health, do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

A. L. R. AVANT, M. D., Savannah, Ga.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this water to any one with stomach trouble. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. TRUITT, La Grange, Ga.,
President Unity Cotton Mills.

I wish to add my testimony to the wonderful powers of the Shivar Mineral Water. For a number of years my wife has been a sufferer from indigestion and nervous debility, and her condition had reached such a stage as to baffle the skill of our most eminent physicians. Her extreme nervousness and heart troubles at times were alarming and she had become almost a nervous wreck. The latter part of last May she began using the Shivar Water, which she has continued to this date with most satisfactory results.

H. C. BAILEY, Johnston, S. C.
Editor Johnston News-Monitor.

DYSPEPSIA

I have suffered for many years from gastric troubles, stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, but none have given me such relief as your Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.

W. D. GRIGGSBY, M. D., Blaney, S. C.

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.

OSCAR T. SMITH, Baltimore, Md.,
Vice-Pres. Young & Selden Co., Bank Stationers.

RHEUMATISM

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M. D., Leeds, S. C.

Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.

WM. C. CARTER, Fredericksburg, Va.

I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.

MRS. H. C. EDWARDS, Roper, N. C.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your spring water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.

MRS. THEO. KUKER, Florence, S. C.

It is doing my rheumatism so much good. My limbs are beginning to feel like new ones.

MRS. JAMES R. CARTER, Warrenton, Va.

BILIOUSNESS

For over two years following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice, however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable—its action on my liver most marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect. S. A. DERIEUX, Greenville, S. C.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your water has been a great benefit. I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.

LIVER AND KIDNEY

I feel that it is due you that I should give my testimony, unsolicited, as to the benefits derived from the use of your Shivar Springs Water. I was unable to do my work, and had been under the treatment of physicians for six months for kidney and liver troubles when I decided to try your Spring Water, and now after using it for about thirty days I am able to do my work, feel good, and have gained about twenty pounds. I most heartily recommend its use to all who suffer from disorder of the liver and kidneys.

M. L. STEPHENS, Uhoopee, Ga.

It is fine for liver troubles, also for constipation. I cheerfully give you this information as to beneficial results in my case.

REV. A. McA. PITTMAN, Carlisle, S. C.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

J. P. D., Columbia, S. C.

Your Water has done me more good than anything I ever tried for bladder trouble.

A. R. F., Virginia, Va.

I had been down with bladder trouble. Couldn't stand on my feet three minutes at a time. In three days after I commenced drinking your Mineral Water my pain was all gone, could walk where I pleased, and felt like a new man.

S. B. D., Wesley, Ga.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.

T. G. S., High Point, N. C.

URIC ACID

I have been for many years affected with uric acid and kidney trouble, and the Mineral Water has helped me more than anything I have ever done for them, and therefore heartily recommend same to all who need a speedy relief.

W. F. MATHENY, M. D., Chancellor, Ala.

I can recommend your Mineral Water for disorders caused by uric poison. I suffered and have been relieved. It affords me pleasure to recommend this Water to all sufferers.

J. H. WHITMORE, Lexington, Va.

MISCELLANEOUS

I gained in weight ten (10) pounds in two weeks by drinking the two bottles you sent me.

FRED J. ALLENDER, Wilmore, Ky.

Your Water is fine. Have gained nine pounds; am feeling fine. J. A. SCRUGGS, Rahun Gap, Ga.

This Water relieved Mrs. Bowie of one of the most stubborn cases of urticaria I have ever seen or read of. She had tried the most skillful physicians at her command, with little if any results. H. C. BOWIE, Jacksonville, Florida.

Please send me a carboy of Water, as the ten gallons I used did me more good than Hot Springs and all other treatments did. I am nearly as stout as ever.

W. L. EAGLE, Aiston, S. C.

The Water has been a great surprise to me, as I fully expected to call on you to return my money. It is certainly not a faith cure in my case.

PROF. A. S. WEBB, Concord, N. C.
Supt. Concord Public Schools.

The Water is doing wonders for me.

E. S. PHILLIPS, Attorney, Marshfield, Mo.

Your Mineral Water has done my wife more good than anything we have ever tried.

S. P. RICHARDSON, Quanah, Texas.

My wife has used one bottle and is so much improved.

J. S. LAFFERTY, M. D., Concord, N. C.

The Water has done wonders for me.

MRS. E. H. MASON, Brunswick, Ga.

Never found anything to do my wife so much good in such short time.

LOUIS McCLENDON, Edison, Ga.

The Water is doing my wife a great deal of good already. C. E. HEDGES, Marietta, Ga.

Wife has improved rapidly under the use of your Mineral Water, not having had to take a single dose of medicine since beginning its use. I certainly thank you for your kind consideration. (REV.) J. M. FLEMING, Lumberton N. C.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SPIRITUAL STRATEGY.

Christianity started out to conquer the world—the world of sin. In this conquest, all the habits, customs, and institutions of men must be brought into subjection to the authority of the Founder of this spiritual Kingdom. It was not supposed in the beginning that the forces of evil would yield without a conflict, and history has been a record of the efforts of good men to overthrow the strongholds of wickedness. We are to-day witnessing one of the greatest of these efforts. The Centenary Movement of Methodism is one of the strategic attempts of a mighty corps of the army of the Lord to seize and hold advanced positions in the onward march of the hosts of righteousness. It is not merely a developing movement for a great offensive to be launched later—it is the great offensive itself. What it will grow into, no man can tell. Its possibilities are limitless. It was conceived under the inspiration of a great opportunity; it was planned with a wisdom that compels our admiration; its first stages have been executed with a brilliancy that could have resulted only from a heaven-born courage and faith. From this time on we fight from a vantage-ground that makes the ultimate victory sure.

MAKING THE AMENDMENT SAFE.

The adoption of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution was a great victory for the moral forces of the United States. But all has not yet been done that must be done if we are to enjoy the fruits of that victory. Congress must pass suitable legislation to make the amendment effective, and the State Legislatures must provide for the enforcement of the law. It behooves the temperance forces, therefore, to be on their guard lest the interests unfavorable to prohibition succeed in defeating the will of the people by preventing the passage of the necessary enabling acts. It will be well for them to find out how all candidates for office stand upon this question that will demand settlement in the near future, and to see to it that all legislative assemblies are kept informed as to what is expected of them in this connection. Eternal vigilance is necessary in dealing with a wily foe.

IT IS AN INTERESTING QUESTION.

A Western senator has said that he will propose a congressional investigation of the decision of the War Department to dispose of 250,000,000 pounds of surplus army meats in co-operation with Chicago packers so as to avoid lowering the price of meat on the American market. We are not well enough versed in the intricacies of "big business" to know just why the Government should be opposed to the lowering of the price of one of the great staples of consumption to the people at large; we await with interest, therefore, any light that may be thrown upon the subject by any kind of investigation whatsoever.

VICTORY ASSURED.

As the Advocate goes to press on Tuesday of each week, it is impossible to give in this issue anything like a full statement of the results of the "Big Drive." It is possible to say, however, on the basis of reports that have already been received, that the success of the campaign in the Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferences is assured.

Since the office of the State Campaign Director for the Louisiana Conference is located in New Orleans, it is possible for us to get fuller information concerning that Conference than of the others. A report over the telephone from the State Director's office brings the cheering news that present figures indicate that every district in the Louisiana Conference except two "went over the top" on the first day of the campaign, and that those two failed only because a violent rain storm on Sunday made it impossible for the teams in many places to work. There is no doubt, however, about these districts' securing their full allotment. Definite figures show that the New Orleans District exceeded its quota of $100,000 by more than $35,000, and the end is not yet.

As we go to press, we have received no official statement from the Mississippi and the North Mississippi Conferences as a whole; but reports from individual charges, and estimates based upon information previously obtained, leave no doubt as to the outcome of the campaign in those Conferences. Such reports as these have come to us: "Main Street, Hattiesburg, has pledged $77,815 on an allotment of $23,318 at the close of the first day." "Long Beach and Lyman over the top by big odds." "Centenary Church, McComb City, $4025 beyond allotment of $21,000 by 12:20, and only two-thirds solicited; greatest spiritual uplift in the history of the church." "Centenary greetings — Prentiss charge over the top."

Definite reports from North Mississippi have been delayed in reaching us, but a careful estimate of the results has been made by one who is in a position to know whereof he speaks; this estimate indicates that the North Mississippi Conference will exceed its quota by at least twenty-five per cent.

All honor to the conference secretaries, the conference campaign directors, the presiding elders, the district directors, the pastors, the minute men, the local church directors, the committee chairmen and team captains, the faithful team workers, men and women, and the loyal membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who have made this glorious result possible!

LET SOMEBODY HELP THE CONSUMER.

We have noticed recently that "efficiency experts" are addressing various gatherings of business men to tell them how to manage their affairs in such way as to eliminate waste and increase their profits. We are anxious for somebody to arise in the land to tell the "ultimate consumer" how to escape from his uncomfortable position between the upper and nether millstones of the increasing cost of commodities and the decreasing purchasing power of a dollar. The only encouragement we have held out thus far is the comforting assurance of the purveyors of merchandise that prices will undoubtedly be higher in the future than they are now. The prospect is not pleasing.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

A prominent citizen of New Orleans was shot and killed by a highwayman on a prominent street of the city. A great sensation was produced, the police officials became active, a young man was arrested and charged with the crime, and a full confession followed. In his confession, he lays his career of crime to three things: bad company, drink, and gambling. While making allowance for other factors that probably entered into his downfall, we cannot fail to be impressed by the testimony of this self-confessed criminal concerning the influence of these three things upon his life. According to his confession, he was well-reared; but the sacred ties of home were broken by the vicious influences from without, and what might have been a useful and happy life was brought to destruction. "Bad company, drink, and gambling"—we wish every boy and young man in the country could be made to realize what these things almost inevitably lead to. The sad story of crime, disgrace, and punishment would not then have to be told so often.

IS HE SERIOUS?

We read the other day that President Ebert of Germany said, in connection with the peace terms: "Notwithstanding the night now covering it, I have abiding faith in the future of the German people and in the unconquerability of its soul. This people, which has given the world so much in science, learning, and industry, must not go down to oblivion. It still has a cultural mission to perform and ethical treasures to bestow." We do not find fault with President Ebert's loyalty to his people, and his faith in their ultimate restoration to the society of respectable nations; but we cannot help wondering what he means when he says that they still have "a cultural mission to perform and ethical treasures to bestow." From our point of view, they need to be taught what culture is, and to be instructed in the elementary principles of ethics. Their system of "kultur" and ethics came too near to destroying the world for us to want any more of it. "He who would teach, must first learn."

PREACHING THE GOSPEL.

The Christian pulpit exists for the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ. There can scarcely be any argument about this. There may be other pulpits which are pledged to other work, but the Christian pulpit should surely find its chief work in the proclamation of the gospel of Jesus Christ. This is its work; this is its strength; this is its glory; and the man to whom the gospel appears to be but a message of weakness or superstition has surely no place in the Christian Church.

But what is this gospel? It ought to be easy to answer the question, and yet it is not nearly so easy as it seems. We listened once to a fervent evangelistic appeal, weakened by a profusion of most touching anecdotes, to an audience to yield itself to the Lord, and yet to us the most striking feature in the whole address was the eclipse of the Christ, whom the preacher thought he was preaching. And we have listened to addresses in which the name of Christ was scarcely mentioned, and yet the whole address breathed forth the true spirit of Jesus Christ, and in deed and truth revealed Him. The preaching of the gospel is not merely the preaching of certain truths set in stereotyped and meaningless formulae, nor is it the extravagance which some identify with the real gospel message; but it is the setting forth the ideals of Jesus, in the spirit of Jesus, even though the peculiar ecclesiastical phraseology of the ancient Church may be wholly abandoned. It makes Christ live, and think, and move in the life and thought of to-day. It brings Him again to fishermen and publicans, to the temple, the farm, the field and the home. It makes Him the comrade of earth's toilers, the helper of earth's weaklings, the friend and Savior of sinners.

This is a many-sided gospel. It refuses to be confined within narrow ecclesiastical barriers, but reaches out to touch commerce and industry, legislation and politics, and concerns itself with all that concerns the well-being of our race. It concerns itself with the physical well-being of men, and makes unrelenting war upon evils which prey upon the physical life. It fights the slave traffic, the liquor traffic, and the social evil, and makes no apology for doing so, for its message of good cheer means clean living and righteous laws. It preaches good tidings to the poor, but it does not content itself with merely getting the poor man's soul saved. It demands for him the right to live respectably; it concerns itself alike with his hours of labor, its conditions, and its wages; and it does so not as a matter of mercy, but as representing divine justice. There is no part of life which it does not invade, no domain of human effort to which its laws do not apply. We have yet to see just what the result will be when its law of love shall be translated into terms of the market, the shop and the social life of our day.

Methodism once was inclined to boast that its preachers preached a "full salvation;" and we think the day has come when our preaching should be a "full salvation" for the whole complex life of man; and a fuller salvation than our fathers dreamed of in the days that are gone. To them the term implied freedom from sin, as they understood it, or even "perfect love," as they interpreted it. But "perfect love" to-day must be a much more energetic and wide-sweeping thing than forty years ago. It must touch and transform all our business and social relations; it must reveal itself as the most powerful and radical of all the agencies at work in the world, and must supplant love of gain by love of man. This is the "perfect love" of to-day.

We hear sometimes the complaint that the pulpit no longer preaches "the old, old story." If this is true, then the pulpit is no longer a Christian pulpit, for the story of the Lord is really the oldest story the world ever listened to, the story of love at once forgiving and transforming. The complaint is sometimes made that the Church is trying to force men to be good, and that God's way is by persuasion alone and not by law. This complaint is absolutely untenable, as there is no law of man which approaches the divine law in the inexorableness of its penalties and the omnipresence of its working. The gospel of Jesus Christ does not force man to be good, but it certainly does not counsel that we shall allow the devil to work unhampered in our national and social life. But the very laws which are intended to restrain men from injuring other men are to be moulded and dictated by love, and not by any ignoble passion. If ever the world needed this gospel it is surely now, when a new world is in process of birth, if ever the world was ready for this gospel it is surely at this time, when it has been so chastened by war; and if ever this gospel was welcomed by men it will surely be now, when the whole world is eagerly straining its eyes for the dawn of a new day. The gospel of Christ is still the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, only in these days we need a wider faith leading to a more marvelous salvation than our fathers ever knew.—The Christian Guardian.

JOHN D. IRELAND—AN APPRECIATION.

By J. B. Cain.

In the passing of this faithful servant of Jehovah all of us have felt a personal loss. A quiet and unobtrusive life was his, and yet the simple, kindly spirit that marked his life had made for him a group of friends, more perhaps than he himself knew. We have thought of the ministry as giving to us the finest examples of self-sacrificing service and devotion to the right, forgetting that among the laymen have been found many who denied themselves, took up their cross, and followed the Master.

Such a man was John D. Ireland. He was born near Church Hill, Jefferson County, Mississippi, on October 16, 1854, and was the son of Steven Ireland and Martha Owen. His early life was spent in the stirring days of the Civil War. A school friend of those days says that even then he was known for the manly and straightforward character of his actions. To this strong foundation was added in later years the principles of Christianity in a full measure. He joined the Kingston Church in 1879, but soon afterward transferred his membership to Washington, where it remained until his death on Friday afternoon, April 11. On Sunday morning, at the hour when he had so often attended service in this selfsame church, now crowded with a host of sorrowing friends, his presiding elder, Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, spoke the last words, taking this as his central thought: "He was a good man, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost." Many have said to me that it seemed not to have the sadness of other funeral services, because of the consciousness that his faithful life on earth had given him another and better home. At the close of a day's task, just as he would have wished it, with his simple duties well performed, he quietly slipped away into another world, gone to meet his Savior, and unafraid.

The characteristics of his life were rugged honesty, a simple kindly manner, devotion to his loved ones, and fidelity to the Church and cause and Kingdom of the Christ. A close study of the records reveals the fact that during the forty years of his membership he was for thirty-nine a trustee, thirty-five a steward, twenty-seven recording steward, sixteen district steward, seven years Sunday school superintendent, three years charge lay leader. From the quarterly conference records available, we learn that he answered the roll call one hundred and twenty-seven times, fifty-eight of which he was secretary. When we consider that the nearest church at which these conferences were held was five miles away and the farthest twenty-seven, we realize that it was no small task to which he committed himself. He was the friend of pastor and presiding elder, all of whom found in his hospitable home a warm and cordial welcome.

It was here in this sacred place that the steadfast purity of his soul rose to its highest heights. He was married to Miss Virginia Robson on January 15, 1879, and she, with her daughters, Miss Virginia, Mrs. H. A. Hunderup, and Mrs. W. A. Brown, survive his going. No one, I am sure, ever entered that home without noting their devotion one for another and without getting a higher ideal of domestic fidelity. Their contribution to the social and religious life of the community will not be measured until the final records are revealed.

To have such a man as a friend was a privilege, and while most of us were unworthy of his friendship, we coveted that relation, and rejoiced in knowing that, however much we failed, always he was true to our best interest. To me he was a wise and helpful counsellor and his going has left a vacancy that cannot be filled. We rejoice that he has heard the Master calling, "Come up higher. Well done." But our hearts ache at our own loss. To every former pastor and presiding elder he was the same.

They honor the memories of men who died for their faith. I wonder if it is not a greater thing to live for it? To live, as John D. Ireland lived, not with self as the center of his thought, but with God and his loved ones, the Church, and humanity at the center? Brother Ireland never sought an honor, and never shirked a duty. Let me live as he lived, and then I shall be ready to die as he died.

THE CENTENARY AND PRISONS.

By Rev. H. S. Johns,
Chaplain, Louisiana State Penitentiary.

About twenty-five years ago the late Dr. David Morton, who at that time was the Secretary of the Board of Church Extension for our Church, in addressing the Louisiana Conference upon the needs of some sections of our country, told of a visit to a Missouri city where the Annual Conference was in session. He had never been to that city before, and, on alighting from the train, asked a cabman if he knew where the Methodist Church was. "I know where it is," the cabman replied; "it is right on the street leading to the penitentiary."

Dr. Morton said that was the proper location for a church, and proceeded to tell of places where people could be saved by the erection of churches, and promptly raised a good collection.

The Centenary, while not having in mind any prison relief work, nevertheless will have the opportunity, by reaching the unchurched masses, of preventing many crimes, and while prisons may not be thought of directly, yet if people are brought into the proper relation to God, the sins which bring men and women to prison will never be committed.

It is not the will of God that over 100,000 men and women be confined (as an average) in the various penitentiaries, both state and federal, of our country.

But a brighter day is just before us in this respect if the opportunity is fairly seized. During the war, the new-comers to prison fell off greatly, owing to the regulation of vice districts by federal authority, and the gathering up of all available young men for the war, and putting others to work in some form of the war enterprises, as well as a general observance of right living.

What a pity if this condition does not act as a warning to the thoughtless and in due time make our prisons empty!

The leaders of our Church were wise to inaugurate this Centenary movement. This is the psychological moment to lay a deeper foundation for world-wide religion, which is the only guarantee of human happiness here and eternal happiness hereafter. May it succeed, is my prayer!

Every church stands figuratively right on the road to the penitentiary, and by lifting up the Lord Jesus Christ and His doctrines every problem is to be solved, and no thought of prisons ever can mar or disturb the peace arising from the pure worship of God and the holy living developed thereby.

It is well to direct all efforts possible to the salvation of those who have become entangled in the pitfalls of sin, but to prevent is better than to cure.

Within the past eleven years I have beheld so many sad scenes which beggar description, that I have often longed to inaugurate some evangelistic work of a preventive nature, but so far no providential opening has manifested itself, and I remain here as at the bottom of a great Niagara to care for those who topple over. But the Church of the Living God, purchased by the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, will receive a new impetus from the inspiration of this Centenary Movement, which, I trust, will result in doing the work I had hoped to do.

I have in mind a fair-haired youth from the plains of the West. He was barely twenty years of age when he left his mother to wander out into a wide and sinful world. Things did not turn out as he expected and he took to robbery as a means of living. Entering a home to rob, he was detected and arrested and after a trial was sentenced to a long term in prison, where he died recently with the Spanish influenza; and to-day his body lies mouldering into dust on the prison farm at Angola. What a pity! Oh, if he could have fallen into the lap of some church, or Christian man or woman! I did my best in his illness to direct him to the Christ—he would not heed me before, but he was too ill to realize his condition. Poor boy! Laid away on a prison farm when he might have adorned a place in society!

Not every wandering youth can be saved by the Church, because they are shy of the Church, but if even a few are saved even in this direction, the results will be gratifying.

The other benefits accruing from the Centenary have been abundantly set forth, but let us not forget that there will be a reflex benefit in the prevention of tears, and in keeping intact homes which might otherwise be broken up by sin.

So again I say, let us put the Centenary over the top!

Baton Rouge, La.

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

At the call of the presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, the district conference of the Holly Springs District met with Main Street Church, Water Valley, Miss., May 7-9. All the preachers in the district in charge of works were present during the conference, bringing with them very encouraging reports of the work being done on their respective charges. Many laymen were present with much manifested interest in the affairs of the Church. Much information and inspiration was furnished the conference by the following connectional men who were with us: Dr. M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps College; Rev. B. F. Lewis, Supt. of the Orphanage; Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary; Dr. A. E. Clement, Field Director for the Centenary; Hon. T. B. King, representing the Memphis Methodist Hospital; D. H. Hall, Conference Campaign Director for the Centenary; and Hon. G. L. Jones, Conference Lay Leader. The session of the conference was a very busy one and reports from every hand indicate fine progress in all the activities of the Kingdom. W. R. Liming and B. E. Crowson were licensed to preach. Rev. R. M. Papasan was recommended to the Annual Conference for local elder's orders, and Rev. T. A. Jones and Rev. G. W. Russell were recommended for local deacon's orders. The laymen of the conference elected a very strong and representative body of delegates to the Annual Conference. They are: Judge J. G. McGowan, Dr. A. W. Milden, Dr. D. H. Bishop, Lester G. Fant, Rev. T. A. Jones, Robt. Sharp, A. G. Carter, B. S. Elliott. Hon. Lester G. Fant of Holly Springs was elected District Lay Leader.

The one all-absorbing theme of the conference was the great Centenary movement. The district is ablaze with enthusiasm over this epoch-making movement and the leaders are determined that the district shall have its full share in the work. Almost every church in the district is organized or being organized for the "Big Drive" and the district is leading the districts of the Conference in the matter of the Sunday schools accepting the pledges for the quota, having more than double the number of any other district. The conference heard some very able addresses in connection with this work by Hon. T. B. King, of Memphis, Dr. A. E. Clement, of Nashville, D. H. Hall and G. L. Jones, of New Albany, and Judge J. G. McGowan, of Water Valley. We feel sure that under the efficient leadership of the presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, and the Campaign Director, Lester G. Fant, that ere this is printed the Holly Springs District will be "over the top and still going."

In connection with the report of the Sunday School Committee, Judge J. G. McGowan suggested what seems to be one of the most plausible movements that have been introduced in connection with this work in a long time. Holly Springs District has the distinction of having within its borders the only piece of exclusively owned property of the North Mississippi Conference, Grenada College, where Rev. J. R. Countiss and Rev. T. M. Brownlee are doing such fine work. In compliance with the rapid development of the Church and with the growing ability of Grenada College, it was suggested that it would be a good and proper thing for the Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference to confer with the President of Grenada College in the matter of establishing a chair of Sunday School Pedagogy in that institution. In this way the young ladies that attend Grenada College could be trained very efficiently for teachers and leaders in the Sunday school work as well as the religious life. This is a matter worthy of consideration. Why not endow a chair of such kind? Surely it can be done.

The conference voted very enthusiastically a resolution of thanks to the pastor for his kindness and to the people of Main Street Church for their kind hospitality, and all went away feeling greatly benefited by the two days spent together. The conference will meet with the Holcomb church next year. R. G. LORD, Secretary.

Coffeeville, Miss., May 13.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

By Rev. Jno. D. Ellis.

The conference met April 30, in the graceful city of Lumberton, which sits serenely upon altitude and valley, amid oaks and flowers, and which casts a transquillizing spell upon the nerveless fellow racked by the bang and clatter of strenuous city life. Should the gods ever turn Lumberton into a girl, she will be a beauty, with eyes bright and clear, and on summer nights some fellow will be sure to court her!

Dr. B. F. Jones, the sweet-spirited pastor, was as composed and unruffled as his tranquil parish, and he placed all the preachers and delegates under obligation to him by his brotherly concern for their best comfort.

This scribe was entertained at the hospitable home of Mr. R. W. Hinton, Sr., and the pleasant sojourn with that excellent family will not be forgotten.

Rev. J. A. Moore, Moss Point's cogent preacher, and efficient pastor, was elected secretary, but he is such an admirer of this writer, he pleaded with the conference to instruct me to write its proceedings to the Advocate, in order that I might promote the edification not only of the absent, but of posterity.

It is great to have an admirer, such as Brother Moore. He is warned, however, that he is likely to be disappointed, because oftentimes a man's soul fails to come up to the promise of his face. Still, if he remains consistent, he will be compelled to place this effusion in his archives, to be read by his "chillun's chillun."

Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder, sat in the chair without semblance of gawkiness, and the business of the conference was expedited with pleasing force and skill.

By resolutions, the assembly said that Brother Jones is a splendid presiding elder, and the brethren assured him of their genuine indissoluble love. He is serving his fourth year on the district, and the regret is general that we cannot keep him longer. If the bishop appoints him to another district, then there will not be a scarcity of efficient, and painstaking presiding elders on that district. The people will hear the gospel, without the necessity of having to suggest the reading of one of Wesley's sermons! If Brother Jones has troubles, he thrives, as they sit lightly, and he radiates cheerfulness and good will in all his peregrinations. If meekness, or amiableness is proof against social lynching, it is unlikely that he will ever be lynched!

The trip to Lumberton was made by the writer in a "gasoline-buggy," driven by Mr. H. B. Rush, of Biloxi, accompanied also by Rev. J. L. Jordan, local preacher. Brother Rush scared us by his careful driving a number of times, sufficient to make us appreciate life. We reached our destination after a ride of seventy miles over good roads and bad, in the midst of a downpour. So many times did we "skid," it took several hours to travel the last few miles over the muddy road.

Nearly all the preachers and a goodly number of local preachers and lay delegates answered to roll call at the opening session.

The cheerful countenance of Rev. H. Mellard, of Purvis, was helpful.

Time was redeemed by the presiding elder, who quickly organized the assembly, and proceeded to business. The usual committees were appointed, and many pastors made their reports the first day. Local preachers were either present to report, or they sent reports in writing.

Time was devoted to the Sunday school work of the Church, and excellent short talks were made by J. C. Chambers, Geo. L. Carley, J. H. Minor, B. F. Lewis, and Mrs. Sue S. Brame.

The Sunday school work of the district was organized as follows: Geo. L. Carley, secretary; J. H. Minor, superintendent Home Department; J. C. Hardy, superintendent Teachers' Department; Miss Stella Provos, superintendent Elementary Department; H. B. Rush, superintendent Missions; J. A. Vanderwail, superintendent Wesley Bible Classes.

Subscriptions were taken to supplement the salyar of Rev. L. Fayard, a faithful worker on the Coalville mission, which totalled $175.

Prominence was given to the Centenary movement, and those who spoke upon the subject were Dr. D. L. Mumpower, missionary from Africa, W. M. Sullivan, J. A. Moore, and others.

Visiting brethren represented the varied interests of the Church, and those who were given the opportunity to speak were, M. M. Black, T. W. Adams, Robt. Selby, A. F. Watkins, H. W. Van Hook, B. F. Lewis.

The Ad. Int. Licensing Committee was announced as follows: H. M. Ellis, Jno. D. Ellis, C. P. Jones, L. A. Darsey.

Biloxi was selected as the place for the next meeting of the Conference.

The following delegates were elected to the Annual Conference: J. C. Hardy, Asa Weston, W. H. Wainright, C. B. Gates, J. H. Minor, F. F. Smith, Geo. L. Carley, H. B Rush. Alternates: A. S. Hinton, F. E. Kelley, J. L. Jordan, A. Evans. District Lay Leader: Geo. L. Carley.

All the local preachers passed in examination of character, and the license of each was renewed.

The Conference instructed the Secretary to write a letter of fraternal greeting to Rev. A. P. Cox, a local preacher advanced in years and feebie in health.

Reports, optimistic in the main, were finally made by all the committees, and the entire business of the Church was looked after, with peace, harmony, and good will.

A resolution, thanking the good people of Lumberton for their generous hospitality was unanimously passed.

(To be concluded)

GREENVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Greenville District Conference met in the town of Hollandale, April 8-10, and was cordially received by John Rebertson, pastor, and the townspeople who are well known for their courtesy and enthusiastic interest in the church. Good will and brotherly love marked every sitting of the conference. We had expected Bishop Kilgo to be present, and, of course, there was much disappointment when we learned that he could not come, but Brother Curtis presided with such ease and dignity that we soon dismissed the temporary disappointment. Some of the preachers said that they could make better speeches if the Bishop were not there.

Rev. A. S. Raper, of Friar Point, was elected Secretary and proved himself very efficient.

The pulpit was occupied by Revs. J. R. Bright, Rosedale; J. H. Smith, Coahoma; E. N. Broyles, Clarksdale, and C. P. Moss, Shaw. The sermons were all inspiring and besopke for the preachers a vision of God and an endeavor to follow the Man of Galilee.

Several laymen were present and entered very earnestly into the work and deliberations of the conference. The laymen of the district are showing great interest in the Church; to them much of the progress we are making over here is due. Our Centenary Director, Hon. H. L. Wilkinson, is untiring in his efforts and is accomplishing, by his visits to the various places and the convincing addresses to the laymen, inestimable good. He has the Centenary on his heart.

Space in your valued paper, not our time, would forbid much that should be said about the district conference. We shall give some extracts from the reports of the preachers:

E. N. Broyles has received, since Annual Conference, into the church at Clarksdale, 95; total enrollment in the Sunday school, 230, with 48 in the Home Department.

T. M. Bradley, Cleveland, received 15 into the church; membership of the W. M. S., 65.

J. H. Smith, Coahoma: Two good Sunday schools; two Woman's Missionary Societies; finances up to date.

C. P. Moss, Shaw: General progress; 75 per cent of benevolences ready for the Treasurer.

C. A. Northington, Boyle: 58 additions to church; fine list of subscriptions to the Advocate; $3600 raised to build new parsonage.

J. A. Coleman, Duncan: Good revival in charge. On receipt of their Centenary allotment, the laymen took up the work and, in a few hours, raised $2880. The allotment was $2650.

A. S. Raper, Friar Point, reported great increase in attendance at all services.

C. T. Barton, Glen Allan: 12 additions to church roll; Sunday school roll more than doubled during the month preceding the district conference.

E. S. Lewis, Greenville; 26 additions to church and better congregations.

I. F. Holland, Gunnison, was not present on account of serious illness. He was away for rest and recuperation and hopes to return at an early day to his work. Gunnison has guaranteed the allotment for the Centenary.

J. R. Robertson, Hollandale, has raised on the parsonage debt $600. (Hollandale has an excellent parsonage.) The Sunday schools have accepted the 5c per member Centenary Allotment.

S. A. Brown, Leland, raised as special for Missions $150 and made substantial repairs on parsonage.

W. C. Galceran, Jonestown, is preaching to large congregations in the recently completed church. His Sunday school roll is more than double the church roll.

W. W. Jones, Lula, has finance commitee to secure funds for new church. The Sunday school roll has been increased by the membership campaign.

We failed to get notes on reports of Brothers Wyatt, Shelby; Shearer, Benoit; and Lott, Merrigold, but from personal association with these brethren know they are sustaining the record they have made.

Our beloved Dr. T. W. Dye was not present, owing to his recent bereavement, the death of Slster Dye. Expressions of love and sympathy were conveyed to Brother Dye.

Revs. Robert Selby, Commissioner for Emory University; M. M. Black, for Millsaps College; Ben P. Jaco, Conference Missionary Secretary, and B. F. Lewis, Manager of the Orphans' Home, were present and faithfully presented the claims of the worthy institutions and causes severally represented by them.

The District Educational Loan Fund was created and Brothers J. H. Sherard and A. E. Graham were elected trustees of same.

The following were elected lay delegates to Annual Conference: J. H. Sherard, E. M. Fant, J. T. Mathis, E. T. Spivey, Sol Sealbinder, E. H. Cason, A. E. Graham; alternates: Robert Somerville, J. H. Johnson, J. S. Fincher and T. H. Taylor.

E. M. Fant was elected District Lay Leader.

The following compose the Licensing Committee: Revs. T. M. Bradley, C. P. Moss, S. A. Brown and E. S. Lewis.

Before closing the final session, Rev. V. C. Curtis, P. E., delivered a brief address to the preachers in which he expressed appreciation of the cooperation of the preachers and laymen and placed special emphasis upon the importance of the revival meetings and evangelistic preaching.

HATTIESBURG DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The eleventh session of the Hattiesburg District Conference was held in the Petal Church of the Hattiesburg circuit, May 6-8, 1919, Rev. W. B. Jones, presiding elder, in the chair. Rev. C. E. Downer, the pastor, and his congregation proved excellent hosts. Dinner was served at the church each day, and this was a great convenience and advantage. The attendance of preachers and delegates was good, as was also that of the community. The preaching was by Dr. E. H. Mounger, Wednesday morning, followed by the Lord's Supper, and by Rev. H. G. Hawkins, Wednesday night, followed by dedication of Petal Church.

The following addressed the Conference: Dr. D. L. Mumpower Thursday night, on "The Congo Mission of Africa;" Rev. M. M. Black, on Millsaps College; Rev. J. C. Chambers, and Rev. J. H. Jolly, on Sunday schools; Rev. R. Selby, on Emory University; V. M. Scanlan and K. T. Moore, on the Methodist Centenary; Mrs. S. F. Riley, on the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage; Rev. J. C. Ellis, Jr., on conditions in the U. S. Navy; Rev. H T. Carley, on the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

An attractive feature the first afternoon was a practical demonstration in primary and cradle roll work, given by about twenty-five children of Main Street Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Hathaway, assisted by Mrs. D. L. Turner and Miss Pearl Cochran.

Rev. David Russell Campbell was recommended to the Annual Conference as eligible to the office of local deacon; Clyde Columbus Clark was granted license to preach, and Rev. Stennis Wood Johnson, a preacher of the Baptist Church, was received into the ministry of the M. E. Church, South, and recommended to the Annual Conference for recognition of his orders. The characters of twenty local preachers, deacons and elders were passed; and the report of one of these, H. B. Cottrell, L.D., who lives with his son, Rev. T. B. Cottrell, of Mt. Olive, was ordered spread on the Minutes. The following is the first paragraph of this report: "Brethren Beloved, I bless the Lord that, though past 88 years of age, I am able to do some active service for Him, mostly in the Sunday school, and occasionally in the prayer-meeting and in the pulpit." One local preacher, Rev. Linton L. Barger, had died heroically while fighting in Europe; and resolutions in his honor were passed.

The Quarterly Conference Records of the charges were examined, and the pastors made reports, which became the basis for the reports of a dozen or more committees which had been appointed to consider the various interests of the Church within the district. In all of these was a note of hope and determination. Especially was this true in reference to the Centenary Campaign, of which V. M. Scanlan is District Campaign Director.

K. T. Moore was elected District Lay Leader; and the following were chosen as delegates to the Annual Conference: Jno. A. McLeod, D. McGilvary, K. T. Moore, H. V. Waits, G. W. Holloway, J. T. Jordan, James Hand, W. J. Mucklewrath; with W. S. F. Tatum; H. Ogden, C. L. Neill, and V. E. Habgood as alternates.

Broad Street Church was chosen as the place for next meeting; and the closing moments of the session were characterized by vote of thanks to the presiding elder for his competent and considerate chairmanship; to the pastor, the ladies, and other various persons who had assisted in making the conference an unusually helpful and successful one.

THE MONROE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Monroe District Conference will convene at Winnsboro, La., from June 2 to 5. The brethren will please elect their delegates at their church conferences and then send the names and addresses to me.

The opening sermon will be preached on the night of June 2 by Rev. E. K. Means, of Monroe, La.

The following committees will be appointed:

On License to Preach—W. R. Harvell, E. K. Means and J. D. Nesom; on Recommendation for Admission on Trial—J. M. Alford, J. R. Roy and R. F. Harrell; on Recommendation for Re-admission—T. J. Warlick, D. C. Barr and I. T. Reames; for Deacon's Orders—O. L. Tucker, W. J. Porter and A. D. George; for Elder's Orders—Robt. Randle, W. T. Woodward and A. S. J. Nell; for Quarterly Conference Records—W. F. Henderson, Jr., L. W. Smart and J. L. Lay.

The first day will be "Educational Day," giving special attention to a Sunday school institute led by Rev. Alonzo Early, and a sermon on Christian Education at night by Rev. W. W. Drake.

The second day will be given to Missions and the Laymen's Movement under the direction of Rev. N. E. Joyner and Mr. R. O. Randle.

GIVE US MORE SUCH, MR. EDITOR.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

In view of the fact that these are the months for district conferences, where young men are licensed to preach, I ask the privilege of endorsing your editorial on "A Prepared Ministry" in the Advocate of April 24. As one of the older ministers in my Conference, I would hope that every generation of preachers should be an improvement upon the past. This is not only a day of education, but of special training; and to this end we have institutions supported for greatest efficiency in all kinds of work. Fifty years ago, to have "read medicine" for a year or so under some recognized, successful practitioner, was sufficient to grant a license to practice medicine, but not so now. Four years of study and attendance upon lectures, supplemented by clinical work, must be done before the applicant is counted worthy of recognition. It has been only a few years since a young man might give a few hours daily for a few months in some jurist's office and appear before some officer who, after putting a few leading questions, would grant him privileges of the Bar; but to-day there must be special study and training for such honor. The requirement of special training and examination has eliminated many an inefficient teacher from the schoolroom. But why go further in these illustrations, which are known and read of all men?

If I may speak from personal experience, I would say that as the years have passed I have felt the more keenly this lack of special training for the work to which I have given my life. Though an A. B. graduate of one of our leading colleges—which is represented at this time by four members of the Episcopal college of our Church—I shall ever regret that I did not take training at some theological institution. Because of lack of such preparation I have felt a handicap in the performance of a better work for the Church and in rightly dividing the word of truth.

Soon after my return from college my father proposed that I should take a course in law at Lebanon, Tenn., (which was his preference), or, if I preferred the medicine, to send me to the Louisville Medical College; but when I told him of my convictions for the ministry, with many of that day, he thought all that was necessary was a horse, bridle, saddle and saddle-bags, all of which he provided without murmur or stint, and his boy was ready, thoroughly equipped for the greatest, most delicate work ever committed to men. A special course at Lebanon, that I might unravel the intricacies of the civil laws, but no special training or study that I might understand and expound the law of Moses and the great plan of salvation! Two years at a medical college, that I might learn to diagnose diseases and treat symptoms, but not an hour of special study under a master that I might search out the deeper needs of men and have some skill in turning men to the Great Physician and in applying the balm of Gilead to the wounded hearts of sin-sick men! I shudder now to think of what an adventure for one in a field of thought and study so profound, so delicate in its nature. Beyond what I had learned at the country Sunday school, I knew as little about theology as I did about Sanskrit; and what interpretation to put upon the Scripture was largely guess-work. It is true, I had before me a course of study which was often a greater study as to what I could do with it in preparing for the practical questions that must be met by the pastor. Yes, as a sister once said of my discourses, "she loved to hear me air my eruditon," and why not? It all came out of Watson, Wesley, et id genus omne. I recall advice given by Bishop Keener to the young men at a district conference, in these words: "Young brethren, read books, buy books if you have to sell your shirt." Young brethren, go to Emory for better training if you have to sell your shirt to do so.

THE PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Port Gibson District Conference is hereby called to meet in Rolling Fork, on Tuesday, July 8, at 2:30 p. m., and to hold over until the proper business is completed, which should not be later than the evening of Thursday, the 10th.

The daytime through train, by which it will be most convenient for members from the south to make the trip, arrives at Rolling Fork at about 2 p. m., giving ample time in Vicksburg for dinner.

The town of Anguilla, six miles from Rolling Fork and conveniently connected with it by rail and by train schedules, and withal well supplied with automobiles, will generously assist in the entertainment of the conference, and there will probably be preaching in both towns every night.

The churches of the district are requested to choose their delegates at once, and report their names to me and to Rev. T. J. O'Neil, the pastor at Rolling Fork.

It is important that the reports from the charges be all presented to the conference by noon of the second day; and in order that these reports be both brief and comprehensive, it is recommended that they be carefully prepared.

The local preachers, who are members of the conference by virtue of their relation to the Church, are requested to be present if possible, and if not, to send a written report of their work to me at Rolling Fork not later than July 8. As a matter of fairness, it is urged that, if possible, all the members be present at the opening session, and remain to the close unless duly excused by the conference.

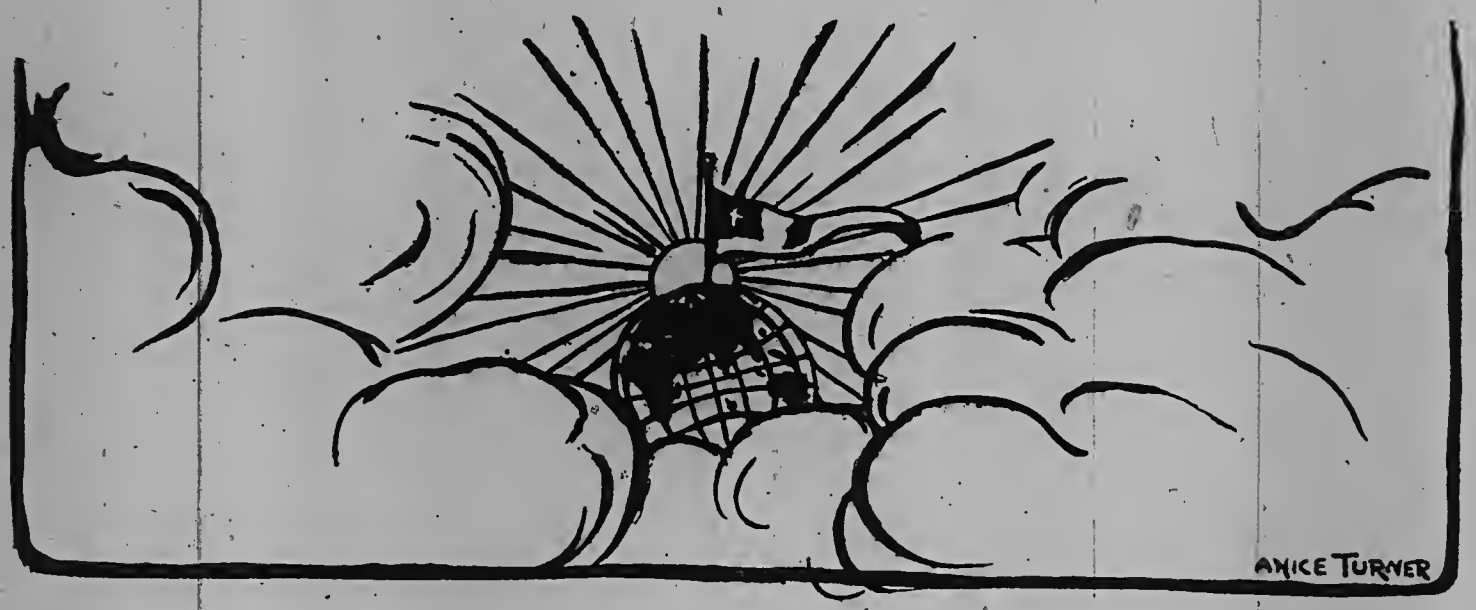
HOW MUCH OWEST THOU?



The Home Circle

OLD RUSTY.

She had been a "crack" engine thirty years before, and long after every other locomotive of her pattern had been broken up into scrap iron Old Rusty was hauling a local express and making her thirty-two miles an hour like clockwork. But at last, because she looked so ridiculous beside the new engines, she was taken off the run and put to drawing freight from the company's shops to the stations on the main line.

Absurd as the old engine appeared, every engineer who handled her soon grew fond of her, even poor Hepburn, who went a little wrong in his head and lost his position. The yardmaster gave him odd jobs to make a living, and when in the course of his oiling and cleaning Hepburn came to Old Rusty he petted her and even talked to her as if she were alive.

There never was a man, though, who made so much of the engine as did young Maitland, Hepburn's successor. Maitland had fought his way up, starting with everything against him. When Old Rusty was given him he set out to master her, and he ended by getting more out of her than any one thought possible.

At the end of the year, when the records of the locomotives were made up, it was found that the old engine had used less fuel and cost less for repairs, considering the number of miles run, than any other locomotive on the road. Then Maitland could have had another engine and a passenger run if he had wanted it.

"No," he said. "Old Rusty can teach me something yet, and I like to be close to the shops, where I can have a chance to experiment and pick up ideas."

One night in September—a night of darkness and drizzling rain and slippery tracks—Old Rusty, with steam up, was waiting for the departure of a "special" that carried the president of the road and an official party.

Of course a fast new locomotive was assigned to that train, which included two Pullmans, a sleeper and a baggage car, besides the president's private car. Five minutes before seven the party appeared on the station platform. The president was holding his watch in his hand and looking worried.

"I have just an hour to make forty miles," he said; and before the words were fairly out of his mouth the yardmaster came up to report that something was wrong with the crank pin of the locomotive, and that it would take twenty minutes to repair it. The engine could make the run, he said, but, according to the rules, she ought not to be sent out in such a condition.

The president of the road was not the man to break his own rules. "Is there any other engine ready?" he asked.

"Old Rusty is the only one, but she might make it," the yardmaster answered.

The president laughed as he looked over at the ungainly old engine; but he had heard something about the performances of Old Rusty and her engineer, and so in two minutes the new locomotive was run on a siding, the other was coupled to the train, and with a screech Old Rusty rattled to make forty miles in forty-eight minutes.

Then a strange thing happened. The new engine had been left alone for the moment, although her engineer and fireman stood only a few steps away. Up sneaked Hepburn, the poor crazy fellow who had once been an engineer, jumped into the cab, pulled open the throttle, and was off on the main line before any one realized what was going on.

The yardmaster rushed to the telegraph office. In a moment it was ticked over the wires to the next stop, eight miles ahead, that a wild engine, manned by a crazy engineer, was loose on the road.

Maitland had none too much of a start, for it did not take Hepburn long to get his engine warmed to her work. There were three minutes between the train and the wild engine at first, but only sixty seconds separated them when Maitland came to the end of the long curve at Berry Hill.

The engineer happened to glance back, and the sight that met his eyes made his heart leap and his face turn pale. Through the darkness, shining like an evil eye, came the headlight of the wild engine.

Maitland shouted a warning to his fireman and opened the throttle wide. He was thankful now that he knew Old Rusty's every strength and weakness. As never before he coaxed her to show her utmost speed. Death was roaring behind them.

As they neared the first station Maitland looked out of the cab and saw the white-faced operator on the platform, frantically waving them forward. There was no hearing what he said, but his meaning was clear enough.

It was six miles to the next station, and Old Rusty made it in a little less than eight minutes. But the runaway was gaining—she would overtake Old Rusty within the next six miles. The ancient engine was showing wonderful speed, but it was trying to do the impossible.

"Stay right here, Jack, and keep the throttle wide open!" Maitland suddenly roared to his fireman.

He dashed from the cab, climbed over the tender and into the baggage car. In a second he had a stout trunk strap in his hand. He rushed through the forward car. The president and his guests stood up, white and silent. They thought that Maitland had come to warn them to prepare for an awful shock.

"Follow me!" cried Maitland to the conductor; and the two men made for the rear platform of the car next to the last one.

It is not very difficult to uncouple cars when a train is moving slowly; but with an engine tearing along as Old Rusty was, and with the knowledge that another engine is swooping down upon you, few men would care to attempt it.

Buckling the trunk strap round his waist so that the conductor might hold him, Maitland crawled over the rear railing and tugged at the coupling. Even when he had managed to free the last car, it had such headway that it did not at once desert the train; but presently it fell behind—a trap for the wild engine, a barrier of preservation for the president's train.

Then Maitland raced back to Old Rusty, while the conductor explained to the officials how their lives had been saved.

It was only a minute or two later when the crash came. The pilot of the runaway struck the uncoupled car and then rose in the air. There was a frightful roar of escaping steam, heard above the grinding of wood and iron, and then the engine rolled over on its side. And, strangest of all, Hepburn, the mad engineer, flung out of the cab at the first shock, escaped with a broken leg.

Old Rusty went speeding on; not until the next station was reached, three miles ahead, did Maitland stop. Then the president got out of his car and hurried up to the engine. "Come out of that cab," he said.

Maitland got down, and every man, beginning with the president, shook hands with him. But no one said a word; no one felt talkative then.

* * * * *

The old engineer had finished, but his appreciative hearer ventured a question or two.

"Oh, yes, the president and directors gave Maitland a cheque for a thousand dollars," the old engineer said; "and they said Old Rusty should never be broken up while they controlled the road. And she hasn't been.

"But the worst of it was that two years after that," added the old engineer solemnly, "they made Maitland division superintendent. It was a sin to take so good an engineer off an engine! A first-class engineer isn't born every day!"—Youth's Companion.

TAKE THEM AS THEY COME.

"The lessons as they come every day are not so hard. It is after awhile, when the examinations come and bring them all at once, that the trouble comes," fretted a girl who wanted to stand high in her studies.

"Take them as they come. If you learn each one well, you will find when you meet them again in examination, that they are old friends," wisely encouraged her mother.

That is the good, old rule. It smoothes away many a Hill Difficulty that seems to loom up ahead. We need not do all our life tasks at once. Take them as they come, master them thoroughly, and each conquered lesson, when we meet it again, will prove an old friend instead of a new foe.—Selected.

Editorial

COMPLETE THE "DRIVE."

The reports that have been received of the results of the first day's work in the "Big Drive," are exceedingly encouraging. The plans for the campaign were carefully made and splendidly executed, and many churches have reported that they "went over the top" without difficulty. They are to be congratulated upon the success of their initial efforts. They have given a magnificent demonstration of what can be accomplished by earnest zeal and prayeful determination.

In most of these cases, however, the campaign was not completed on the first day of the "Drive." From the very nature of the case, it is improbable that every member of every church could be seen in one day. There are doubtless many loyal Methodists, who have not yet made their subscriptions, who are just as anxious to have their part in raising this great Centenary fund as were those who have already made their contributions. They should be given the opportunity without fail. The mere fact that the quota has been reached should not result in any lessening of effort to make the campaign as complete as possible. The "Big Drive" does not close until next Sunday; a complete tabulation of the results cannot, therefore, be made before that time. Those churches that have already reached their quotas can probably largely increase them in the meantime; and those that have not secured the full amount, still have plenty of time to "go over the top." Let us keep steadily at the work until every member of every church in Southern Methodism has been given the definite opportunity of contributing to this great movement that means so much to the Church and to the world.

Let us make "Victory" Sunday the greatest day Methodism has ever known.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church convened in New Orleans last week, and is still in session as this is written. It is a magnificent gathering of representative ministers and laymen of this great denomination. Its sessions are being held in the Napoleon Avenue Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. U. D. Mooney is pastor.

In function, the General Assembly corresponds to our General Conference. It has many important matters to deal with; the chief interest, however, seems to be centered in the plan for unification with other Presbyterian bodies of the country. The majority report of the committee appointed to make recommendations was in favor of a plan of federation which would give the constituent bodies practically unlimited control of their own affairs; a minority report favored a closer union than the plan of federation called for. The issue has not been decided at this writing.

Many of the Protestant pulpits of the city were filled last Sunday by the visiting ministers. On account of the opening of the Centenary "Big Drive," it was found to be impracticable to change the order of service in all our churches. The situation was thoroughly understood by the delegates to the Assembly, who have expressed themselves as greatly interested in the success of our Centenary Movement.

Methodism cordially welcomes the representatives of this great Church to New Orleans, and bids them godspeed in their work.

BISHOP LAMBUTH IN NEW ORLEANS.

It was the privilege of New Orleans Methodism to hear Bishop W. R. Lambuth in a great address at First Church on Sunday evening of this week. Bishop Lambuth came to New Orleans from a tour of the principal cities of the State, during which he had strengthened greatly the rising interest in the Centenary Movement. The gathering at First Church on Sunday evening was a mass meeting, to bear the Bishop and to receive reports from the churches of the New Orleans District concerning the outcome of the day's campaign for the Centenary fund. A rain storm just before the hour of assembling affected materially the attendance at the meeting, but the church was well filled, and enthusiasm was at a high pitch.

The Bishop's address was such as was to be expected from a man who has been directly connected with the missionary work of the Church all his life, and who has studied missions from every possible angle, enterprised a great missionary undertaking in what is, perhaps, the most difficult field in the world to-day, and who is personally familiar with missionary operations in every corner of the globe. It has long been our conviction that Bishop Lambuth is the greatest living authority on missions; his address on Sunday evening confirmed that opinion.

At the close of the Bishop's address, Rev. J. G. Snelling, the presiding elder of the New Orleans District, called for reports from the various charges of the results of the first day's campaign. Every charge in the district reported that its quota had been secured, many of them reported an over-subscription, and all of them reported that more subscriptions would follow. A tabulation of the results showed that the New Orleans District had exceeded its quota by more than $35,000 on the first day of the campaign.

Mr. F. E. Gunter, the State Campaign Director, read telegrams from the other districts of the Conference, indicating that the Louisiana Conference had reached its quota of $750,000 on the first day of the "Drive."

THE EPISCOPAL ASSIGNMENTS.

As a matter of general interest, we give the list of episcopal assignments as fixed upon at the recent meeting of the College of Bishops at St. Louis. We have received no official announcement, but we presume the press report is correct. The assignments are as follows:

First District—Bishop E. R. Hendrix, of Kansas City: Virginia Conference, November 12; Western Virginia, September 3; Baltimore, March 24.

Second District—Bishop W. A. Candler, of Atlanta: North Georgia Conference, November 12; South Georgia, November 19; Florida, December 3.

Third District—Bishop James Atkins, of Waynesville, N. C.: North Alabama, Tennessee and Memphis Conferences, the dates to be set for each.

Fourth District—Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va.: Illinois Conference, August 31; Kentucky, September 3; Louisville, September 24; Holston, October 8.

Fifth District—Bishop John C. Kilgo, of Durham, N. C.: North Mississippi Conference, November 12; Louisiana, November 19; Mississippi, November 26.

Sixth District—Bishop W. B. Murrah, of Memphis, Tenn.: Denver Conference, August 21; Missouri, September 3; Southwest Missouri, September 10; St. Louis, September 24.

Seventh District—Bishop W. R. Lambuth: Japan Conference, August 20; Korcan, September 3; China, October 1; Congo Mission, date to be fixed.

Eighth District—Bishop E. D. Mouzon, of Dallas, Tex.: Indian Mission Conference, September 19; West Oklahoma, October 2; East Oklahoma, November 6; North Arkansas, November 10; Little Rock, November 20.

Ninth District—Bishop John M. Moore: Brazil Conference, September 4; Central Brazil, September 18; South Brazil, October 2.

Tenth District—Bishop W. F. McMurry, of St. Louis: New Mexico, October 1; North Texas, November 12; Alabama, December 3; Cuban Mission, January 29.

Eleventh District—Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, of Huntington, W. Va.: West North Carolina Conference, October 22; Upper South Carolina, November 5; North Carolina, November 19; South Carolina, November 26.

Twelfth District—Bishop H. M. DuBose, of Berkeley, Cal.: Northwest Conference, August 27; Pacific, October 5; Los Angeles, October 15.

Thirteenth District—Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Austin, Tex.: West Texas Conference, October 8; North Texas, October 22; Central Texas, November 5; Texas, November 19.

Fourteenth District—Bishop James Cannon, of San Antonio, Tex.: Western Mexican Mission, Texas; Mexican Mission and Mexican Conference, dates to be determined.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. A. J. Bonnette, of Cotton Valley, La., gives an encouraging account of his work.

Rev. T. L. Houston, of Sturgis, Miss., writes that everything is moving along nicely on his charge.

The Centenary edition of the Advocate has been entirely exhausted. More than 34,000 copies of that issue were distributed.

"We have a splendid people here, and they are showing their pastor every consideration," writes Rev. E. H. Cooley, of Raleigh, Miss.

Rev. L. H. Floyd, of the Kosciusko circuit, writes that everything is moving along "in a normal way." That means, of course, that the work is prospering.

According to reports reaching us, the largest congregation for several years was present at the morning service at First Church, Baton Rouge, on Sunday, May 11.

Rev. Hilary S. Westbrook, of Silver Creek, Miss., is preaching to good congregations every Sunday, and meeting with encouraging co-operation in all the work of the Church.

The annual meeting at Millsaps College under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. was conducted this year by Dr. Charles Lane, of Macon, Ga. The meeting accomplished great good.

Brother E. H. Prescott, an official member of our Louisiana Avenue Church, of this city, has recently established an undertaking business here in partnership with Mr. C. J. Schopp.

Chaplain H. G. Gatlin, who has been stationed at Marc Island, Cal., has been assigned to the U. S. S. Brooklyn. He will leave in a few days for the Orient, by way of Manila and Yokohama.

Rev. Albert S. Lutz, the presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, writes that he expects the Monroe District to raise its Centenary allotment in full within the appointed time.

Mrs. Jennie Lavigne, of Ponchatoula, La., has been a reader of the Advocate since the days of the sainted Bishop and former editor, Galloway. She writes of it as having been a great blessing in her life.

Rev. C. C. Miller, our pastor at Morgan City, La., honored the Advocate office with a call on Tuesday of this week. He was in the city with his wife, who is undergoing treatment at the Touro Infirmary.

Rev. A. Standifer Raper, our pastor at Friar Point, Miss., serves a loyal people who believe in doing things. Brother Raper is confident that the Centenary cause will meet with great success in Coahoma County.

We learn from the pastor, Rev. Nolan B. Harmon, that the entire indebtedness of the Crawford Street Church, of Vicksburg, Miss., has just been canceled. This is a great achievement, upon which we congratulate all concerned.

Services were held in 281 of the 384 churches in the Louisiana Conference on Sunday, May 11. This is a remarkable record when we take into consideration the fact that many of these churches are located in remote rural sections.

The Preparatory School of Millsaps College closed its session on May 14. Prof. R. T. Henry, who has been connected with the School, with his good wife, will soon enter upon the work in one of our mission fields. Their loss will be keenly felt at Millsaps.

Brother S. Hibbert, a member of Centenary Church, McComb City, Miss., honored the Advocate office with a call on Saturday of last week. Brother Hibbert was in the city with his wife, who is at the Presbyterian Hospital, recovering from a recent severe surgical operation.

Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo will preside over the Aberdeen District Conference, which is announced to meet at Pontotoc, Miss., on May 29-30. The presiding elder, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, has issued an interesting folder concerning the conference. Rev. W. M. Young will be the host of the conference.

The Editor acknowledges the honor of an invitation to be present at the graduating exercises of the Pleasant Hill High School of Pleasant Hill, La., on May 16. Lamar Lowrey, whom we take to be a son of Rev. P. O. Lowrey, our pastor at Pleasant Hill, is one of the graduates, to whom we extend congratulations and good wishes.

The figures in the Sunday school attendance contest in Louisiana for last Sunday are as follows: Ruston, 728; Noel Memorial, 529; Baton Rouge, 403; Lake Charles, 372; Alexandria, 371. The contest closed last Sunday. Ruston won with an average attendance for the thirteen Sundays of 584. Noel Memorial's average was 447.

Bishop H. M. Dubose occupied the pulpit of First Church, Texarkana, Ark., of which Dr. Theodore Copeland is pastor, on last Sunday. He preached to great audiences, which were greatly profited by his ministry. The First Church, on an allotment of $35,000 for the Centenary cause, raised $36,890 the first day of the "Drive."

The recent death of Mr. I. C. Enochs removed one of the most eminent and philanthropic citizens of Mississippi. One of the finest tributes to his memory that we have seen is a statement of the affection in which he was held by the employees of the great Enochs plants at Fernwood and Kokomo. He was thought of more as a friend than an employer.

According to the report of the Department of Spiritual Resources, of which Rev. S. A. Neblett is secretary, the Louisiana Conference has sent in a total of 3747 signed cards of the Fellowship of Intercession, distributed as follows: Alexandria District, 332; Baton Rouge District, 944; Lafayette District, 577; Monroe District, 137; New Orleans District, 495; Ruston District, 577; Shreveport District, 685.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. A. J. Bonnette, Cotton Valley, La., 3; Rev. W. J. Porter, Sicily Island, La., 2; Rev. M. B. Jones, Rose Hill, Miss., 2; Rev. W. M. Sullivan, Columbia, Miss., 2; Rev. R. A. Sibley, Summit, Miss., 3; Rev. B. E. Meigs, Monticello, Miss., 11; Rev. J. S. Purcell, Crystal Springs, Miss., 10; Rev. H. S. Westbrook, Silver Creek, Miss., 2; Rev. W. R. Goudelock, Lexington, Miss., 2; Rev. E. C. Driskell, Greenwood Springs, Miss., 4; Rev. A. R. Beasley, McCool, Miss., 2; Rev. C. T. Floyd, Byhalia, Miss., 2.

THE LATEST FROM THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Just as we go to press the following telegram comes from Mr. W. T. Denman, Mississippi Conference Campaign Director:

"Hattiesburg District reports at noon $152,000; allotment, $140,000. No figures on other districts, but indications are, Meridian District over, Brookhaven District will be to-morrow."

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

According to Zion's Herald, the Methodist Episcopal Church requires 1850 recruits each year to maintain its work.

Dr. A. C. Dixon has resigned as pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, to take up evangelistic work in this country.

The Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church has selected Des Moines, Ia., as the place for holding the next session of the General Conference.

Practically all our exchanges from other Churches have given extended accounts of the life of Bishop E. E. Hoss and paid tender tribute to his memory.

Dr. J. J. Wallace, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, has been elected president of the Editorial Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. E. C. Wareing, of the Western Christian Advocate, is the secretary.

St. John's Church, St. Louis, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary during the week of May 4-11. Practically all the bishops were present during the exercises. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat gave a full-page account of the work of this church in its issue of May 4. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt is the pastor.

Bishop John W. Hamilton made the address at the funeral of the late F. W. Woolworth, who became famous by establishing the most successful system of "five and ten cent stores" in the world. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman and Rev. S. W. Brown also took part in the service. Mr. Woolworth was of Methodist parentage.

Press dispatches announce that Dr. Charles Gore has resigned his position as Bishop of Oxford. Dr. Gore explains his action by stating that it is his conviction that he can serve the Church best by seeking such leisure as will enable him to do serious study and write more than "little books," which he felt that he could not do in his former position.

News was received by the Joint Methodist Commission while in session in Columbus, Ohio, on May 16, that the Railroad Administration has decided to grant a reduced rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip for the Centenary Celebration at Columbus beginning on June 20. Official announcement of rates will be made from Washington as soon as tariffs can be computed. This action will increase largely the attendance at the Celebration.

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE NEWTON DISTRICT.

Please send to me at once the names of the delegates from your charges who will attend the district conference at Raleigh on June 17, 18, 19.

On the 17th only autos will meet trains scheduled as follows: Taylorsville, south bound, 9:38 a.m.; Taylorsville, north bound, 3 p.m.; Bay Springs, south bound, 12:07 p.m.; Bay Springs, north bound, 12:57 p.m.; Forest, west bound, 8:33 a.m.; Forest, east bound, 10:33 a.m.

Those who expect us to provide conveyance from railroad to Raleigh will oblige us and insure adequate conveyance for all by answering in their letters to me the following questions:

At what point shall we meet you? By which train shall we expect you? How many delegates do you expect to have with you?

Faithfully yours,

E. H. COOLEY.

Raleigh, Miss., May 17, 1919.

TO THE FRIENDS OF PROHIBITION IN LOUISIANA.

The regular biennial convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America will convene in Washington, D. C., June 4 to 6 in the Billy Sunday Tabernacle near the National Capitol.

Some forty different countries will be represented in the convention. Let each and every congregation that can do so arrange to send a delegate. This will be the greatest convention we have ever held. Since our last meeting, great things have been brought about, one of which is, Louisiana helped to put the nation dry. Another matter of interest is, Congress will be in session and may be considering the World Peace Treaty and the League of Nations' Constitution.

Freckles
There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.
Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

CHARLEY CURTIS, aged 23 years, one of Claiborne County's promising young men, died at his father's home, near Rocky Springs, on March 27, 1919. He was a young man of strong character and of a good family. Many of his friends were shocked to hear of his death, which occurred quite suddenly. He had just recovered from an attack of the Spanish influenza, and was thought to be doing well. He was a member of the Rocky Springs Methodist Church. Charley was buried near Hickory Ridge in a family cemetery. The writer officiated, while a multitude of his young friends sang his favorite songs. One of his sisters was very ill with the same kind of fever, preventing several of the family from being present. Charley leaves a father, two sisters, four brothers and many friends. May God bless and comfort them in this time of sorrow and sadness. ANDREW J. BOYLES, Pastor.
Rocky Springs, Miss.

MRS. JOSEPHINE BRADFORD HAYNES died at the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Woollard, of Cleveland, Miss., on March 21, 1919, at 1:30 p. m. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock, March 22, in her daughter's home. Her body rests in the cemetery at Shaw, Miss. A large number of friends and loved ones attended the funeral service, paying tribute to her life and memory. Mrs. Haynes had lived to be nearly seventy-three years of age. Her life was lived worthily, and her death was peaceful. Her death came suddenly, but she was ready to go, because her life was right with God. Religion was the normal life to this saint. It was her daily stay and strength. Her life gave hope and courage to all who came within her influence. The pastor always felt assured of the prayers and support of this good woman. Though she could not attend church services for many years prior to her death, on account of ill-health, yet her heart was opened toward the sanctuary and her mind was staid on God. In the home of her daughter, Sister Haynes was the joy of all the inmates. She had right of way in the home, because she loved much, and was deeply loved. Many sorrow because she has gone, yet we rejoice because she died in hope. We know where she is. May the peace of God abide in the hearts of those who sorrow, until they, too, meet Mother Haynes in Heaven. Her pastor,
T. M. BRADLEY.
Cleveland, Miss.

On February 12, 1919, the earthly pilgrimage of Mrs. MATTIE ROBINSON came to an end, at her home, "River View," at Friar Point, Miss., and with its ending a ministry to this world was closed. Mrs. Robinson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Fisher, was born at Friar Point, Miss., on July 12, 1867. She was married to Mr. James D. Robinson, Sr., of Friar Point on February 9, 1886. To this union were born four children: James D. Jr., Milton Fisher, Mrs. S. L. (Lucile) Dodson and Harry Lee. All were at her bedside when the end came, except Milton, who is now in France. Having joined the Methodist Church when quite a child, her life was filled with many golden deeds. She was always ready with her charity to help those who needed help, aiding with her generous hand and willing heart the unfortunate, many of whom will "arise and call her blessed."

There were but few homes in the community that her loving thought and gentle ministrations had not touched, cheering and blessing them with deeds of kindness and encouragement. She was a loving and lovable woman, a devoted wife, affectionate mother, kind and loving sister and daughter, and true friend. Now sadly she will be missed not only in her handsome and hospitable home, in which she delighted and took so much pride, but by all who knew and loved her. While to some of us "the twilight droops so chill and lusterless, so dull and gray" and the stars seem hidden and shadows circle everywhere, may we with sweet submission and loving trust say, "God's will be done."
A FRIEND.
Friar Point, March 28, 1919.

God's providences are often mysterious to us, and truly it often requires a strong faith always to say, "It is all for the best" and "Thy will be done." Such was the case in the life of Miss ERNAL CROSSLEY, oldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Crossley, She was born near McComb City, Miss., on March 29, 1888. It would be saying too much to assert that Ernal never committed a sin, but all who knew her even from early childhood bear testimony that she was a good child, loving and obedient, and early began to manifest signs of genuine faith in Jesus. The writer does not know just when she was converted; but at eight years of age, under her father's ministry, she made a public profession of faith and joined the Methodist Church. From this time on, she loved the Church, as only those who are "pure in heart" can love it. Her faith and love grew stronger and deeper, and soon she expressed a desire to be a foreign missionary. But God ordered otherwise. At 12 years of age, following a severe attack of typhoid fever, a lingering malady seized upon her then weak body, and all that medical skill could do failed to arrest its progress. For about 17 years she was an invalid, and instead of going as a foreign missionary, she became a most effective home missionary. Many in her father's pastorates have already testified that her sweet spirit of submission and triumphant faith have been a blessing to them. Only "over on the eternal hills of glory" will we ever know all the good she did. She ever prayed for her father's success, and especially that souls might be saved from sin. As long as she could, she did fancy work and sold the articles, giving the proceeds to missions. Her last gift was to some war work fund, to help win the war for God and the right. During September of last year, she became much weaker and had to take to her bed, and for about four months she was almost speechless and helpless. But all the while she retained her faith and trust in Him. At about 2 o'clock on the morning of February 4, 1919, the loving Father came and relieved the tired body and took her long-sanctified spirit to himself. On the following day, the writer, a life-long friend of hers, assisted by Rev. S. E. Flurry, conducted the funeral in the Methodist Church in Philadelphia, Miss., and loving hands tenderly laid the body to rest in the cemetery, there to await the resurrection morn. Farewell, Ernal, for a brief season; we know where to find you and shall see you again.
LOUIS F. ALFORD.
Laurel, Miss.

SOMETHING ELSE TO DO.

You will see the pools and the standing water frozen through the winter, when the little running streams are bounding along between fringes of icy gems. Why is this? The streams have something else to do than stand still to be frozen up. Be you like them.—John Hall.

RENWAR RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanitarium treatment, and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others. Should anyone doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." SERVICE.

By H. Croom Armour.

We are living in a time of service—when true and efficient service is required of every one. Our country needs service; the Church of Jesus Christ needs service; every important organization needs efficient service. A man that serves his country in war or in peace is supposed to give good and efficient service—service that will bring him a quick promotion. The private who serves in the army, if he renders efficient service, gains promotion; so it is with the man in the navy or any other department of the Government. Service is the watchword.

In the business world service also stands at the head. A clerk in a store must give good service; the bookkeeper, accountant, stenographer and all are required to render faithful and efficient service to their employers. Without good service, the world would rock on idly and dreamily, never caring whether it attained a high standard or not.

There is such a thing as inefficient service, you know. In the business world, in the Church, and everywhere we find service that is not rendered efficiently, where the world "drags on," we say.

In the Church, where efficient service is most needed, we find it lacking badly. The Church needs the service of every consecrated man and woman in the land to-day—the kind of service that will hold the Church above everything else. Our pastors, most of them, are rendering efficient and faithful service. They are helping to build up the Church as much as they can, no doubt, but what we need is for every man and woman in the Church to stand squarely behind him and give good service all the time. If this were done, we would have very different churches in our land to-day.

Service, applied correctly, is one of the most important words in the English language. Without service, the world coudn't stand. The whole world is carried on by service. The railroads render service to the people, commerce; stores, traffic men, all render service to the public, and countless others do the same. Some of the service given is not good service every time, but we should all strive to have efficient service rendered.

In the Missionary Centenary, which is on now, we need efficient and faithful service. The many pastors should put forth their very best service for this cause. The campaign directors should do the same. Every Methodist should put his heart and soul in the work, and by so doing he would render efficient service in the work. So if every one, pastors and all, render the kind of service that is needed most in this drive, the Missionary Centenary should go "over the top" with a bound and a reverberation that will sound to the four corners of the world.

We secure positions for teachers, who are normal and college graduates, throughout the South and Southwest. Write us. THE YATES-FISHER TEACHERS' AGENCY, 326 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tennessee.

FROM WALNUT GROVE, MISS.

I am serving an appreciative people. Although I am a single man, the good ladies of Walnut Grove met some time ago and gave the parsonage a good cleaning up, brought dinner with them, and stayed all day. We had a jolly good time together, and enough cake, custards and other edibles were left to feed this preacher nearly a whole week; and in a few days the good ladies of Walnut Grove and Zion churches followed up the visit with nearly $30 as a present with which to buy their pastor a suit of clothes.

At our second quarterly conference the good people raised the pastor's salary, and the people in general seem to be interested in the Centenary movement. I believe we are "going over the top." All these things make this pastor feel good! He has been tithing and is already receiving a reward.

Sincerely,
W. N. WARE.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation.—Adv.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets To-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

A TUPELO FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD "EDITOR" ON "MISSIONS."

The whole program was made up by the girls. One wrote an original poem. There were news notes, personals and such matter as make up an interesting paper.

Did you ever try making a "Mission Magazine" program for young girls (thirteen to fifteen years old)? We did recently, and found it good. There were two "editors" who furnished editorials. One girl had a splendid original poem—class prophecy as to where they were to be missionaries. Another had a sketch of a missionary's life. The "children's story page" was furnished by one girl. Then there were "personals" and other subjects. Each was read and handed in. The following is one of the editorials written by Mary Robins, fourteen years old, and is original:

"The purpose of Missions is to bring all people who do not know of Christ and our loving Heavenly Father, to God. This great cause of carrying the Gospel to every creature cannot be accomplished by one person alone, but must be carried on by all people. If you cannot go as a teacher to these people, you can give money to the support of the ones who have gone. Because God gave us money is more the reason that we should give part of it back to Him by giving it to the great cause.

"These people without the knowledge of God are suffering. Help them to get the knowledge that they are in need of. They are ignorant and in need of schools. Give money to send these missionaries to teach them. Each day that we put off giving or doing something for them is letting one person die without the knowledge of our Savior.

"Why should we not send the knowledge that we cherish so much to them? Would they not cherish it as much as we? The people of Africa, China, Mexico, Korea, South America and like countries are dying to-day without the knowledge of Christ because we have refused to send it to them."

LINNIE BARCROFT.

INSTRUCTIONS FROM EDUCATIONAL SECRETARY.

A message from Mrs. Hume R. Steele brings a report of the work in her department for the first quarter which is of interest to the whole connection. 546 new Adult Mission Study Classes were reported, 132 for Young People, 177 for Juniors; 320 Adult Bible Classes, 44 for Young people and 7 for Juniors. North Georgia leads in Mission Study as reported by Superintendents, and Texas in Bible Study.

There seems to be a new seeking after God in prayer and Bible Study; women realize more than ever before the importance of Mission Study, and therefore our Secretary looks forward to marked progress. It is of most vital necessity that our women organize classes for definite study of the Word of God for the inspiration they need to fill the large places they are called to occupy. Prayer circles should be formed in large numbers. Send to Mrs. Lipscomb for leaflets on Prayer Circles.

The study of a new book entitles your class to enrollment. An enrollment card should be filled out each time the study of a new book is undertaken. A class should not be reported in two quarters if the same book is being used. If an auxiliary has failed to receive the enrollment card any quarter, please write me and I shall send it. My roll for mailing is not yet correct. I have received lists of officers from nearly all of the District Secretaries, but find that they do not always tally with names sent to me direct, showing that the District Secretaries have not been kept posted by the Auxiliary Corresponding Secretary as to changes in her cabinet. I can readily see why some of the auxiliaries go without the necessary literature for months at a time, as I am now receiving new names from our District Secretaries which have never appeared before.

The Centenary books are advised as the text books for this year: "Adventures in Faith in Foreign Lands," by Pell, and "Making America Safe," by MacDonnell and Goddard. In the fall new books will be announced.

For Bible Study, I advise "The Meaning of Faith," Fosdick, $1; "The Meaning of Prayer," Fosdick, 60 cents; "Thirty Studies about Jesus," Bosworth, 50 cents. The last named is designed especially for Intermediates, but it meets the needs of most adult auxiliaries admirably, furnishing a number of parallel references which can be distributed among the members for special study.

The auxiliaries are urged to get the new report and record books, which are absolutely indispensable. For Adult Societies, they are 25c each; for Young People's, 20c each, and for Children's, 15c each.

A word might be in place as to use of the report book. On the right hand side of page, the entire length is intended for the District Secretary and should not be cut apart for any other purpose. I got one report this quarter written very carefully on the portion intended for District Secretary, finished 'Sons of Italy.'" As there is no finished 'Sons of Italy.' As there is no place for a name on this portion that was cut from District Secretary's column, I have no idea to whom to credit this report. The postmark was blurred and gave no clew. I mention this case merely to show the necessity for reading instructions and sending proper report to proper person. I shall be glad to hear from the auxiliary who sent this report.

Do not destroy your Bulletins. They contain important instructions and valuable material you will see nowhere else. I find occasion to refer to them constantly.

I am rejoicing in the fellowship of those who are endeavoring to bring to the attention of their sisters the great claims of God as manifest in Bible Study and Mission Study, and am very eager to serve you in any way I can. If you have not done so, Superintendents of Study and Publicity, write me, telling me you are in this office and I shall be so happy to give you any help in my power. Sincerely,

Mrs. R. H. WYNN,
Supt. Study and Publicity, Louisiana Conference.

What Doctor Pierce Has Done For Humanity!

BY DOCTOR CRIPPS.

It has always seemed to me that Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., should be placed near the top when a list of America's great benefactors is written. He studied and conquered human diseases to a degree that few realize. Whenever he found a remedy that overcame disease, he at once announced it in the newspapers and told where it could be bought at a small price. He did not follow the usual custom of keeping the ingredients secret, so that the rich only could afford to buy the medicine, but openly printed the name of each root and herb he used. And so to-day the names of Dr. Pierce and his medicines are widely known, and they stand for better health and better citizenship.

One of this great physician's most successful remedies is known as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground. These Pellets are safe because they move the bowels gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as so many pills do. Very often they make a person who takes them feel like a new man or woman, for they cleanse the intestines of hard, decayed and poisonous matter that accumulates when one is costive. If you are constipated, by all means go to your druggist and get some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They may prove to be the very thing your system requires to make you well and happy.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The Sunday School Institute for the Lafayette District will be held in Lake Charles, May 28. The program will be the best for a district meeting. A very important part in this institute will be the selecting of Sunday school district officers.

A very special Sunday school meeting was held on Wednesday, the 15th, when the Executive Committee of the Shreveport District passed a resolution that a district Sunday school worker be provided, and made plans for the financial support of same. It will take a few days only to perfect this plan, and a similar provision can be made for other districts in our Conference. Talk it over with your Sunday school man.

We are counting on schools to make the pledge to the Centenary. Do not fail to do this at once. Less than 100 schools have made their pledge.

PURE TONIC VALUE

In Peptiron, to the Last Particle of the Medicine.

The new and real iron tonic, Peptiron, is prepared in the convenient form of chocolate-coated pills, easy to take, easy to carry about with you; no water, no alcohol, no opiate.

Peptiron is the essence of economy, the acme of efficiency. It is readily assimilated, acts promptly and powerfully upon the blood and nerves, corrects all run-down conditions, creates an appetite, gives stomach comfort and healthful digestion. It wards off impending illness, bridges over the danger spots, and increases power of resisting disease.

Do not put off treatment in these times so perilous to health, but get Peptiron and begin to take it today, two after each meal.

You'll not regret being particular to get Peptiron, and no other. Like many others, you will be surprised at its promptness in building you up.

The Loving Cup.

Rules governing the awarding of the cup:

1. Sunday School Day must be observed not later than the last Sunday in June. Remittance of offering must be made to treasurer of Sunday School Board, Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, Alexandria, La.

2. The Sunday School Day program of our own Church must be used.

3. The cup will be awarded the Sunday school attaining points No. 1 and 2, and making the largest per capita offering based on the average attendance for the month of April, except when Sunday School Day is observed on another day than the last day of April; in such cases, the attendance for that day shall be substituted and the average attendance made.

Note—Add the attendance for the four Sundays and divide by four to get the average.

The cup will be presented at the Wesley Bible Class Federation Meeting following Sunday School Day.

Let us have a large number of our schools observing this Day with full celebration. Order your programs.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Saturday, May 10, was spent with the good folks at Pine Grove, on the Leaksville charge. We had two services; 9 signed up to take the Teacher-training Course, a Cradle Roll was organized, and the necessary books and equipment were ordered.

Sunday was spent at Clark's chapel. A Cradle Roll was reorganized and half the Sunday school signed the Teacher-training pledges and the books were ordered. So far as I know, Clark's chapel is the only Sunday school with 50 per cent of its enrollment taking the Teacher-training Course. They also signed the Centenary allotment.

Sunday night was spent at Leaksville. We had an unusually large crowd of folks out to hear a Sunday school talk. Eleven signed the Teacher-training Cards and the books were ordered. This school also signed the Centenary pledge.

I enjoyed my visit to Green County very much. There are great undeveloped resources there, both for the Church and for the State, and blessed is that man who finds the key to unlock the storehouse.

Two of the above schools promised to observe Sunday School Day, and I feel sure that the school at Leaksville will do so, also.

If any of the pastors have not received the Sunday School Day programs, please let me know and I will see that you get them. Remember about the pennants. Also, that it won't take as many programs as usual.

Please at least display the charts and call attention to them and take the offering.

Pray for the work and the workers.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gledney, Sardis, Miss.

When a cyclone passes over the country its path is marked by fallen trees; the Big Drive will leave a few fallen men and women to mark its pathway. To fool with the Centenary is as dangerous as playing with lightning—it means destruction. This is the judgment day of the Church, but thank God, the Church is pouring out millions to help save the world. Hundreds of appeals have been sent from every quarter to the Sunday schools to take part in this forward movement, and those that have responded have done nobly. So far as the records show, the Aberdeen District has 9 schools reported; the Columbus, 11; the Corinth, 18; the Durant, 9; the Greenville, 12; the Holly Springs, 28; the Sardis, 17; the Winona, 9. I pray that many more will report on the last day and go over with the rest.

The conference for Elementary workers is to be held at New Albany, May 27-28. Miss Kennedy will have charge of the Beginners' Department; Mrs. Weaver, of Tupelo, the Primary Department; Mrs. H. L. Talbert, of the Junior Department, and other experienced teachers will do work bearing on these different departments. Mrs. L. G. Fant has done a great deal to make this the best institute ever held in our Conference. It will be a great success if our teachers take advantage of the opportunity afforded. Write to Rev. J. E. Stephens, New Albany, Miss., that you are coming.

We had a profitable day at Gunnison on the 11th. Mrs. W. W. Hall and Mrs. Potts trained the children to give the elementary part of the program for Sunday School Day. The children did well and the offering was $30.33. The superintendent, Mr. McKnight, has done a work for the church that cannot be too highly praised. He ordered six copies of the School Standard and the five books for his teachers in the elementary department.

The day after taking the offering on Sunday School Day, send it to Rev. J. E. Stephens, New Albany, Miss. Do this and you will save a lot of trouble and expense.

CHESTER CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you allow me space in the Advocate for a few lines from the Chester charge? Thank you. I won't detain you long. On December 19, 1918, we arrived in Chester. We found the parsonage locked up and no key in sight, but we managed to get the door open with the aid of a borrowed key, and entered our new home with a prayer in our hearts that God would guide us in our year's work and that he might use us in the name of his Son to do the work that is so much needed here. Since that day we have felt that God surely guided the cabinet in making our appointment. We are glad to be here. Our people have given us a very cordial welcome at each church. (We have just seven.) No one but a pastor and his wife can know how our hearts fill with praise and thanksgiving to God, as we go in and out among the people and receive the hearty handclasp and the words of love and encouragement that the good people of this charge know so well how to give.

The pastor's salary has been increased over last year, and the stewards have been doing some faithful work. The Conference claims are being looked after, and we feel sure that everything will be reported in full at the next Annual Conference. The great Centenary Movement is also being put before the people from time to time. I think this is the greatest movement that has ever been put before a great Church, and has already done more for the cause of Christ than any other one thing that has been brought before our people. One sweet-spirited woman told me a few days ago that the Centenary has caused her to see that she owed God a tenth, and that she was going to double the amount she had been paying her pastor and also for Conference collections, and was going to pay her part of the Centenary pledge. Brother Carley, what would happen if all of our Methodist people would do that?

Our Sunday school here at Chester is good. The enrollment is more than double that of the church membership. We will observe Sunday School Day on the fifth Sunday in June, and expect it to be a great success.

The camp meeting at South Union will begin on Friday before the fourth Sunday in July. This will be the semi-centennial camp meeting. Just fifty years ago in July they held the first camp meeting here, and we are praying, planning, and working that this may be the best in its history. Brother W. W. Mitchell, of Durant; Brother Parks, of Ackerman, and Brother W. D. Bass, of Corinth, have kindly consented to be with us, and at the request of the pastor we extend a cordial invitation to all former pastors to be present. We will be glad to have them; Brother Carley also has a very cordial invitation to come. We have learned to know and appreciate him through the weekly visits of the Advocate, which is always a welcome visitor in our home. Even the children look forward to its coming and welcome its arrival with a shout, "The Advocate has come!"

Pray for us, that we may be made stronger, and that our work may be crowned with God's approval.

Mrs. J. C. McELROY.

HE APPROVES.

The brother who wrote on "Russellism" interests me very much. This is one of the evils of the present age that we must combat, not alone from a standpoint of some of the things that he mentioned, but there are other doctrines more dangerous, deadly, than these. When a man is taught that he will have a better chance to be saved in the "age-to-come" than he has here and now, naturally he will make no effort to be saved now. "Millennial Dawn," their book of authority, starts out in Vol. I by being very materialistic, but by the time we have reached Vol. IV it denies the literal resurrection of Christ, and his second personal appearance on the earth, and states that he actually came in 1876, and is now present in the only form in which he ever will be present; that the children who die now will be resurrected, spiritually, and teachers selected from resurrected "Russellites" will be placed over them, to teach them the way of salvation, and give them a chance to be saved.

I have known many people to imbibe this delusion, or illusion; and they were never afterwards fit for any phase of church work; they always die a spiritual death. Soon they go off into sin, and forget God and all the experiences that they might have had in the past.

They can, as a rule, answer any theological question put to them, but they are so "wordy" that by the time they have answered it, you are lost in their labyrinth of "wordology," which they call "theology. Some of their arguments are beautiful, and, admitting their premise, they are sound in their reasoning; but you must admit a number of incongruities before the argument starts. You must admit that many of the Old Testament prophecies were not fulfilled in the Jewish nation; therefore, very naturally they must be fulfilled in the future, somewhere, somehow. They say the devil, dragon and Satan, of the 20th chapter of Revelation, are figures, but that the thousand years is literal. A figurative devil, bound with a figurative chain, in a figurative bottomless pit for a literal thousand years, is their argument.

TO THE EPWORTH LEAGUE PRESIDENTS AND TREASURERS OF LOUISIANA.

No doubt your League followed the regular League topic on Sunday night, May 11, and observed Anniversary Night, taking a special collection for League extension. According to Paragraph 384 in the Discipline, it is required that every penny of this collection be sent without delay to the Conference Treasurer, who, in our State, is Mr. J. J. Hamiter, Box 295, Shreveport, La.

We are in hopes of having a much larger offering this year than we have had for several years.

Trusting you will not delay sending in your collection, I am, yours for a greater Epworth League,

JAS. B. GRAMBLING,
State Epworth League President.

Cuts and Bruises,

burns, stings, sores, boils and the numerous other mishaps amount to little. If left alone, however, and if aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand, an ugly sore will result and frequently blood poison. It is dangerous. Don't trifle. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately. It will instantly soothe the wound, cleanse the sore, kill the germs and put it on a steady road to recovery. Keep it on your shelf for every emergency. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and you will receive a liberal sample free.

POWER FOR GOOD AND EVIL.

Into the hands of every individual is given a marvelous power for good or for evil—the silent, unconscious, unseen influence of his life. This is simply the constant radiation of what a man really is, not what he pretends to be. Life is a state of constant radiation and absorption; to exist is to radiate; to exist is to be the recipient of radiations.—Selected.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss and Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with suiphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so eveniy. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all—gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, you hair becomes beautifuliy dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the sure mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

A GREAT REVIVAL.

Under the leadership of our pastor, Rev. J. T. Lewis, and his three brothers, H. P. Lewis, of Madison, J. M. Lewis, of Prentiss, and O. S. Lewis, of Vicksburg, Charleston has just enjoyed one of the sanest and most effective revivals that have ever come to our town. Though the revival lasted but a week, the number of people reached and the depth of the work done through the revival is greater than that of any revival ever held in Charleston. One especially noticeable feature of the revival was the attendance upon and interest manifested in a special service for men that was held on Sunday night, May 4. The Tallahatchie Herald had the following to say relative to that service, and one held at the same time at the Baptist church for the ladies:

"One of the largest audiences of men filled the auditorium of the Methodist church on Sunday night that was ever gathered at a religious service in Charleston. The pastor, Rev. J. Tillerry Lewis, delivered an able and eloquent sermon that will be very helpful to all who heard him. At the same time the Baptist church was crowded with ladies who listened to a very splendid sermon by Rev. J. M. Lewis."

As these men of God held up Christ as mankind's only Savior, and expounded upon the great love of God for man as shown by the sacrifice made by God and Jesus to save man, the hearts of the listeners were drawn to God and many purposed to give to God a more consecrated service of their lives than has ever before been given.

Already our own church has received twenty-six additions, with more to follow, while the Baptist church will also share in additions. Perhaps the strongest indications of the power with which the meeting gripped our town is the fact that a purely voluntary offering was taken for the visiting pastors that netted $385. After this offering had been taken and the visiting brethren had gone, it was suggested by one of our pastor's friends that he be given a purse as an expression of appreciation of his earnestness in leading the revival. Within a few minutes, $100 was secured, thus making an offering of $485. All this came as freely as water bubbling from a spring.

The singing of the Lewis quartet was at first the drawing card of the meeting. But the deep earnestness of all four men, together with the plain gospel messages, soon gripped the hearts of the hearers and caused them to think deeply upon their duty to God and man. At times the audience would sit almost breathless as the sufferings of Christ for man's redemption were pictured to them. After listening to one of these earnest messages upon Christ the Redeemer, one man, who has been a member of the church for years, said: "For the first time in my life I now understand how Christ is my redeemer. I have been thinking that I had to do something to save myself, and have always tried to do right that I might be saved. Now I see that Christ is my redeemer. And because I love Him, I will now do my best to do right to please Him."

Charleston is happy over the fact that the Lewis brothers were permitted to hold a revival in our city. The prayers and good wishes of the Christian people of Charleston will go with these men of God, while the Methodists of our city will follow the leading of our beloved pastor with greater godly zeal than ever before, as he leads them in the work of God. Pray for us.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts before Breakfast if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

Which Sort of A Man Are You?

A man of blood and iron, who gets up feeling keen, active and alert—a man of stamina and force—who will forge ahead in the business and political life of the country to-day?

Are You Such a Man?

Or a man who lacks iron in his blood—who has no energy, force nor strength to meet the problems of the day, and wishes he could sleep until noon?

Look around at the men you meet every day. You can tell the ones with plenty of rich, red blood—they are the strong, healthy fellows, vigorous in body and mind—successful in whatever they undertake. One glance is enough to put the others in the weakling class.

That irritable twitch, that fit of despondency, that dizzy, fearful feeling—these are the sort of signals nature gives to tired, listless folks when the blood is starving for strength-giving iron. Iron is absolutely essential to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men, and unless this iron is obtained from the foods we eat, it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous run-down people in two weeks time in many instances.

A GOOD LIFE.

About 1840, Calvin Barnes and Nancy Barnes, nee Kea, and Rev. David L. Miller, and Isabelle Miller, nee McCorvey, moved, the Barnes' from South Carolina and the Millers from North Carolina, and settled in Dale and Coffee Counties, Alabama. Among the children born were Dr. W. H. Barnes and Sarah J. Miller. At the close of the war, in which Dr. Barnes served four years, these two young people, November 12, 1865, were united in marriage in Dale County, Alabama. On December 7, 1867, they left Alabama for Neshoba County, Mississippi, arriving on January 12, 1868. There were born to them ten children; among them was Alice Lenora. She was the sixth child, born in Neshoba County, September 20, 1877; baptized by J. H. Holland; united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the age of six years, at Homewood, Miss.; was happily converted a few years later at Gasque Chapel; from that day she was one of the best daughters, and whatever capacity in life she served, as wife, mother, neighbor, or member of the church, she was not excelled. She began every day with a prayer for God's guidance. She was married to J. H. Windham on May 17, 1894. Six children were the result of this union, five living—Victor, Roy, Mabel, Flora, and Thomas Graham. Sister Alice could not very well help being a good woman because of her good father and mother—Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnes. Her grandfather, three great-uncles, and two uncles were Methodist preachers. Brother Windham, a steward at Homewood, has sustained a great loss. For him and family we pray and commend them to our Lord who helps us bear our burdens. Sister Windham left us for heaven on March 13, 1919. Her body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Homewood, the stewards acting as pall-bearers; her pastor was assisted in the services by Brothers Galloway, McJunkin, and Moulder. We so much sympathize with the relatives; their loss is the Church's loss, and their sorrow is our sorrow.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

CONTRADICTORY.

In one dispatch from Germany, we read that the German people are sad beyond expression, heart-broken, overwhelmed, as a result of the publication of the peace terms of the Allies; in another dispatch, we read that these same people are thronging the theatres, attending in great crowds the dance halls, and gambling recklessly at the race tracks. These reports are, to say the least, contradictory. We cannot reconcile soberness of mind with unrestricted frivolity. A penitent people should bring forth fruits meet for repentance.

THE BOY SCOUTS.

President Wilson has, by proclamation, designated the period beginning Sunday, June 8, to Flag Day, June 14, as Boy Scout Week throughout the United States, for the purpose of strengthening the work of the Boy Scouts of America. In his proclamation, the President pays high tribute to the service the Scouts rendered the Government during the war in the Liberty Loan and War Savings campaigns, and in other effective ways. This is a movement that appeals strongly to the inherent idealism of boyhood by the opportunities it furnishes for unselfish service. We cannot afford to neglect any activity that will train our young people in the elemental virtues of truthfulness, honesty, and cleanliness of life and speech. We must encourage and help our boys in every way possible.

THAT WAS ENOUGH.

Sergeant Alvin C. Yorke, of Tennessee, has been called the individual hero of the war. He put an end to some twenty-five or thirty of the enemy with his own rifle, silenced a nest of machine guns, and captured more than a hundred Germans, including several officers. He has been given the croix de guerre and the congressional medal of honor, and his arrival in New York was marked by notable demonstrations. According to a news dispatch, his presence was discovered while he was visiting the New York Stock Exchange. He tried to get away without attracting notice, but the operations of the Exchange were suspended, he was carried to the platform on the shoulders of the members, and called on for a speech. His speech in full was as follows: "I did the best I could, and that was all I could do." That was enough. Great deeds speak for themselves. A long speech very seldom adds laurels to the brow of a hero. Deeds, and not words, confer distinction. And Sergeant Yorke did enough when he did his best. Perhaps some of us could learn a profitable lesson from this modest Tennessee mountaineer, who reverently says, "I firmly believe that it was impossible for me to go through without the help of God, and I feel that it was He who gave me my great success."

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

The outstanding feature of the President's message to the recently convened Congress, is the suggestion that the restriction against the sale of intoxicants after July 1 be removed, so far as beer and light wines are concerned. In the message, he declares that he is without authority to remove the restrictions by presidential proclamation, and that action, if any, will have to be taken by Congress. The prevailing opinion of the political press of the country seems to be that the President has very skillfully side-stepped an embarrassing situation. If he had removed the restrictions himself by proclamation, he would have incurred the ill-will of the prohibitionists of the country; if he had recommended that no action be taken, he would have brought upon himself the wrath of the liquor dealers. We are not prepared to speak as to the political acumen displayed by the President, but members of Congress do not seem to be very happy over the fact that the responsibility rests with them for the settlement of the question. We do not know what considerations led Mr. Wilson to take the view expressed in his message. He ought to be in a position to know that the great majority of the substantial citizenship of this country has endorsed, and still stands for, not only war-time prohibition, but also permanent prohibition. He could have felt sure, therefore, of the support of the people at large in the maintenance of the present restrictions. We cannot believe that he would allow a question of political expediency to control his actions in a matter of such vital moral significance. At any rate, the indications now are that Congress will not remove the restrictions against the sale of intoxicants even at the suggestion of the President, and we may hopefully look forward to nation-wide prohibition on July 1.

WE THINK IT IS TIME.

A daily newspaper of New Orleans recently gave an extended account of the organization of a considerable number of socially prominent women in the city in protest against a new dance that has lately been introduced into society. Of course we know nothing about the dance in question—but it must be pretty bad. One of the mothers who attended the meeting is quoted as having said: "It is not a moral attitude which we are taking, but rather a business-like position with relation to these dances." We think it is time that the mothers of the land were doing something to put a stop to the mania for dancing that seems to have seized upon our young people, even though they do prefer to do so as a "business-like" act instead of a moral one, which would be more becoming. The modern dance is so essentially wrong morally that it ought to arouse the opposition of all good people. But it is a hopeful sign that merely as a "business" proposition, some mothers have set themselves in array against it.

MORALITY AND HEALTH.

A report just compiled by the Surgeon General of the Army for the United States Public Health Service reveals the startling fact that of the second million men called to the colors, 5.4 per cent had a venereal disease. We can scarcely overestimate the painful significance of these figures. The cost to the Government, in dollars and cents, in treating and caring for these unfit men was a serious drain upon the resources of the nation at a time when every effort was necessary to meet the insistent demands of the war; the loss of time by those affected was more than incidental in carrying out highly important movements; and the moral significance of this high rate of infection is sad to contemplate. Good health does not necessarily mean good morals; but good morals will go a long way toward securing good health. For the sake of both we are in favor of the "clean-up campaign" now being waged throughout the United States. Municipal sanction of the social evil is as much out of date scientifically as it is indefensible morally.

THE PRICE OF PROGRESS.

For a long time men have striven for mastery of the air. Painstaking and costly experiments have been conducted, and scores of lives have been sacrificed in the effort to extend the limits of man's powers and activities. Doubters there have been, who have laughed at the dreams of those who have held steadfastly to the view that the air is navigable, and have made light of their invincible faith that victory would ultimately be achieved. But the doubters doubt no more. The deeds of the aviators make one of the most thrilling chapters in the history of the great war, and heavier-than-air flying machines are coming to be a familiar sight over our cities. And now the great adventure of a flight across the Atlantic has been accomplished. The honor of this achievement belongs to America; but all praise must be given to the intrepid Britisher who risked his life in the attempt to gain the honor for his country. He failed—but his attempt was not an utter failure. His brave effort has won the admiration of the whole world, and his dashing courage will be an inspiration to heroic men whenever a difficult task is to be performed. He has not lived in vain who has helped the race forward in its struggle for mastery over the forces of nature. The price of progress sometimes seems high; but we thank God that men are still willing to pay it.

The Philippine Mission to the United States for the purpose of securing independence for the Philippine Islands were guests of the American Bible Society at a luncheon given in New York City on April 10. Members of the Commission praised very highly the work of Protestant missionaries in the Philippines, and spoke especially of the great value of the wide distribution of the Scriptures throughout the islands.

GOD IS VOCAL.

By H. D. Trinkaus.

God is vocal in the springtime,
When with resurrection power
Buds have reached their bursting hour.
God is vocal in the summer,
When the flowers are in their bloom
And all nature seems in tune.
God is vocal in the autumn,
When the fruit trees laden low
Voice the power which makes things grow.
God is vocal in the winter,
When fierce winds we face and fight
And the earth is turned to white;
Then a voice speaks soft and low:
"Your scarlet sins shall be as snow."
Yea, God is vocal all the year;
Let him that hath give ears to hear.

THE EMPHASIS ON PRAYER

While other thrones have tottered since the war began, the throne of grace has been established on immovable foundations in experience. The daily attitude has been the uplifted look and the reverent mood as the tasks have loomed large because the usual aids for their accomplishment have been absent. God has been invoked as the constant help in every dilemma. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble"—these ancient words have been lisped on bended knee times without number. The venerable "Book of Common Prayer" has been thumbed, but the song, "Prayer is the simplest form of speech that infant lips can try," has also emboldened those sick of printed love letters.

Jeremy Taylor wrote as his fine contribution to this subject these famous words: "Prayer is the peace of our spirit, the stillness of our thoughts, the evenness of our recollection, the seat of our meditation, the rest of our cares, and the calm of our tempest. Prayer is the issue of a quiet mind, of untroubled thoughts; it is the daughter of charity and the sister of meekness. He that prays to God with . . . a troubled and discomposed spirit, is like him that retires into a battle to meditate, and sets up his closet in the out-quarters of an army, and chooses a frontier garrison to be wise in. For so have I seen a lark rising from his bed of grass, and soaring upwards, singing as he rises, and hoped to get to heaven, and climb above the clouds; but the poor bird was beaten back by the loud sighings of an eastern wind, and his motion made irregular and inconstant, descending more at every breath of the tempest than it could recover by the libration and frequent weighing of his wings, till the little creature was forced to sit down and pant, and stay till the storm was over; and then it made a prosperous flight, and did rise and sing, as if it had learned music and motion from an angel, as he passed some time through the air, about his ministries here below. So is the prayer of a good man."

Now that the awful carnage of the conflict is over, and the dawn of a new day is heralded by the press, at least surely these lark-like exercises will be resumed. The mid-week service is the concrete pier in the stream which sustains the bridge above and which feels the tug of dark forces at its base. Victory is the word now in the air and in our national affairs. What better word for the Christian disciple now? "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Should the zeal of Lenten time abide with us for the whole year, and our closet be as free from dust and formality, what triumphs might await the Church of which we are members! Cabot says, "When lost in the woods, you climb to the highest tree in sight. From the top of it you may see where you have come from; where you are and where you should go next. Such a view is precisely what prayer gives. It orients us."

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION ON TEMPERANCE AND SOCIAL SERVICE TO THE COLLEGE OF BISHOPS IN SESSION AT ST. LOUIS, MO., MAY 10-13, 1919.

Dear Brethren: In accordance with Paragraph 420 of the Discipline, the Commission on Temperance and Social Service presents to you its Annual Report.

The Commission organized on May 18, 1918, by the election of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., as chairman, and Dr. Daniel Morton as secretary. Washington City was selected as the headquarters of the Commission, and the chairman was instructed to arrange for a suitable office. In accordance with the action the headquarters of the Commission has been opened at Room 30, Bliss Building, Washington, D. C. It faces directly on the north part of the Capitol grounds and is therefore very suitable for our purpose.

The Commission arranged with the management of the Southern Assembly to hold a conference on the Assembly grounds Aug. 8-10, 1918, at which meeting a number of able addresses were delivered by prohibition and social service workers, and the Commission adopted a statement concerning its work, which statement was sent to the several Annual Conferences and to the church press for publication.

Among other things, this statement declared the purpose of the Commission to hold a summer conference for social workers at Lake Junaluska in the summer of 1919. Arrangements have been made with the Southern Assembly Commissioners to hold this conference on the Assembly grounds, Aug. 17-24, with an able corps of speakers and lecturers in attendance.

During the summer and fall of 1918, the chairman of the Commission gave as much time as he could spare from his other duties to the prohibition legislation before Congress and to the ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment by the several States. In the early part of December, 1918, temperance leaders in the United States and other countries decided that there should be representatives of the temperance thought of the world in Paris during the Peace Conference. The question arose as to whether our Commission should be represented, and the Commission by a unanimous vote requested the chairman to go to Europe—first, to confer with the leaders of the temperance organization of European countries with reference to the organization of an international league for the extermination of the beverage liquor traffic, and, second, to join with these leaders in an appeal to the Peace Conference to secure prohibition of the liquor traffic among the native races and to prevent any action which, under the guise of commercial treaties, would require the admission of intoxicants into any country, contrary to the declared will of the people of the country.

After a very thorough consideration of the varying obligations resting upon him, the chairman of the Commission decided that the opportunities for service in Europe at this time were so great that he should comply with the request, and therefore, as the representative of our Commission, he spent four months in Europe traveling in France, Italy, and the British Isles, speaking and holding conferences in many of the larger cities, especially in England, Scotland and Ireland. These activities culminated in the arrangements for holding an International Conference on Alcoholism which met in Paris, April 3-5, at which there were present 45 accredited delegates, representing twelve countries.

This Conference adopted a memorial to the Peace Conference concerning the liquor traffic, the various items of which memorial have been covered in the covenant of the League of Nations. At this Conference, our Church was represented by Dr. Henry B. Carre, Dr. John C. Granberry, and the chairman of our Commission.

During the past year, the Commission has not been able to do all it desired to do. No money was provided by the General Conference to meet the expenses of the operation. The cost of the work, therefore, must be met by voluntary contributions, and it has been somewhat difficult to plan for large things with an empty treasury. It is the purpose of the Commission, however, to ask for sufficient voluntary contributions to enable it to develop a plan of social service work as required by the Discipilne, and to represent properly the social creed of our Church in connection with the making and the enforcement of State and national laws which affect the social order.

Our Commission respectfully suggests that at this most unusual period in our national history, it would be most helpful if the College of Bishops would, as the representatives of our Church, make emphatic deliverance on law enforcement, world-wide prohibition, and the ever-increasing necessity that the teachings of Jesus shall dominate in the social, as well as in the individual life of our people.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES CANNON, JR.,
DANIEL MORTON,
Secretary.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

By Rev. Jno. D. Ellis.

(Concluded)

The return trip from Lumberton to Biloxi was made by a circuitous route, through a corner of the universe of pleasing color, fresh and unspoiled by the art of man, through regions laden with the smell of pine, and where human beings are scarce enough to be curiosities. The entire day was before us for pleasuring, which was enjoyed, from the abundance of verdure to the flitter of birds and blush of wild flowers. The tumbling and splashing of silvery streams on the way to the bosom of the sea chanted the praise of the wonderful Creator.

The company of the Revs. H. W. Van Hook and L. A. Darsey on the return trip, and also Revs. J. R. Jones, C. P. Jones, H. M. Ellis, and others in another "honk-wagon," added greatly to the spirit of gayety, when all would occasionally stop under wide-spreading branches, or at the summit of some high hill, and carry on like a "passel of chillun."

Even a meek presiding elder can get "off'n" his dignity, and be as sprightly as a 2-year-old. Even the sedateness of the assistant secretary failed in restraining influence. Once Brother Van Hook tried to hire this scribe out to a farmer for a field hand, and the farmer, after beholding the form of body, but ignorant of its propensity for rest, agreed to hire. He sat on his gallery, far from any railroad, near a wide, deep river as clear as crystal, where one's breakfast can be purchased with sportful ease, and where one can live unmolested by gas bills, and the conventionalities of the day.

A farmer probably has his troubles, and at times the call for physical exertion is pressing; still, he is the happy man to-day. It is the fellow in the city who has pressing need for money "when it happens along"; and if it does not happen along, he is in the middle of a bad fix, especially when innumerable hills fall due.

In the country, a fellow is never really alone, but in the city there are so many other people, he gets lonesome, and hardly ever counts for much. If a man in the country never achieves largely, he is comforted by the thought that what a man is, is greater than what he achieves. Should he fail to get a college education, and to be instructed in classic literature, still he may revel in nature's laboratories, and enjoy the wisdom of a white soul.

When it comes to sinning, the human heart is possessed with a self-starter; still, the man far from any railroad is not confronted by the temptations of city life, and with comparative ease, and under the grace of God, he can fulfill his lot, and win for himself a crown and a harp.

If some admirer will deed to this Gentile a few rich acres near a laughing rivulet, where frolicsome trout leap to meet the fly; where the scenery is so grand that the canyons are cathedrals and the bowlder-piles pews; and where the moon lends romance and serenity—then he will gradually and beautifully "decrease," and ultimately drift to the earthly practice to spend the closing years of the pilgrimage in real life, and in a way to make poor city folk envious.

THE RELATION OF THE PASTOR TO THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

By S. H. Porter.

(A paper read at the Shreveport District Conference, and published by request of that body).

In assigning me this subject, I suppose it was the intention that I should set forth my ideas as a Sunday school superintendent, and also the ideas of the great, progressive religious world, as to what the relation of the pastor to the Sunday school ought to be, and what it must be in the future if the pastor continues in the pastorate, rather than what this relation has been in the past.

In order that we may have a better viewpoint from which to consider this subject, let us notice first the relation of the pastor to the church. What position does he hold in this great body that was founded by Jesus Christ himself for the high and holy purpose of propagating his gospel and bringing men into his kingdom?

The pastor is the overseer, the shepherd of the flock. He is the one man called of God and ordained by the Church to bear the responsibility of her development, her advancement, her nurture and her eternal salvation. He is the general manager of God's business as conducted in the Church, and to him God and the Church are looking for results.

If the Church fails to occupy her God-given place in the community, fails to make her influence felt and falls down on the job, the pastor bears the blame, while, on the other hand, if she fulfills her mission, proving herself a mighty force for righteousness, attracting the multitudes and bringing scores into the Kingdom, the pastor gets the glory. He is the key-man, as we have so often heard, and to his hands are committed all the interests of the Church.

Now, having seen the relation of the pastor to the Church, let us consider for a moment the relation of the Sunday school to the Church.

What place has it in our Methodist economy, and what provisions have been made for it in our polity?

By referring to the laws of our Church as enacted by the General Conference, you may readily see that the Sunday school has been created an integral part and parcel of the Church itself; as witness the fact that a General Sunday School Board is provided for the sole purpose of managing the Sunday school interests of the whole Church, and a Conference Board with like duties within the bounds of the Annual Conference; and the quarterly conference is constituted a board of managers for the Sunday schools within the pastoral charge, thus completing a perfect scheme of Sunday school organization throughout.

Our Discipline also requires very specifically that a Sunday school shall be organized by the pastor in each congregation where as many as ten persons may be gotten together, and makes it obligatory upon the presiding elder to promote the Sunday school cause.

While we see from these facts that the Sunday school is given a very prominent place in our system, according to our laws, yet in practice it occupies a position even greater.

It is in reality the right arm of the Church; the teaching service of the Church, where our children and young people are nurtured in religious things and finally brought into the Church itself; where those of mature age are taught the great principles of righteousness, and having learned of Him "Who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister," go forth to bless and help their fellows.

The Sunday school has been called the nursery of the Church in the past, and occasionally some one refers to it to-day as such, but the fellow who does is a quarter century behind the times, and has been asleep, so far as the Sunday school is concerned, as long as Rip Van Winkle.

No, sir, we've gotten away from that idea long ago, and have no disposition to return to primordial things as did the Negro dough-boy in France who was clad in white pajamas when the camp was suddenly visited one night by German bombers. Every fellow had to get to his own dug-out and Sam had a good way to travel. "What did you do?" he was asked the next morning. "Easy," he replied. "De good Lawd has gimme de bes 'cammyflaj' in de worl. I drapped dem pajamies right whar I stood and made de res' ob de trip in my birfday clo'es."

The Sunday school is the chief recruiting agency of the Church, furnishing eighty-five per cent of her total membership.

In the light of these facts, it is plain that the relation of the pastor to the Sunday school is a very vital one, for, if the Church in all her departments of activity has been committed to his care, and if the Sunday school is the principal department of the Church, as has been shown, reasoning on the basis that the greater includes the less, as his relation is to the Church so it must of necessity be to the Sunday school.

If the teacher is the hinge on which the Sunday school door swings, as has been said by one of our prominent Sunday school men, the pastor is the foundation on which the Sunday school structure rests, for just in the ratio of the pastor's interest and devotion to it does the Sunday school grow and develop.

Time was when the pastor might lounge around the parsonage, or remain in his study during the Sunday school hour, and maintain the esteem of his Church and community; but that day has forever gone, thank God. To-day, the pastor who is bringing things to pass and who is acceptable to his people, is the man who is wrapped up in his Sunday school, who is always there on time, showing a deep interest in every detail of its work and in close touch with the superintendent and his co-workers.

The pastor in this twentieth century who imagines he can continue the old order, and that his only duty is to fill his appointment at eleven o'clock, is worse mistaken than was my nine-year old son the other day when he said, "Papa, do you know what exposhterate means?" I gave him a rather indefinite answer, for frankly I didn't know, and he replied "I can tell you." "Well," I said, "what does it mean?" "It's just the same as when you spit," he answered.

And just as the word "expectorate" was too big for my boy, so the pastorate is too big a job for the preacher who fails properly to appreciate the Sunday school and promote its interests.

In my experience as a superintendent, I have found that when the pastor shows an active, intense interest in the Sunday school, it grows and prospers and he does not lack for an appreciative congregation at his regular preaching services; and vice versa, when the pastor pays no attention to the Sunday school, leaving it up to the superintendent, other laymen and the women, while he maintains an attitude of indifference, the work of the Church lags all along the line and his pastorate with the Church that believes in doing things will be a short one.

Bishop Bell of the United Brethren Church, in an address before an International Sunday School Convention on "The Bible School and the Pastor," sets forth the relation of the pastor to the Sunday school in a much more forcible manner than I can do. Among other things he said: "The pastor is not only the pastor of the church, but of the Bible school as well. The Sunday school is his most hopeful, responsive parish. It affords the pastor not only a choice and approved method of evangelism among all classes, but the only kind of congregation that has promise of becoming a force for the work of God in the world. A pastor who puts himself heart and soul into the realization of a large and effective Bible school is exercising the highest wisdom, and will never want for an appreciative audience at his preaching services.

"The Church of the succeeding generation is in the making. Into that Church of the world's tomorrow we are called to direct the child and youth life on the earth at this hour. We must win to Christ, and the safety and power of a life in Him, the young life now within our reach. The task is assigned by high heaven. If aroused, organized, infilled by the Holy Spirit, possessed with a spirit and purpose of achievement, led on by pastors who are on fire for the victory, the Church of this age may come to this strategic undertaking with assurance of winning the day. No such opportunity ever confronted the Christians of any previous generation. The field is before us and we may reap it if we will. There is a call for every pastor to come to the firing line in an immediate advance in Bible school work throughout the world. Ours, fellow-pastors, is the first responsibility and we must accept it."

THE PAY CHECKS.

The Board of Finance, at its annual meeting in St. Louis, May 6 and 7, instructed the Secretary to make up the table for the next distribution of the net earnings of the Superannuate Endowment Fund, to the Conference Claimants, on July 1, 1919.

Therefore, the attention of all Annual Conference secretaries and also of the claimants on the Fund, is called to the importance of having the reports on the years of service and the addresses of the claimants in the hands of the Secretary of the Board of Finance not later than July 1, 1919. Any claimants whose years of service and addresses are not reported by that time, cannot, by order of the Board, figure in the distribution about to be made. The date for making up the table has been fixed as late as possible so that there would be ample time for all reports on the claimants to come in. If these reports fail to reach the office in time to be considered, it will not be the fault of the Board, for everything possible has been done to secure them.

Also, the Board of Finance has instructed its Secretary to send the remittance checks direct to the claimants as their interests appear. This makes it absolutely necessary for the Secretary to have the correct addresses of all the claimants. If these addresses have not been reported, it will be impossible to mail the checks in such cases where the addresses are not furnished.

Therefore, if any claimant has any doubt about his years of service and correct address having reached us, he should send a letter of inquiry to the office of the Board at once.

MONROE DISTRICT NOTES.

Mr. Editor: It occurs to this correspondent that a department in the New Orleans Advocate for news from presiding elders' districts, similar to that of the episcopal districts in the Nashville Advocate, with a correspondent in each, would be an interesting and popular department. Of course, this should be planned and arranged for by the management—"a hint to the wise," etc.—but I am presuming to say a few words without solicitation.

Doubtless, with this intensive Centenary campaign on, our preachers and laymen are busier than ever before. A layman said to two of us the other day, "I've been a member of the Methodist Church and observed Methodist preachers a long time, but I never saw them moving and hustling as they are now." And it is true. Every one is busy—some are running, some flying. The presiding elders and pastors have been running, the connectional men flying. Brother Joyner, for instance, has made two or three "flying trips" to this district this year to attend "group" or "council meetings"; but he soon got enough of flying, or got his wings clipped, and so has settled down in New Orleans, and gives us on the "firing line" invaluable help through the mails.

Brother Alonzo Early, our efficient Sunday School Field Secretary, is also a flier. He recently flew up to Columbia from somewhere (but who knows where?), and from there to Bastrop, and was safely carried on to Humphrey's Chapel for one speech; then he flew on to Oak Ridge, Merrouge, Lake Providence, Tallulah, and Winnsboro. From the latter place he flew all the way to Baker, La., with a possible stop-over at Ferriday or Vidalia, and where else, who knows? "That was flying some, I bound you!"

I suppose it will not be long before "flying" Conference-wide workers will get themselves real flying machines and make trips through the air far above terra firma, "view the landscape o'er," make panoramic surveys, and "drop from the clouds" their instructions, exhortations, and pleadings, and startle the world by their achievements or the whir of their wings. "So mote it be."

Our pastors are all busy at their jobs. You have just read J. M. Alford's report. He seems to be "in high oats" at Mangham. If he hasn't one already, the first thing you know he will have a Ford. And Roy, at West Monroe, going to build a $40,000 church! Think of Roy, pastor of a $40,000 church! He will have to get some kind of polish and rub off that kind of "country parson" look he has on. Be sure of this: he would look better if he could. And there's Neill, at Bastrop, preaching in a brick church! He says that's the first time he's ever "pastured" in a brick church and lived in a bungalow. Perhaps he will polish up a little, too.

A number of our preachers in this neck o' the woods have gotten into various circles of "automobile society." Henderson is in the Baby Saxon circle. Roy started with some kind of a small car and has risen through the Ford and four circles to the "six"; McLean has advanced from the Ford to the four and overtaken George; but Harvell has left them below and risen to the six, while Means, of First Church, Monroe, and Lay, of the Calhoun Circuit, are plodding along together in the Ford circle; Reams, at Rayville, to meet the needs of his large family of one wife and no children, has supplied himself with a seven-passenger "six." The balance, so far as I know, including the presiding elder, are perambulating around in the same old way on the "iron horse" or in buggies, wagons, horseback, or "footback"; but they get there just the same.

The district has made considerable progress materially, or financially, in the last few years, and I hope spiritually, under the leadership of the efficient presiding elder, Rev. A. S. Lutz, and we are confidently expecting to go over our quota in the Centenary drive next week. The presiding elder has spoken in every charge on the movement and tried hard to "deliver the goods," and claims now to have "delivered his soul."

We are hoping for good revivals and a successful year. These items reached me by "wireless." If the brethren of the district like to see them in print, let them send some more that way.

DISTRICT SECRETARY.

May 16, 1919.

TO THE PASTORS—THE MINUTE MEN OF AMERICA.

The following resolution was unanimously passed by the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America:

"RESOLVED, That the General Superintendent be requested to draft and publish, in behalf of the National League, a request that the pastors throughout the United States on June 8 bring to the attention of their people the issue of Americanism involved in the attempt to nullify National Prohibition, and urge the members of their congregations to insist that Congress shall immediately pass an adequate permanent enforcement code to carry into effect the 18th Amendment and War-time Prohibition."

The liquor interests, particularly the brewers, who stand convicted of unpatriotic and pro-German activity, are now trying to nullify not only war-time prohibition, but the National Constitutional Amendment as well. They are proposing to desecrate Flag Day, June 14, by holding at the National Capitol on that date a monster parade as a demonstration against prohibition. It can be easily seen by this that the war against the liquor traffic is not over and will not be until the friends of that traffic cease to resist the law of the land. The federated forces which stand for righteousness and which brought about the enactment of prohibition as an expression of the moral conviction of the American people, have no choice excepting to rally their forces as often as the enemy continues his counter-attacks.

The National Convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America will be held in Washington City, June 3-6, followed on Sunday, June 8, by a Field Day for the presentation of the prohibition situation to the churches of the Capital City. Therefore, as the most convincing proof that the better citizenship of the country, which is the overwhelming majority, not only wants the enforcement of prohibition, but intends to see that it is accomplished, the Anti-Saloon League of America suggests and earnestly requests that the pastors of the churches in favor of prohibition throughout the country shall on June 8 bring the issue involved to the attention of their respective congregations to the end that Congress may be advised that not only has there been no reaction against prohibition, but that, on the contrary, the overwhelming majority of the people not directly interested in the liquor traffic want it fully and faithfully enforced, and desire the immediate enactment of the permanent code to carry into effect both war-time prohibition and the 18th Amendment to the Constitution.

Each congregation, in its own way, should make known to the members of Congress and United States Senate from their particular State what their wishes are in this matter.

The Anti-Saloon League of America therefore makes this official appeal to the pastors of the churches for this further demonstration of the splendid loyalty they have given to this cause throughout the years of this tremendous struggle.

P. A. BAKER,
General Superintendent, Anti-Saloon League of America.

Westerfield, Ohio, May 12.

SOME QUESTIONS.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

After his long sleep of twenty years, on returning to his home village, and his erstwhile companions or their children telling him he was dead, the immortal sleeper exclaims: "If I vas Rip Van Vinkle and Rip Van Vinkle vas dead, den who vas I?" To be or not to be? And all other queries classical or otherwise.

I was duly appointed to my charge, came, saw, was received, entered upon my duties as pastor, preacher, etc., then after this came the deluge. I am struggling with the storm, battling with the waves, and sink, swim, survive or perish. I wonder sometimes who or what I am. The 'phone rings. "Is that Brother Servemall's residence?" "Yes." "Will you please appoint a committee from your church to—to—" "Why, yes; I'll see about it." The country is safe once more. Now that was a real mine of thought I was digging in just then, and I was just uncovering a ledge of gold, but pshaw! it don't shine now.

Then cometh on the scene a lady with a book, and she will enroll this humble servant of the Lord among the great and give him a seat in the midst of the mighty, write his geneaology, biography, and all the things he ever or never did, with his full size photograph—all for five dollars, ten per cent discount on account of his misfortune in being a minister. "Only want your name now, when 'who is what?' is published—"

"Though troubles assail and dangers affright,
I'll cling to the helm and try to sit tight."

Now cometh the mail. One letter from the boy overseas. God bless and keep him. Another from an old friend to whom we ministered in years gone by. These are stars in the storm-cast sky. What means this eager, anxious throng of typed missives? Boards who are evidently bent on stirring up one's pure mind to remembrance, and they don't fail to stir! Plans to insure against all disasters except financial depletion and brain fag! No wonder the postoffice is being complained of. I would get tired and sometimes ineffective, too, if I had all this stuff to carry. But write on, brethren, it will keep you out of mischief, and we men, who are as yet only preachers and not office holders, will throw your letters in the wastebasket, and bring up our collections as usual. Of course we are sadly in need of information, especially about local conditions, and you furnish it gratis. I do not know whether I—private in ranks—am the best advised man in the world, but I am quite sure I am among the most advised of men, and some day I am going to protest and write back at you.

Shreveport, La.

LAFAYETTE: OVER ABUNDANTLY.

I have now been in bed four weeks, first with the "flu," succeeded by a malady more painful.

The Centenary Campaign arrived. The church had no pastor, no distinguished outsiders, no specialists, no banquets, no "whooping-them-up" methods to lean on. A group of women went to their knees, and God gave them the assurance of victory.

On Centenary Sunday, Mrs. Ben Williams made a stirring and moving address. At 1:30 p.m., seven car teams left the church under Campaign Director (Mrs.) Crow Girard. In a few hours the report was 'phoned in that $7095 was signed up, thus passing the quota of $7000; the second day's report, $8088; the fourth day's report, $10,800. These gifted women in four days' work had raised more money than the church had raised in the three years preceding. The pastor's vote for equal laity rights for women has thus been triumphantly vindicated.

Never have I witnessed such many-sided kindnesses visited upon a sick man from a town or a church.

Adding allowed credits, we go well over $13,000 on a basis of actual membership of 210 members.

In addition, the campaign has done far more to deepen the spiritual life of our local church than any professional revival methods.

The church has voted the pastor a month's rest and made up a purse that covers all expenses of a visit to his two sisters in Woburn, Mass., and his brother in Memphis.

MRS. MARY BROWN SWAN.

By Mrs. A. F. Watkins.

On the corner of North Congress and Yazoo Streets there has stood for more than seventy years a Methodist church; first the simple, little brick church erected in 1838 which faced south, followed by the large church in 1883, facing east, and the stately Galloway Memorial Church which now adorns the same spot. Adjoining the church lot, always the parsonage has stood, and next to that there has been a little house vitally connected with both the church and the parsonage.

This house was occupied by Mr. W. J. Brown and his wife, Sarah Palmer Brown. But it is not as a house that I wish to discuss this well-built, perfectly kept, splendidly preserved, unpretentious little building, but as a home. There the honor of God dwelt. The dignity of the Church was upheld, and reverence for the ministry was inculcated and maintained. The family altar, the daily prayer, the family pew in the church, these were as much a tradition of the household as the daily bread, the business cares, and that characteristic free masonry which bound the children together in unusual bonds of good fellowship and friendship.

The center and inspiration of this home was the wife and mother. No preacher's wife who lived in the Methodist parsonage will ever forget her wise counsels, her manifold kindnesses, and her gracious ministrations. She was small of person, graceful in bearing even in old age. She had dignity without stiffness, firmness without harshness, gentleness without weakness, sprightliness without sharpness, piety without bigotry and efficiency without pride. Whether your need were trivial or worthy, material or spiritual, she would always meet it or lead you to the source of supply.

In this little house hard by the church and the parsonage, Mary Brown Swan spent most of her well-ordered life. I have set forth something of the home and the character of the influences in the midst of which she was providentially placed as a further exemplification of the truth that when God would make a great Christian, usually his first step is to prepare a thoroughly Christian home to be used as His chief agent for this His supreme work. Every element of this home found a response and bore abiding fruit in her character and life.

At twelve years of age she joined the Church and gave her life to God in singleness of purpose and completeness of consecration, which developed into the strong Christian who lived and worked among us.

In November, 1866, she was married to Henry Swan—a union which was marked by supreme devotion, close comradeship and comprehending sympathy. Their united lives were lived, except for a short residence in Texas, in the little home of sacred memories and in the town in which they were both brought up. After his death she went cheerfully on her lonely way with augmented faith in Him who has promised never to leave or forsake His own.

To those who knew Mrs. Swan no words are needed to portray her character; to those who did not know her, no words are adequate. She possessed poise and evenness of character in an extraordinary degree. In her the passive Christian graces were most delicately blended with the active Christian virtues. Her devotion to her Church was untiring and found expression in many forms of service. Perhaps the greatest of these was that of teaching in the Sunday school. She was richly endowed with ability as a teacher. She taught more by what she was than by what she knew. A disciplined character, united with a well trained mind and a spirit-filled soul, made her truly a great teacher and spiritual leader. For many years she was the beloved teacher of the Priscilla Bible Class in the Galloway Memorial Church. After she was compelled to give up her work, the name of this class was changed to the Mary Swan Bible Class, and all that it has done or will do shall be a memorial to her work and influence.

The latter days of her life were spent in the home of her sister, Mrs. Hadie Buck. These were in large measure days of waiting, in which His will was greater than His work.

On the morning of April 10, the family physician told them that the stupor which had prevailed for several days would probably pass into the last sleep before the end of the day. The two sisters were alone when the transition took place. In calmness and quietness and with perfect trust she met her Savior.

Besides Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Swan leaves two brothers, Mr. W. J. Brown of this city, and Mr. L. P. Brown of Meridian. Her funeral was held in the Galloway Memorial Church. Her class attended in a body. Her pastor, Rev. Charles W. Crisler, conducted the service. By request, no eulogy was pronounced, though the service was a most impressive and inspiring one. The choir, led by Mrs. Chas. Heaid's beautiful voice, sang "O Happy Day that fixed my choice on Thee, my Savior and my God," and at the close of the service, "There is a land of pure delight, where saints immortal reign." "There was no moaning of the bar, when she put out to sea."

JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Jackson District Conference met in Pelahatchie, Miss., at 2:30 p.m. on Monday, May 5, and adjourned at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, the 7th. The presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse, conducted the business of the conference in a way that was pleasing to all. He, at no time, seemed hurried, but the business was transacted on scheduled time.

The devotional services of the business sessions were conducted by Rev. C. W. Crisler, of Jackson, Galloway Memorial, and Rev. H. F. Tolle, of Jackson, Capitol Street. These services were very helpful.

The preaching services were filled by Rev. B. W. Lewis, of Flora; Rev. C. W. Crisler, of Jackson; Rev. C. C. Evans, of Canton, and Rev. H. F. Tolle, of Jackson. All of the sermons were true gospel messages.

On Tuesday afternoon the District Sunday School Convention held an institute under the leadership of Mr. C. L. Ray, of Madison. Talks were made by C. L. Ray, Mrs. Sue Brame, Mrs. J. W. Marley, Mrs. J. C. Wood, Rev. W. Fred Long, and Rev. B. F. Lewis. Officers for the next year were elected as follows: Mrs. J. W. Marley, Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. J. C. Turner, Elementary Superintendent; Mrs. J. C. Wood, Missionary Superintendent; Mrs. Sidney McLaurin, Home Department Superintendent; S. G. Armstrong, Superintendent of Organized Bible Classess; J. A. Lindsay, Superintendent of Teacher-training. The presiding elder is to be chairman ex-officio.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: Dr. J. M. Sullivan, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, W. H. Till, J. H. Singletary, S. G. Armstrong, Mrs. H. F. Tolle, G. R. Bennett, and W. B. Price. A. P. Barksdale, M. S. Enochs, G. P. Cook and Mrs. Suc Brame were elected alternates.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions were adopted by a rising vote of the Jackson District Conference.

Whereas God, since the last session of this conference, has seen fit to transfer one of our gifted young members, Rev. Mounger Favre Adams, to that greater Conference above, and as we wish to show our appreciation of his life and work among us, be it therefore

Resolved, That we offer our deepest sympathy and sincerest prayers for comfort to the bereaved loved ones.

Secondly, That we hereby express to our Father our thankfulness for the fact that our district was blessed by being the field of his labor; and,

Thirdly, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy be sent to the New Orleans Advocate with a request for publication, and a copy sent to the family.

$35,000,000

AND SOME SAID WE COULDN'T DO IT!

With a campaign so well planned and an organization so complete, failure was well-nigh impossible. But Victory in the financial drive is not the end. We may raise $35,000,000 and still fail.

We have not accomplished our Centenary purpose when we have subscribed $35,000,000. It will not be accomplished until we ourselves and all we have are on the altar.

We shall reach ultimate victory for the Centenary only as we make use of every God-given agency. We must have the fullest co-operation, the most loyal devotion, the sublimest faith. We must rediscover the sources of our power. We cannot achieve the task in human strength. We must go to our knees in prayer.

We must acknowledge God as owner of all our material wealth. We cannot pray and not pay.

....

Not only must we give money, but that more costly gift—life service. And this is a task not for the few, but for every child of Methodism. Unless YOU measure up to your full responsibility the cause will fail, no matter how much money is collected. If you fail to do your part, you will disappoint God and betray a trust.

RAISING $35,000,000 IS BUT THE FIRST DRAFT UPON OUR LOYALTY TO JESUS CHRIST!

A TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH.

By Dr. Geo. S. Brown.

Your radiator's leaky, and your lights are passing dim,
And because of worn-out tires, you are running on the rim;
And I never heard such discord since the day that I was born,
As emanateth from you when I try to toot your horn.

Your valves are full of carbon, your magneto's on the bum,
And I hear your engine knocking when I ought to hear it hum;
Your carburetor balketh in a way that's seldom seen,
All because, my dear Elizabeth, your mixture is too lean.

Your steering gear is wabbly, and uncertain is your clutch,
And the way your fenders rattle is enough to beat the Dutch;
And ofttimes, we have almost reached the parting of the ways,
When your spark of animation failed on cold and stormy days.

You're a compound, complex problem, but my heart is filled with song,
For with all your faults and defects, you keep moving right along,
And there's nothing anywhere we go, that you and I can't pass,
When you're well supplied with "lub oil" and your tank is full of gas.

So, bless your heart, Elizabeth, I'm loyal to you still;
You hold a place in my woodshed, no other car can fill;
And the thing that binds you close to me, and binds me close to you,
Is the way you helped a busy "Doc" to flabbergast the "FLU."

THE PALACE OF HAPPY HEART.

The cottage in which Greta lived was full of happy and busy little brothers and sisters. Sometimes, however, Greta would waste time in foolish day-dreams, especially when she had to use her needle, for she hated to sew.

Very often she would look up at the great castle near and think how happy must be the little princess, Angela, who lived there. Angela could do everything she wished, Greta thought. She thought of Angela's home as "Castle 'Do-As-You-Please,'" and wished that by some strange chance she might enter it.

One day, while passing the castle and gazing up at it, she stumbled over something and fell. She felt a sharp pain, then knew no more until she wakened in a pretty bed with soft covers.

A nurse came and told her that when she had fallen the good queen had had her brought into the castle, and that she must be very quiet.

One morning, when she was able to sit up, a beautiful thing happened. Little Princess Angela came in to see her. She sat down by Greta's chair and began hemming a handkerchief as she talked to her.

"Do you like to sew?" asked Greta in surprise.

"Not very well," answered Angela, "but mamma wishes me to learn."

"I thought you had nothing to do but have good times," said Greta.

"But they wouldn't be good times if I never earned them," laughed Angela.

"How very strange!" thought Greta. Princess Angela talked of earning pleasures as one earned money.

"Can't a princes always do just as she pleases?" ventured Greta at last.

"No one can," answered wise little Angela.

"Not even kings and queens?"

"No, every one must please some one else. Kings and queens must please, oh, so many people! I have to study hours every day."

Gretna was very quiet for a while. She was thinking busily. Then she sighed, "What pretty little stiches you make! Mine are so long and crooked!"

"I have to hem to the corner to-day," answered Angela. "I play that the corner is a fairy palace called Happy Heart. A little girl is on her way to the palace and can get there only by taking little steps. When she takes a long step or steps out of the path, she must go back and take the step over. Mamma taught me the game, and I like it. There!" she exclaimed, springing up with a laughing face, "I've reached the palace! Now I can play."

"I'd like to play that and learn to make pretty stitches," sighed Greta wistfully.

And the next day some work was brought to her, and she began her slow journey to the palace.

When it was finished she was well enough to be taken home, and a glad little girl she was to see the merry brothers and sisters again and tell all that had happened to her. She was, too, a much wiser and happier Greta than before. She had learned that nowhere in the world is there a castle of "Do-As-You-Please," but she had reached something far better—the fairy palace of Happy Heart.—Emilie Henderson, in Pearls for the Little Ones.

A BASKET OF EARTH

By Edgar L. Vincent

Everybody stopped the young lady who was carrying a flower to admire its beauty.

"Aren't the blossoms lovely? Did you ever see anything more beautiful?"

As long as she was in sight, people turned to look after the plant and the one who was bearing it.

But who gave a moment's notice to the young man who was following the lady, tugging on his arm a big basket of earth? If they looked at it at all, people simply thought, "Only a lot of earth! Common soil! We can see that any day; but that flower is simply gorgeous!"

But a few minutes later the young man had set his load down and was digging a deep hole for the plant. Emptying the fresh earth in, he and his friend carefully placed the flower into the heart of the mellow soil to grow and shed its fragrance over all the garden.

The basket of earth was absolutely necessary to the life of the plant; and he who supplied the need of the flower was doing a deed just as worthy as did she who bore the beautiful thing which won so much attention.

If we can not carry baskets of flowers, we may bring along a little bit of earth for the plant to grow in.

"But," do we say, "the flower is so much more beautiful! We love its sunshiny face! When we grow tired, we may lift the flower and refresh ourselves with its fragrance! That makes the last half of the journey less wearisome!"

And yet, many find happiness in bringing the basket of earth. As they pass along, they, too, catch something of the rich perfume of the flower borne by the friend at their side; and when they think of the lovelier plant that is to be by and by through their work, they are heartened for the day's toiling. So there comes a day when the pot of earth becomes a thing of joy. They are lonely when they at last set it down.

If we can not carry the lamp, surely we may bear the vessel with the oil. If we are not permitted to hold the flower in our hands, we may take up the basket of earth in which the plant may grow!—Pitsburgh Christian Advocate.

A TRUTHFUL BOY.

How people do trust a truthful boy! We never worry about him when he is out of sight. We never say, "I wonder where he is; I wish I knew what he is doing." We know that he is all right, and that when he comes home we will know all about it and get it straight. We don't have to ask him where he is going, or how long he will be gone every time he leaves the house. We don't have to call him back and make him "solemnly promise" the same thing over and over. When he says, "Yes, I will," or "No, I won't," just once, that settles it.—Robert Burdette.

SHOW YOUR COLORS.

A Sabbath school superintendent tells his teachers and scholars that by living consistent Christian lives they show that they are Christians, and glorify God and build up the Church by standing true to Christ under all circumstances. "When Nelson was asked by his friend, Hardy, to put on a cloak to hide his stars which made him a mark for the French sharpshooters, who were huddled in the rigging of the men-of-war, he answered: 'No. In honor I got them; in honor I will show them."

SOME LESSONS OF THE "BIG DRIVE."

The Advocate goes to press too early to give the full results of the "Big Drive"; but it is not too early to say that an epoch-making undertaking has been successfully accomplished. The reports that came in after the first day's work showed that the Church was thoroughly alive to its great opportunities, and succeeding reports have maintained the pace that was set in the beginning. We may confidently say that the complete returns will confirm the high hopes with which the campaign was enterprised. It is not too early, therefore, to undertake to draw some lessons from this wonderful achievement.

In the first place, it has been demonstrated that the Church is still tremendously vital. This is shown both by the largeness of its program, and the success with which it has been carried out. There have been those who have criticised the Church as being out of touch with modern life—as having more concern for the unknown future than for the insistent present. The outcome of the Centenary campaign puts to silence that criticism for all time to come, so far as Methodism is concerned. From the initial survey of the world's needs to the presentation of the Church's plans to "the last man in the last church of Methodism," there have been evident a timeliness, a saneness, and a holy enthusiasm that could have sprung only from a consciousness of the divine presence. The Church is alive to-day, perhaps, as never before in its history.

In the second place, we have learned that men are ready to respond to an appeal to undertake big things. In the beginning, there may have been some good people who doubted the Church's willingness to undertake a program that called for the raising of $35,000,000. But as the campaign progressed, it was evident that its appeal was irresistible. Laymen who had never shown much active interest in the usual work of the Church responded enthusiastically to this call for service in a large way. It may be that we have lost much in the past because we have not ventured to ask our laymen to do things that would appeal to them as being really worth while. We have, at least, learned that we need not hesitate to go forward, no matter how impossible of accomplishment the task may seem to be.

Again, we have learned that organization is the secret of success in any great undertaking. Notwithstanding the greatness of the cause and the hearty response of our people to its appeal, we may well doubt if we could have even approximated present results if we had not used business methods in perfecting our plans. There was a happy blending of the cultural, the inspirational, and the practical in the preparation of the plans of the campaign. And when the plans were made, they were followed with only such variation as was necessary in special cases. It may be well to remark in passing that the perfecting of this organization in the Church constitutes a permanent asset that will be available for all future undertakings. We now have a trained force for the successful carrying out of other great movements that will develop from time to time.

Above all, we have learned that the religious motive is still regnant in the human heart. Revival fires have already begun to burn throughout the Church. As men have planned, they have prayed, and as they have worked they have worshiped. Diffused religious feeling has been precipitated by definite assignment to duty, and the thing we have all longed for is in a fair way of being realized—a great revival of religion among our people. The $35,000,000 is the smallest result of the great campaign.

Many other lessons will suggest themselves to the thoughtful mind.

THE LATEST CENTENARY REPORT.

Nashville, Tenn., Monday, May 26, 6 p.m.—War Savings Stamps cannot be accepted for payment of Centenary subscriptions. Liberty and Victory Bonds should be accepted at face value and sent by registered mail by the local Centenary Treasurer to the Conference Centenary Treasurer, who will receipt for same and give proper credits.

The latest reports from the drive give $31,955,925, without credits, with fifteen Conferences to hear from.

MRS. C. W. TURPIN,
Publicity Superintendent.

See last page for table giving Centenary subscriptions reported through Friday, May 23.

THE PASTOR AND THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

The pastor sustains a peculiarly responsible position with reference to the young people of his charge. He has resting upon him, by the mere fact of his appointment, the duty of ministering to their religious needs, and of interesting them in various forms of Christian activity. This duty is more than a responsibility, however—it is a privilege and an opportunity. No service that he can render will tell more for the efficiency and success of the Church in the future than that which is given to the young people, who need encouragement and help.

The Sunday school and the Epworth League are the normal agencies for reaching these young people and enlisting them in the work of the Church. We cannot understand how any pastor can fail to do his utmost to take advantage of these two really wonderful organizations to relate himself helpfully to the young life of his congregation. These young people will usually respond quickly and heartily to any approach that may be made to them; and the great problem of what to do with those who are ready to engage in some form of church activity is already solved by these organizations, which have departments that appeal to all types of the normal young life.

The season of Sunday school assemblies and Epworth League Conferences is approaching. We hope all our preachers will, so far as possible, interest their young people in these gatherings, and attend them themselves. Let us never forget that we are building substantially for the future when we help our young people to become actively interested in the work of the Church.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

"My work is far over the top in the Centenary drive," writes Rev. Henry T. Young, of Jena, La.

Rev. J. M. Porter, a member of the West Oklahoma Conference, paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Friday of last week.

Mrs. C. C. Miller, wife of Rev. C. C. Miller, our pastor at Morgan City, La., is convalescing. She has been at the Touro Infirmary for treatment.

Among the new church buildings planned through the inspiration of the Centenary are: Lafayette, Abbeville, Indian Bayou, Sulphur, and Rayne.

"Our little church at Zwolle went over yesterday in fifteen minutes after the campaign opened," writes Rev. Leland Clegg, of Zwolle, La., concerning the Centenary "Big Drive."

A telegram from Rev. H. B. Watkins, of Meridian, Miss., dated May 26, 10 p.m., reads: "Meridian Methodists, with a combined allotment of $59,000, have subscribed $63,000 to the Centenary."

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Kosciusko, Miss., writes: "Kosciusko went way over its quota in the Centenary drive. Everything goes well up this way. Much credit is due our local campaign director, Brother B. G. Webb, this city."

The report of the attendance contest between the Sunday schools of Homer, La., and Winnfield, La., for May 18, reached us too late for last week's issue of the Advocate. The figures were: Homer, 221; Winnfield, 200.

The Felicity Street Church, of this city, Mr. Van Carter, Campaign Manager, not only secured its quota in the Centenary, but a 40 per cent surplus, and has already paid $1,500 in cash on the first year's subscription.

Rev. J. R. James, of Wheeler, Miss., writes as follows: "Our subscriptions to the Centenary Fund, as taken on Sunday, May 18, are: Wheeler, $200; Asbury, $151. We have just begun—four other churches to hear from."

The Felicity pulpit was filled last Sunday, at 11 a.m., by Rev. W. G. Evans, and in the evening by Chaplain L. N. Taylor of the U. S. Navy. Rev. A. I. Townsley, the pastor, delivered the commencement sermon of the High School at Oakdale, La.

All delegates to the Epworth League Conference of the State of Mississippi to be held in Laurel, June 10-13, will please correspond with Miss Eula Vance, Route 2, Laurel, Miss., and give information as regards size of delegation and the length of stay.

Rev. H. E. Carter, our pastor at Tunica, Miss., accompanied his wife to the Lucy Brinkley Hospital, at Memphis, Tenn., last week, where she was to undergo an operation. Our hope is that she stood the ordeal well, and that she will soon be restored to health.

Dr. Charles L. Goodell, of New York, will preach the baccalaureate sermon for Trinity College on June 3, and Bishop W. F. McDowell will deliver the commencement address on June 4. We acknowledge the honor of an invitation to be present at the commencement exercises.

Rev. T. J. O'Neil, formerly president of Port Gibson Female College, has removed, with his family, to Rolling Fork, Miss., where he is serving as pastor of our church. He writes cheerfully of his reception by the good people of that fine Delta town, and of the outlook on his charge.

Rev. I. F. Holland, our pastor at Gunnison, Miss., has been wholly or partially confined to his bed since January 9 with double bronchial pneumonia and pleurisy following an attack of influenza. He is now at Asheville, N. C., where we trust he will soon be restored to perfect health.

Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder of the Seashore District, Mississippi Conference, spent a few minutes in the Advocate office on Saturday of last week. He was enthusiastic over the Centenary campaign, and predicted that the Seashore District would exceed its quota by a considerable amount.

Mrs. M. A. Joyner, the mother of Rev. N. E. Joyner, Missionary Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, though in her eighty-second year, is active and greatly interested in the work of the Church. She spent a few hours in New Orleans last week, on her way to Hammond, La., to visit her daughter.

The Woman's City Mission Board of New Orleans held its final meeting, before being reorganized with an equal number of women and men, on Tuesday, May 27. New Orleans has the honor of being the first city in Methodism to put into effect the new experiment of the joint city mission board.

"As the clock struck twelve on Sunday, May 18, our director, Mr. R. C. Holt, reported Rayne over 'and then some.' The quota for Rayne and Branch was $7000; it will go, approximately, to $12,000. It was a gala day for our Methodism." Thus writes Rev. C. E. Fike, who is serving his fifth year as pastor of the Rayne charge, Louisiana Conference.

Miss Georgia Goldsby, who has had charge of the Girls' Department of the work at St. Mark's Hall, will leave this week for her new field of labor at the Wesley House in Birmingham, Ala. Miss Goldsby has made many friends in New Orleans Methodism. The Junior Epworth League of Felicity Church presented her with a handsome purse.

Rev. C. M. Morris, formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, is now pastor of First Church, Greer, S. C. A note from him informs us that his church, on a Centenary apportionment of $10,000, raised $12,100 within an hour after the compaign began on May 18. His mother is with him on a visit. He sends greetings to his brethren of the Louisiana Conference.

Rev. J. M. Alford, writing from Mangham, La., May 24, says: "The Mangham charge was out, and 'over the top,' on its allotment of $6000, for the Centenary before the end of the second day's drive. We are happy over our victory and will observe the last day, 'Victory Sunday,' with a jubilee service. We have some members who gave $500 each. This is without doubt the greatest epoch in the history of our great Church, and is the pledge of even greater things in the future. We thank God and take courage."

A telegram from Rev. C. A. Battle announces the results of the "Big Drive" in Baton Rouge, La., as follows: Istrouma, $722; Keener Memorial, $7,735.50; First Church, $30,592. These amounts give Baton Rouge the fine total of $39,049.50.

Rev. W. G. Forsyth, of Pascagoula, Miss., called at the Advocate office one day last week while the Editor was out. We regret not seeing him.

Rev. W. N. Ware, of Walnut Grove, Miss., writing under date of May 22, says that he has no doubt about his charge's raising its full Centenary quota.

Rev. G. A. Morgan, of Jonesboro, La., reports that he has received fourteen members into the church this year, that Sunday schools are growing, and that the financial condition of his charge is good.

The Bernice charge of the Louisiana Conference, of which Rev. W. A. Mangum is pastor, reported a large oversubscription of its Centenary quota on the first day of the "Drive." Of course, the way had been thoroughly prepared in advance.

Parker Memorial Church, of this city, has made a notable record this year. It has increased its pastor's salary from $1400 to $2000, raised a church debt of $6750, and subscribed $10,150 to the Centenary fund on a quota of $7500. Rev. F. M. Freeman is the pastor.

Brother C. O. Chalmers, who is as faithful in church work as he is diligent in looking after the business interests of the Advocate, conducted the service at St. Mark's Hall last Sunday, in the absence of the superintendent, Rev. W. E. Thomas, who was out of the city.

The Editor had the honor of preaching the commencement sermon for the Magnolia High School, at Magnolia, Miss., on last Sunday. He counted it a privilege to meet many of the fine people of that splendid little city. He is especially indebted to Professor G. C. Thames, Rev. J. Early Gray, and Brother L. L. Lampton and family for appreciated courtesies.

Our church at Pineville, La., is experiencing a most prosperous year under the leadership of Rev. C. V. Breithaupt. The Centenary quota of $2250 was exceeded by about $1200. The contribution to the Armenian and Syrian Relief Fund amounted to about one dollar per capita, and more than $100 was given to the Orphanage on Easter Sunday. There have been eighteen or twenty accessions to the church this year, and the congregations have increased materially.

Rev. A. A. Martin, of Verona, Miss., writes appreciatively of the efforts of the ladies of his charge in adding to the conveniences of the parsonage by placing some new furniture in it, and by making other needed improvements. He was expecting his charge to "go over the top" in the Centenary drive, a hope which we feel sure was realized. He also made mention of the fact that Rev. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada Female College, had recently preached a great sermon at the commencement exercises of the Verona High School.

The Waterproof charge of the Louisiana Conference deserves credit for the fine way in which it met its Centenary obligations. At Wesley Chapel, through the earnest efforts of W. S. H. Wailes, Steve Smith, Magruder Smith, of St. Joseph, and Brother Goodwin, a splendid member of the Presbyterian Church who is interested in the work at Wesley, and others, the quota was exceeded within an hour after the drive began. At St. Joseph, great credit is due Brother W. R. Baker, and his son, German Baker, for their great interest in securing the full amount. Rev. R. F. Harrell is the pastor.

Miss Clara Chalmers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Chalmers, was graduated from Athens Female College, Athens, Ala., on Tuesday of this week, with the degree of Bachelor of Science. She is also a graduate of Scarritt Bible and Training School. Miss Chalmers is a magnificent type of Christian young womanhood. She will spend two years in teaching in this country, after which she expects to enter upon missionary work in the foreign field. The Board of Missions will have no better equipped or more consecrated worker in its service. She will remain at Athens for two weeks after graduation in connection with the State Epworth League Conference, after which she will return to New Orleans for the summer.

A LETTER FROM THE CAMPAIGN DIRECTOR, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

My Dear Mr. Editor: I want to ask for space enough in your good paper to express, publicly, my grateful feelings to the presiding elders, district directors, pastors, and church directors of the North Mississippi Conference for their untiring efforts in helping to put over the Centenary work. It is to them and their work that the whole credit is due. Their untiring efforts, good judgment, and loyalty to the cause, have been inexpressibly admirable.

My work has been directly with the presiding elders and district directors and it has been very pleasant to be associated with such a class of men. They have preached, prayed, and persuaded until our Conference is "over" in good shape and will have a creditable showing as compared with other Conferences.

My individual work in this reminded me somewhat of taking a long-used horse from a "log team" and undertaking to make a saddle horse of him; awkward—falls down in many places, hard on the rider, etc. But we have pulled through and I feel the credit is largely due to their management.

As to Brother Jaco and Dr. Clement—they remind me of what I heard when a boy: "If a turtle bites you, he will not turn 'loose until it thunders." "Thunder" has not affected them in the least. Just what would shake them loose, I am unable to say.

I hope our Conference has been lifted spiritually as well as helped financially.

With a heart full of gratitude to all the above mentioned, as well as to the ladies who rendered valuable help, I am, Sincerely,

D. H. HALL,
Conference Campaign Director.

New Albany, Miss., May 24, 1919.

ATTENTION, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

Over the top, Epworth Leaguers, with your pledges to the African Special! We cannot, we must not, we dare not fail to measure up to our obligations. The work of Christianizing the Congo, the darkest spot of the "Dark Continent," has been entrusted solely to the Epworth League; what if we fail? When Christ left the earth, He left the carrying on of His work entirely in the hands of those who knew Him; we who know Him must carry His love to those who know Him not. The Mississippi Epworth League Conference has been alloted $1520 as their part for this year; this has not been raised as yet, but we are on the home stretch—let's all come to Laurel June 10, 11, 12 and 13 with our pledges over-paid. If your League made no pledge, raise all you possibly can and send in to the Treasurer, Rev. L. F. Alford, Laurel, Miss.

Pastors, please call the attention of your League to this appeal and urge them to measure up; if you have no League, see if you can't get some of your young people to attend the Conference in Laurel so that they will get a vision and the enthusiasm to organize a League and render great service to the Master through this organization.

CHURCH EXTENSION, AS REPORTED BY CONFERENCE BOARD REPRESENTATIVES.

A meeting of the representatives of the Conference Boards of Church Extension convened for its biennial session in the chapel of the Board of Church Extension, Louisville, Ky., at 9:30 a. m., Tuesday, May 6, 1919. Forty representatives from the various Conferences were present and organized for their work by electing W. J. Snyder, of Batesburg, S. C., as chairman, and J. O. Peterson, Wynne Wood, Okla., secretary.

A two days' program, covering every phase of church extension work, had been thoroughly worked out by our Church Extension Secretary, Dr. H. A. Boaz, which was discussed with great interest and profit to the entire representative body. So highly profitable was the meeting that the Conference requested the proper authorities to provide for a biennial meeting of the representatives of the Conference Boards.

Several recommendations were made to the General Board of Church Extension for consideration at its annual meeting in Louisville, May 8th and 9th.

The Conference recorded its delight at the continued growth of interest in our Church Extension work, and the increased appreciation of the ever enlarging field of useful ministry for our Board of Church Extension, and the imperative challenge of the world situation.

The Conference noted with pleasure the marked efficiency and success of the organization under the able and wise leadership of Dr. H. A. Boaz, our secretary. J. O. PETERSON, Secty.

TO THE EPWORTH LEAGUERS, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The dates for our Conference at Laurel (June 10, 11, 12, and 13) are drawing near, and you should see that each League in the Conference is represented; and where there are no Leagues, at least two of the young people from the church should attend; pastors and presiding elders are expected to come. The district that has the largest attendance present will be presented a banner, and the League in the district winning the banner will be custodian of the banner during the year.

We will have with us for addresses: Dr. A. D. Betts, President Paine College, Augusta, Ga.; Dr. C. C. Menzler, Social Service Expert, Nashville; Rev. R. E. Noliner, Central Office, Nashville; Rev. H. T. Cariey, Editor Advocate, New Orleans; Rev. J. C. Chambers, Sunday School Field Secretary, Jackson. Rev. H. B. Watkins, Meridian, will have charge of the three "Bible Periods."

It is probable that Bishop Lambuth will reach for one address. Reunion of the Volunteers will be held at 11 o'clock a. m., 12th; all of the Volunteers urged to be present. The first evening will be in charge of the local Leagues, and they are going to give us during the Conference an auto ride and a picnic. Be sure that you send delegates and send their names to Rev. L. L. Roberts, and entertainment will be provided for you.

Yours sincerely, "All for Christ,"
W. D. HAWKINS, President.

NOTICE!

The twenty-eighth annual session of the Durant District Conference will convene in the town of Louisville, Miss., at 9 o'clock, Tuesday morning, June 10, 1919. Preaching, Monday night, at 8:30, June 9.

It is earnestly desired that all the pastors, with local preachers and delegates, reach seat of conference by evening of the 9th. Local preachers who find it impossible to attend will send written reports with request for renewal of license if desired.

Pastors will kindly give notice, by public announcement and otherwise, of time and place of conference and see to it that quarterly conference records are brought for examination. Let all who expect to attend, preachers and laymen, notify the conference host, Rev. W. C. Carlisle, at earliest possible convenience.

Committee on Orders—Brothers A. C. McCorkle, J. W. Raper, H. M. Young.

Committee on License and Recommendations—Revs. E. H. Cunningham, W. D. Wendel, C. A. Parks.

Freckles—
There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.
Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

On November 10, 1918, while the whole world was in suspense as to the signing of the Armistice, the sad news came that WILLIAM CURTIS GRAHAM, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Graham, was killed in action, on October 6, with the American Expeditionary Forces in France. He was born on November 16, 1895. In 1917 Curtis volunteered, together with a number of other young men from Mississippi Normal College, for service in the U. S. Navy Hospital Corps. Early in 1918, he was sent to France and was rendering first-aid in the front line trenches with the Marines. He was everybody's friend, and an obedient son and loving brother. In college he was the same truthful and courteous young man that he was in his home community, which won to him his college mates. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when a small boy and always liked to go to Sunday school and church. While bending over a wounded comrade, he fell a victim to a German bullet through his heart. Although he is dead, nothing greater can be said of any man than that "he died at his post of duty." His body lies in a soldier's grave to await the resurrection morn. His pastor,
OTTO PORTER.
DeSoto, Miss.

The subject of this sketch, OLIA VERNON BAUCUM, was a young man of many admirable traits. He was born in Haynesville, Claiborne Parish, La., on October 31, 1901, in a Christian home, and united with the Methodist Church on July 26, 1914, in which communion he lived to the day of his death, which sad event occurred on Sunday morning, April 13, 1919, in Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, where he had gone for treatment. His dying message to his mother, spoken to his father thirty minutes before he went to God, was, "Tell mother not to grieve for me—I am all right." This is indeed a sweet, consoling message of hope for the loved ones—father, mother and two young sisters—who linger and wait upon the shores of time for the happy reunion in the "house of many mansions." His death was a great shock to the entire community. He was a young man loved by every one, and had a very sunny disposition, which drew to him in strong friendship all the young people of the town. The family has the tender sympathy of all of us in the early taking away of their noble son and brother. May the dear Lord give them the strong consolations of His grace in this dark hour of sorrow.
A tribute to his memory by his pastor, JOHN G. SLOANE.
Haynesville, La.

Miss SUSIE IRENE GRAHAM, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Graham, was born on May 3, 1897, and died on April 6, 1919, with pneumonia, following influenza. The writer had just reached his 11 o'clock appointment on April 6, when the sad news came that Miss Susie was dead. She was buried in the Hebron cemetery at Hebron Church, Alabama, with a host of friends and relatives present to pay her the last tribute of respect. To know her was to love her. She had a smile and a kind word for everybody. Her life was one of service and sacrifice. In the home, she was a ray of sunlight to her loved ones and friends, always willing to give the sweet and take the bitter. In the schoolroom, she was loved and honored for the noble life she lived. At the age of eleven Miss Susie joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and lived her profession. She was a bright Christian and faithful to her Church. Her last testimony is expressed in the song she tried to sing on her death bed, "I'm Going Home." Although she has gone from us, our minds and hearts are satisfied as to her reward, because it is, "the treasure of everlasting joy." Her pastor,
OTTO PORTER.
DeSoto, Miss.

The following two brothers and sister died in the fall of 1918. They were born in DeSoto Parish, five miles East of Grand Cane, La. Two of them died in the same house and room where they were born.
OLLIE P. WILLIAMS was born on July 3, 1886, and died in New London, Conn., on September 30, 1918. He was in the marine service. This splendid young man joined the Church in early life and at the time of his death was a steward in the Mansfield Methodist Church and president of the Moore Wesley Bible Class. Before he took sick, or during his illness, he wrote an article and gave it to his department and asked that in case of his death it be sent to Mr. R. T. Moore, his Bible teacher, at Mansfield, La. In this paper he bore testimony to his Christian faith and peace with God. He was a member of the Masonic order and Woodmen of the World. This exemplary young man made the supreme sacrifice for his country. It can truly be said of him that he was loved and respected.
CHARLIE W. WILLIAMS was born on February 22, 1894, and died on October 15, 1918. He was married, on October 23, 1904, to Miss Grace Gressett. He leaves his wife and two baby boys. Charlie was converted and joined the Methodist Church in 1908. Charlie had a good position in Shreveport, but had come home to take care of his father, and help with the farm. He was very devoted to his father. During the influenza epidemic, several of the family were sick at once and it fell mostly to Charlie to care for them. This he did faithfully, but wore himself down. After he took fever he went in his car through the rain for medicine. So he took the influenza himself and died. It may be said of him that he gave himself for others. Charlie, too, was greatly loved.
Mrs. HILDA WILLIAMS MILLER was born on October 25, 1881, and died on November 26, 1918. She was married to Prof. S. A. Miller, on October 23, 1914. She leaves her husband and five little boys between five and thirteen. She was a graduate of the High School at Grand Cane and taught in the public schools for several years. She joined the Methodist Church when a girl. She was a lovable Christian. Her brothers and sisters looked to her as to a mother. She was beautiful in patience and Christian resignation. Miss Ruth, her sister, who was with her much of the time before her death, says she often tried to console others about her going. She died of a lingering disease. It may be said of her that she was perfected through suffering.
These two brothers and one sister, who died in less than one month's time, are survived, besides the above mentioned, by their father and three sisters and four brothers. Great sorrow but great comfort; they have substantial evidence that they are safe with Jesus. We do not sorrow as they who have no hope. Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.
H. W. LEDBETTER.

Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Adv.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT.

Dear Brother Carley: The first contribution to the Centenary drive of the Sicily Island charge, was by a widow by the name of Goode. She has several small children, with a debt of $600 on her home, and $180 doctor's bill. She had bought $100 worth of War Savings Stamps to make the world safe for democracy, and now gives the stamps to make democracy safe for the world. Will not some who read this statement contribute liberally to evangellze the world, and also assist in canceiling the widow's indebtedness? We expect to go over the top for the Centenary.

NEWS FROM NATCHEZ.

Dear Brother Carley: Dr. A. F. Watkins was with us yesterday morning and evening, and gave us two inspiring and helpful sermons. The one on Stewardship was one of the most helpful it has been my privilege to hear during all the drive for the Centenary.

Had it not been for the storm that came about 3:30 o'clock, we would have had Jefferson Street safely over the top by preaching time at 8 p. m. We will be on top when the time comes to report. My people gave with a cheerfulness that made us feel good. Sunday was a great day with the Methodists everywhere. Saturday, the first trip across the ocean was made by the air; but the thirty-five million dollars raised by the Methodist beat the airship all to pieces. These are great days.

Dr. Watkins met with a cordial reception here, for it was like coming home. The people here are fond of the Watkins family, and they are especially fond of the Doctor.

W. H. SAUNDERS.

HOW IT WAS DONE AT TUPELO, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We began our Centenary Drive with a banquet Friday evening, when we had the prettiest decorations and best "eats" I ever saw in my life. We had Conference Director, D. H. Hall, and G. L. Jones, of New Albany, with us.

We had a great service at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, in charge of Brother S. J. High, church director; and at 1 o'clock the drive began with fourteen teams. At 7 o'clock, they met at the church and reported; with an allotment of $20,000, they had raised $42,777.50, with more to see. We will reach $45,000 in a day or so. Aberdeen District will go "over the top" nearly twice, it seems now. Brother W. T. Reeves and Brother T. H. Lipscomb have worked incessantly for weeks and months, and the effort has told. In my own church, here, I am indebted to the services of many, but especially to Brother S. J. High, who gave his full time to it, and, besides, led with a subscription of $5000. We believe it has blessed us to do our part in this great call.

O. W. BRADLEY.

P. S.—The first eleven churches of district reporting showed $76,000 subscription on a $42,000 quota.

"O LORD, REVIVE THY WORK."

This should be the earnest prayer of the Church now more than at any time in all the past, because there is more to be gained in the salvation of the world at this time by a genuine work of grace throughout the Church than at any time in the history of the human race. It is also true that if the Church fails in meeting the necessary conditions to bring about a general revival at the present, it means a loss to the cause of Christianity that will never be regained. These facts are so prominent that they should cause praying people everywhere to cry daily to our Heavenly Father for a revival of pure and undefiled religion.

Whatever else we may need, I am sure this is our main need above everything else that is now before us. This is the only solution to our financial problems. As one of the results of a genuine revival, the thirty-five million dollars now being called for would easily come as a little thank-offering. As an illustration of this, I will refer to a great revival recently with Rev. J. H. Rogers, our pastor of Kingston Station, East Oklahoma Conference. The ingathering from the outside was not large, as most of the people held membership in some denomination. But it was one of the best real spiritual revivals in the church life of our people I ever witnessed. The meeting continued three weeks without a single dull service. At the conclusion of a sermon on "Tithing," the larger per cent of the main membership signed cards agreeing to pay the tenth of their income in the future to the cause of Christianity.

Brother Rogers, who came here from North Mississippi, is doing a fine work, and is much beloved by his people. I came next to Stonewall, Okla., where I am at present engaged in what promises to be a great meeting, with Brother Holland, the pastor, and his people.

After closing here, I shall return to my home at Corinth, Miss., and could accept a date to assist some pastor in a revival meeting in June.

Coca-Cola

Why Coca-Cola is so refreshing

The refreshing quality of Coca-Cola, which has made it a favorite with the millions, is the result of three factors which are entirely natural and wholesome.

First—Coca-Cola is prepared with cold, carbonated water, which alone is quite refreshing.

Second—Coca-Cola contains natural fruit flavorings, which, with pure sugar, are very refreshing.

Third—Coca-Cola contains a purified extract from tea, called caffein, which is both wholesome and refreshing.

Coca-Cola may therefore be described as "a cold, carbonated, fruit-flavored improvement upon tea, of approximately one-fourth the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

Coca-Cola is entirely wholesome, delicious and refreshing.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

On May 17, I had the good fortune to be with the people at Beulah, on the Coalville charge. I was glad to be there. They are doing a fine work. They have a Wesley Bible Class that is doing excellent work. Sunday they had their Sunday School Day exercises and they were fine. This did not interfere with their drive as they went way over what had been alloted them. Several agreed to take the Teacher-training Course and a set of books was bought.

Sunday morning was spent at Coalville. I think that Coalville will by now have met its allotment.

Monday morning was spent at Red Lake. I can report the finest fish I have had in a long time. I can also say that it won't be long before there will be a thriving Sunday school at Red Lake.

Both Beulah and Coalville signed the Centenary Allotment for the Sunday school.

Wednesday was spent at Whitworth College. Dr. Cooper is the host par excellent. Seven of his graduates will also receive Teacher-training diplomas. I am so glad. His Bible Course is very strong. I had the good fortune to read an examination paper and it was fine.

Brother Lewis was just on the verge of going over the top when I left Wednesday night. I had the privilege of speaking to his workers at prayer service.

I hope some of the schools are going to work for the Sunday School Day banners.

Pray for the work and the workers.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Up to the 22d of this month, 10 schools in the Aberdeen District accepted the Five-Cent Allotment; 11 in the Columbus; 24 in the Corinth; 12 in the Durant; 14 in the Greenville; 40 in the Holly Springs; 22 in the Sardis; 10 in the Winona; total 133. We are not through with the job; we have just made a good beginning. We need all sorts of education, but we need missionary education most of all.

The Big Drive is over, the money has been pledged to extend the Kingdom of God, but let us remember that money only pays the expense of the consecrated person that is to do the work. Money is important; but the life filled with Christ, the life taught in the deep things of God and made acquainted with the mysteries of human nature, is the one thing that God is looking for. It is in the Sunday school that life is touched when the touch counts for much. Not many men will occupy our pulpits, not a large number will teach, but very few great and good women will answer the call of God who have not been touched by some Sunday school teacher.

That leads us up to this important matter: We must make teachers, teachers that know God, teachers that are flaming evangels, teachers that will present Christ in such a way that he will be accepted. So then the preacher that is making teachers is helping to make a new world, he is doing most to make the Kingdom of God come in power. Let us get down to hed-rock principles. Let us make teachers.

Any preacher or superintendent or teacher or any one that desires to become a leader, write to me and it may he I can help such to attend the greatest training school for Christian workers that is on the American continent; that school is Lake Junaluska, N. C. We must get not less than one hundred of our men and women to attend this school of the prophets this summer. Write me your wishes and let me see if I cannot help you. The school begins July 23 and continues to August 6. The expenses need not be more than $60 for the entire trip.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

All the schools of the Louisiana Conference must have a day of rejoicing for the great Centenary of missions. We are counting on your school being 100 per cent on Centenary.

Do you want to he one of the schools in the Conference to make point 4 in the Standard of Efficiency? You can make that hy putting on the Membership Campaign as requested by the General Sunday School Board.

Every loyal Methodist should be ready now soon to observe Sunday School Day. Have you held yours? The Centenary will help us to make a good program and a liheral offering. Make returns to Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, Treasurer, Alexandria, La.

The Field Secretary will spend all the week in the Lafayette District working up to the Institute in District conference. The District Sunday School officers will be elected at this meeting at Lake Charles on the 28th of May.

Remember to care for their feet. The Government supplied the troops with 1,500,000 pounds of powder for the feet because it made the men more efficient. They could walk twice as far and be comfortable if they had some Allen's Foot-Ease in each shoe. Try it yourself and see what comfort you get from this standard remedy. A Famous Medicine

A visit to the laboratory at Lynn, Mass., where this successful remedy is made, impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually, and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation, which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

Letters from thousands of women who have been restored to health attest to the virtue of

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTES.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Church Extension, out of forty-two members, all were present save three. Bishop Joseph S. Key was detained at home on account of his advanced age, being now in his ninety-second year. Bishop H. C. Morrison was prevented from coming on account of the sickness of his wife, and Dr. W. W. Pinson, because of the illness of his sister. All others were present.

Dr. E. O. Watson and Dr. C. C. Selecman, with a number of the Conference Board representatives and other visitors, were present to attend the session of the Board.

Bishop E. E. Hoss and Bishop James H. McCoy, both members of the Board, have died during the last year.

The Secretary, Dr. H. A. Boaz, had everything in hand and the usual work of the Board was transacted in two days. Everything moved smoothly and much enthusiasm prevailed during the meeting.

The total number of applications for both donations and loans this year was 336, which is 100 less than last year; but the amounts asked for in donations for churches and parsonages was $294,449.19, which is $93,419.10 more than last year. The total amount asked for in loans was $500,750, which is an increase of $102,529 over the amount asked last year. This indicates that the houses of worship that are being built now are on a more expensive scale and more permanent in nature.

Applications for donations and loans amounted to almost twice as much as would be available within the next twelve months, under normal conditions. This accounts for the fact that many of the applications could not be granted in full. As it was, we anticipated largely the expected income from Centenary funds.

On account of certain complications, the Insurance Department was not authorized at this meeting of the Board. A committee was appointed, composed of Bishop W. F. McMurry, Bishop John M. Moore, Dr. J. A. Baylor, Judge Dorman Thompson and Dr. H. A. Boaz, to make further investigation of the work of the Insurance and to report, if need be, to the Executive Committee, which was given power to act, if found expedient.

Mr. James B. Duke of New York City was voted an expression of thanks for his fourth gift of $25,000 to the Board of Church Extension to be used in the State of North Carolina for Church Extension and Missions.

Advance ground was taken in the interest of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. At the request of Dr. R. S. Stout, the Secretary, Dr. H. A. Boaz, was authorized to handle for our colored brethren any Annuity funds that might be secured by Dr. R. S. Stout, secretary of the Church Extension department of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. It was also agreed that out of the Centenary funds there should be set aside a fund, $50,000 if need be, to cover dollar for dollar all moneys raised by the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in the establishment of a loan fund amounting to a total of $100,000.

NEED THIS SPRING

Of a Good Tonic Medicine, Nerve Builder and Blood Purifier

Is greater than ever before.

The nervous strain, worry and anxiety caused by the war,—

The debilitating effects of the terrible influenza, grip and pneumonia,—

The depletion of the blood by indoor life in Winter,—

Have tremendously overdrawn the reserve strength of nearly every man and woman.

This makes the favorite Spring medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, more of a necessity now than ever before.

For your impure, exhausted blood, and for that extreme tired feeling sure to come, prepare yourself now.

Today begin to recover your lost strength by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the standard Spring medicine and blood purifier, which creates a keen appetite, aids digestion and assimilation. Remember Hood's Pills if you need a mild laxative.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF.

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

A FINE PLAN.

The Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge issued invitations to the foreign students attending the State University to meet them for a social hour at the close of one of their regular meetings. Three Chinese, two Peruvians, three Brazillans, one Cuban, one Porto Rican, one Costa Rican and one Filipino was the gratifying response to this invitation.

These students represent the very best and wealthlest class of people of their several countries and give an opportunity at our very door of planting Christianity into lives which will, in a large measure, in the near future shape the ideals of their respective countries, as practically all of them return as teachers.

In addition to the members of the Society, the pastor, Rev. C. A. Battle, and some of the young men of the church were present to meet them. We were especially fortunate in being able to present to them one of our most talented and consecrated Christian women—Mrs. B. E. Eskridge, who delighted them so much with her music that they insisted that she play for them some of her own compositions.

This work is to be followed by invitations into the homes, that we may give them an opportunity to see something of the Christian homes of the missionaries' native land.

AFTER-WAR PROGRAM OF SOUTHERN CHURCHES.

The Southern Regional Conference of the Inter-Church World Movement, in recent session in Atlanta, adopted a statement of principles and plan of work for squaring Christian life with Christ's teaching seven days in the week. While keeping their distinctive organizations and methods, the churches are brigading themselves together for a great reconstruction army, in which each branch of the service shall co-operate to the common end of Christianizing the social order.

Democracy the Answer.

The Atlanta platform was adopted by a vote of 80 to 7, all Southern States and churches being represented. It recognizes the new consciousness among all people "of their common human rights," and the consequent intensifying of the world's racial problems; and that "a thorough-going democracy is the only answer to this universal cry; democracy, which, to be thorough-going, must be Christian." It must "open the door of opportunity to every workman," and must "lead every child to its highest mental and moral development.

Must Begin at Home.

Specifically, "the world task should begin with intelligent community co-operation. Community committees of men and women from all the churches are to be formed, like those already at work in Norfolk, Louisville, Atlanta, and some 40 other cities, which shall work to better the entire life of the community. This includes Negro life; and the committees are to meet with local Negro leaders from time to time for consultation and co-operation.

The Negro the Touchstone.

Since "the supreme test of Christian democracy is the attitude of the strong toward the weak....the Christian churches must accept responsibility for the weaker race." To this end four specific obligations are "accepted frankly and gladly:"

1. The securing of "full justice to the Negro....in our entire legal procedure." This includes an end to lynching "as treason against our government and a criminal violation of the rights of citizens."

2. Housing and sanitary provisions for Negroes being "far below the standard necessary for wholesome living," the churches must "lead the way to right this wrong."

3. In public travel it is Christian duty to secure for Negroes "as courteous treatment, as safe and comfortable provision, as for whites."

4. Education being fundamental to democratic and Christian progress, the platform calls for "more thorough, intelligent and liberal provision for Negro education."

It is a hopeful day for Christianity and for enduring peace when Christian people begin to study local duties in the light of world needs.—Southern Publicity Committee.

THE CALL OF THE HOME BASE FOR 1919.

1. Rally the Membership.

Membership slogan: Every woman in our church a member of the Missionary Society.

Let the members set themselves to the task of bringing into the missionary society for a larger and more enthusiatic service, these women of the church with whom they have worked in the Red Cross. There is a band of union that did not exist before and they may not again, unless the present opportunity is grasped. It is within our power now as it may never be again to make the claims of the missionary society so compelling that these women cannot escape them, so attractive that they cannot resist. Let us take advantage of the God-given opportunity.

2. Renewed Spiritual Power.

Each meeting should be a season of refreshing from God's presence because of the thoughtful study of God's Word and a period of earnest prayer. Every woman should more nearly understand God's will for herself and the world and more truly consecrate herself to doing that will because of the meeting.

3. Increased Intelligence.

There should be increased intelligence regarding the missionary cause by reason of well-planned, attractively presented programs and enthusiastic mission study classes.

4. Enlarged Gifts.

The financial goal should be: Full dues paid monthly and liberal pledges amounting to at least a 15 per cent increase over last year.

SCHOOL FARMS.

One of the new missionary projects launched at the last meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council was the establishment of farm schools for neglected boys and girls. Three tracts of land of five hundred acres each, located in Southern and Northwestern Georgia and in Middle Tennessee, have been given by two wealthy men upon which to establish these schools. The Chairman of the Laymen's Movement of Mississippi has also assured the women that when they are ready for the establishment of an institution the laymen will gladly make a gift of land in that section. Louisiana is also urging a Farm School for that State.

With hope that the Centenary offerings will be adequate to make possible at least two of these institutions during the present year, definite plans are being made to begin the enterprise. It is hoped that four may be opened during the present quadrennium. The plan is to meet the needs of the boys and girls of both races who are uncared for. It is found in a number of States in the South that young offenders coming before the judge must either be turned over to a probation officer or placed in reformatories, jails or penitentiaries with older and hardened criminals. Two of the schools out of the four will be for white children and two for Negro children. They are to be both agricultural and industrial. The boys are to be taught road making, concrete and brick work, as well as many other industries that appeal to all men who must be wage-earners.

METHODIST DORMITORIES.

The women of Texas, in co-operation with the Council, are planning for the erection of a dormitory for Methodist women at the State University in Austin. A lot has been bought and $100,000 contributed for that purpose.

At the University of Oklahoma another dormitory is to be erected, $85,000 having been contributed for that purpose.

WESLEY HOUSE, BILOXI, MISS.

To the Women of Mississippi:

The Wesley House at Biloxi is still in existence, but it is in need of your assistance. The old clothes closet, upon which our sewing school is dependent, is bare. There are calls every week for old clothes.

We are also greatly in need of dresser scarfs, doilies, centerpieces, etc.

How much the little ones in the nursery would appreciate some toys!

Yours sincerely,

Biloxi, Miss. LOIS TINSLEY.

If evil is personified in Satan, good is personified in Christ. If the personification of evil is to be conquered, he must be conquered by the personification of goodness. Christ and his cleansing blood, Christ and the grace of his Spirit and his sacraments, Christ and the virtues which he creates in man are more than a match for evil, whether in the devil or in the world, whether in ourselves or in others.—H. Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

A NOTE FROM THE WORK.

Dear Mr. Editor: First, let me speak a few words in appreciation of our splendid pastor, Rev. D. C. Foust. Everybody is highly pleased with him and his good wife; they couldn't be otherwise, for any charge should be glad to have them in their midst. Brother Foust's sermons are strong and forceful, and are enjoyed exceedingly by his congregations.

Sunday school is beginning to revive again slowly but, I think, surely. The hardest problem now is getting the people interested; many are so indifferent.

Mr. R. E. DeBerry was appointed as chairman of the Centenary Drive for Marvin. He has appointed a team of helpers. They met Sunday afternoon, May 18, to get busy.

Yes, he's calling, and oh, let us hear him!
It's Christ this sad world needs;
And they'll surely have peace and victory
Who follow wherever he leads.

So let's come to the help of our Master.
Let our wills with his accord;
As we "are doing our bit" for our country,
Oh, let's do our best for our Lord.

Yours for the Centenary.

MISSISSIPIANS IN ARKANSAS.

By Rev. Geo. P. Fikes.

Dear Brother Carley: There are getting to be many Mississippians over here, and most of them are making good. Our worthy Governor, Charles H. Brough, is from Mississippi, and some years ago was in charge for quite a while of Clinton College, that great institution over there for the Baptist Church; and he is, indeed, a great governor. My associate pastor, Rev. T. Y. Ramsey, was many years in the North Mississippi Conference. Prof. J. M. Williams, of Galloway College, is from Mississippi. He was elected a few weeks ago for the thirteenth term president of this great college. Some years ago our beloved Bishop Galloway came here and started this college for girls; it has grown until today it is one among the greatest of its kind, in our conviction. Its hundred thousand dollar dormitory (fireproof) is about completed. The two commissioners, Rev. J. H. O'Bryant and J. J. Galloway, are men in the right place working for its success.

This is a great State for Methodism. A bright future is ahead for great success for our Church in these parts, as I see it. This is my second year here in West Searcy, and bids fair to be the greatest of the past. We are well organized for the "Big Drive" next week for our Missionary Centenary. We are expecting to put our part over. No one can afford to do less than that, it seems to me.

Brother Carley, I wish you were over here to see and eat strawberries with me; on this section strawberries are one of the chief money crops. They are shipping them out to the northern markets by the car loads every day. They bring a fine price. I have one member of my congregation who cleared about nine thousand dollars last year on a small farm of them.

The Advocate has been coming weekly to our home for about fifteen years. We appreciate it. You are giving us a great paper. Blessings upon you and its readers.

PRENTISS CHARGE AND THE CENTENARY.

Dear Brother Carley: Just a few words in reference to the Prentiss charge.

This makes our fourth year on this charge, and it is the third charge we have served for four years.

At the Mississippi Conference last winter, when it was moved to make our Centenary quota one million dollars, I voted in favor of it. When I received the quota for the Prentiss charge and whispered the amount to some of my leaders, we all said it could not be done. But after much prayer and fasting on the subject, I came to the conclusion that it must be done. My laymen got interested and they decided that it could be done.

The plan of the Centenary was followed almost to the letter. We preached on Intercessory Prayer during the month of January, and about one hundred and twenty-five of our members signed the prayer pledge. We spent the month of February on the subject of stewardship, and urged our people to get into the habit of tithing their income unto the Lord through the Church channels. The month of March was spent on the subject of the Purpose of the Centenary; April, on Life Service.

Our three-minute men did most excellent service every Sunday, giving to the public some important phase of the Centenary.

We sent out two pastoral letters on the subject, mailing with those letters several tracts and pamphlets. The first letter was mailed out to the membership in the beginning of the year, and the other was sent out a few days before the Drive. Our county paper was very generous in giving us all the space we wanted to boost the Centenary, and we didn't fail to use it.

Our churches were thoroughly organized, and when the Drive was put on it only took a few hours to complete the work. The results are as follows:

	Assessed.	Subscribed
Prentiss	$2500	$4287
Carson	990	1225
Bassfield	1700	1970
Mt. Zion	990	1000
Total	$6180	$8482

I believe I have the best laymen in the Mississippi Conference or anywhere else to work with. They are consecrated, loyal, and true to their pastor and Church. Such men as Livingston, Terrell, Russell, Holloway, McGehee, Laird, Blount, the Carraways and others are jewels in any church. May God bless them. We owe all the success to prayer and the perfect team work of our faithful laymen.

I feel that we are just entering into a great era, not only for Methodists, but for all the Christian bodies.

Your brother,
Prentiss, Miss. JAS. M. LEWIS.

Ugh! Calomel Makes You Deathly Sick

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you!
It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't straighten you right up better than calomel and without gripping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

Catarrh is a Real Enemy and Requires Vigorous Treatment

Do Not Neglect It.

When you use medicated sprays, atomizers and douches for your Catarrh, you may succeed in unstopping the choked-up air passages for the time being, but this annoying condition returns, and you have to do the same thing over and over again.

Catarrh has never yet been cured by these local applications. Have you ever experienced any real benefit from such treatment?

Throw these makeshift remedies to the winds, and get on the right treatment. Go to your drug store to-day, get a bottle of S. S. S., and commence a treatment that has been praised by sufferers for nearly half a century.

S. S. S. gets right at the source of Catarrh, and forces from the blood the germs which cause the disease. You can obtain special medical advice regarding your own case without charge by writing to Medical Director, 22 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

NERVOUS DISEASES

We have reprinted from a leading Health Magazine a series of articles by Dr. Biggs, treating on Nervous Debility, Melancholia, all forms of Neurasthenia, Nervous Dyspepsia, and other nervous diseases. The articles explain the cause of these ailments and fully describe the treatment employed at the Biggs Sanitarium in such cases.

Mother, Why Don't You Take Nuxated Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?—The Doctor Gave Some to Susie Smith's Mother and She Was Worse Off Than You Are and Now She Looks Just Fine

The Childs' Appeal

Any Woman who Tires Easily is Irritable, Nervous and Run-Down, Should Take Nuxated Iron to Help Increase Her Health, Strength and Vitality.

"There can be no strong, healthy, beautiful, rosy-cheeked women, without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York physician and Medical Author. "I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of an anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags, and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks.

What Is Your Answer?

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss. Therefore you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form and this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate, or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents.

The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas, not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE DANGER OF REACTION.

Always after a period of unusual activity there is a tendency to slip back into a state of more than usual inaction. This is a perfectly natural result of intensified and sustained effort; but it carries with it a real danger. Relaxation is necessary for the renewal of nervous energy, but when relaxation swings to the extreme of reaction, it is a difficult thing to regain the state of normal activity. This is true in physical, mental, and spiritual work, and we need always to be on our guard lest we lose even more than we have gained. When we stop to rest, we ought to "dig in."

A RARE SPECIES.

In our boyhood days, being greatly enamored of the study of natural history, we came across many interesting facts concerning birds and animals. We remember, for example, the wonder with which we looked upon a picture of the duckbill platypus; and that wonder grew as we read of this strange creature that has a bill like a duck, fur like a beaver, walks on four feet, and lays eggs. We remember, also, the regret we felt when we learned that the great auk was extinct, and that the wild pigeon, which our grandparents had seen by the millions, had disappeared. But as we grew older, our interest was transferred largely to the study of the human species; and we have stumbled upon many striking phenomena as we have pursued that study. At present, we are engaged in trying to discover specimens of what seems to be, at best, a rare species—a man who knows what money is actually worth. We have not given up the search—and we do not intend to do so—but our efforts are not meeting with encouraging success. We know plenty of people who want money, and a good many who have it. The result of our investigation thus far seems to indicate that the whole world thinks that money is worth everything else in the world. "Business" is the big word of the day; "profit" is the goal of endeavor; "commercial prosperity," and "trade expansion" are terms to juggle with. Life is measured in terms of dollars and character is conditioned by coin. There was One a long time ago who put the soul above all else; but a transposition seems to have taken place in the thought of the world. We do not say that it is so—we hope that it is not—we merely record our impression. In the meantime, we continue our search for specimens of this rare species.

ONE OR THE OTHER.

The Germans have not yet signed the peace treaty, and they solemnly protest that they cannot do so. They seem to be unable to realize that they lost the right to dictate terms of settlement when they lost the war. They will sign the treaty—at Versailles or at Berlin; one place is about as good as another. The convicted criminal is not usually allowed to argue with the judge as to the nature of the penalty to be inflicted.

WHAT DO WE THINK THEY ARE WORTH?

There is a movement developing throughout the country in favor of paying school teachers a living salary. This movement seems to have arisen, not because the public conscience has become aroused, or because the teachers themselves have arbitrarily demanded better pay, but because so many teachers have given up their positions to enter more remunerative employment that it has become more or less difficult to supply our schools with the requisite number of instructors. This shortage of teachers has led the public to make some investigations on its own account, and it has discovered, apparently with surprise, that our public school teachers are being paid less than the average day laborer is able to earn. With all this, however, the chief concern is not to see that the teacher receives adequate compensation for his work, but to be sure that there will be somebody on hand to instruct the children when they appear at the schoolhouse. In other words, the average citizen seems to want quantity rather than quality in the work of education, and he wants to get that quantity at the least cost possible. We do not hesitate to say that the American people have been playing at the work of education if their interest in it is to be measured by what they have been willing to pay for it in the past. We read a statement recently to the effect that the average salary of a public school teacher in the United States is less than $700 a year. We submit that such an amount is poor compensation for even the most menial kind of labor—it is pitifully inadequate for the support of those who are engaged in the supremely important work of teaching our boys and girls. It is only when we think of our children as of no more worth than chickens and pigs and calves that we can be content with any such state of affairs. What are our children worth, anyway?

CLEAN HORSE RACING AGAIN.

Readers of New Orleans newspapers have probably been more or less interested in recent revelations concerning the management of the Business Men's Racing Association, an organization which has publicly professed to be committed to the maintenance of clean racing in New Orleans. We have previously had occasion to refer to numerous and persistent reports of "crookedness" at the tracks during the racing season just closed; this recent upheaval in the management of the Association itself seems to bear out all that has gone before. Horse racing and gambling are indissolubly connected; gambling, being evil itself, is the breeder of many other kinds of wickedness; cleanness cannot come out of an unclean thing. Ergo, clean racing is a contradiction in terms. We are hoping that sufficient pressure will be brought to bear upon these "business men" of New Orleans to make them realize that they are engaged in an impossible task.

MILITANT MORALITY.

We might as well realize once for all that morality will have to fight to win and maintain its victories in the world. Academic abstractions and theological theorizings are well enough in their places; but practical planning will have to follow discussion if we are to overthrow evil and enthrone righteousness. The enemies of the good seem never to sleep. We thought the brutal business of prize fighting had been outlawed in this land—but the "championship of the world" is to be decided in Ohio at an early date; horse racing as an institution had practically been abolished in this country—but the daily newspapers give reports from various tracks regularly; vice districts in the great cities had been suppressed by the strong arm of the Government during the war—but press reports indicate deplorable conditions in these same cities to-day; the liquor traffic has been prohibited by constitutional amendment—but there is a determined effort to render the amendment ineffective. The moral sentiment of communities, States, and the whole nation is outraged every day by performances under the auspices of those who regard neither God nor man when their own pleasure is involved. Good men who would stand for the right are caricatured, and organizations that would promote righteousness are denounced as venal and villainous. This is no time for the proponents of public morality to be timorous. The right is on their side, and they can afford to fight; and they must fight if they would maintain the victories they have already won. A militant morality is a necessity for this age.

THEY WILL APPRECIATE IT.

Congress seems to be worried about prohibition legislation. The representatives of the people are in great fear that they will do something that will not meet the approval of their constituents—and all of them probably want to stay in Washington as long as possible. A "letter from home" has great weight with a "public servant." If all those who are in favor of prohibition would write a letter to their senators and congressmen to that effect, they would be helping a good cause—and, doubtless, the said senators and congressmen would appreciate an expression of opinion that would help them make up their minds as to the proper course to pursue.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

There is a strong agitation in favor of the repeal of the daylight saving law by Congress. We have tested the law carefully since its enactment and have not been able to discover that it accomplishes what it was supposed to do—its chief effect in our case has been to add an hour or two to each days's labors. Perhaps, though, we could not have finished our tasks without the extra time; but the repeal of the law will not lighten our work. We are still undecided whether it is better to save daylight or to lose sleep. Really busy men, however, will still have plenty to do, law or no law.

A PRAYER.

"The Lord preserve thy going out."
The Lord preserve thy coming in.
God send His angels round about,
To keep thy soul from sin.

And when thy going out is done,
And when thy coming in is o'er,
When in death's darkness all alone,
Thy feet can come and go no more,

The Lord preserve thy going out,
From this dark world of grief and sin,
While angels standing round about Sing "God preserve thy coming in."

—Bishop Thomas.

GETTING THE BEST OUT OF A BOY.

A great many people have little use for boys. They are sure the boys of to-day are different from the boys of a generation ago, and the difference is all in favor of the dead ones. They have boys of their own, and their neighbors have boys; and they hardly know which are the worse; but they are sure that both are a sore trial to a man who wants to lead a good and quiet life. They don't know much about demon possession of the long-ago, but they are sure that if ever the devil was in any one, he certainly is in the boys in their neighborhood. One man blames the schools, another blames the neighborhood, and another thinks the whole trouble arises from the fact that the boys have not been "licked into shape." But certainly the boys are a sore trial to godly men. And (whisper it softly) the very preacher is sure that the devil's in the boys. Do you seek proof of it?—then see how they carry on even in church. They laugh when they ought to weep; they utterly refuse to be still; they shun prayer-meeting like the plague, while they will travel miles to see a ball game; they will get into a thousand scrapes and then lie themselves out of it; they will turn up 100 per cent at a good supper and barely 10 per cent at a lecture or sermon. Surely, the boys are bad, wholly and continually bad, and unless the Lord works a miracle we shudder to think of what lies ahead of them.

When we think of the subject we recall Christ's words to Philip, "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip?" Philip really did not know the Lord, and many a good man to-day does not know the boys who have been with him for fifteen years. He doesn't know them, and so he blunders, and sometimes the consequences are tragic. The boy needs a friend who can understand him, and too often when he asks for bread we give him a stone; when he seeks sympathy he finds only condemnation. We find few people who really understand boy nature, but very many who think they know all about it, and the latter class is sadly averse to learning anything, and we can only follow Isaiah's plan of line upon line, and precept upon precept, here a little and there a little.

How can we get the best out of a boy? We must first believe that there is a best there. The man who has no faith in boys had better leave them alone until he gets a new vision. But in trying to get the best out of boys, we need to have a very clear idea of what that best is. To many men religion is a very solemn and stirring thing, and they expect that a boy's best will be something like a good, quiet, sin-burning sermon or even occasion, church and funerals. But what's an ox plow the six week days. A boy's best isn't for parade, but for service, and it isn't so much in talk as in work. And you can never get it out of him until you reach his heart. A boy's heart isn't for sale. It can't be bought with either money or "taffy," and it seems to have an almost uncanny knack of detecting insincerity. But if you are in earnest, if you really love the boy, if you really believe in him, if you really are what you profess to be, and if you help your work to his, you can get the boy's loyalty to-day and forever.

And it is surprising what a boy's best really means. Measured by ancient churchly standards it may seem of small account, but measured by the standards of humanity and self-sacrifice it makes us stand and wonder. The loyalty of a boy to his friend is unstinted and sincere, and will hesitate at no sacrifice. But the boy still remains a boy, with all a boy's dislike of coercion and all a boy's natural revolt against anything like compulsion. The boy's leader must lead, not drive. But with a real leader wise, boy-loving and boy-like, full of the spirit of Christ and the spirit of humanity, the boy will prove one of the choicest treasures of the Church and of the world.—Christian Guardian.

DR. S. EARL TAYLOR.
Director General of the Methodist Centenary Celebration.

At head of the whole tremendous scheme, Dr. Taylor has enlisted the support of thousands of Methodist men, women and children to make the Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, June 20 to July 13, the greatest gathering of its kind in the world, a success. Dr. Taylor is also the head of the Interchurch World Movement.

THE AFTERMATH.

By S. Curtis Yates.

The Centenary hour has struck. The tones are passing away like the fleeting chimes of cathedral bells. With the hour the voice of God spoke, the orchestral notes of heaven mingled with the passing echoes. The hour is forever past: it is an historical event.

The Centenary movement was inevitable, irresistible. A train of major events told its coming—prepared the way. To oppose it was to challenge the onrushing avalanche, for, like every great event when its hour is struck, the movement rolled forward with a force mightier than kings and armies. It is the part of an infant to oppose an idea when its time has come to move. Like the foolish one essaying to sweep back the rising tides is he who resists the march of destiny.

The Church has experienced a re-creation. The evangelical programme projected through the Centenary of the most fruitful—the most daring scheme ever devised by Protestantism for Christianizing a depraved world. Surely the Church is coming into her own. A new ministry is here a ministry deep and real, but with hope and glorious with possibilities. She stands in the gray dawn of a new day that opens upon untold empires, clothed in brightness, awaiting the summons—yet shining hills and sun-kissed heights beyond mark her. "For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate" the Church from her own.

The great spiritual upheaval the Centenary has wrought—what a beautiful what a living fact from the most optimistic hope the world ever knew! There will never be such bereavement, so many broken hearts, so many hundred lives. War's hell has turned the earth and the rest and established old world ruts for comfort and support to the Church of God. In spite of the horrible cataclysm of war that has swept the world the Church's foundations are undisturbed, it stands unmoved. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Reverses and changes may come and go, but the Church is admittedly the greatest saving and leavening influence that ever came to earth—greater to-day than ever before. Its steeples will point the needy and the fallen to the skies when "the rank thistle shall nod and the wild fox dig his hole unscared" where rise the proudest capitals of the world.

What a happy thought that the Centenary has prepared the Church for the God-commissioned duty of ministering to prostrate mankind, of being good Samaritan to the wretched old world that is "left stripped, wounded, and half-dead." She now has oil and wine, and may pour into the gaping wounds the balm of His salvation."

Holcomb, Miss.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE METHODIST CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

The visitor who comes to the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, June 20 to July 13, will find himself suddenly transplanted into a large park of more than 100 acres, which has cost the State of Ohio millions of dollars to develop, with an immense oval in front of which is an amphitheater seating 50,000 people, the coliseum with a seating capacity of 8000 and eight exhibit building with a floor-space of 200,000 square feet, scattered over these exposition grounds.

The exhibits will come from every part of the world. Settings built under the personal direction of men who have just returned from the country represented are now in construction. Later, natives will begin to arrive, bringing their strange costumes, customs and industries. A true picture of the lives of those people is the aim of the directors of the Centenary.

A miniature Ganges river actually flowing through the India building is the center of queer heathen religious customs. Here are found Hindu Temple, Mohammedan mosque, and sacred monkey temple, filled with 12 chattering monkeys. Here, too, the sacred pigeons are fed every day, amid much ceremony, and a fakir on his bed of spikes proves to less stoical observers that his soul is above the trivial sufferings of this world.

An Indian bazaar, overflowing with silks, wrought metals, idols and flower shops, occupies a large part of the India building. Public letter-writer, sweetmeat seller, tooth-cleaner, beggars and curio-seller mingle with the crowds of sight-seers.

India village scene and Indian marriage procession, with the bridegroom riding an elephant, are included in the plans of Dr. Lewis E. Linzell of India, who is in Columbus to direct this building for the Centenary.

In an immense Kaffir kraal containing five full-sized huts and a cattle enclosure, 60 Ethiopians will be found working at various typical industries, as a part of the African exhibit. The desert life of northern Africa with Bedouin tents and Moorish town is pictured in another section of the African building. This exhibit is directed by T. C. Blackmore of Algeria, who is also directing a reproduction of early Roman civilization in the same building.

Another part of the African building is devoted to Roosevelt and Rainey motion pictures, episodes from the life of Dr. David Livingstone, lion hunts and Kaffir dances, the Uganda railway and African mission scenes. Other sections of Africa are fully represented in the large building which is under the direction of Dr. E. H. Richards, of Oberlin.

THE CELEBRATION'S GREAT COLISEUM.

The crowning glory of the exposition grounds, which will house the Methodist Centenary Celebration, June 20 to July 13, is the coliseum. This is a modern, fireproof structure, erected by the State of Ohio two years ago at a cost of a quarter million dollars. An additional $50,000 is being spent in preparing it for the Centenary Celebration. When completed it will have the largest stage in the United States. It will also have a seating capacity of 8000 persons, and, very important to the distinguished persons who will address multitudes at that place, acoustic properties second to no hall of the same size in America. A $50,000 organ is being installed in this coliseum to furnish a portion of the musical program of the Celebration.

The high gray walls of Kwang city confront the visitor at the entrance of the Chinese building. At the left is a farm scene; inside the walls are the principal exhibits, including a large Chinese restaurant open to the public; curio shop, money exchange, Confucian temple, typical Chinese homes, and a Methodist church such as is found in the Celestial republic.

Art, medical and educational exhibits revealing the progress of Christianity in that country form a part of the plans of Dr. John M. Gowdy of Fuchau, who with Y. C. Yong of the Chinese legation in Washington is directing this building.

Devastated France and Belgium are realistically represented in the European section, under the direction of Dr. E. M. Tipple, who has recently returned from abroad. The reproduction of a ruined French cathedral which seats 500 people will be used for lectures and motion picture views. Through the shell-shattered walls are seen the plains of Lombardy and ravaged Belgium.

Separate sections dealing with Russia, Scandinavia and the Balkans occupy a large share of the European building. Dr. G. B. Winton, Dr. W. H. Teeter, and S. A. Neblett are in charge of the South American, Cuban, and Mexican sections.

A Japanese garden with wishing bridge, lily pond, pergola and pavilion is being built for the Japan building by a Japanese expert gardener. A gold-mining scene and the famous Hiroshima kindergarten will also be reproduced in this section. Dr. E. R. Bull, formerly of Tokyo, is in charge of the Japan building. Exhibits from Korea, under Dr. W. G. Cram of Nashville, Tenn., from the Philippines under Dr. Harry Farmer of New York, and from Malaysia under Dr. J. R. Denyes of Pittsburgh will be held in the same building.

Two large administration buildings are devoted to scenes and exhibits from every corner of North America, under the direction of Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, of New York. Alaskan and Pueblo Indians, mountaineers, New York shop-keepers and California Japs will be found working at their various industries, and living in widely contrasting environments. A typical Southern plantation scene and a Mexican village will be picturesquely featured in this building. The purpose of these exhibits is to emphasize the work of the church in the diversified sections of the United States and Canada.

A machinery hall containing 40,000 square feet, will be filled with photographs, charts, books and miscellaneous exhibits from all countries represented in the exposition.

OUR CHURCH AND THE METHODIST CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

In issuing a challenge to their brethren of the North for an adequate celebration of the centennial anniversary of Methodist Missions in America, leaders of the M. E. Church, South, have in no wise failed to contribute their full quota of energy, enthusiasm and guidance in the project which is nearing its culmination in Columbus, Ohio, June 20 to July 13.

In the first place, the idea of holding a world-wide celebration on this occasion was originated, three years ago at Saratoga Springs, by Dr. W. W. Pinson, of Nashville, Tenn., General Secretary of the Mission Boards of the Church, South. Dr. Pinson is now chairman of the Joint Commission which is in charge of the huge church event in Columbus.

Dr. W. B. Beauchamp, of Nashville, is associate director general of the Joint Centenary Committee, acting with Dr. S. Earl Taylor, director general, and having full charge of the Southern Church's part in the world mission exposition. Dr. Beauchamp has given up temporarily all other church work to devote the whole of his time to the Centenary movement, in which he also acts as Centenary secretary of the Church, South.

The Joint Commission has as its vice chairman, John R. Pepper, of Nashville, prominent for many years in the Church, South. Other members of the body responsible for the success of the celebration who are of the Southern Church are Miss Belle Bennett, of Richmond, Ky., Bishop James Atkins, of Waynesville, N. C., Bishop John M. Moore, of Nashville, and Dr. Fitzgerald S. Parker, of Nashville, who is also secretary of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church, South.

In order to sustain enthusiasm among all members of Southern Methodism in the Centenary Celebration, Prof. R. D. Smart, of Nashville, has come to Columbus as special commissioner and general secretary. From Centenary headquarters on the very spot of the celebration, he sends out latest news to the Church, South, and keeps up constant communication between the two points.

Many of the pretentious exhibits portraying scenes and life pictures from all parts of the world are being directed and executed by members of the M. E. Church, South. Dr. W. G. Cram, of Nashville, is in charge of the Korean exhibition, which occupies a large share of the Japan building. He is assisted by Miss Anna Irwin, also of the Church, South. Mrs. R. W. McDonell, of Nashville, is associate director with Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer of the two large American buildings devoted to home mission exhibitions.

Mountaineer life, a realistic and forceful feature of the American exhibit, is in charge of C. H. Trowbridge, of Brevard, N. C., and E. A. Bishop, of Sevierville, Tenn. New Mexico and the Southwest, with typical plaza scenes and picturesque setting is largely directed by a Church, South, man, J. A. Phillips, of Roswell, N. M. Assisting in Mexican exhibits is Miss N. E. Wynn, of Chihuahua, Mexico. C. A. Long, of Brazil, a representative of the Church, South, is directing the Brazilian exhibits, and J. H. Blackburn, of Oklahoma City, is in charge of the Pueblo Indians who will bring their curios and industries to the big Methodist exposition.

WHY COLUMBUS?

What brought the Methodist Centenary Celebration to Columbus, June 20 to July 13, is the question in the minds of a great many Methodists and non-Methodists throughout the United States and elsewhere.

When H. B. Dickson was chosen organizing director of the Celebration by the Joint Commission of the Methodist Church, South, and the Methodist Church, North, he immediately set about to find the most suitable place for the greatest event of its kind ever held—a city which would care for the 250,000 persons who would come to this gathering and one which was so located that it could be most easily reached by the people most concerned.

Mr. Dickson made a tour of a number of the principal cities of the United States, including Washington, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, and others of that class. He came back by way of Detroit, where he received instructions to go over the same territory again, stopping at cities that had not been visited before. On the way, Mr. Dickson stopped at Indianapolis. Indianapolis tried to sell him by showing him the Indiana State Fair Grounds. This gave Mr. Dickson an idea, but he was not convinced on location. Previously, he had not considered the possibility of utilizing buildings such as constitute the equipment of a State fair grounds.

Next he came to Columbus. Mr. Dickson was shown the State fair grounds, or State exposition grounds, and he was captivated at once. There is nothing like these accommodations anywhere in the United States he said, but this was not enough to sell the proposition to the combined board of dignitaries of the two churches most interested. Then it was up to him to get an argument that would sell the bishops, district superintendents, and others in authority in the churches.

Mr. Dickson began to draw circles around the cities of any size in the United States, to find out where the Methodists were. In this way, he discovered that there were more Methodist churches with 1000 members and over in the city of Columbus than in any other city in the world. He also found that there were 100,000 Methodists living within two hours' ride of the city of Columbus; and more than 1,000,000 within a three-hour ride of the city: 3,000,000 Methodists within an over-night ride of the city.

With reference to the Methodist Church, South, it was discovered that there was no city the size of Columbus, even including Baltimore, Washington, and Cincinnati, within an equally convenient railroad distance to as large a proportion of their membership as Columbus.

These facts laid before the Joint Centenary Commission settled all arguments and determined definitely on Columbus as the site for Methodist Centenary Celebration in June and July.

SPECIAL DAYS.

Each of the twenty-four days of the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, June 20 to July 13, will be a special feature day. From Opening Day to Consecration Day, patriotism, church organization, and agriculture will all have place on the program.

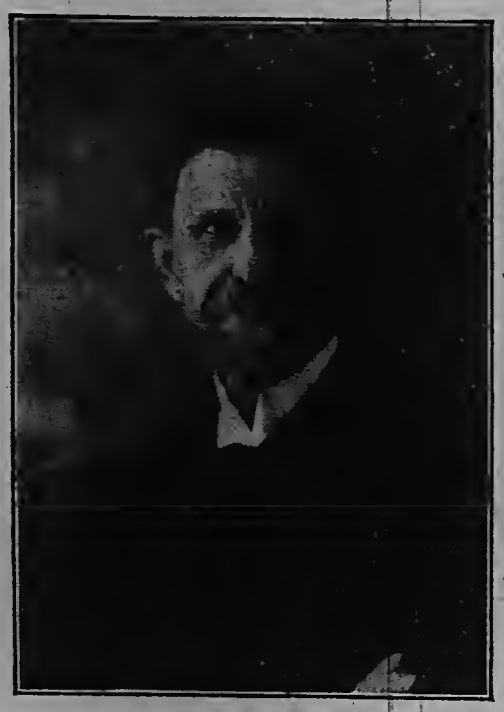
America Day, July 4, will feature a tremendous Patriotic Pageant on the Great Oval, in which thousands of costumed men, women and children will participate.

On July 1, the day when the entire nation is to go dry, Temperance Day will be observed at the Celebration. As this is one of the biggest events in the life of the nation, as well as of religious organizations, it will hold a place of dual importance in the Centenary Celebration.

Another day has been set apart for the Minute Men, that body of thousands of the ablest men of the country who have been talking up the Centenary in every State in the Union.

Ohio Day, Stewardship Day, Africa Day, Women's Day, City Day, Epworth League Day, Sunday School Day, Labor Day, Bible Day, Allies' Day, Centenary Day, Peace Day, Enlistment Day, Eastern Asia Day, Southern Asia Day and Farmers' Day are among the items of special interest which are being planned.

The greatest men in the national life of the world are to be heard on these occasions. President Wilson, Ex-President W. H. Taft, Major-General Leonard Wood, Secretary Josephus Daniels, W. J. Bryan, Premier David Lloyd George, Dr. John H. Howett, Governor Henry J. Allen and General Pershing are being commandeered for these big events, as well as other governors of States, mayors of cities, bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North and South, and eminent educators and lecturers known throughout the world.



REV. W. W. PINSON, D.D.,
Secretary of the Board of Missions,
M. E. Church, South.

Dr. Pinson is the man who conceived the Centenary idea, and he is Associate Director General for the Celebration.

REGISTER EARLY.

The one plea of Mr. H. B. Dickson, organizing secretary of the Methodist Centenary, to Methodists, North, South, East and West, is that they register early. The registration fee is $5 for an individual, or $10 for a family, including all members under 21. Registration covers admission to the Exposition Grounds each day of the Celebration, June 20 to July 13, and it also secures the services of the Methodist Celebration Housing Committee in securing lodging for those who are not in position to make arrangements for themselves.

The Celebration headquarters has put in an organization many times larger than the largest hotel in the United States, which is already busily engaged in making reservations for those who are not acquainted with Columbus.

"There is no use mincing matters," says Mr. Dickson. "Those who register earliest will get the best services and best accommodations. We are trying to provide for an 11th-hour rush, but it is never so satisfactory to work under those conditions as when people take matters in their hands early enough to get good attention. If the Methodists who are coming to Columbus will register early, we are perfectly safe in promising every one adequate accommodations."

Finishing details are being placed on the arrangements for the erection of the largest screen for the projection of pictures ever built in the world. This is to be one of the features of the Methodist Centenary Celebration to be held in Columbus, June 20 to July 13.

This monstrous screen will have a surface for pictures 115 x 115 feet. The actual structure will be several feet larger in each direction. A special lantern has been successfully devised for throwing these tremendous pictures the necessary distance. The screen will be 250 feet from the nearest spectaor and will have a resistence to withstand 40 pounds pressure to the square foot. The lantern which will project these pictures has already successfully thrown pictures on a screen in New York City across a distance of four and a half city blocks. According to Architect Harry C. Holbrook, the monstrous screen will be, in effect, three sides of a house. It is necessary to give it the foundations equivalent to a four-story building.

In order that there may be as much salvage as possible after the screen has served its purpose, the picture face will be of fitted lumber which later will be treated with a white surface preparation. The braces, which will be the second and third sides of the structure, will be of heaviest bolted stays.

The estimated cost of this screen will be $8000. The screen and the lantern will be used in showing the tens of thousands of views all over the world by the Methodist Missionary Survey which has the finest collection of pictorial reviews anywhere in the world.

Accompanying the monster lantern and its screen, will be a voice magnifying device which will permit the lecturer to speak to and be understood by a crowd of 50,000 persons in the open air.

THE TROMBONE CHOIR.

One of the minor triumphs of the Methodist Centenary Celebration will be the vested trombone choir of 100 performers who will be heard daily during the Celebration, June 20 to July 13. The triumph comes in the fact that the idea of a large band of trombone players orlginated with H. B. Dickson several years ago, when visiting among the Moravians in Eastern Pennsylvania. He met a little encouragement among a few ardent trombone players, but, for the most part, band men discouraged it altogether.

H. B. DICKSON.

As Organizing Secretary of the Methodist Centenary Celebration, to take place in Columbus, Ohio, June 20 to July 13, Mr. Dickson has been the "man behind the gun." In co-ordinating matters for the Celebration, he has organized the whole—Church, North, and Church, South—with committees working in practically every Methodist church in the country. He has also over 75,000 Minute Men scattered in the Methodist churches throughout the United States who are boosting the Celebration.

To Mr. Dickson, the outstanding appeal lay in the fact that a completely organized trombone choir never had been gotten together in this country. It was for this organization that the soprano trumpet, as it is known, was resurrected, being almost unknown among musicians. Hector Berlioz had written for it 100 years ago, but from that day to this both the instrument and the music suited for it were unknown quantities, and both had to be provided for the trombone choir. The same was true of the double bass.

When the right and left wings of this musical army were finally in position, supporting the center, the results were a revelation to musicians everywhere, and their comment changed almost instantly from frank skepticism to ardent enthusiasm.

No musical composition of known standing had ever been scored for complete expression by trombones, and from the very outset, providing a program was beset with difficulties. In the end, however, Ohio came to the rescue, as it did in many other features of the Centenary Celebration. Hermann Bellstedt, of Cincinnati, one of the best known bandmasters of America, not only has arranged many well known scores, but has provided original compositions for the use of the choir, while Dr. Edgar Stillman Kelley, occupying the chair of musical composition at Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio, not only arranged to have the original performance of his harmonization of "America" given by the trombone choir, but is also at work on special music for the organization.

"Until the present time, America has failed to realize the possibility of the trombone, both as to instrument and technique," says Mr. Belistedt. "The tone resembles very much that of the cello, and contains many possibilities which yet remain undeveloped."

"The trombone is the oldest musical instrument known. It was the trombone, which is referred to in Judges 7:16 as a trumpet, which was used in Gideon's attack on the camp of the Midianites."

A GOOD CAUSE.

Dear Mr. Editor: During the Centenary Campaign, a widow in the Sicily Island circuit in the Monroe District, with several minor children and a mortgage on her home of $600, donated to the Centenary fund $100 war stamps, certficate which she had managed by the hardest during the war to save up and purchase from the Government in the shape of war savings stamps.

Rev. A. I. Townsley saw a report of this that we gave the daily papers in New Orleans and suggested that this widow's mortgage ought to be paid off and said he would give $10 towards it.

At Memphis, day before yesterday, in reporting incidents of the campaign, I told of this and stated if anybody there wanted to give $10 I would take it. A few minutes later, Bishop Atkins came around and gave me his check, which I now have.

Please publish this letter in the Advocate as a request to preachers and laymen who care to do so to contribute $10 apiece towards this fund. The contributions will be published and the money should be sent by check to the undersigned at Alexandria, La., and when we have enough on hand, we will handle the matter through her presiding elder and pastor. I trust there will be a liberal response and that I will have the $600 within the course of a week.

You may start the list as follows:

Bishop Jas. Atkins	$10.00
Rev. A. I. Townsley	10.00
Rev. N. E. Joyner	10.00
F. E. Gunter	10.00
T. W. Holloman	10.00

Thanking you, Yours very truly,
T. W. HOLLOMAN.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE POSTPONED.

My Dear Brother: Will you let me say through the Advocate, that the date of holding the Epworth League Conference of the North Mississippi Conference has been changed to June 17-19? We were compelled to do this in order to secure speakers for the occasion. We want to insist on each pastoral charge's having a delegate present, whether it has a League or not. The Conference meets at Holly Springs, June 17-19. You are cordially invited to be there.

REV. J. E. THOMPSON,
Of Winston Salem, N. C., who was the first man to register for the Celebration.

O. P. ARMOUR.

Houlka, Miss.

TROMBONE CHOIR.

The world's largest trombone choir, consisting of 100 instruments of the different recognized voices of the trombone, is being rehearsed for participation in the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, June 20 to July 13. All horn authorities agree that never before has so large a number of a single instrument been combined in a musical organization, which reproduces every shade and variety of compoltion with the same fidelity and value of a tremendous organ. Frank M. Sutphen is the director and H. B. Dickson the organizer of the choir.

WHAT NEXT?

By Rev. R. P. Shuler.

The Centenary has succeeded and a victory quite glorious has been achieved. Methodism has proved her right to live and battle in this hour of the world's reformation. The Church of the Wesleys is the Church of the modern day, if the unmistakable signs of present-day events are to be believed. Our undertaking in the Centenary has been a challenge to all Christianity; its success, a proclamation that the ears of all evangelical bodies must hear; its program, a prophesy that bids fair to give a new vision to the forces of Jesus of Nazareth, which vision shall inspire and hearten to such energy and activity as shall speedily bring the evangelization of the world and the falling of all men everywhere before the King of kings.

How now shall we proceed? The General Conference has planned an educational campaign for the raising of $15,000,000 to follow this movement of missions that has so wonderfully "gone over the top." Should it follow immediately? Or rather, should not a tremendous revival campaign sweep the church within the next twelve months? Methodism was born in the agony of a mighty wave of conviction and repentance and came into life amid the new realizations of a spiritual awakening, the preaching of salvation by grace, of the living power that comes with faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is true that the Centenary can never be completed until our educational institutions are equipped and fitted for the best of service, but it is much more true that both our Centenary and educational activities will be dissipated and their value annihilated unless we can produce a Holy Ghost filled ministry and membership.

To my mind, the hour has come for the authorities of Methodism to call for a mighty spiritual awakening. We need a revival of religion typed after the genuine experiences of the fathers, not a "hold-up-your-hand" manifestation, not a "sign-a-card-and-join" display, not a "one-to-win-one" Easter contest, but a real revival, a spiritual outpouring, a falling of the fires. Suppose, if you please, that the bishops should call together the officials of the various boards of the Church and should inaugurate a campaign looking to such a revival, should throw into and behind this campaign all the organization of the Centenary, should adopt a program as splendidly adapted to success as that which was used in the Centenary, and should call the Church to her knees for a real awakening. I have no doubt on earth of the results.

Why could not these leaders of our great Church set apart the next six months for the preaching of the mighty doctrines of our Church as they relate themselves to the salvation of men? Would not this hour of unrest in the world, this hour when men and nations are groping through the night in search of a "way out," this hour when salvation must be of the Lord or the world be lost—I say, would not this hour be most opportune for the preaching of the doctrines of Conviction, Repentance, The New Birth, Conscious Christian experience, Holy Ghost salvation, pure and holy living? The world needs such a message. The Church needs it not less than the world. Surely this weightiest of all matters should not be neglected.

Then suppose we had some sixty or ninety days of solid attack upon worldliness and the sapping sins that are eating the heart out of the Church and swiftly damning the world. Suppose from every Methodist pulpit there rang a battle challenge in the face of the sensual dance, the gambling mania, impurity, loose social standards, and all those other little foxes that are not only eating the grapes, but destroying the vines. Too long have a few preachers been forced to hear the statement made by many that the Church has no absolute and positive standard of moral rectitude. Too long have those ministers that dared attack these evils been subjected to the defeating argument that the Church and the pulpit are not unanimous at this point. Can we not get together and demand clean living of our people? For myself, I am sure that missionary funds and educational programs will but make more tragic our real failure unless we come to this doctrine of a blameless life and hold it before our people fearlessly.

At the close of this period the active organization for the revival could and should begin. Devotional and prayerful preaching and living should and would attend. And upon some stated day, say Easter Sunday, a mighty knit-together revival, held in every church in Methodism at the same time might be begun. What a wonderful thing if every pastor in our Church, every presiding elder, every connectional officers, every bishop, every local preacher and hundreds of minute men and consecrated laymen could be holding revivals at the same time in the churches, schoolhouses and other places where our churches are organized! With the preparation that I have pictured, it could not fail.

Then, with the fires still burning, with our Church revived, with God pleased with our lives, a mighty educational campaign could close the quadrennium and the history of our Methodism would call this four-year period the very heart of triumph and the very soul of success. Brethren, what about it? Can we not have a revival, an old-time revival, a Holy Ghost revival? If we cannot, I fear our other work will be but a mocking tragedy. If we can, I am as sure that the old ship will gloriously make the landing as I am sure I live.

TO THE PASTORS AND SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Brethren: At this writing, Sunday School Day Programs have been ordered for one hundred and twenty-two (122) of the three hundred and fifty (350) Sunday schools in the Louisiana Conference. Two Sunday School Day remittances have been made to your Treasurer. With the exception of the Monroe District, the other districts stand about the same percentage basis relative to number of programs ordered.

As acting pastor of one of our churches in which the Missionary Centenary Campaign was put on, the Treasurer of your Sunday School Board appreciates fully the fact that until now it has been almost impossible to give attention to anything except the Missionary Centenary Campaign. The Campaign, however, is over and your Sunday School Board has, of necessity, borrowed money during the first part of the Conference year with which to carry on its work until Sunday School Day offerings could come in. This letter through the Advocate is to urge you to let us have your order for programs. If you have not already done so, and if you have the programs, we want to urge you to observe the Day, and send in offering as soon as possible. Very truly yours,

C. V. BREITHAUPT,
Treasurer, La. Conf. Sunday School Board.

I WOULD SERVE.

By Arthur Vincent Bennett.

I would do the best I can,
Every day for every man,
Something to uplift and mend
Broken spirits in life's trend;
I would serve.

I would be with all my might,
Pure and ready for the fight;
In my life to cheer and lift
Souls of men who've gone adrift;
I would serve.

I would follow after Christ,
He who saves from endless strife;
He who healed the sick and blind,
He who cured diseased mind;
I would serve.

TWO THORNS.

It hurt. Every minute it seemed to hurt worse—worser, Elizabeth said. She kept uncrumpling her palm and looking at it, and touching it to make sure it hurt very much—and groaning softly under her breath. There was nobody in the world Elizabeth pitied so much as Elizabeth, for probably there wasn't any other little girl with a cruel thorn in her hand.

Mademoiselle looked very sorry, but Elizabeth would not look at Mademoiselle. You don't look at folks that keep you a whole hour away from your play to learn your spelling all over again, or that say, "What, what!" at you when you say your three-table. Folks like that you—'spise.

"Gov'nesses are dreadful folks," sighed Elizabeth. "I wish my mother'd let me go to school instead of having me governed."

But she could not wish anything very long, except that the thorn would come out of her hand. It certainly did ache worse than ever—there now, didn't it! Hadn't she pinched it to see, and didn't it?

"Elizabeth"—the voice was quite gentle, but firm. Elizabeth did not turn round. Her little white forehead above the tan line was wrinkled with real pain.

"There is still the spelling—"

As if she could learn spelling with a thorn in her hand! But she opened the book again and whispered "A-c-h-e—a-c-h-e" over and over to herself.

Why! Why! That was what she was doing now, this minute—ach'e-ing! Elizabeth laughed softly, in spite of herself. After that the word was easy enough to spell. Elizabeth was eight; but as long as she lived, even when she was eighty, she would know how to spell a-c-h-e.

Some one was talking to Mademoiselle at the door.

"No," Mademoiselle was sighing. "I can not yet come." Some words Elizabeth lost there, then, "She is my little what you call?—thorn in the flesh."

Elizabeth sat up straighter. The speller slid to the floor.

"She means me," she thought. She's got one in her flesh, too, and it's—me!"

It was a rather startling idea. It had never been clear like that before—what her naughtiness was like to Mademoiselle. How much it must hurt if it was like a thorn in her hand! It must burn and sting and ache—a-c-h-e. How much it must a-c-h-e!

Elizabeth found herself beginning to be sorry for Mademoiselle on account of that thorn. If some one would take it out! Nobody in the world could take it out except Elizabeth. And Elizabeth—she turned suddenly and ran to Mademoiselle.

"I'll take it out!" laughed Elizabeth, softly. "I've got one in my hand, too, an' I know how it hurts. I never s'posed before that thorns and—and bad little girls hurt just alike. I can spell a-c-h-e now, an' my tables. Don't you think it will come out of your flesh then?"

Mademoiselle understood. With a little cry, she caught Elizabeth up and kissed her. Then, as gently as she could, she uncrumpled the little aching hand and drew out Elizabeth's thorn. They were both laughing when it was over, so Mademoiselle's thorn must have come out, too.—Annie Hamilton, in Zion's Herald.

THE GIRL WHO ENJOYED EVERYTHING.

"If only we could have one of the bigger girls to help us, we could get along very well."

The small circle of Nimble Needles, engaged in Red Cross work, were planning a little entertainment and social, by which to earn money. The girls were not accustomed to such efforts, and felt their lack of experience, therefore the sigh for help.

"Let us ask Ruth Raymond," was the very first suggestion in response.

"She would be the best help of anybody. She always knows just how. But wouldn't it be asking a good deal?" This a bit anxiously. "She couldn't have much of a good time at such an affair as ours."

"Ruth makes her own good time anyhow, wherever she is," said one of the older and more observant girls. "She just loves to help. Let's ask her and see."

So they "asked her" and they "saw." They saw how she could enter into the interests and efforts of a younger circle, and have a genuine good time. For, evidently, Ruth's enjoyment was not veneer—it was solid.

"Did you go to the lecture last night?" asked one girl of another, after a somewhat noted scientist had been heard in town.

"Yes, I went, and I suppose it was all very good and improving, but it did not interest me very much. It was rather dry. The man knew almost everything about his subject, but he did not tell it with much animation. There was one hearer that enjoyed it, though. I saw Ruth Raymond there, and she listened with such a bright look that I spent part of my time watching her—and wondering."

"Oh," was the hearer's comment, "Ruth gets something out of everything. If there is a juicy morsel anywhere in a heap of dry bones she is certain to find it, and get refreshment out of it, and she always acts as if she had hold of something meant expressly for her."

About this time Ruth and her two sisters planned an outing together, in which the trio anticipated great pleasure. Just before the consummation of plans, an invalid aunt sent for Ruth to come and stay with her during her husband's two weeks' absence from home. Ruth was her choice, and, of course, it was Ruth's choice to go. The family knew that it would be from the moment the request came.

"How can you bear the disappointment and the difference, this way of spending two weeks, and the way you had planned?" asked a friend.

"Oh," answered Ruth happily, "if I can't have just what I like, I can like what I have, and there will be many pleasant things about this visit. I will enjoy the helping, and other things, too, all in a quiet way."

"I wonder how it is that Ruth makes good times out of the most unpromising situations and circumstances," said one of her admiring comrades.

"I saw a saying lately which illustrates the truth about her," was the reply. "It was this: 'Every blade of grass has its own drop of dew.' Ruth's drop of dew, which freshens everything for her, is the faculty for enjoying the best in everything, and finding some good in all."—F. H. Sweet, in Northwestern Christian Advocate.

THE PROCESS OF CONSECRATION.

Unlike temples made with hands, the sanctuary for the use of man is built from within. The thought and ruling mental pictures of its owner outwardly articulate themselves, not only in its facade, but in the proportion of every architectural detail. The process of consecration, of profanation goes on unceasingly by means of the activity of the consciousness. Both are cumulative. If the inherent sacredness of the human temple were constantly felt by the imaging faculty of man, what would become of abnormal out-picturings? There would be no negative from which they could be printed. Then would the office of the fleshy sanctuary be held in high honor. * * When the soul invites the overshadowing of the divine Spirit, the Son or likeness of God will make his advent in outward expression. * * * Seek ye first the kingdom of harmonious spiritual consciousness, and the lower plains and landscapes, dressed in living green, will lie stretched out before you, each in its appropriate order and rank. But, by law of growth, realization must be gradual.—Henry Wood.

"While Peter was warming himself by the enemy's fire it was easy for him to deny his Lord."

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE MISSIONARY CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

We are giving an unusual amount of space this week to an account of the Missionary Centenary Celebration to be held at Columbus, Ohio, June 20-July 13. We are doing this for two reasons: first, because our own Church has a large part in the undertaking; and, second, because it is an unusual event in the religious history of the world. We are anxious that the readers of the Advocate shall be well enough informed about it to realize that they have a really wonderful opportunity to see with their own eyes, at comparatively small expense, what otherwise would cost them thousands of dollars, thousands of miles of travel, and many months of time.

There will be reproduced in the city of Columbus, Ohio, the most interesting and suggestive features of missionary work in all the mission fields of the world. The State Fair Grounds have been secured for the Celebration, which means that the most perfectly appointed setting in the United States has been provided for what is, in effect, a kind of world's exposition of religious activities as they are conducted in every part of the globe. The men and women who have actual knowledge of these activities are in charge of the reproduction, and no expense has been spared to make them perfect and complete in every detail.

In addition to this feature of the Celebration, there will be many other things that will be worth going thousands of miles to see. A series of pageants has been prepared which will exceed in magnitude and magnificence anything of the kind hitherto attempted. The music will be one of the especially attractive features of the gathering, and full use will be made of the marvelous development of the moving picture. Many of the most distinguished men in the world will be in attendance and will deliver addresses from time to time. We can scarcely overestimate the value of this Celebration as a means of instruction and of inspiration.

Many of our people spend their vacations in travel, and many others are glad to attend any gathering of interest and profit. We should like to commend this Celebration to all such, and to all others who can possibly afford to go. The expenses of the trip will be exceedingly moderate. A registration fee of $5.00 will cover all the charges for admission to the grounds, exhibits, etc. Where families attend, a fee of $10 will secure all the privileges of the Celebration for all members of the family under 21 years of age. Arrangements have been made to accommodate camping parties, and an entertainment committee will assist visitors who desire it to secure hotel and boarding house accommodations.

The U. S. Railroad Administration has granted a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip. We have been informed that this round trip fare from New Orleans will amount to $41.32, which, of course, does not include sleeping car charges. Ministers who use their clergy permits can make the trip for $30.99 for the round trip. We give the fare from New Orleans simply as a matter of information—it can easily be figured from other points.

We cannot think of a finer thing for a congregation to do to show its appreciation of its pastor's services than to make it possible for him to visit this great Missionary Centenary Celebration at Columbus. We dare say there are a dozen members in every charge who could combine to give their preacher this fine trip without the slightest financial inconvenience to themselves. We hope that Louisiana and Mississippi will be largely represented at this great gathering.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

Mansfield, the capital city of DeSoto Parish, claims the distinction of being the highest point in the State of Louisiana. Certainly, it is a beautiful, delightful, and healthful little city. But, in our opinion, its chief distinction lies in the fact that it is the seat of Mansfield Female College, that historic institution of Methodism which has sent hundreds of splendidly trained young women out into the world to reflect credit upon their Alma Mater and to bless the communities in which they have made their homes.

An invitation to have a part on the program at the recent commencement exercises of the college gave us the opportunity of visiting again this constantly growing institution. We were prepared to see signs of improvement in the general appearance of the campus and buildings, for we had heard somewhat of plans that had been formed and executed; but we were not prepared for the wonderful changes that have actually taken place. Old buildings have been moved, remodeled, and repainted; a new dining hall of brick and concrete has been erected, with a seating capacity of 250; a re-arrangement of class rooms has increased greatly the conveniences and efficiency of the school. The Church has now, at Mansfield, an institution of which it may well be proud, and which deserves the unstinted support and patronage of Louisiaan Methodism.

It would be impossible to speak of these improvements that have been made, and of the development that has taken place at Mansfield, without paying tribute to the wise planning, the tireless energy, and the indomitable optimism of President Bobbitt. He had a difficult task when he went to Mansfield—an almost hopeless task, some thought it to be. But he has demonstrated his fitness for his position by what we believe to be one of the greatest achievements in the educational history of our Church. He has transformed a small, weak, struggling school into a vigorous, self-supporting, forward-looking institution of learning. He has rallied to his support the splendid citizenship of the town of Mansfield, and has won the unquestioning confidence of the educational leaders of the State. He has made possible the present prosperity of the school and the faith that greater things are yet to come. Already definite plans are laid for notable improvements before the opening of next session.

The pleasure of our visit to Mansfield was enhanced by contact with Dr. S. A. Steel, the scholar, orator, and brilliant writer from the "Pelican Pines," and Rev. A. S. Lutz, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., Rev. J. M. Brown, Rev. K. W. Dodson, Rev. F. R. Power, and other friends whose countenances we rejoiced to look upon.

The college community was in a state of happy excitement over the approaching marriage of a charming member of the faculty to a prominent business man of the State who has long been otherwise interested in the affairs of this splendid girls' school of North Louisiana.

THE SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

The announcement of the program for the Seashore Divinity School at Biloxi, Miss., from June 24 to July 3, brings again to our attention one of the finest gatherings for physical recreation and mental and spiritual profit that we know anything about. We hope that every preacher who can possibly do so will attend the School this year. We have been passing through strenuous times. Various kinds of war activities have had the hearty support of all our ministers, and we are just emerging from the "Big Drive" of the Centenary Movement that has kept us all exceedingly busy. We can think of nothing else, now, that would be so restful and helpful to the weary itinerant as a ten days' sojourn under the shade of the live oaks by the rippling waters of the Mississippi Sound.

It will be the privilege of a lifetime, also, to hear such men as Dr. Cobern, Dr. Gunsaulus, Dr. Anderson, and Bishop Kilgo within the space of ten days. Any one of them would be worth going many miles to hear; all of them may be heard during the sessions of the Divinity School.

We call the attention of the undergraduates especially to the advantages of the School in completing their Conference courses of study. Competent instructors are provided for the various books in the course, who cannot fail to be helpful to the diligent student in mastering the subjects under consideration. We would remind the undergraduates, however, that they must have read the books before going to the School if they would secure credit for the work done there.

Perhaps many of our preachers will be kept from attending the School on account of the expense, which, while comparatively small, may be more than they will feel able to afford. We should like to repeat the suggestion that was made by the Advocate last year: It would be a most gracious act for the members of the congregations in many cases to put into the hands of their preachers enough money to make this delightful and profitable trip comfortably; and if they should include enough for them to take their wives along, so much the better.

We hear, also, that the fishing is unusually good this year.

THE LATEST RESULTS OF THE "BIG DRIVE."

On account of the difficulty of tabulating accurately the results of so great an undertaking as the Centenary campaign, it has been impossible to give the exact figures from the thousands of churches throughout the connection; but the Centenary Commission has announced that at present the Church has undoubtedly raised a sum in excess of $35,600,000, not including credits. We give on the last page the report by Conferences through Monday, May 26.

CENTENARY CELEBRATION DAY.

The Centenary Commission has designated Sunday, June 8, as Centenary Celebration Day, the purpose being to call attention to the great gathering to be held at Columbus, Ohio, June 20 to July 13. The pastors of all our churches are urged to bring this matter before their people on that day.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. W. Perry, of Glenmora, La., gives an encouraging report of his work.

Rev. A. S. Oliver, of Eden, Miss., reports "over the top" in the Centenary campaign.

Rev. J. D. Nesom, of Oak Grove, La., reports that his charge is making fine progress along all lines.

Rev. D. R. McDougal, of Calhoun City, Miss., reports that his charge is in good shape in every particular.

Rev. L. C. Wilson, of Athens, La., informs us that his charge more than paid its allotment in the Centenary campaign.

Rev. J. F. Waltman, our pastor at Kentwood, La., preached the commencement sermon of the Kentwood High School on Sunday, May 18.

Rev. J. R. James, of Wheeler, Miss., reported on May 26 that his charge had subscribed $1175 in the Centenary campaign, and that the report was far from complete.

Rev. J. Loyd Decell, pastor of Centenary Church, McComb City, Miss., will assist Dr. B. F. Jones in a meeting at Lumberton, Miss., beginning next Sunday.

"My charge is a splendid one; the work of the Church is moving off nicely; the outlook for a good year is hopeful," writes Rev. Wm. I. White, of Crawford, Miss.

Mr. John T. Sawyer, Jr., and wife, of Milwaukee, Wis., have recently visited Dr. and Mrs. John T. Sawyer, of this city. They left for their home on Monday of this week.

Rev. W. N. Ware, of Walnut Grove, Miss., writes: "Our charge has 'gone over the top' in the Centenary work. The 'Big Drive' was a complete success at every church on the charge."

Rev. John G. Sloane, of Haynesville, La., writes enthusiastically of his second quarterly conference, which was held on May 25. Dr. J. M. Henry, the presiding elder, preached a great sermon which was highly appreciated.

St. John's Church, of Memphis, Tenn., of which Rev. W. H. Coleman, formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, is pastor, on a Centenary quota of $75,000, has reported more than $86,000 in pledges. A great record!

Brother C. E. Beard writes us that the Sunday school attendance contest, in which several Louisiana schools are engaged, resulted on May 25 as follows: Lake Providence, 56; Waterproof, 38; Tallulah, 44; Oak Grove, 98.

Rev. Paul H. Grice, of Saucier, Miss., reports that his charge has not only subscribed several hundred dollars more than its Centenary allotment, but that it has also provided for all other assessments. The outlook on that charge is, indeed, encouraging.

The Advocate acknowledges the honor of an invitation to be present at the graduating exercises of the Schools of Law and Theology of Emory University on Monday evening, June 2. There are two graduates of the School of Theology, and four of the Law School.

Dr. C. M. Chapman, our pastor at Shubuta, Miss., reports that his church went fifty per cent beyond its Centenary allotment. When he wrote, a fine revival meeting was in progress, in which the preaching was being done by Rev. J. V. Bennett, of Brookhaven, Miss.

So far as we know, our church at Ruston, La., of which Dr. R. H. Wynn is pastor, holds the palm in the Louisiana Conference for number of individual subscriptions to the Centenary fund. The number last week was 534 certainly, and several others were expected.

Mr. T. Wynn Holloman, of the law firm of White, Holloman and White, after spending seven weeks in New Orleans as executive secretary in the office of the Conference Centenary Campaign Director, where he rendered invaluable service, returned to his home in Alexandria, La., last Tuesday.

Dr. Theodore Copeland, of Texarkana, Ark., preached the commencement sermon of the Vivian High School, at Vivian, La., on Sunday evening, May 25. A friend who was present on that occasion says that a great audience heard a magnificent discourse. Professor S. S. Thomas is the principal of the school.

The Sunday school atendance contest between Winnfield, La., and Homer, La., has resulted for the last two Sundays as follows: May 25—Winnfield 198, Homer 196; June 1—Winnfield 233, Homer 174. After a six weeks' contest, Winnfield now stands 7 ahead. The contest will close on the third Sunday in June.

The corner-stone of the Methodist Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., will be laid, with elaborate ceremonies, at 11 o'clock on Thursday, June 12. Bishop Atkins and Bishop Murrah and others will take part in the program. The Editor of the Advocate appreciates the honor of an invitation to be present on that notable occasion.

The Monroe District Conference of the Louisiana Conference met at Winnsboro, La., according to announcement, on Monday of this week. The pastor at Winnsboro, Rev. S. D. Howard, will begin a revival meeting immediately after the adjournment of the district conference. He will be assisted by Rev. R. A. Bozeman.

Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, presiding elder of the Meridian District, Mississippi Conference, has issued a statement giving a complete report of the results of the Centenary campaign in his district so far as the figures were available. It is the most complete report of any district in our three Conferences that we have seen.

The American-Press, of Lake Charles, La., in its issue of May 26, devoted an unusual amount of space to a report of the services at the Methodist church on the day before, and to the Lafayette District Conference, which was to convene on that date. Such items have a real news value—and progressive newspapers are beginning to realize that fact.

Rev. E. L. Cargill, of Gibbsland, La., under date of May 27, writes as follows: "Mrs. Elizabeth E. Blalock, one of the pioneer settlers of this section, who celebrated her one hundred and first birthday last January, died here this morning at 3 o'clock. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for 93 years." The Advocate joins in paying honor to the memory of this remarkable woman.

Rev. J. E. Cunningham, who served as chaplain for several months at Camp Shelby, Miss., has been transferred to Washington, D. C., and advanced to the rank of captain. He has met with much encouragement in the work in which he is engaged. He sends his love to the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference, and asks that his friends remember him in their prayers. He thinks that he will probably be at home again in the fall.

Dr. Rolfe Hunt, the newly elected president of Port Gibson Female College, has received a hearty welcome to his new field of labor, and has already begun work preparatory to the opening of the next session. The college buildings will be renovated throughout and made much more attractive. He is receiving splendid co-operation from the board of trustees and other friends of the college. The next session of the school will begin on September 3.

An interesting letter from Mrs. S. L. Pope, of Columbus, Miss., informs us that her husband, Rev. S. L. Pope, does not know just when he will return from France, though he expects to reach home some weeks before the meeting of the North Mississippi Conference in the fall. He has lately been made chief secretary in charge of the work at two large camps, and his labors have correspondingly been increased. After his work is over, he will spend some time in travel. Mrs. Pope speaks in high terms of the work at First Church, Columbus, and of the esteem in which Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Felts are held.

Dr. George R. Stuart addressed a large audience at the Athenaeum in this city on last Sunday afternoon in the interest of the Anti-Saloon League. His address was a magnificent presentation of the causes that have led to the adoption of the prohibition amendment to the Constitution, and of the influences that must inevitably lead to world-wide prohibition. After listening to him, we were not surprised to learn that Dr. Stuart is preaching to the largest congregations in America, at First Church, Birmingham, since the return of Dr. J. H. Jowett to England. He has a message for the age, which he delivers with compelling force.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. W. E. Dickens, Pachuta, Miss., 2; F. A. Howell, Durant, Miss., 2; Rev. W. J. Porter, Sicily Island, La., 2; Rev. A. F. Moore, Sardis, Miss., 2; Rev. W. N. Duncan, Drew, Miss., 2; Rev. S. S. Bogan, Jackson, La., 3; Rev. J. T. Weems, Barlow, Miss., 2; Rev. W. P. Bailey, Roxie, Miss., 2; Rev. R. M. Evans, Buena Vista, Miss., 2; Rev. W. W. Nelson, Wesson, Miss., 2; Rev. G. A. Morgan, Jonesboro, La., 3; Rev. Rolfe Hunt, Newton, Miss., 4; Rev. S. C. Yates, Holcomb, Miss., 2; Rev. W. W. Lantrip, Eros, La., 2; Rev. N. B. Harmon, Vicksburg, Miss., 3; Miss Ruby Glenn, Decatur, Miss., 2; Mrs. C. C. Jennings, Pleasant Grove, Miss., 4; Rev. W. B. Alsworth, Meadville, Miss., 2; Rev. J. F. Dring, Ringgold, La., 2; Rev. P. H. Grice, Saucier, Miss., 8; Rev. J. D. Nesom, Oak Grove, La., 2; Rev. W. W. Perry, Glenmora, La., 2; Rev. Wm. I. White, Crawford, Miss., 3; Rev. W. M. Young, Pontotoc, Miss., 5; Rev. R. G. Lord, Coffeeville, Miss., 3; Rev. A. R. Beasley, McCool, Miss., 2; Rev. H. M. Ellis, Gulfport, Miss., 2; Rev. J. L. Nabors, Kossuth, Miss., 3.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

We had the privilege of spending a day at Centenary College, Shreveport, La., last week. The final examinations were in progress, and faculty and students were busily engaged in winding up the year's work, but they were not too busy to show appreciated courtesies to a former fellow-worker. We were gratified to learn that this has been the most prosperous session of the school since its removal to Shreveport, both in the number of students enrolled and in its financial showing.

The board of trustees had just held a meeting, at which important action was taken with reference to the future of the college. Proper announcements from the trustees will be made in due time. Dr. R. H. Wynn, who has been serving as acting president since his resignation of the presidency last year, was closing up the affairs of his successful administration.

Announcements have been made of the Summer School, which will be held this year as usual, under the direction of Professor J. G. Sawyer, dean of the college, assisted by the other members of the college faculty. The Summer School, which has been a very successful part of the year's work, will continue until August 15.

Dr. J. M. Henry was announced to preach the commencement sermon last Sunday at First Church, Shreveport.

THE DAILY CROWN.

Faithfulness is ever winning and ever wearing the crown. Life is every day putting on a new crown. The judgment seat of God is set every morning, and His rewards are bestowed upon the faithful soul. What life, what love, what joy, does God give day by day, to men who live simple, sincere, unselfish, pious lives! The best is kept in store, but brief foretastes are granted while we suffer and strive.—C. A. Berry.

A man is not the slave of circumstances,
Or need not be, but builder and dictator;
He makes his own events, not time nor chance;
Their logic his: not creature, but creator.
—John Boyle O'Reilly.

Obituaries.

In the town of Grand Cane, La., on the evening of February 14, 1919, Louis H. Richardson passed to his reward. He was born in Alabama, on March 4, 1857. He was married to Miss Eva McClanahan, on November 20, 1890. To this union were born four children. His wife and two of these children survive him. Miss Lucile graduates this year at Sophie Newcomb. She has a sweet Christian spirit. John T. is a young business man of ability, and went on the board of stewards as his father's name was taken off. Sister Richardson worked side by side with her husband in the church. His was a happy home.

Brother Richardson was reared in a good Methodist home and remained true to his teaching. He joined the church in early life and had been a steward since young manhood. One pastor said he was the best steward he ever had. He was a teacher in the Sunday school. The superintendent said he was punctual and faithful. He said, "I would like to have borne testimony at his funeral." He placed himself under every proposition that concerned his church. He let nothing go by default. When the pastor had to put out anything, he looked up Brother Richardson. A business man of the town who is not in the church said of him, "I pronounce him a consistent Christian gentleman." Many Negroes came to his home to view his body. Many of them wept. He was devoted to his Lord, to his home, to his church and to his country. He gave his only son to the army without a mumur. He was tender, sympathetic and sacrificial. His life was fruitful. Many of our young men shouldered new responsibilities after his death. Former pastors knew him as the pastor's strong friend. We have another friend and brother in heaven. Many shall rise up in that day and call him blessed. Too, it can be said of him, he took time to pray. Doubtless his shall be the eulogy, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." H. W. LEDBETTER.

Grand Cane, La.

W. T. GERMANY was born in Amite County, Mississippi, one mile south of the Old Adams Camp Ground, on May 8, 1865, and on March 19, 1919, he closed his eyes to the scenes of earth and went home to Heaven. He was a son of Dr. W. H. and Mrs. Martha Elizabeth Germany. His father, Dr. Germany, was a prominent physician, a consecrated and highly esteemed local preacher in the M. E. Church, South, having been at one time a member of the Mississippi Conference. Brother Will, as we familiarly spoke of him, was blessed by having one of the saintliest mothers, doubtless, that it has ever been our privilege to know; many a time have we seen her walking the aisles in old Adams church shouting and praising God, and pleading effectively with sinners to seek Christ as a Savior from sin. It is not strange, therefore, that one brought up in a home where God was loved and worshiped, and where the sweet Christian influence of a godly father and mother has served as the sheltering wing, should develop into a strong, positive, Christian character. Such was the case with our dear friend and brother, W. T. Germany. His was a definite and positive Christian experience. He spent much time in secret prayer in communion with God. Often, while overseeing important work, when things were not always harmonious, he has been known to slip aside and spend a season in secret prayer to God for spiritual strength and divine guidance. On September 22, 1888, he was happily married to Miss Bertha Martin. In this happy union they lived for over thirty years, sharing each other's joys and sorrows together as true companions. Of this union eleven children were born, six of whom, two sons and four daughters, with the dear mother, remain on this side to mourn and wait; while five of the sweet little angels with the dear father shout and rejoice on the other side of the beautiful river in the City of God. Oh, what a meeting that was where the five little ones, with grandfather and grandmother, were waiting at the beautiful gate to meet father and welcome him home to heaven! Brother Germany loved his family and strove diligently to provide well for their comforts. He was an affectionate husband, a kind and patient father, and a friend to all. Above all, he loved God and his sanctuary. He enjoyed preaching, and was always at the house of God on Sunday if it was possible for him to be there. His experience was somewhat similar to that of the Psalmist when he said, "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord." His happy, smiling face was always an inspiration to us as we tried to preach the Word. He has gone from us and our hearts are sad; but to the dear companion and children who remain, let me say, "You know where to find him; he cannot come to you, but you can go to him." May his greatest desire of all be fully realized—which was that all his family should be saved from sin and finally get home to heaven.

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last;

"Redeemed from earth and pain,
Ah; when shall we ascend,
And all in Jesus' presence reign
Withour translated friend."

T. H. KING.

Silver City, Miss.

On March 12, 1859, a little girl opened her eyes in this world. With the highest sense of responsibility and appreciation, the fond parents began training the little one for God, the Church, and a suffering world. This little girl, SUE ELIZABETH KILPATRIC, daughter of Rachel Green and John Kilpatric, moved with her parents from Alabama, when four years of age, and settled in the community of what is now Calhoun City, Miss., where she joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of thirteen years. From that day on, "Service," was her watchword. On January 14, 1879, this splendid, refined, cultured Christian young lady was happily married to James Thomas Young. God blessed them in their home-life, and gave them a rich experience in grace and love. In this home was erected an altar to the "God of their fathers, where the children heard the word of truth read, and, bowing about this sacred altar, worshiped Israel's God in the "beauty of holiness." In 1894, these good people moved to Sunflower County, and there again, and at once, united with the Methodist Church, South, and proved their faith by their works. To know Sister Young was to love her. The young men of the community that were not even religious held her in highest esteem, and would often speak of her with profound respect, as being the best woman in the community. Sister Young was called to pass through many severe trials, in the loss of loved ones, but instead of becoming sour, and casting away her confidence, she only lived closer each day to her Lord and Master, and not a word of complaint did she utter; but would say, "The will of the Lord be done." Sister Young had been a widow for eight years, but the Comforter had been with her, and was with her when, on April 28, 1919, she was called to pass through the shadows of death. Sister Young is survived by three children: Mrs. W. B. Hammonds, H. E. Young, and Miss Carrye-Loue Young. To these we would commend the Comforter, and pray that they, too, will only be drawn closer to the God of their mother.

Freckles
The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.
Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

BY L. W. BOWER, M. D.

You can take an onion seed and a pansy seed, and plant them side by side in the same spot of ground. In one case, you get an onion, with its peculiarly strong odor, and in the other you get a flower of rare beauty. You can plant a poppy seed and get opium (a dangerous, habit-forming drug), or you can plant a rhubarb seed and get something that helps constipation. No scientist, living or dead, can explain these mysteries of Nature. Behind the invisible life germ in each seed is hidden the deep secret that nobody understands. Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, bearing-down pains, periodical irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it.

Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in America because it contains no alcohol and no narcotic. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo. N. Y. for trial pkg. Tablets.

WHAT ARE WE WORTH TO THE WORLD?

By H. Croom Armour.

This is a burning question, and it can only be answered by each person, individually. No man can answer the question for the other fellow. Each individual should ask himself: "What am I worth to the world? Am I doing any good by living in this old world of ours? Am I helping to build up the world, spiritually, mentally and morally, or am I helping to tear down the world?"

We were all born into this world for some purpose. God is far-sighted, and he meant for each of us to do our part in the world to the very best of our ability.

Some people are valueless to the world. They care not whether they accomplish anything or not. They are content merely to drag through the world, eking out a living here and there from other people. They are parasites on the world. Like the mistletoe that thrives on trees, they are living off the world, free of charge, so to speak.

Everything created by God, from insects on up, was put here for some purpose. All kinds of plants, trees, etc., were meant to carry on a work in the world. If the Lord hadn't meant for everything to be of some use in the building up of the world, he would not have created any world, I sincerely believe.

As man was created in the image of God, he becomes the ruling factor, next to God, in the building up of humanity and everything else that is to be done. It is every man's duty and privilege to be of inestimable value in this old world of ours. He has his choice to be either of some worth to the world, or a mere parasite. He cannot remain neutral. He is either doing his best to live a consistent Christian life and help promote the great questions of the day, or he is content with merely dragging through life, caring not which way the wind blows. The former is worth much to the world; the latter is worth nothing. It all rests with us, individually, whether or not we will be of any true worth to the world.

It takes energy and action to be of general worth to the world. It also takes the true love of God in us, to be of much worth to mankind.

REVIVAL AT ALLIGATOR, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Rev. J. H. Bell, North Mississippi Conference Evangelist, of Columbus, Miss., has been assisting me in a meeting at Alligator. I only wish you could have been with us to have seen the manifestation of the power of the Holy Spirit. The secret of Brother Bell's power as an evangelist is his dependence on God in prayer. A number of men and women of mature years were brought to a saving knowledge of our Lord. The church was greatly revived and a spirit of love and harmony is now existing that becomes a living church. The church at Alligator will cherish the memory of this man of God whose love for the souls of men is so pronounced. W. R. LOTT, P. C.

I'M GOING HOME.

I'm going home!
I've tarried on the alien plain so long,
That in my throat had almost died the song—
I'm going home!

I'm going home!
Where snowy peaks salute the summer sky,
And call to life again the submerged I—
I'm going home!

I'm going home!
I touch again the great ancestral heights,
And lo! my dark blooms into countless lights—
I'm going home!

The distinctive flavor of

Coca-Cola

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Last Sunday was spent at Decatur. These people were in the midst of the wind-up of the Centenary Drive. If the work had been better understood I feel sure that Decatur would have made a better drive. I think they did well. The rains hindered them much in their canvass. They have developed several mighty good church workers in the work and it will lift the life of the church greatly.

Tuesday was spent at the beautiful city of Tylertown, the Brookhaven District Conference meeting there. The Brookhaven District was at that time $25,000 over the top and more to hear from. Tylertown has a most beautiful church. For the place, it is a gem. The efficient pastor has a right to be proud of the building. They are in shape now to do real work for the spread of the kingdom of God.

Pray for the work and the workers. We are anxious to be of service as far as we can.

Galloway Memorial held Children's Day and report $91 offering. Who will do more for this great cause? So far as I know, this is the largest offering ever made by a Sunday school in the Mississippi Conference.

The Sunday School Institute of the Newton District will meet with the district conference on the first afternoon of the same.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The conference for elementary workers held at New Albany, May 27, 28, brought together five of the district elementary superintendents. All the districts were represented except the Durant, the Sardis, and the Winona. About four hundred attended the different services. The ideas the teachers received were such as can be put into practice in the classroom. The interest was intense from the first service to the last. Miss Kennedy said we had as fine a group of district superintendents as any of the Conferences. These superintendents will help Mrs. Fant hold institutes during the year in each of the districts. The New Albany people did all that good people could do for our entertainment. The institute will be held at Holly Springs next year.

We will work to bring our districts up to the Third Rank Standard. To do this, forty per cent of the schools must be brought to the Third Rank Standard of Efficiency. To do this will require hard work by all the presiding elders, pastors, superintendents, teachers and workers of every kind. When a school is brought up to the Standard, we will make more Christians of a high order. Our aim is to make great men and women. Is this task worth doing? De we need to undertake it? God help us.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Dear Brother Carley:. We are just closing the Lafayette District Conference. The attendance has been good and the sessions well attended. The spirit of the Centenary has been felt in every meeting of the conference. Thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for his great leadership was ringing in every voice.

A very fine session was held on Tuesday, when the good women came into the meeting and gave us a bit of the educational work and the plans of the work for the future. I am delighted with the Methodist women of the Louisiana Conference. They are doing a great work in extending the interests of the Kingdom.

Wednesday was Sunday School Day, and we had our program, with some excellent talks on live subjects. The brethren are alive to the school work of the district, and so are the good women of the Sunday school.

Your Sunday School Field Secretary is feeling fine over the election of the following district officers: District Secretary, A. M. Mayo, Lake Charles; Superintendent of Elementary Department, Mrs. J. W. Wynn, Rayne; Superintendent of Intermediate — Senior, Mrs. J. T. Adams, Eunice; Superintendent of Young People—Adult, John R. Love, New Iberia; Superintendent of Missionary Education, Mrs. Crow Girard, Lafayette; Superintendent of Teacher-training, Miss Louise Taylor, New Iberia.

The meeting was a good one, and the district conference was awake to all its interests. Brother Bowman was a good brother and warmed up to the occasion, and left nothing undone to advance the work.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AND THE GOSPEL.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

It is a far cry from the Sunday school of Wesley's day to the present institution. Possibly no movement in the religious world during the last two decades has a more important relation to the Kingdom of God on earth than the marked growth and enlargement of the Sunday school. In many, if not most, churches more students are enrolled than the congregations which attend the preaching service. The larger part of the Sunday school leaves before the regular service begins. Despite the unfortunate protest of the preachers, and the repeated exhortation of a faithful superintendent, this condition largely prevails. Such is the problem: How may we reach this crowd of children and young people with the word of life? How may we preach to them?

My place is to preach to them while present. I meet with some success in this way, first, through the officers and teachers of the school. As pastor, I am pastor of the Sunday school. As preacher, I am preacher for and to the school at all times, and especially during the hours of its meeting. I repeatedly urge upon the teachers the importance of bringing the pupils to Christ. I endeavor to make all else subsidiary to this one great purpose. For this we are to teach, work, and pray. A stirring appeal and a practicable application follow the lesson. Here is where the Sunday school crowd gets its preaching. If any are inclined to remain for the regular morning service, all the better; but my plan is not to let them go without some message of life and duty. Such a closing service is really a spring and an impetus to the one that follows.

Make the Sunday school your congregation and preach the gospel to them. It is the power of God unto salvation.

Shreveport, La., May 12, 1919.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Drugs Excite Your Kidneys, Use Salts

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE, SARIS DISTRICT.

The Conference of the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Sardis District of the M. E. Church, South, met with the Davis Chapel auxiliary on Wednesday of this week. This was the first district conference to be held in one of the rural churches, and proved a most successful experiment in every way. The attendance was the largest in the annals of the woman's work in this district, there being 27 delegates, and about 150 visitors present.

The old historic church in which the conference was held is rich in sacred memories to many of the people of this vicinity, and much interest was manifested on the occasion of the first meeting of this kind that its sixty years of usefulness had witnessed. A royal welcome was accorded the guests, as cars rolled in from every direction, bringing workers from Oakland, Charleston, the extreme southern portion of the district; from Hernando, Eudora, Coldwater, and other northern points; from Tyro, Independence, Crenshaw, Emery, Terza, Cockrum, and many other points.

Mrs. R. M. Short, district secretary, aided by Mrs. R. P. Neblett, of Como, first vice president, and Miss Mamie Jones, of Hernando, secretary, carried the program through most successfully. Mrs. Short presided in a most capable manner, and with a dignity and quiet charm that was most pleasing, and was justifiably gratified at the splendid attendance, and the excellent quality of the various numbers on the program.

In addition to those of the district who took part, were several from other sections, who came with messages of importance and interest. Among these were Miss Wynne, deaconess from the Wesley House, Memphis; Mrs. Riley, from the Orphans' Home at Jackson, and Miss Bright, from the student body of Grenada College.

Mrs. F. M. Clyce, in the forenoon, and Mr. C. B. Young and Miss Adelaide Duval, in the afternoon, added most delightfully to the pleasures of the day with the sweet songs they rendered.

The hospitality of the splendid people of Davis Chapel is well known in these parts, but words fail to express adequately the generous and bountiful way in which they provided for their guests, in the dinner which was served at the noon hour, out under the shade of the stately oaks.

Much more could and should be written of this occasion, but time and space forbid a longer account.

Crenshaw, Senatobia, Como and Batesville, invited the conference to meet with them next year. Batesville won.

This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer to-day.—Adv.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Just to remind you again of our Epworth League Conference to be held at Laurel, June 10-13, 1919. Each of you is expected to attend and see that your League is represented. If you haven't a League, send two or more of your brightest young people to the conference to get the inspiration, and when they return they will help you to organize.

A banner will be given the district with the largest attendance at the conference, and the best represented League in the banner district will be custodian of the banner for the year.

We will have with us for addresses during the Conference: Dr. A. D. Betts, President Palne College, Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. C. C. Menzler, Social Service Expert, Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. R. E. Nollner, Central Office, Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. H. T. Carley, Editor New Orleans Advocate, New Orleans, La.; Rev. J. C. Chambers, Sunday School Field Secretary, Jackson, Miss.; Dr. A. F. Watkins, President Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. H. B. Watkins, Central Church, Meridian, will conduct the Bible periods. Bishop Lambuth will probably deliver an address. Laurel will give royal entertainment, auto rides, socials and picnic.

Volunteers will hold reunion at 11 o'clock a. m. on the 12th.

Send names of delegates to Miss Eula Vance, Laurel, Miss., R. 2.

W. D. HAWKINS, President.
ERMA M. KILE, Secretary.

SPECIAL RATES TO TRAINING SCHOOL AT DALLAS.

Dear Brother Carley: Your readers will doubtless be interested to know that a special low railroad rate has been granted the Western Training School for Sunday School Leaders at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, as indicated in a telegram which has just been received. I will appreciate it if you will give publicity to this information. The special rate will make it possible for those who attend the Training School to make the round trip for one and one-third fare. Tickets will be sold on the certificate plan and will be good on condition that 250 or more present certificates or receipts showing that they have purchased a ticket to Dallas. Those whose tickets cost less than seventy-five cents cannot be counted in the 250. The selling dates are June 7-11, with time limit June 19. Delegates should be instructed to purchase one way tickets and secure certificates or receipts from selling agents. These certificates will be properly certified by some one designated for that purpose at Southern Methodist University and will entitle the holder to get return ticket for one-third fare.

Yours sincerely,
J. L. CUNNINGGIM.

FROM FARMERVILLE, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: I do not often write for publication, and have been criticised for neglecting to do so, but I consider it an imposition on our paper as well as the public to take up time and space with matters that are of little interest and possibly less importance; so I usually wait until I can tell of interesting and important events.

I believe that my readers will agree with me, when I say that the following information is both interesting and important. The Farmerville charge has not always stood in the front ranks, but as it has a past, so has it a future and we are now entering upon that future of which our children's children will not be ashamed.

With four small churches and a total membership of 145, a number of whom are living in other States, we began our year's work with the future looking none too bright; but with confidence in our people and faith in God, we made our plans as though we knew they would not miscarry. The first thing on our program was a Boy Scout organization; then the Epworth League; then came the Junior League, and the perfecting of the Missionary Society; and while the work of the above organization is not altogether satisfactory, we are moving forward, confident of more effectiveness in the future. The Boy Scouts now have 21 members, with 15 applications awaiting consideration. The League has 27 members, and the little Junior League, the pride of our church, has 23 members. We have completed our Missionary drive and are over the top with 11 per cent to spare. Our finances are far ahead of last year, and we are looking forward to a final report of which we will not be ashamed. My people have been seriously opposed in this work by parties both within and without the church, and I feel that they deserve unusual credit for the success they have attained, and as I go to the district conference it will be with a feeling of pride in the people whom I represent. But at the same time I will have a great deal of sympathy for the preacher who, not for lack of effort on his part, but for lack of interest on the part of his people, will have to report the Missionary Centenary a failure in his charge.

Asking an interest in the prayers of my brethren, I am,

Yours fraternally,
SPENCER J. McLEAN.

A WEED IN OUR GARDEN.

Yes, it is a weed! And a weed that comes up every year, and it is going to stay in our garden until we dig the root up; just chopping at it every year does not rid us of it. Oh, it does do our garden so much harm, as it emits a sort of sleeping vapor and makes all the flowers around it forget to throw out their perfume, and causes them to look pale and sick. We all know how this weed appears; some of us have handled it, and its name is Neglect-to-Report. Let us think of it as an ugly weed, and not help to nourish it in the garden we are making for the Master.

There comes to us from the Superintendent of Study and Publicity of tha Louisiana Conference a real plea for help. Do what she may, she has not been able to obtain reports, or to procure proper lists of names for sending literature. This is not only so with one Conference officer, but with all. Every president of every auxiliary should make it her regular, as well as her courteous, duty to see that her district secretary is posted, up to the minute, with names of all auxiliary officers. Circumstances often arise which make changes necessary during the year; in that event, the president should see to it that her corresponding secretary immediately informs the district secretary of any new officers' names and addresses. Seriously, we have been doing our reporting business in such a manner that any man of this world's affairs would discharge us — should we not bring to the Master of men our very best system, order, courtesy, and economy?

We have been offered a part in this great business of missions, this business of sending the glad gospel of salvation to others! Shall we not do our part well?

The following is a full list of names of the officers for the three Conferences:

North Mississippi—Mrs. J. W. Conger, President; Mrs. T. W. Baker, First Vice President, Tupelo, Miss.; Miss Corinne Rogers, Second Vice President, New Albany; Mrs. W. T. Boswell, Corresponding Secretary, New Albany; Mrs. G. C. Jones, Recording Secretary, Belen; Mrs. W. W. Wilburn, Treasurer, Lexington; Mrs. Lester Fant, Superintendent Study and Publicity, Holly Springs; Miss Etter Murry, Superintendent Social Service, Ripley; Mrs. Susie Thomas, Superintendent of Supplies, Starkville; Mrs. Walter D. Naramore, Auditor, Lexington.

District Secretaries, North Mississippi Conference: Aberdeen District—Mrs. Harkey, Aberdeen; Columbus—Miss Alma McGee, Crawford; Corinth not supplied; Durant — Mrs. Elma King, Durant; Greenville—Mrs. W. B. Park, Merigold; Holly Springs—Mrs. Ludle Stokes, Grenada; Sardis—Mrs. R. M. Short, Como; Winona—Mrs. C. A. Neal, Carrollton; Co-Operative Home, Deaconess Adeline Peeples, Corinth.

Mississippi Conference — President, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, Jackson; First Vice President, Mrs. Z. D. Clark, Vicksburg; Second Vice President, Mrs. W. H. Bradley, Flora; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. H. L. McCleskey, Hattiesburg; Recording Secretary, Miss Mabel Porter, Natchez; Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Hemingway, Jackson; Study and Publicity, Mrs. Geo. H. Thompson, Meridian; Social Service, Mrs. C. S. Butterfield, Brookhaven; Superintendent of Supplies, Mrs. C. R. McQueen, Meridian.

District Secretaries, Mississippi Conference: Brookhaven—Miss Bessie Kearney, Hazlehurst; Hattiesburg—Mrs. T. B. Cottrell, Mt. Olive; Jackson—Mrs. T. B. Gaddis, Jackson; Meridian—Miss Ella W. Ormond, Meridian; Newton—Mrs. J. H. Hill, Laurel; Port Gibson—Mrs. Ernest Bennett, Natchez; Seashore—Mrs. J. C. Ross, Gulfport.

Louisiana Conference — President, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, 8011 Jeanette Street, New Orleans; First Vice President, Mrs. Cunningham, Natchitoches; Second Vice President, Mrs. Elma Drew, Mansfield; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, Crowley; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Alonzo Early, Amite; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes, Minden; Superintendent Study and Publicity, Mrs. R. H. Wynn, Ruston; Superintendent Social Service, Mrs. W. W. Holmes, Lake Charles; Superintendent Supplies, Mrs. H. L. Baker, Plattenville.

District Secretaries, Louisiana Conference: Alexandria—Mrs. T. E. Brown, Oakdale; Baton Rouge—Mrs. C. S. Stewart, Amite; Lafayette—Mrs. C. E. Fike, Rayne; Monroe — Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, Rayville; New Orleans—Mrs. R. H. Harper, 5830 Prytania Street, New Orleans; Ruston—Mrs. S. J. Harrell, Box 35, Haughton; Shreveport—Mrs. Ben Johnson, Mansfield.

MESSAGE FROM MRS. H. L. BAKER, SUPT. DEPT. OF SUPPLIES.

After the splendid Annual Meeting, we take up this work with new courage and the expectation that this Centenary year will be the best we have ever known in all departments of the Woman's Missionary Society.

Miss Helen Gibson, at St. Mark's Hall, has a Supply Store one day in each week where she sells, for a small sum, the garments that are generously donated by the various auxiliaries, thus meeting the needs of the foreign-born people whom this institution serves and forming a point of contact that makes it possible for her to minister to them in other ways. Many times during the past year her supply has become nearly exhausted and she has thought it impossible to keep up the work: but God put it into the hearts of our good women at Vivian to send her ten boxes during the year and these, with the other donations, enabled her to continue. Shall we let Vivian receive the greatest blessing this year? I hope when we make our report, at the close of this year, there will not be one auxiliary that has not done the best it can in this matter.

Those who heard Miss Eila Hooper, of Houma, tell of the needs of the people among whom she and Mrs. White work felt that they should have our loyal support and encouragement; let us send them all the supplies they can use.

Miss Graham represents us among the factory workers of New Orleans and has many calls for clothing and delicacies for the sick.

Miss M. L. Gibson, of our Training School at Kansas City, Mo., writes me that thirty dollars was donated during last year toward a carpet for the Louisiana Room, but that the room is large and that sixty dollars will be required before the rug can be purchased. Who will send this money that our room may look homelike and comfortable?

There have been some changes in the places where the districts shall send their boxes: Shreveport, Baton Rouge and New Orleans Districts are to send to St. Mark's Hill, 908 Esplanade Avenue, New Orleans, La., Miss Helen Gibson, Deaconess. Alexandria and Monroe Districts are to send to Mary Werlein Mission, 1026 Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, La., Miss Aletha Graham, Deaconess. Lafayette and Ruston are to send to French Mission, Houma, La., Miss Ella Hooper, Deaconess.

THE CONVERTED BRAHMIN.

(From a true incident narrated by Dr. Scudder)

By Mrs. O. W. Scott.

A Brahmin, who'd been taught from early youth
That he was holy, wise and heir to truth;
A Brahmin worshiper of idols old
Like "Jagganatha the Supreme"—of him we're told
That he, some years ago, a Christian book
Obtained and read. He could but look
With scorn upon the words therein.
"What!" murmured he, "is idol worship sin?
And 'Jagganatha the Supreme,' is he
No God? Away with such vile blasphemy!"
Thus spake the Brahmin but he still read on.
He read of one true God, of Christ His Son;
And while his lips with proud contempt denied,
"This doctrine strange is true!" his soul replied.
A Bible next from Christian hands he bought,
And secretly within its lids he sought
Full knowledge of that wondrous personage Called Jesus Christ.
He read page after page,
The Holy Spirit giving promised light.
Meanwhile he thought with tremulous affright
Of holy waters and of honored dead,
Of angered gods and shrines unvisited.
At length in sheer despair he cried aloud
While o'er the Blessed Book his head was bowed,
"I'll make this night one final test;
Thus shall my soul find peace and rest."
The day wore on; and when the twilight fell,
Throwing its long, cool shadows like a spell
O'er all the land, the Brahmin stole away
Toward Jagganatha's temple, huge and gray.
His only weapon was a sharpened spear,
Not borne in self-defense. He had no fear
Of forces armed; his enemies, unseen,
Were superstitions. But behind that screen
All human hope and fear, and love and hate,
With mysteries he had learned to venerate,
Beset him with their pleading, torturing cries.
He felt the pressure of past centuries,
And still moved on, trembling but undismayed—
A martyr soul, who dared not be afraid.
Quite unobserved he passed the portals wide—
Soon reached a dim recess, and stood beside
A hideous idol—Jagganatha grim!
Wise, "twice-born" ancestors had worshiped him
Through ages past. What if, indeed, 'twere true
That his curse rested on the doctrine new?
What if with thunderbolts his wrath should vent
Itself in swift and awful punishment?
Such thoughts—each one a fiery dart,
Now pierced the Brahmin's troubled heart.
"Is Jagganatha God!" he cried;
"Oh, speak to me thou Crucified!
If thou be God, reveal thy might,
And through the darkness send thy light!
These barriers high break down for me;
Show me thyself—and make me free!"
In agony of soul he breathed this prayer,
Then with firm-clasped, uplifted spear
He struck the wooden god once and again;
Ay, smote it sharply; but no cry of pain
Escaped, no thunderbolt nor flash of fire,
No echoed curse from ancient priest or sire.
The victory was won! A joyful cry,
"O Alleluiah!" seemed to reach the sky.
"My heart believes! for me the Savior died!
There is no God but Thee, Thou Crucified!"
The hoary temple arches caught the word—
"No God but Thee!" and Heaven the echo heard.
Entranced, enraptured, knelt the Brahmin there,
Light filled his soul, for God had answered prayer.
He is but one. The restless millions wait
That Light whose dawning "maketh all things new."
Christ also waits, but men are slow and late;
Have we done what we could? Have I? Have you!

MOTHER'S ALLY.

There is always one good remedy on the family medicine shelf that mother can use in all accidents and mishaps to the members of the family. Burns, bruises, cuts, stings, boils, sores and various forms of skin eruption are quickly soothed and steadily healed with Gray's Ointment. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. You should keep a box of it on your shelf for emergencies. If your druggist cannot supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be immediately sent you free.—Adv.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expells the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

CENTENARY CADETS.

Methodist Missionary Celebration, Columbus, O., June 20-July 13.

Major-General Leonard Wood, commander Central Department, U. S. A., headquarters in Chicago, has agreed to serve as honorary colonel of a regiment of one thousand Methodist boys to be recruited from every State in the Union, whose applications must be approved by the pastors of their churches. The boys will act as guards, ushers and guides at the Centenary Celebration of Methodist Missions at Columbus. The enlistment period will be from June 16 to July 16, and the applications must be sent immediately. General Wood will review the regiment after it is mobilized.

Candidates must be from sixteen to nineteen years old, inclusive. Their height in stocking feet may be as little as five feet six inches, but not more than five feet eleven inches. Each applicant must present a medical certificate from a physician, stating that he is in good physical condition, and no one will be admitted who has not had sufficient military training to adjust himself to company drill. Boys must have completed at least one year of high school, or the equivalent.

Members of the regiment will receive free all living expenses, including tent or barrack accommodations, mess, laundry and the like. They will be required, however, to defray traveling expenses from their homes to Columbus and return, and the cost of a simple uniform, which will be reasonable.

The regular army regimental organization will be followed. It is planned to have the field officers from the regular service, the companies to be officered by boys selected from the ranks.

Ample provision for recreation and for instruction of the boys has been made. Strict military discipline will be enforced throughout, but opportunity will be afforded for such diversions as drills, sports, hikes, and other camp features.

For further information, address R. D. Smart, Doctor's Building, Nashville, Tennessee.

Three Generations

"When grandmother was young she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some female illness and it helped her. My mother took it during the change of life and it did wonders for her. So when I got into a run down condition and suffered with periodic pains, backache, bearing down pains, I took it and it restored my health."

Thus writes a young woman of the third generation about this great remedy for woman's ills.

CENTENARY SUCCESS AT CLINTON, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: While many of our brethren are telling of their splendid success in the Centenary Drive, we wish to advise the readers of the dear old Advocate that we, too, in a small way, have been on the job, with some measure of success. We do not wish to boast, but we do earnestly believe that we serve the most liberal people, in so far as their financial means will permit, in the whole connection. We have a membership of 130, largely women and children, and our subscriptions amounted to $3939, or $30.30, per member. This is exclusive of credits. We did this notwithstanding the handicaps of sickness, rain, and a scattered membership. Adding our credits, the amount will be $4999. We feel that this success was achieved largely through splendid work of our campaign manager, and team captains, and through the prayers of the church. Our campaign manager was Hon. Chas. Killbourne, and our team captains were W. L. Haney and A. J. Hawsey, for Clinton, and W. A. Moody and C. B. Trotter, for Pine Grove Church, each of which contributed liberally. Thank God for such noble laymen! No preacher can possibly fail with such co-workers. Yours for greater things in His name,

A. J. COBURN, Pastor.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Economy and Extra Value in Motor Cars

ECONOMY and LUXURY meet in the BOUR-DAVIS MOTOR CAR. We invite your closest scrutiny and comparison to the claims we make for the BOUR-DAVIS.

Light in weight, constructed with a view to strength and endurance, it is poised within the average man's preference.

The BOUR-DAVIS is as easy to operate as to buy. The streamline body is a masterpiece of the body builders' art, and is mounted on an amply powered, thoroughly reliable, standard chassis.

The BOUR-DAVIS motor car commands the admiration of the critical car enthusiast everywhere. The luxurious appointments and distinctive appearance single out the BOUR-DAVIS as an EXCEPTIONAL motor car at the price at which it is sold.

In every section of the country and under every road test, and under all conceivable weather conditions the BOUR-DAVIS has proved every claim that has ever been made for it and has delighted the owner.

Examine this car at your dealers, or write for catalogue, and know more about the BOUR-DAVIS before you buy any motor car.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

TOO LATE.

We read the other day of a woman who shot her husband, seriously wounding him, and then surrendered herself to the officers of the law, professing deep sorrow for what she had done. We have no reason to doubt the sincerity of her profession—but the deed had been done. Many of us wait until it is too late to rectify mistakes that we ought never to have made.

THE COST OF CARELESSNESS.

The loss of scores of lives last week in an accident in a coal mine is attributed, in press reports, to gross carelessness. Men engaged in dangerous occupations often lose sight of the danger invoived and do things themselves, or permit others to do things, that, sooner or later, are almost certain to result in serious damage. But the lesson of painstaking care is hard to learn. In great things as well as in small, we go heedlessly along until some catastrophe overtakes us—and then we lament our ill fortune. A great truth is summed up in the saw, "A stitch in time saves nine." Carelessness is a very expensive luxury.

THE STLYES CHANGE, BUT THE PRICES DO NOT.

A report concerning the styles of men's shoes for the fall and winter indicates a considerable change from the present fashion. "The more crazy the shoes in design, the better they are liked," says a recent visitor to the markets. The present style in prices, however, seems to be satisfactory to the dealer, as no reduction is indicated. In explanation of the continued high prices, we are informed that Italy, France, and Finland are buying all the leather they can get in the United States, which necessarily makes the price of shoes go up. We wonder what those countries want with so much leather.

THE WOMEN WIN.

After more than forty years of effort, the advocates of woman suffrage have succeeded in getting Congress to submit a constitutional amendment to the States for ratification. The House yielded to the inevitable on May 21, when it adopted the necessary resolution by a considerable majority; the Senate held out until June 4, when the vote was 56 to 25—two more than the necessary majority. The fight will now be transferred to the State Legislatures, three-fourths of which must adopt the amendment before it becomes effective. The women have demonstrated their ability to keep at a thing till they have their way about it. The "militant suffragettes" will probably claim a large share of the glory of the achievement, though they probably did more to hinder than to help. We hope they will be less radical in their use of the ballot than they were in the methods they used to obtain it. "The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof"—we shall see what we shall see.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION.

A series of bomb explosions in different parts of the United States last week has called attention anew to the fact that we are harboring in this country a group of men—and women, too, perhaps—who are utterly out of sympathy with our form of government and our social and industrial order, and who will hesitate at nothing to bring about the establishment of a system that has spelled ruin in Russia and that will mean destruction here. We have been too careless, perhaps, in allowing to land upon our shores thousands of immigrants who have come as propagandists of revolution and anarchy; at any rate, we have not succeeded in assimilating them into our distinctive methods of thought and manner of life. The great "melting pot" of American ideals seems to have stopped boiling by reason of the excessive amount of unsmeitable material that has been poured into it. We need to do two things: replenish the fires of our own ideals, and guard more carefully our ports against the admission of unassimilable material. In these dangerous days of reconstruction, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure in fixing and maintaining a stable civilization.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME.

Sergeant Alvin C. Yorke, "the greatest hero of the war," is back at his home in Pall Mall, Tenn. The whole country is clamoring to see him, and theatrical producers and chautauqua managers are offering him thousands of dollars to appear before the public; but he is finding his greatest pleasure in the companionship of his mother, and in greeting his boyhood friends. We are glad that it is so. The world may bestow its honors and sing its songs of praise, but nothing can take the place of mother's love and the hearty greetings of sincere friends. Sergeant Yorke has taught the world a great lesson in his eagerness to get back to his Tennessee mountains. "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

LOOKING IN THE WRONG PLACE.

A press dispatch from New York states that Professor R. L. Garner, of the Smithsonian Institution, who has been in the French Congo in Africa since December, 1915, has arrived in this country with an ape which he says is the nearest thing to a human being of the ape family he has ever seen. The discussion of the "missing link" theory has, of course, sprung into prominence again. Our contribution to the subject is to remark that it seems to us altogether unnecessary to go to the jungles of Africa to find an "almost human" animal. We have seen specimens native to our own jungles which had every characteristic of a human being except the moral attributes. In fact, it strikes us that we have too many "missing links" at home for us to spend time looking for them elsewhere.

KEEP IT UP.

The sentiment against the present-day sensuous dances is evidently growing. Social organizations and school authorites are beginning to realize the lengths to which many of our young people have gone in their unrestrained search for pleasure, and they are beginning to speak out in plain terms. A distinguished educator, in speaking of conditions at a particular school, recently gave utterance to this sentiment: "The mothers and fathers who send their boys and girls to the university to be educated expect these young men and women to be surrounded by wholesome, moral influences, and the university should prescribe standards which will insure the realization of such expectation." He is right—and we hope he and others will keep up the fight against demoralizing and harmful social diversions.

PERHAPS ANOTHER TAG DAY.

A New Orleans newspaper announces that the bartenders have appointed a committee to solicit funds for the purpose of sending a delegation to Washington to lay before Congress the many hardships the enforcement of the prohibition law will lay upon members of their craft. They will get "able speakers" to present their side of the case to the people of New Orleans, and everybody will be invited to help them in their fight. The significant statement is added that the brewerles have already been asked to subscribe to their fund. Doubtless they contributed liberally. The bartenders seem to think that they are engaged in a great public service—probably a "tag day" would appeal to them as being a peculiarly suitable way of raising money for the carrying out of their plans. If they would spend as much time and energy in trying to adjust themselves to the inevitable as they are spending in the effort to maintain their business a few months longer, the hardships they complain of would speedily disappear.

WHAT MAKES BUSINESS?

We have no complaint to make because legislators seem to be deeply concerned about the effect their acts will have upon business. Material prosperity is, in a large measure, a condition of national greatness. But we do find fault with the assumption that the business interests of the country are represented solely by those individuals and groups of individuals that have amassed great wealth, and that their protection is the paramount duty in all governmental policies. The poor man who has a hard struggle to make both ends meet is entitled to as much consideration as the rich man who has more money than he knows what to do with. The "ultimate consumer" has as much right to a minimum price as the corporation has to a maximum profit. A good deal of the present unrest in the industrial world arises from the fact that business is thought of by a good many people as altogether a one-sided affair. If there were no buyers, the sellers would have a hard time. It takes both to make business.

THE ROCK OF MORAL HEROISM

By Wm. C. Allen.

I am the Rock. Black midnight falls;
The terrible breakers rise like walls;
With curling lips and gleaming teeth
They plunge and tear at my bones beneath.
Year upon year they grind and beat
In storms of thunder and storms of sleet—
Grind and beat and wrestle and tear,
But the Rock they beat on is always there!
I am the Rock!

—Charlotte Perkins Gilman.

At Santa Cruz, California, I have watched the huge waves march in great battalions up to the sea-cliffs and with a mighty roar fling their spray high into the air. The more yielding portions of the precipices have been worn away, making deep gashes or holes in the rocky formation, but the firmer sections stand like adamant against the savage assaults of the sea. So it is with the Christian character of many men and women. Their adherence to conviction makes them the unanswerable exponents of the religion of Christ. The following simple stories may help to interpret my meaning:

Not many years ago, in the reign of Edward VII, of England, the mayor of Doncaster was the late Joseph Firth Clark, a Friend or Quaker. During his mayoralty, the celebrated Doncaster races occurred, and the mayor received an invitation—a royal invitation being a command—to meet the King on the race-course immediately after the St. Leger race had been run. Clark refused the proffered dignity, replying in a strain that must have been appreciated by the broad-minded monarch whom he addressed. He wrote to Edward:

"I have a profound respect and regard for the most gracious King whom I desire to honor in every way as one of his most loyal subjects. Though I have lived in Doncaster all my life, I have never once attended the races, and did not, therefore, feel I could consistently break through the rule even for so great an honor."

This incident created a sensation at the time. Many people were scandalized because the mayor of Doncaster had declined to meet the King. But the moral value proved to be very great—an open blow had been administered to a demoralizing sport.

A few years since, Baron Morimura, president of one of the great banks of Japan and a commercial leader of that country, landed in America, and with his suite took apartments in one of the large hotels of San Francisco. Pressed with business cares and desires to avoid intrusion, he commanded that if visitors wished to see him they should be told he was out. Before long a caller unexpectedly appeared in his presence. The Baron was very angry. Upon investigation, he ascertained that a chambermaid had disobeyed orders and had acknowledged that he was in. He called for the disobedient servant and severely reprimanded her. She flung at him the reply, "I cannot lie for any man!"

After his anger had subsided Baron Morimura began to think. He became impressed with the belief that the strength of character indicated by the chambermaid must have been based on Christianity. He said: "Nobody but a Christian would stand for not lying." He commenced to study the Bible and became a secret believer. Finally, he made public confession of his faith and has been a sturdy advocate of his Lord from that day to this. It has since been his great joy to preach Jesus all over Japan, whilst his large influence and gifts have in numerous ways been dedicated to the cause of righteousness. So much for the fearlessness of a hotel servant! So much for the possession of genuine conviction and living up to it!

The moral heroism of some men and women is as impregnable as the rocks of Santa Cruz, and withstands the "curling lips and gleaming teeth" of sin and fear. This splendid heroism is what the world needs to-day. Shall we not practice it?

San Jose, Calif.

GOD IS IN IT.

By Rev. H. Walter Featherstun, D.D.

Rev. J. Lloyd Decell, in a splendid Centenary address at Utica, made a statement to this effect: In May, 1918, before the German drive toward Paris had been halted, and many feared that it could not be stayed, the proposal for a grand after-the-war forward movement to be started by our Church in 1919, involving the raising of $35,000,000 in five years, was made in our General Conference in session at Atlanta; and the proposal was unanimously adopted by the General Conference. So far as I know, the statement is absolutely correct. I have been a member of two of our General Conferences, and have read carefully the proceeding of most of the others, and know that it has been always difficult to secure a bare majority to vote for any proposal to increase materially the assessments. That this Centenary scheme should have received a bare majority would have been a surprise to me; but that it even should approximate to a unanimous vote is astounding, and calls for explanation. This is a time of surprises. America calling, training, equipping, transporting across the Atlantic an army, and staying the victorious onrush of the trained and seasoned troops of Huns at Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, and Argonne, and bringing speedily a victory to the Allies unparalleled in history, surprised the whole world—as Cardinal Mercier put it, "saved the world." Everybody knows that it was all because God was in it.

Our General Conference at Atlanta heard God's call: "Speak to the children of Wesley in the Southland that they go forward." Our delegates at Atlanta heard and heeded—they spoke, and the Church has heeded. This morning's paper reports that the Church has gone more than one hundred thousand dollars beyond the Centenary's "objective." Verily, God is in it!

Alas, alas! I have heard of some who have not heeded at all—of some churches who have not heard, who have no vision. That happened to Israel at Kadesh Barnea, and the result was an awful tragedy of the forty years' wandering in the Arabian desert until the men who would not heed and would not see the God-given vision that Caleb and Joshua saw were left in desert-graves, and the two old, faithful heroes led the sons of those dead ones to the conquest of Canaan. The men who failed when the nation called in 1917-18 have been branded "slackers" by universal consent, and the brand will not wear off. The warning is pertinent.

God grant that in the final count in this grand, God-ordered, glorious Centenary Movement there shall be no Methodist "slackers," bat-blind and mole-deaf! "None are so blind as they who will not see!"

Utica, Miss., May 29, 1919.

"It is impossible to work morally except through the individual. But the first duty, as it is usually the most imperative desire, of the man whose will has been renewed, is to see that other men also are within the care and the comfort of God."

THEN AND NOW.

By Rev. E. H. Mounger, D.D.

In the Nashville Christian Advocate and in other papers I read recently of the death of a preacher who aided in rescuing the passengers of the steamer Lady Elgin, wrecked on Lake Superior near the close of the year 1860. Three young men, students for the ministry in Northwestern University, at the extreme hazard of their own lives, did much in this saving work, swimming out into the icy waters after the perishing people. The name of one, who died not long since, I do not remember; the others were C. H. Fowler, afterwards bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Corydon Chamberlain, of Natchez, whose father was a merchant there.

All deserved the highest praise, and extended sketches of the rescue were published in Harper's Weekly, with pictures of the whole scene and of the three men who thus exposed their own lives for others. In these late accounts, Chamberlain's name is not mentioned, though he did as much as any other. The reason is clear, for while one is represented as inquiring with the deepest concern—"Did I do my whole duty? Did I do all that I could?" Chamberlin was never known to speak of the affair at all, avoiding it even when others were eager to learn of it. He did not want to be accounted a hero or to be honored for doing a plain duty. It was the true spirit of the Master—the man was willing to lose his life that he might save others, and the paltry praises of others were as nothing in his view. Across the lapsing years I desire to place a flower on his grave. I knew him well, as we were classmates in Centenary College of Louisiana, graduating on the same day in 1859; and all the other classmates are gone. When he chose the ministry as his work, every one knew that he was well fitted for it. He was a ready speaker and well equipped in every respect, with a broad mind and a large heart. Coming into the Mississippi Conference and growing constantly in influence and power, he filled important places until 1874, when he went westward to California, and there repeated the same devotion and successes. His ideals did not wither nor did his sacrifice cease until some years ago death came to this true-hearted servant of Christ.

Doubtless many of your readers have read and admired somewhat the little poem entitled, "The House by the Side of the Road." It is claimed that it was suggested by an incident occurring in England during the war. But nothing of the kind. Take your copy of the Iliad and turn to the sixth book near the beginning and you will find the same:

"Next the valiant Diomed, good at shouting.
Slew Axylus, the son of Teuthones, who had his home
In fair Anoba; rich in substance he,
And loved of all; for dwelling near the road,
He opened to all his hospitable gate."

Thus many things, rich and old, appear again. Mark Twain wrote the "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," and then found the same in the writings of a Greek author twenty-six hundred years before. Prof. Wright, who taught school in Port Gibson, used to say that the Greek Reader had in it more wisdom than any other book except the Bible. That phrase, "good at shouting," did well for its time. Shouting was effective in battle then, but would be worth little against modern artillery, and machine guns, and Browning rifles. So with boisterous preaching and lion-like roaring.

* * * * * * * *

The Mississippi Medical Association was held recently in Hattiesburg, when a large number of earnest and quiet men met here. They seemed to be intent about finding out things pertaining to their calling, and to be much concerned about original research. And it was intimated that they have become skilled also in political methods. Of all professions, medical men have had in the late war the greatest opportunities for discovery and advance, and they have used these marvelously well.

The legal profession was entirely shut out as—"Silent leges inter arma."

And there are those who intimate that the preachers are just preaching the same old sermons with different texts prefixed. Some of them went off on the "Second Coming" and were much disappointed.

One thing I observe as quite different between physicians and all other scientific men and theologians. The man of science just takes what comes regardless of the issue, but the theologian wants to prove what he thinks is best for his particular denomination. Any passage of Scripture that wars against his creed is to be rejected in short order; it can not be true.

The fact is, the great doctrines never collide with Scripture, but our little credal notions may do so, with much disaster to themselves.

Hattiesburg is becoming quite a city, and our churches, three in number, are growing as it is fitting that they should. All are well supplied in the ministry and have an earnest and faithful membership. Main Street can hardly be excelled in zeal and ability by any church in our whole domain. What do you think of a Centenary assessment of twenty-three thousand dollars and a contribution of more than seventy-eight thousand dollars and climbing higher? The presiding elder of the district, Rev. W. B. Jones, ranks among the strongest and best in all respects at home or abroad.

Hattiesburg, Miss.

THE CENTENARY STILL ON.

By Wm. I. White.

The Centenary movement is the greatest one in the history of Methodism. And of its kind, it is, perhaps, the greatest movement for the betterment of humanity that has been launched by the Church.

Within the last decade, the world has struggled as never before. Thrones have tottered, empires have fallen. Truly, God has dealt with nations as with individuals, and in every case the victory has been won, not by power and might, but by His Spirit. The power of men and arms, under the guidance of a divine providence, has "made the world safe for democracy."

Now, at this place government stops. Ethics fails to clear the way, and even civic righteousness as dealt out by man to man does not further interrogate as to what the final consequences might be if the end sought be not reached and maintained. This desired end is "democracy made safe for the world." Christianity has always led in every movement for good. The Church joined hands with the Government in winning a lasting peace for the world and mankind. And now, not stopping here, the Church purposes to rest neither day nor night till this great democracy over which the world is bent is made "safe for the world," and a universal peace, founded upon principles of justice, truth and mercy, can be proclaimed forever to the world.

This is the great object of the Centenary. The "Big Drive" may cease; but the movement goes on, increasing in velocity and momentum as it goes. It is evident that it will mark a crisis in the work and history of the Church.

Individuals will become more liberal, churches more prosperous and active; the fruit of the vineyard will be propagated; the religion of Christ will spread, and the Kingdom of God on earth will be further built up in His name. According to Christian writers, this kingdom "is a vital, social order, involving the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

There is a broad field for work. "The world," says Mr. Wesley, "is my parish." By the horrors of war, lives have been blighted, hearts saddened, homes wrecked and hopes blasted. "The harvest truly is plenteous." And in comparison with the great work to be done, and the few ready and willing to do this great work of the Church for the Master, to build up His kingdom, it is still true that "the laborers are few."

There is a call to service. Each one has his part to act in life. The Centenary gives him a chance and a place to work. The "Macedonian cry" can still be heard. It comes from Europe, from Japan, from Africa, from Brazil, from Mexico, and from other parts of the world. God has actively called through the cry of millions yet unsaved. The Church, "which is the bride of the groom seated in the midst of the Kingdom of God," has heard this call of God. Then should we hear this call of God and the Church? We should passively receive the call as from God, and actively respond to His will.

I do not think it is a question of what church, or what district, leads in this movement for good, but what lives will be won for Christ, what homes will be blessed in His love and made happy forever, what great good will be wrought in the kingdom of God.

Crawford, Miss.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE INTERCHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT.

(We give the following official statement conserning the Interchurch World Movement in order that our readers may become familiar with a subject that is attracting much attention throughout the Christian world.—Editor.)

The first national Interboard Conference of the Interchurch World Movement, in which nearly 500 representatives of almost two hundred separate denominational and interdenominational, missionary, educational and benevolent boards participated, met in Cleveland, Ohio, April 30-May 1, 1919. Seventy-six different denominations were represented. The Conference was called in order that the present plans of the Interchurch Movement might be laid before the delegates for advice and counsel. These plans were fully discussed and conclusions were reached of a character to permit of a fairly definite statement as to just where the Interchurch World Movement stands to-day.

First in its program is the proposal for a complete survey of the missionary and benevolent work and responsibility of the American Protestant churches, both at home and abroad. The object of the survey will be to show exactly the preparedness, or unpreparedness, of the church as a whole and of the denominations individually, to grapple adequately with their whole task. The survey will include an examination both of the work now being done or contemplated and also the unoccupied fields both at home and abroad for which the church has a definite responsibility.

The home survey will fall naturally into the divisions in which the various denominations are accustomed to regard their work . The comprehensiveness of this survey may be grasped by quoting from the report of the Committee on Findings which formally expressed the approval of the Conference to the plan.

"We understand that these surveys will not only cover those fields commonly classified as 'missionary' but will include all evangelistic effort: the religious nurture of children; the enlistment and special preparation of youth for Life Service; the educational system of the churches at home and abroad—general, theological, vocational and professional; philanthropic institutions—hospitals, orphanages, asylums and child welfare agencies; the means for the support of the ministry in retirement, as well as in active service; and the contribution of the church to the solution of the definite social and industrial problems of the new day of readjustment and reconstruction."

The foreign survey will include the total responsibility of the American Protestant churches for the entire world. The plans of both surveys are already approved and the work is under way. It is expected that these surveys will be the basis of the entire Interchurch World Movement program. They will make available for the first time in the history of Protestanism a sufficient amount of co-ordinated information to provide the basis for an adequate comprehension of the size and the difficulties of the Christian task, both as a problem in administration, and in the education of the Protestant constituency.

Second only to the surveys in importance in the Interchurch program is a plan of simultaneous education and organization of the denominations and their constituencies associated in the interchurch World Movement. By means of every available educational facility American Protestantism will be presented, according to a unified plan of campaign, with the exact facts with reference to its national and world responsibility.

Upon the information which the surveys supply, a world program will be reconstructed. This program will consist of the separate national and world programs of the associated denominations so related to one another that unity of effort and of presentation to the churches may be achieved. It will be possible not only for every individual church to know what its own part is in the program but also to know what is the part of every other church. In view of the vast complexity of the problems to be studied and the vast distances involved, as well as for the sake of systematized effort, the program will be built not on the basis of a single spasmodic effort for the immediate lifting of the work of the Christian church to its maximum high level, but on a five year basis. This will permit of the gradual setting up of the program with a view to efficiency and permanence. It is contemplated that at the end of the five year period the church ought to have reached a plan of effort which is adequate to the eventual accomplishment of the church's full duty.

Just as the world program will be planned on a broad base, so the Interchurch World Movement will be prepared to function through a five year period, if that shall be the ultimate decision, of which there is little doubt. In any event the Movement constitutes a strong co-operative effort of the American Protestant churches, both to educate their constituency to the duties of the new world, and to extend the work according to a unified and effective plan.

One of the most important objects of the Interchurch World Movement is to stimulate an adequate enlistment of men and women in the service of Christ, not only to meet the present pressing needs for Christian workers, but also to undertake the new obligations which any complete survey of the task of the church will reveal. This campaign also will be unified with a view to the systematic and carefully directed presentation to the Christian young people of the nation of the unlimited opportunities for Life Service with its attendant blessings.

In a similar way the work of the Sunday schools, of religious education in general, and all the benevolent responsibilities of the Church, will be surveyed and presented as a part of an adequate world program.

The Findings Committee of the Interchurch Conference made a statement with reference to the general nature of the Interchurch World Movement, which, in the light of the above plans, will bear careful scrutiny.

"To meet the natural and proper inquiries of our churches as to the character and purpose of the Movement, we deem it wise to state: that the Interchurch World Movement, is a co-operative effort of the missionary, educational and other benevolent agencies of the evangelical churches of the United States and Canada to secure the necessary resources of men and money and power required for these tasks; that it is a spiritual undertaking of survey, education, and inspiration; that it is an instrumentality of co-operation and co-ordination of administrative agencies, designed to serve, not to supplant them. It is this positive character of the Movement that we desire to exalt. At the same time to prevent misapprehension, we affirm our definite understanding that this is not an ecclesiastical movement nor an effort at organic church union. It will not disturb the autonomy or interfere with the administration of any church or board. Neither will it undertake to administer or to expend funds for any purpose beyond its own proper administrative expenses. It has a definite and temporary mission. It will not duplicate or conflict with other denominational agencies. It does not assume responsibility or authority in questions of church or missionary policy, recognizing that these belongs to the co-operating agencies and organizations."

The world program thus worked out on the scale of previous efforts in the local church, including a million financial campaign, a part of it for the educational institutions and hospitals, which will join in a simultaneous presentation of the needs of the work, to be followed by a united simultaneous financial campaign, to secure the funds necessary to underwrite the new program.

Most important of all in the present program of the Interchurch World Movement is the plan for united evangelistic effort to accompany the call for life service and the presentation of the plans of the world program. There is to be planned the most tremendous intensive spiritual cultivation of the nations Christian churches, working together according to a unified plan which Pentecostian use of term. The Interchurch World Movement is therefore in harmony with the general denominational spiritual programs now being launched, a spiritual movement of tremendous vitality. Great emphasis will be placed upon the development of the prayer life of the Church and upon the enlistment of a great army of intercessors.

Nothing is new in the way of united Christian effort has ever before been planned, much less undertaken. The issues of the war more particularly the issues of peace, and the general conviction which found expression again and again in the addresses and in the discussion at Cleveland, point, however, to such new spiritual hunger within the American church, such as a new desire for effective action, that many of the difficulties seem already eliminated. Apathy is disappearing and there is an insistent desire throughout the nation that the American Christian come forward with a plan of leadership and with a program which will be adequate to the new day.

BARDIS DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Bardis District Conference met in Oakland May 27 and 28, 1920. A large number of delegates and members were present. The business of the conference sessions was pressed forward rapidly, although ample time was given for sermons, exhortations, and discussions.

Bishop Mo. C. Kilgo was present and presided at the morning session of the first day. From first to last, the atmosphere of the conference was charged with his spiritual ministrations. The Bishop drew the hearts of his brethren to himself at the opening of the first session when he spoke on "Faithfulness in Preaching the Word." Following this talk, at the eleven o'clock hour on Tuesday, the Bishop delivered a moving and melting sermon on the text, "Receive ye the Holy Spirit," the conclusion of which witnessed much handshaking and brotherly fellowship. The Bishop's last sermon was preached Tuesday evening to a large audience, which gathered early in spite of the rain.

The other sermons of the conference were preached by Revs. S. C. Angelina, of Coldwater, and J. T. Lewis, of Charleston. Both of these sermons were earnest messages, true to the fundamentals of the faith, and greatly uplifting to the brethren.

The reports of the preachers revealed marked progress along lines of church building and improvement, increase in pastors' salaries, of revival interest, and also revealed the fact that Bardis District will be considerably beyond the Centenary quota when full reports are finished. A great revival at Tunica has added forty members to the church, while one at Charleston has added twenty-six. Other revivals in the district have likewise yielded increase for the Kingdom.

Much credit is due the presiding elder, Dr. R. A. Meek, for the success of all these enterprises in the district. His careful supervision, looking to the care of the country preachers and their families, has largely made possible the increase of $4,000 in pastors' salaries in excess of last year.

Rev. B. P. Jaco, Conference Centenary Secretary, was present and reported the quota of North Mississippi Conference over-subscribed. Rev. B. F. Lewis, of the Orphanage, and Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, were also present. The Methodist Hospital enterprise was further presented by J. B. King, Commissioner for the Hospital.

MELVILLE JOHNSON, Reporter

REMINISCENT—AN ECHO OF "ST. LUKE"

By Bryan L. Lowell.

III.

The Louisiana Conference seventy-six years ago set its face to the task of making its labor. Beginning with nine members, P. C. and 2 local preachers and about 3 preachers in charge and presiding there were organized five districts: New Orleans—W. L. Chase, P. E. Opelousas—John Powell, P. E. Attakapas—Wm. F. Brown, P. E. Monroe, Richmond Randle, P. E. Natchitoches—Wm. H. Tinsley, P. E.

There is no room to copy the entire list of appointments, and yet these men who met that eventful hour and laid so earnestly those early foundations, every one of them as they sleep in silence, many of them in unremembered and unmarked graves, deserves to have his name and charges rescued and we all need to in ourselves the honor of recording them. I have felt, as I have opened these old pages brown with the lapse of time, that I could not read their names, although only three or four are at all familiar, with covered head. It appeared to me that this cloud of witnesses for the gospel hovered near.

In New Orleans, at Poydras Church, Joseph Cross, D.D., was P. C. To the average Methodist preacher, simply to call the name of Joseph Cross would mean no more than to call the name of John Smith. In my early memory his name was much on the tongues of Methodists. He had a reputation as a "big" preacher, which he could well "nurse." His face, with spectacles, was often seen in the magazine literature of the Church. He was a "long time ago," endurance "giraffe." He was "soldier" out of numerous "high-steeples." Among the "ante-bellum" prominent churches he served was McKendree, Nashville, Tenn. In time, he became dissatisfied, and entered the "fold" of the P. E. Church. Afterwards some good Tennessee friend found him in a "hot" tavern—sent to organize a church in that town. He told his friend that the Methodists had never treated him so ill. He remained a year at Poydras, and in Louisiana, and passed on to other "green pastures."

As I have read the name of Richard Deering, I have wondered if this was the same man whom I met when he was old—a member of the Kentucky Conference; but all who could answer are gone to the same land he has. There were eight charges in New Orleans, and three societies of Germans. I wonder how and when our then promising work among the Germans in New Orleans and Louisiana failed?

In Opelousas District, there were ten charges. Lafourche and Houma were even then named. Baton Rouge had 102 members—Wm. H. Crenshaw was P. C. With the very beginning of the Conference's history, Plaquemine had existence, and Henry B. Price was P. C. Whoever now hears himself announced for Alexandria knows the "good plum" that has fallen into his hands. When J. W. Harmon was read out there, it was to a wide expanse of country, which made up Alexandria charge, perhaps. And so with Jno. M. Hamil and Zach. Thompson as they were assigned to Natchitoches.

The name of Shreveport had no place among the names on the ecclesiastical map of the Conference at this first session. There was, however, a "Caddo Circuit"—R. J. Harp, P. C. He had entered the Memphis Conference, two years before this, as a mere boy, perhaps in his teens. He was drawn to this new Conference, and was a charter member. The next year Shreveport was a charge, and R. J. Harp was P. C. He planted the early seeds of Methodism in Caddo—and in Shreveport—and long years afterward, when an old man and weary, he ended the journey in Shreveport, and gathered up his feet for the long rest. In our Methodism is a host, and if the giant type is Shreveport. Four church houses, two congregations, large salaries, eloquent and loyal preachers, and a college are there. R. J. Harp and the first humanities rushes, and lives to see much of the Church's magnificent growth. Mr. Harp, now one of the oldest charges, was a circuit. I think if Mansfield, for instance, a minister by a prominent church, paying a fine salary—and Dr. S. A. Steel, a man of rare personal qualities one of the most delightful preachers in the Southern pulpit. William, the old manor in McKendree church, and "forgetting of your great preachers. I think Dr. Steel is the greatest preacher for an occasion in the church." Mansfield 70 years ago, and Daniel S. Vickers as P. C.

I know what Dr. W. W. Holmes thinks about Lake Charles. He feels that a fiery jewel fell into his hands in November last. In 1847 there was in Lake Charles an agreement on all over the premises that then were—now vast rice fields—there was the Parish of Calcasieu, and as far as he was able, John R. Gill, P. C. served Calcasieu circuit. And as my friend Albert Lutz knows he was a "fat job" and the P. C. of Monroe realizes "the lines have fallen in good places;" but 72 years ago Thos. C. Thacker, P. C. served a large circuit and a colored mission. Mac, and Richmond Randle knew nothing of an elegant parsonage, good living, and an auto. Those men labored, and these have entered into their.

THE PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Port Gibson District Conference is hereby called to meet in Rolling Fork on Tuesday, July 6 at 2:30 p. m. and to hold over until the proper business is completed, which should not be later than the evening of Thursday the 10th.

The daytime through train, by which it will be most convenient for members from the south to make the trip arrives at Rolling Fork at about 2 p. m. giving ample time in Vicksburg for dinner.

The town of Anguilla, six miles from Rolling Fork and conveniently connected with it by rail and by train schedules, and withal well supplied with automobiles, will generously assist in the entertainment of the conference, and there will probably be preaching in both towns every night.

The churches of the district are requested to choose their delegates at once, and report their names to me and to Rev. T. J. O'Neil, the pastor at Rolling Fork.

It is important that the reports from the charges be all presented to the conference by noon of the second day, and in order that these reports be both brief and comprehensive, it is recommended that they be carefully prepared.

The local preachers, who are members of the conference by virtue of their relation to the Church, are requested to be present if possible, and if not, to send a written report of their work to me at Rolling Fork not later than July 5. As a matter of fairness, it is urged that, if possible, all the members be present at the opening session, and remain to the close unless duly excused by the conference.

GREAT PREPARATION FOR THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

Dr. Fred Fisher, of New York, who has been assistant executive secretary of the Methodist Centenary Drive, has been placed in charge of the organized effort to mobilize Methodism in Columbus, June 20 to July 13.

In outlining the campaign which he will place before 78,000 committeemen of the Methodist Church, he says:

"We must stress four things. First, this will be a big Victory Celebration. The Methodists of the United States have lived more in the past year than in any ten previous years of their existence. Now is the time for them to get together and celebrate their victory.

"In the second place, this is an opportunity for them to have visualized the scenes and activities of which they have been talking for the past year, but of which they have no personal knowledge. Of these 78,000 men only a negligible per cent has ever had the opportunity of going abroad. Here they get the trip around the world at their convenience.

"Third, this is the time to finish the job, to gather inspiration and information to enable the organized workers to carry out the program which has been mapped out for the next four years.

"Fourth, and most important of all, if the Celebration realizes the ideals which those who are back of it hold, it must be the inspiration for planning work for the next century. As we look upon the marvels that have been accomplished we should gather new faith and new zeal for enterprises that can be measured only in terms of another century. We must, in a word, gather ourselves together in a great spiritual purpose to strike the bull's eye."

Dr. Fisher indicated that 150 trained executives, in addition to the 78,000 volunteer workers, will stimulate interest in the Centenary Celebration during the next six weeks.

HATTIESBURG AND BROOKHAVEN DISTRICTS SHOW SPLENDID CENTENARY SPIRIT.

In connection with the Centenary campaign just closed in the Mississippi Conference for a pledge of $1,000,000 for missions within the five-year period, special mention is made of the Hattiesburg District and of the Brookhaven District.

In the Hattiesburg District the campaign was under the able, aggressive leadership of Mr. Victor M. Scanlan, of Hattiesburg, assisted by Presiding Elder W. B. Jones and Mr. K. T. Moore, District Chairman of Minute Men. So completely was this district organized by these leaders that by 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening, May 18, the entire allotment to the district, amounting to $140,000, had been pledged and the district was reported "over the top." Since that time $45,000 additional has been pledged; thus putting the district $45,000 over its allotment, without credits. The largest pledge of any individual church in the Mississippi Conference so far reported came from the Main Street Church, Hattiesburg, with a pledge without credits of $79,000. The largest individual gift in the Conference was made by Mr. W. S. F. Tatum, of the Main Street Church, Hattiesburg, in the sum of $40,000.

The Brookhaven District, with an allotment of $155,000, has reported a pledge of $200,000, with a fine spirit of response coming from all the churches in the district, the enthusiasm being quite as high in the rural churches as in the city churches. The District Director reports that credit for this splendid showing is due to the able leadership of the presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, and the District Chairman of Minute Men, Mr. J. E. Carruth, together with the united co-operation of the pastors and laymen. With becoming modesty, this District Director disclaims any credit for himself.

It is well known to those who have observed the movement in these two districts, however, that much of the success attained is due to the able service rendered and the fine spirit of sacrifice and devotion manifested by the district campaign directors themselves, Mr. Victor M. Scanlan, of Hattiesburg, and Mr. Virgil W. Youngblood, of Wesson.

MOTIVE IN SOUL-WINNING.

Methods will in a great measure take care of themselves in the matter of soul-winning. If this master passion possesses us we shall readily acquire such methods as recurring occasions demand. Individual souls require independent treatment. In physical life the specific remedy successful with a certain disease in one patient may prove valueless for the same disease in another patient. In the spiritual realm there is but one remedy for every diseased soul, but in treatment there must needs be variety of methods.

Our Lord followed no fixed rules. He adopted no inflexible system of homiletics. The adaptation of His sermons to the needs of each case is worthy of careful study. He healed one blind man with clay and spittle; He healed another by commanding the light to shine into darkness. On one occasion He lifted the sufferer by the hand; yet again He healed another by imparting power through the fringe of His garment. His sermon to Nicodemus condemned the flesh nature as utterly worthless, and emphasized the need of a radical second birth. In his conversation with the Samaritan woman He condemned the sins of the flesh. The one He bade look and be saved; the other, drink and be satisfied. Jesus preached righteousness to Simon, the Pharisee, but grace to the weeping penitent. He told the parents of the child raised from the dead to give her food; He commanded the friends of Lazarus to loose him and let him go. Thus did our Lord minister to the bodies and souls of the people in divers ways. He was neither hampered by traditions nor hindered by custom. And His work was neither fanatical in tendency nor lawless in purpose.—George Needham.

CLEVERNESS AND GOODNESS.

Beware of the places, in life's journey, where cleverness parts from goodness! A child may be very clever; but there are clever children who have no goodness at all.

God would have the two in campany—cleverness and goodness together—the two always moving along the same path. But the road to cleverness is one on which there are many partings of the way; and many and many a poor young soul turns aside and takes the path of cleverness without goodness.

That was the case with a school companion of mine. His story is so sad in itself, and so painful to tell, that I am almost sorry I require to tell it. He was one of the cleverest boys I ever knew, and he was as obliging as he was clever; and he was very comely. I think I see him still—tall, well made, with long waving yellow hair, and the bluest and happiest-looking eyes. Everything he did was cleverly done; everything he said was clever. He was far and away the cleverest boy at school. He took all the first prizes; and every boy in the school thought he deserved to take them. When he went to the university he took the same first place in almost all the classes. In the medical classes, to which he next went, he had the highest marks. And his career in these classes for two or three years was so bright with excellence that both professors and students were proud of him.

But long before the time I am describing, this bright and clever boy had turned aside from goodness: he scoffed at goodness. He went aside—trusting to his mere cleverness—to bad ways—to bad companions. He went to vile places and spent his cleverness on sin. Then he forgot his books, got careless in his classes—still trusting to his cleverness—and was actually turned back at the end. Then he got into debt, and took money which was not his own. Then, as many bad people do when they get into trouble, he blamed others for his troubles, and sent a letter to an uncle, in which he threatened to kill his uncle unless money was sent to him. Then, he was hunted out and arrested by the police, and shut up in jail, and tried and banished. And, oh me! then, in his far banishment, he became worse and worse, and at last was put to death for his crimes.

He parted from Christ's goodness. It seemed to him at the time that that was a right movement to make. He did not believe in Christ. The badness of his life made it impossible for him to believe in Christ. He was clever; and he knew it, and trusted to it, and entered on a path where cleverness was not the servant of Christ. The way seemed right to him, no doubt; but the end of it was death. His very cleverness died out of him. He himself died, while he was still young, the bitter, shameful death I have named, in Norfolk Island, over the sea.—Alexander MacLeod.

SPIRITUAL EXPERIENCES RETOLD.

The Experience of a Tyelve-Year-Old Boy.

August 14, 1808. I have had no particular besetment this week. Sometimes the Lord has shone upon my soul, so that I have been all in a rapture, and when I have been alone, I could spend most of the day in praising the Lord. August 21. I have been living to God this week. My chief delight has been in praying to him and praising his name. August 28. I have been beset by many vain thoughts and words this week; but by the grace of God I have withstood them. September 4. At times my thoughts have not been for the glory of God; but, on re-collecting myself I have turned my thoughts to him. September 11. Sometimes this week I have been happy in the Lord: at others my mind has been drawn away. September 18. I have been very happy in God this week. Praise the Lord. September 25. I have been tempted to vain thoughts this week, so that my mind has been drawn away; but by the grace of God I have been delivered. October 24. The Lord has been abundantly present with me this week, although I have had temptations from Satan. November 7. I sin before I am aware, and I pray unto the Lord to give a quick, discerning eye. December 26. I strive to keep "a conscience void of offense," by thinking in the daytime of something good that I have heard or read. December 30. This day, glory be unto the Lord, he hath given me power over sin. I can say, at the conclusion of this day, that I have not knowingly sinned against the Lord. December 31. Glory be unto the Lord, he hath given me power this day also, to overcome sin: and when the tempter cometh, he goeth out empty. January 1, 1809. Glory be unto the Lord. I have this day been filled with his fulness, and this my earthen vessel with heavenly treasure. January 2. This day my cup has run over with God's love, so that I have been enabled to say, "My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit doth rejoice in God my Savior." January 3. Glory be unto the Lord: He hath kept me this day so that I can say, "Walking in all his ways, I find my heaven on earth begun."—From "The Life of the Rev. Joseph Wood," by the Rev. Henry W. Williams.

OVER THE TOP.

A Centenary Victory Poem, by Mrs. Lee Lipscomb.

Over the top with the Centenary!
Ah me, but it was grand!
The soldiers knew they must be true
To God and every land.

Over the top with the Centenary!
Privates and captains, too,
Did their part with an earnest heart,
And the slackers were small and few.

Over the top into "no man's land"
Where souls that were cold and dead
Awoke to life, took part in the strife,
And for God are forging ahead.

Over the top with the Centenary!
We can sing the Victory song,
Take the world for Christ, whatever the price,
For right must conquer wrong.

Over the top with shouts of praise
God's Methodist hosts sweep on;
With songs of cheer and not a fear
The battle was bravely won.

Over the top with the Centenary!
There was victory everywhere;
The people gave, that Christ might save
The world from dark despair.

And the Angels looking from above
Rejoice at the glorious sight,
For they catch the gleam of a world redeemed
And brought into Christ's own light.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The District Conference of the Aberdeen District met in Pontotoc, Thursday and Friday, May 29 and 30. The conference was opened with a devotional service led by Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, who made a very helpful talk on Faith and Works, emphasizing the fundamental primacy of comprehensive, intelligent faith, and the necessity of a vital service program as the proof, flower and fruit of our devotional life.

The attendance was splendid in view of the rainy weather and bad roads. A number of visiting brethren were present, among them Dr. Meek, Brothers Dodd, Augustus, Gregory, Jaco, Hall, Selby, Gladney, Lewis and Black.

At the Thursday morning session, addresses were made by Mrs. W. D. Taylor, District Secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society, Rev. Robt. Selby, and Rev. M. M. Black. The sermon was preached by Rev. B. F. Lewis from I John 3:1, "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us."

Bishop Kilgo was present during the afternoon session and added greatly to the success of the conference. He asked particularly about the condition of our parsonage and churches, and the welfare of the preachers' families. He also inquired after the attendance on quarterly conferences, and paid a beautiful tribute to the old-fashioned Presbyterian elder, Baptist deacon and Methodist steward, and exhorted our office-holders to exalt their offices and fill them proudly and efficientiy. He also exhorted our members to hold family prayers, and stressed the importance of Christian homes for the nurture of our converts.

The preachers were called on for their reports and substantial advances were shown in membership, finances, and attendance upon religious services.

The following delegates were elected to the Annual Conference: W. T. Reeves, G. J. Leftwich, W. A. Boone, C. A. Lagrone, W. D. Taylor, P. W. Shell, W. M. Nesbitt, C. M. Harrison. Alternates: J. P. Young, E. D. Gilmore, Jeff Busby.

Mr. W. T. Reeves presented the report of the Centenary Committee, showing that more than $175,000 had been raised by the Aberdeen District, and resolutions were adopted thanking Director Reeves for his faithful and efficient service.

The Friday afternoon session was largely given to reports of committees, and reports from local preachers. Rev. B. P. Jaco and Rev. R. H. B. Gladney were given the opportunity to address the conference.

The features of the session were two addresses by Bishop Kilgo—one Thursday night, to the graduating class of the Pontotoc High School on the "Ideals and Traditions of the South," and one Friday morning on the "Revival Power of the Resurrection of Jesus." The presence of the Bishop was greatly appreciated, and his messages were enjoyed by all.

The next session of the conference will be held in Shannon. J. HOWARD BROOKS, Sec'y.

THE MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Meridian District Conference convened at Quitman, Miss., May 13, at 8:15 p. m., 1919, and continued its sessions through May 15, when the conference adjourned its business sessions to meet on the following day with the people of Quitman and visitors from the surrounding country in a Centenary Rally. The Centenary Rally was a success, during which many enthusiastic addresses were delivered.

All the pastors of the district were present, and many of the lay delegates.

Rev. Robt. Selby, Commissioner of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner of Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., Mrs. Sue Stuart Brame, Elementary Superintendent of Sunday school for the Mississippi Conference, and Miss Ella Wayne Ormond, Secretary of Woman's Missionary Society for the Meridian District, were introduced to the conference, and each in an interesting manner represented the work committed to them.

H. B. Watkins, W. J. Ferguson, C. M. Chapman, and V. G. Clifford did the preaching, and each hour under their ministry was an hour of inspiration and spiritual refreshing.

The following were elected lay delegates to the Annual Conference: S. M. Graham, C. W. Cochran, D. W. Heidelberg, W. D. Hawkins, Miss Ella Wayne Ormond, J. W. McNeal, C. G. Stokes. The following were elected alternate delegates to the Annual Conference: F. D. DeLabar, J. B. Holland, J. D. Fatheree, and D. C. Hull.

F. B. Gray and F. D. DeLabar were licensed to preach; and Eira Walter Riley, local preacher in the Methodist Protestant Church, was received as a local preacher in the M. E. Church, South, in the Meridian District.

On motion, the presiding elder was requested to suggest a day for prayer, that our boys and girls be called into Christian service.

In his interesting and forceful way the presiding elder spoke several times on different subjects.

The hospitality of the people of Quitman was unexcelled by any town that has ever entertained a conference, and so pleased were they with the task that they invited the conference to meet there next year; but after some consideration Brother H. B. Watkins' invitation was accepted and the conference will convene at Central, Meridian, for the 1920 session.

J. F. McCLELLAN, Secretary.

THE BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference convened at Tylertown, Miss., Tuesday afternoon, May 27, 1919, at two-thirty o'clock, with Rev. James T. Leggett, presiding elder, in the chair. He dispatched the work of the conference in a business-like way, showing intelligent interest in all the work of the Church and manifesting a spirit of brotherhood toward the members of the conference.

Tylertown was ready! The pastor and committees met the trains and courteous drivers sped away with delegates in their automobiles and delivered them to hospitable homes that were ready with wide-open doors to receive the delegates. They were also ready with a magnificent new church building that reflects credit on the enterprising spirit of the town, loyalty of the Methodist people, a progressive building committee, and the wise and efficient labors of the pastor, Rev. Henry A. Gatlin.

All the pastors were present at the opening session but four, and three of these came in during the session, which made only one absentee—Rev. W. W. Murray, who is held in high esteem by his brethren. Interested laymen were there from many of the charges and took an active part in the deliberations of the conference. The reports from the pastors and laymen showed the church in this district was at work and encouraging results had been obtained. The district led all the others in the Conference on amount contributed to Centenary fund, and prospects for genuine revivals are bright.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Revs. J. S. Purcell, W. W. Moore, W. D. Barrett, and W. W. Graves. Sermons were preached by Revs. W. W. Graves, W. H. Lewis and J. Loyd Decell.

Rev. John C. Chambers, Field Secretary, Sunday School Board; Mrs. S. F. Reily, representative of our Orphans' Home; Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Whitworth College, and Prof. J. Reese Lin, Millsaps College, addressed the conference on matters committed into their hands.

W. H. Morse was elected district lay leader, and delegates to the Annual Conference were elected as follows: W. H. Morse, R. E. Bennett, W. T. Denman, W. W. Godbold, V. D. Youngblood, W. M. Lampton, W. D. Davis and P. H. Enochs. Alternates: J. K. Dunn, J. S. Felder, Mrs. W. B. Lockwood, and B. F. Goza.

The district conference for 1920 will be held at Crystal Springs, in the new church building.

The presiding elder nominated and the conference elected an Ad Interim Committee as follows: W. H. Lewis, I. W. Cooper, J. L. Decell and W. W. Graves.

Various Committees looked after the several interests of the Church, and their reports, if accessible, would prove helpful to the membership over the district.

A resolution was adopted endorsing the movement to endow Whitworth College for $250,000 and requesting the Conference Board of Education to distribute its funds proportionate to the number of pupils in each school. Suitable resolutions were passed expressing appreciation of the labors of W. T. Denman, Conference Campaign Director; V. D. Youngblood, District Director; and Prof. J. E. Carruth, District Lay Leader, in the late Centenary Drive; also thanking the pastor and people of Tylertown for their generous hospitality.

J. LOYD DECELL, Secretary.

TO THE PASTORS OF NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The Epworth League Conference will meet in Holly Springs, Miss., June 17-19.

Please send the names of your delegates to Mr. J. O. Tyson, Holly Springs, Miss.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE

The Epworth League Conference for North Mississippi will be held in Holly Springs June 17, 18, 19, beginning Tuesday night, June 17.

The program is now about ready. A few speakers have not been heard from, but enough to assure us of a good live program all the way through.

It is desired that not only our pastors, League presidents and delegates be there, but that each church shall send a representative from its young people. If you have a Young People's Missionary Society, have them to elect a representative or have the pastor to appoint one.

We are trying to make this a Young People's Conference and invite your co-operation.

Sincerely,
J. H. HOLDER,
President of Conference.

THE BY-AND-BY BOY.

He lives in the house of things-never-done,
The by-and-by boy I know—
The lights of the windows are broken and out,
And they let in the rain and snow.

In-a-minute's the schedule he works on, you see,
And duty waits on a side track;
His intentions are good—there's no fault found with them—
The doing's the thing that they lack!

"And what happens," you say, "to the by-and-by boy?"
Let any one answer who can—
Unless he soon changes his name, he becomes,
'Tis certain, a Too-Late Man!

ABOARD THE SPECIAL.

By Horace N. Hill.

A group of railroad officials stood on the station platform late in the afternoon, chatting pleasantly, while an engine drawing an observation car and a diner slowly wound off a sliding onto the main line. At the farther end of the sheds a tall man, clerically garbed, strode nervously up and down.

"Look!" exclaimed one of the officials, pointing. "That fellow apparently has just missed the Limited and seems considerably put out."

"Bless me; it's Railroad White!" said another of the party. "Hi, there, doctor!" he shouted.

The tall man joined the group at once. It was indeed Railroad White, idol of all trainmen in Texas. His name, though, is not "White," but it suits this story's purposes. There are few railroaders in the Lone Star State who do not know him personally. In his revival work among them he preaches in railroad parlance, drawing his illustrations direct from the rail, thus commanding the most rapt attention and influencing the mental machinery of his auditors.

Dr. White explained that he was slated to address a meeting at the railroad Y. M. C. A. in Denison on the following afternoon, and that he had missed his train by a narrow margin.

"Dismiss your worry," said the vice president, laughingly. "This is our special approaching, on which we leave immediately for the north. We shall be delighted to have you come along; we'll promise to set you out at Denison in fine shape."

"Lord love you, boys!" exclaimed the grateful evangelist. "I'll run over and turn in my ticket and join you in a moment."

The shades of evening were falling. The travelers sat reminiscently over post-prandial cigars. The train drew up at a small station and the preacher stole unobserved from the car to the platform, ostensibly to stretch his long legs. Within the private car small talk progressed sporadically. Fully two hours had elapsed ere the officials noted the absence of their guest.

"Say!" the general passenger agent remarked, looking about, "what has become of the doctor?"

All began talking; none could explain the disappearance. The conductor was earnestly questioned; he knew nothing. "I'd swear he was not around the place we just left—some two hours back, I should say," he offered. "Not a soul was visible except a few station loungers when I passed Joe the high sign."

"Wire back and inquire," he was instructed. The conductor pulled the cord and shortly after, the special halted beside a telegraph stop. The official ran into the little office, and within five minutes was back aboard the moving train.

"The station operator," he reported, "says no stranger is to be located there. Looks like the good brother let us get away from him."

"Well," said one of the officials, regretfully, "isn't that too bad! Dr. White seems strong on missing connections to-day." And thus the matter was dismissed.

"Joe!" cried the fireman across the cab. "Look who's boardin' us!"

The engineer glanced up from the bunch of waste with which he was wiping his oily hands.

"Well, my word!" he ejaculated. "Welcome to our parlor, Brother White; whither bound?"

"Hello, old-timers; put 'er there! Just journeying up to old 661 to talk to the boys to-morrow. How's your good health, and are the switchlights of your general behavior trimmed and burning?"

"In the clear! Happy on the way, and no signals passed up!"

"Great! How is it with you, Fireman Jim?"

"Well, "the fireman replied, "I reck'n I'm trying to stick on the main line, doctor. (All right, Joe—there's the captain's highball). Yes; trying, trying! God took my baby from me two nights ago. Mamie said the Lord knew what he was doing, but I kinder doubt whether it was for the best or not. Can't see it. It's hard to trust God, sir, when he goes to work and takes from a man the thing he loves the most. I tell you, it's tough—awful tough! I—"

"Whoa, now! Throw in the air, Jimmie; release the sand! Don't look at it that way, son. I know how you feel about it. I lost two of my little ones, and their precious mother, too. Look to Jesus; he had everything taken from him, even his very life."

"Yes, I know that," Jim said hoarsely, eyes unseeing. "But I also read that Christ, when he prayed in the Garden just before they killed him, lost his hold and asked God not to make him drink from the bitter cup."

"Ah, yes; so he did, Jim. But he was a man, and he had feeling like you and me. Besides, you know he left the whole thing up to the Father before he rose from his knees. The manner of his death gave him his glimpse of hell, but he knew there was deliverance just beyond the tree. Stand up, Jim; don't you quit God now that you need him more than ever before."

"Brother White, I can't understand you. You have a way—"

"Softly, Jim; I have no way—it's the Lord's. Hah! You have given me a text for to-morrow! Will you be at the meeting?"

"Sure I will, and Mamie will come, too."

"Fine!—Oh, Joe!" The evangelist crossed the cab to the engineer's perch. The driver straightened and smiled.

"Want to feel of the throttle?" he asked genially.

"I am fairly itching to!" the preacher responded. "And I've still got my card, paid up to the scratch; I know every foot of this run, don't forget that!" With which reminder, the doctor parted his coattails, climbed upon the seat and grasped the lever surrendered confidently by the driver. Then the engineer said:

"Through orders; right of way! Call out when you get tired."

Time passed. The preacher-engineer, his collar turned up, kept his eye on the track ahead. The whistle sounded. On the left side of the big iron horse, the fireman muttered:

"What now? We have no more stop orders."

The special halted; five minutes later Jim repeated the conductor's go-ahead signal to the engine man. Wonderingly, yet dutifully from long habit, the evangelist nursed the throttle and the train gathered speed.

Light was breaking in the east when the special entered the yards at Denison. The long reverberating shriek of the whistle awakened the man stretched upon the coal. Jumping up hurriedly and rubbing swollen eyes, he began offering apology:

"Why, Dr. White—what can I say? You see, I had been short on sleep—that is—"

"Joe's been helping us sit up with our sick baby the past two weeks, doctor," explained Jim, brushing a grimy hand over his brow. The preacher looked at the engineer.

"Apologies are out of order, old-timer," he said. "Hah, look at me, will you? Ain't I a pretty looking preacher! Well, I don't care; this has been my most enjoyable night since I walked out of the roundhouse ten years ago! Here we are! See you both at 3 o'clock. So long!"

With a firm hand-clasp for each, the big-hearted man swung from the off side of the cab, walked around a string of freight cars and entered a closed hack.

"Main hotel—side entrance!" he ordered.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

THE CLOSE OF SCHOOL.

This month all over the land boys and girls, young men and young women, having completed the courses in high school and college, have joyfully gone through the commencement exercises and received their diplomas. They have been approved by their teachers and have received the congratulations of friends and loved ones. They have forgot the labors of the past. Their hearts are full of courage, and they have faith that the future holds success for them. May it he so!

One of the saving forces of the world is the pouring into it year hy year a great stream of young, vigorous life, uncontaminated hy contact with sordid realities, undismayed hy the gigantic difficulties to he faced, animated by high ideals and controlled by lofty purposes. It is this that keeps the stream of progress ever moving onward, and infuses the freshness and strength that save from ruin. There is driftwood in the great current, and sometimes dead things are found; but the pouring in of the floods of new life keeps the stream from hecoming polluted.

These years in school have heen a time of preparation. The discipline of the schoolroom has brought into subjection the restless spirit of youth, and the course of study pursued has trained the mind to think. To some this has meant more than to others. Some have heen willing to he controlled, and have made diligent use of the means of mental training. Others have shirked, and while they have finished the course, they have not received from it what they might have got.

But school has closed and now life has to he faced seriously. School has heen a serious matter, of course, hut the realities of life have not seemed so near. They were in the dim and undefined future. Now they are immediately at hand. What is to be done with them, what is to be made of them? This is the all-important question that confronts every young man, every young woman, whether a graduate of not. We all have to face it.

Many things have to be settled in choosing a life-work, hut there is one that tremendously outweighs every other. That is the thing of moral character. A young man may decide to become a doctor, or a lawyer, or a merchant, or he may choose to enter some other profession or business, but until he has done something more than that he is not ready to hegin life. He has decided what he will do to make a living, but it is infinitely more important to decide what he will do "to make a life."

The fundamental basis of decision is the right. There are many temptations in modern life, and unless there is an unconquerable determination to do the right at all costs, sooner or later there will he wavering, and after awhile the fall will come. Men have made a living by following the principle of expediency; hut no man has ever made a life by it. Character is composed of more rugged material than expediency. A choice between different courses of action does not always involve principle, but where it does there must be no hesitation in choosing the right. The young man or the young woman who starts life firmly fixed upon the foundation of principle has made a beginning which can but lead to success of the highest kind, no matter what else may happen.

In adherence to the right there is but one safe guide. By ourselves we may struggle on, hut at hest our strength is small. The boy, the girl, the young man, the young woman, in school or out of school, needs to make the acquaintance of this safe guide, who is no other than Jesus Christ.

WE MUST TURN THE TIDE.

Dr. Frank M. Thomas, the Book Editor of our Church, has hrought together some statistics from the General Minutes for 1918 which are of the gravest importance at this time. We reproduce them, as follows: number of traveling preachers, 7,771, a decrease of 26; number of local preachers, 4,948, a decrease of 211; number of members, 2,183,993, an increase of 19,301; numher of infants baptized, 24,844, a decrease of 5,695; number of adults baptized, 64,924, a decrease of 11,649; number of societies, 19,204, a decrease of 640; numher of pastoral charges, 6,578, a decrease of 234; number of Epworth Leagues, 3,458, a decrease of 337; number of Epworth League members, 116,975, a decrease of 14,441; number of Sunday schools, 16,701, a decrease of 578; numher of officers and teachers, 145,063, a decrease of 6,727; number of Sunday school scholars, 1,654,715, a decrease of 101,464.

When we take into consideration the general demoralization of the world during 1918; and the tremendous difficulties that we had to face in all our religious work, there is no occasion for undue alarm on account of these figures. In fact, we consider it an encouraging feature of the report that our Church had a net gain in membership of 19,301. But in the era of reconstruction upon which we have now entered, and in view of the general awakening concerning religious work throughout the world, we cannot he satisfied with anything less than a healthy increase in all departments of our work. We need to begin inimediately and press steadily an evangelistic campaign throughout the Church. We are prosperous in material things. We have formulated a great program for our world-wide activities, and, through the Centenary Movement, we have insured the necessary financial resources for our undertakings. But we must lay emphasis upon the purely spiritual side of our ministry if we are to maintain ourselves as a vital religious force in the world. We do not believe there was ever a time in our history when we needed to preach the doctrines of repentance, faith, and regeneration more than we do now.

We think we can already see signs of the greatest spiritual awakening the Church has ever experienced. The preachers are turning their thoughts more and more to the religious needs of the people, and the people themselves are indicating their desire for a great evangelistic movement. Now is the time for us to throw ourselves into the work of the Church with such consecrated energy as will insure a noticeable advance all along the line. We must turn our losses, if such they he, into a gain that will he commensurate with our resources and our opportunities.

IF YOU ARE BUSY, DON'T READ THIS.

We ourselves have lapses of memory—and so do some of our correspondents. Solely for the sake of stirring up their "pure minds by way of remembrance," we should like to call attention again to some simple suggestions that will not add to their labors, and will greatly lighten ours:

1. Do not use a lead pencil to write a manuscript that is intended for publication—use ink.

2. Write on one side of the paper only, and do not crowd words and lines together. Typesetters are paid by the amount of matter they set up—and they like to work fast. They lose money on poorly written "copy." The editor has plenty of patience, and all the time there is—hut his work is "middlin'" heavy.

3. The editor must know who the writer of an article is—anonymous communications are never printed.

4. Obituaries must not exceed 200 words in length unless the excess is paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words, and inclose payment for all over 200. Obituaries in verse are not "available" at all.

5. Write all names of persons and places very carefully. Do not ahbreviate words. The editor is a pretty good guesser—hut he misses sometimes. Abbreviated words do not look well in print.

6. Matters of paragraphing, spelling, punctuating, etc., are hard to handle, we confess—but do the hest you can. In case of deficiency, we have a pretty good supply of the letters of the alphabet and of punctuation marks on hand.

There are some other things we should like to call attention to, but we have forgotten what they are. We reserve the "right to print" more at another time.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

"We are rejoicing over the Centenary victory," writes Rev. M. W. Porter, of Blodgett, Miss. It is worth rejoicing over.

Mrs. G. W. McGaha, of Clarksdale, Miss., reads the Advocate regularly in memory of her deceased husband, who was a subscriber to it for many years.

L. Nesom, secretary of the Sunday school at Oak Grove, La., reports that the attendance at the school on May 25 was 65, and on June 1, 85. These figures indicate earnest and faithful effort.

Rev. C. H. Strait, of Johns, Miss., has the pleasure of reporting his Centenary quota pledged in full. His charge is in good shape, as those who know Brother Strait would naturally expect.

Rev. A. Inman Townsley, pastor of Felicity Church, New Orleans, assisted Rev. P. H. Fontaine in a meeting at Eunice, La., last week. According to information reaching us, much good was accomplished during the meeting.

Felicity Church, of this city, has assumed as a part of its Centenary offering the entire support of Rev. G. D. Parker, one of our most useful workers in Brazil. Brother Parker was a member of Felicity Church when he was licensed to preach.

Dr. R. A. Meek, who so ahly edited the Advocate for a number of years, spent several days in New Orleans last week, accompanied by his wife. The entire Advocate force was delighted to have a visit from him. He brought cheering news from the work in North Mississippi.

Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has announced that a joint quarterly conference for the city churches will be held at Rayne Memorial on Thursday evening, June 12, at 8 o'clock. Such occasions in the past have proved to be very interesting and profitahle.

We learn from a personal letter that the work of the Winona District, North Mississippi Conference, of which Rev. L. M. Lipscomb is presiding elder, is making steady progress along all lines. We are glad to say that we belleve there is a general forward movement throughout the Church.

We are indehted to Professor J. Reese Lin, secretary, for the information that Millsaps College has enrolled during the present session the largest number of students in its history—246. He states, also, that the morale of the student body has been unusually high. The contract has been let for the new dormitory, which will he one of the best buildings of its kind in the South.

The Editor had the privilege last Sunday of preaching to the fine congregation of Centenary Church, McComb City, Miss. The pastor, Rev. J. Loyd Decell, was assisting Dr. B. F. Jones in a meeting at Lumberton, Miss.

From a letter from Rev. E. C. Gunn, who has been serving as chaplain with the American army in France, we learn that he started on the journey to the States during last month, and expects to arrive the last of this month.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, in a business letter to the Publisher, states that his work is in fine shape, and that the outlook is promising for a good year. Brother Bowlin is serving the Cockrum Circuit, North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. A. I. Townsley being out of the city on an evangellstic trip, Dr. J. T. Sawyer preached at Felicity at the morning hour, Sunday. He reports that there was present a large congregation, which gave perfect attention to his message.

Brother J. B. Streater, of Black Hawk, Miss., one of the most prominent Methodist laymen of North Mlssissippi, was in New Orleans last week, accompanied by his daughters, Mrs. W. M. Meek, of Lexington, Miss., and Miss Ella Rivers Streater.

Sunday school superintendents of the Mississippi Conference are urged to observe Sunday School Day with appropriate program, and to send the collection to Rev. D. S. Harmon, treasurer of the Sunday School Board. Brother Harmon's address is Poplarville, Miss.

The Zachary and Slaughter charge, Louisiana Conference, went way over the top in the "Big Drive." Slaughter raised enough money to send the pastor to Columbus, Ohlo, on last Sunday. All things seem to be on the move for a big revival. Rev. Lastie N. Hoffpauir is pastor of the charge.

We acknowledge receipt of an invitation from Rev. and Mrs. R. Bradley to attend the wedding of their daughter, Ellen Portia, to Mr. Neal Prisock, on Saturday, June 28, at 10 o'clock in the morning, at First Methodist Church, Cleveland, Miss. After their marriage, the couple will make their home at Louisville, Miss.

Writlng from DeQueen, Ark., June 7, 1919, Rev. Theo. Copeland says: "We have just closed our district conference at this place, and it was a good one, too. I preach the Commencement Sermon for the High School at Mena, Ark., to-morrow. Mr. William Jennings Bryan speaks in my church on the evening of June 26, at 8 o'clock. He wiii be my guest at the parsonage."

Rev. J. M. Boykin, of Bossier City, La., gives a fine account of his charge in the Centenary campaign. Brother Boykin, in addition to serving faithfully his pastoral charge, has been attending the High School Department of Centenary College, from whlch he was graduated this year as the valedictorian of his class. He expects to continue his school work until he has obtained a college degree. All honor to him!

In a business communication received in which he sends us three subscriptions, for which, we thank him, Rev. M. E. Scott, of Black Hawk, Miss., says: "We are moving on well with our work just now. Our finances are in good shape. We will begin our revivals the first Sunday in July. I am glad to say Mrs. Scott is fast recovering from a very serious operation she underwent on the 19th of May in the Lucy Brinkley Hospital, Memphis, Tenn."

Rev. A. B. Barry, our pastor at South and East McComb, Mississippi Conference, has given himself unsparingly to his work and gratifying results have followed his labors. More than 80 per cent of the men in his charge have signed the tithing pledge—we know of no better record anywhere. Needless to say, the Centenary quota of this charge was largely oversubscribed. All departments of the work are well organized. Sister Barry has been in poor health for some time, but her condition is improving and she is able to render great assistance to Brother Barry in his manifold duties.

In a letter inclosing a communication for publlcatlon, among other things, Rev. C. H. Ellis, our pastor at Harrisville, Miss., says: "Our third quarterly conference is over and in some ways Harrisville charge seems to be rising on higher ground. We have splendid peopie and some seem anxious to do their best. Our farmers are now practicing the plan of less acreage and more intense cultivation. Harrisville has five appointments and not very near together. If the work could be provided with a closer and more intense plan of moral and spiritual supervision than can well be given as now arranged, I am confident conditions would greatly improve."

In sending in a communication, which is printed elsewhere, Prof. D. C. Hull, of Meridian, Miss., says: "I am enclosing a news item, with reference to the Hattiesburg and Brookhaven Districts, in connection with the Centenary Campaign now closing. The results in these districts are so outstanding as to make them worthy, it seems to me, of special mention. The Mississippi Conference, as you are no doubt informed, has pledged its allotment of $954,700, without credits, and when the final reports are in we will have pledged the million dollars which we started out for. All over the Conference the response has been most gratifying, although there are yet two charges which have not swung into line."

The completion of the Representative Church will be celebrated in Washington, D. C., during the week, June 15-22, with elaborate ceremonies. Bishops Hendrix, Candler, and McMurry are expected to be present, in addition to many connectional officers and other visitors. There will be preaching every afternoon, chiefly by former pastors of the church. The work that is being done by our General Boards will be presented at the evening services. Dr. Geo. S. Sexton, pastor of First Church, Shreveport, La., has served as executive secretary of the movement which has led to the completlon of this great church, and to him much credit is due for the creditable manner in which it has been accomplished.

Mr. W. T. Denman, who, as Conference Campaign Director, so efficiently managed the Centenary "Big Drive" in the Mississippi Conference, is confident that full returns will show that the Conference went well over the million-dollar mark. One of the finest records in the Conference was made by the Hatlesburg District under the leadership of Mr. Victor Scanian as district director. Mr. Scanlan is too modest even to want his name mentioned in connection with the results, but those who are in a position to know say that his enthusiasm, hard work and intelligent direction of the campaign had much to do with the fine record made. He is one of the many laymen who have demonstrated their ability to put big things "over" for the Church as well as for private enterprises. May their number increase!

Rev. W. L. Duren, presiding elder of the Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference, in sending in his third round of quarterly conference appointments, says: "There is nothing unusual in affairs up this way, though things are moving along fairly well. The second round of quarterly conferences showed very satisfactory improvement over last year. We have reached our Centenary quota; but not without credits. I collapsed the day following the opening of the drive, and was not able to get out until the drive was over, having had sore throat. Brother Gregory, of Central Church, lost his little boy, Gladney, on the night of May 23; and that, of course, hurt the Centenary in his church. Nine of my sixteen charges raised their quotas—two of them, Cedar Bluff and Mayhew, without credits. Six churches on other charges raised their quotas. Our figures will finally reach about $115.000, including credits."

REV. A. P. COX PASSES AWAY.

This communication announces the expiration of Rev. A. P. Cox. His death occurred on May 5, in the seventy-sixth year, dating from his birth, and the fortieth year from his entrance upon (into) the "ministry of the Gospel of Christ."

For many years this venerable man has, by profound piety, and love to God and man, commanded the respect, love and esteem of all his associates. He won distinction as an earnest, zealous, faithful and fruitful local preacher. He evinced the most stable patience ever witnessed by the writer in enduring the drastic pain induced by a most awful, long-lived malady. Scores of friends mourn this event. A suitable obituary will be furnished later.

On the morning of May 3, 1919, CHARLES, son of W. H. and Rosalie Rodabaugh, was snatched away suddenly from this vain world to a more congenial clime. Charles was a dutiful son, always ready to lend a helping hand. Weep not, dear parents, he has only gone before, watching and waiting for your fond embrace. God will give you back your boy on the resurrection morn.

AUNT ALICE.

Holcomb, Miss.

WILLIAM YOUNG, was born in Catahoula Parish, La., on January 8, 1835, and died at his son's (Ernest's) home on Little River on March 30, 1919, having passed the eighty-fourth milestone on the road of life. So his life was long—and we can as truthfully add—good. He married Miss Martha Elizabeth Hughes in March, 1856. She preceded his going by many years, having passed into the beyond in February, 1888, thus leaving him to be both father and mother in the rearing of a large family of children. But as in all other responsibilities that became his, he was faithful. Hardly had he begun life as a young man when the awful period of civil war came. He fought throughout that dreadful tragedy, wearing the gray. The South had no better soldier. When the cause for which he fought was lost, he, like many others, came back and helped to rebuild the shattered Southland. He was as true to this latter task as he had been to the former. He was as fearless as a lion, but as gentle as a woman, the very embodiment of self-sacrifice. One of his maxims of life was, "Do not unnecessarily trouble others." He joined the M. E. Church, South, in his early youth, lived by its rule and died in the faith. He leaves behind nine children: Edward Young, Jackson, La.; Ernest Young, Utility, La.; Mrs. S. B. Hanes, Jena, La.; Mrs. C. A. Wilkinson, Lavocca, La.; Mrs. J. P. Whatley, Eden, La.; Mrs. J. B. Ray, Greenwood, Miss.; Mrs. G. R. Hanks, Jena, La.; Mrs. J. S. Chenault, Gilbert, La., and Mrs. Henry T. Young, Jena, La.; two brothers, Jno. S. Young, Utility, La., and James H. Young, Monroe, La.; one sister, Mrs. Sarah Hughes, Monroe, La., and a number of grandchildren, and great-grandchildren.

He lived well and blessed the world.
As the setting sun goes home at night,
Wrapped in the glory of its own ray,
So he, who always lives for Right,
Goes thus along his way.

HIS PASTOR.

Jena, La.

Born July 30, 1850; died May 21, 1919, at Baton Rouge, La. These dates note the period of the earthly life of Mrs. M. E. MELSON, widow of Mr. J. H. Melson, East Feliciana Parish, Louisiana; two dates that mark the entrance into earth from eternity and the departure from earth into eternity. To her this period was, as to every child of time, one of joy and sorrow; the making and severing of ties; the welcome to the tender babe and the farewell to the aged father and mother. Sometime, she being a Christian, it seemed a joyous journey through a valley where flowers sprang, birds sang, and the rustle of angels' wings could be heard. Again, it would seem like a fearful journey through a valley darkly over-shadowed by the wings of death. Yet in each event Mrs. Melson's faith could feel that her Savior walked beside her and would safely lead her home.

It was this faith that made her life sweet and sane and whole; it was this that made her girlhood bright and buoyant, her young womanhood one devoted service to father, invalid mother and younger sister and brother; it was this that made her a faithful, comforting wife and the mother whose children rise and call her blessed. As the world counts greatness she has not achieved it; but, if to have done the common everyday duties in a cheerful spirit, if to have met the adverse vicissitudes of life with a smiling front, if to have borne serenely the afflictions of life as sent in love, if to have instilled in the hearts of sons and daughters integrity and honor and righteousness, if to have been unafraid of what time and death and hell could do unto her, manifested the spirit of greatness, it was hers, because Christ's "gentleness did make her great." She was led into this spirit of trust by the precepts and life of a sainted father, Rev. James L. Forsyth, a revered member of the Mississippi Conference for years and now numbered with the Church above.

The writer knew her as a girl, young woman, wife and mother, and he knows that the duties of these relationships were not merely discharged, but sweetened and sanctified by the spirit of the Master, and so had an added grace and tenderness that nothing else can give. It was this spirit that made her cheerful; it was this spirit that made her hopeful; it was this spirit that made her unafraid; it was this spirit that made her confident upon her dying bed and able to say, "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day."

In the quiet sunshine of the beautiful afternoon of May 22, her children, J. H. Melson, Charles A. Melson, Ben S. Melson, Mrs. S. B. Carney, Mrs. Laura Marchand, with her brother, Rev. W. L. Forsyth, an honored member of the Mississippi Conference stationed at Pascagoula, consigned all that was mortal of our friend to the grave in Magnolia Cemetery, Revs. C. A. Battle and J. W. Booth officiating with fitting words and the simple solemn service of the Methodist Church, of which she was a life-long member. The clods fell, the grave was filled, the beautiful flowers were placed upon the mound; and we turned away—friends, pastors, and loving kin—sorrowfully, yes, but knowing that

"As the star goes down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
So, bright in Heaven's jeweled crown,
She will shine forevermore."

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God in His infinite love and wisdom has seen fit to call our beloved friend and member, Mrs. E. C. Chunn, to her heavenly home, the Hermanville Methodist Church and Ladies' Aid Society have lost a faithful member and loyal worker; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That while we humbly bow to His will, acknowledging His wisdom and goodness, and thanking Him for her life of Christian service, we do most sincerely lament her death.
2. That we cherish the memory of her Christian graces, her patient endurance, and her cheerful submission during her sad and painful illness.
3. That our hearts go out to her family in the deepest sympathy in their sad bereavement.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent her family, to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, to the Claiborne County Reveille for publication, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Society.

Signed: Mrs. R. N. Scott, Mrs. L. E. Prentiss, Mrs. J. W. Miller.

Freckles

The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.

Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

Weekly Health Talks

Where Most Sickness Begins and Ends

BY FRANKLIN DUANE, M. D.

It can be said broadly that most human ills begin in the stomach and end in the stomach. Good digestion means good health, and poor digestion means bad health. The minute your stomach fails to properly dispose of the food you eat, troubles begin to crop out in various forms. Indigestion and dyspepsia are the commonest forms, but thin, impure blood, headaches, backaches, pimples, blotches, dizziness, belching, coated tongue, weakness, poor appetite, sleeplessness, coughs, colds and bronchitis are almost as common. There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and is so safe to take, for it is made of roots and herbs. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., stands behind this standard medicine, and it is good to know that so distinguished a physician is proud to have his name identified with it. When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that these remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

If piles are torturing you, get and use Pierce's Anodyne Pile Ointment. The quick relief it gives is hard to believe until you try it. If constipated, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken while using Anodyne Pile Ointment. Few indeed are the cases which these splendid remedies will not relieve and usually overcome. They are so good that nearly every drug store has them for sale.

UNITY PREVAILS.

By G. W. Barr.

Unity is a state of being one, which is a means of strength, and strength leads to victory. A great many little sticks bound together are unbreakable, while one of the same lot, taken separately, is easily bent.

The unity and strength of a home or nation is not complete without God. Gideon and his three hundred men won the battle and gained the victory over the great number of Midianites because their unity included God. When the godless heart of Germany, by trained and unprincipled might, set out to conquer the world, God moved upon America to stay her cruel hand and blast her murderous plan. The fires of American patriotism, with earnest confidence in God, burned out German butchery and gave relief to many sufferers.

Uncle Sam's soldier boys left their homes and loved ones with the word of God on their person, and in their hearts; they left these shores with a spirit of bravery, the mark of which has made the world glad. We sometimes think that saying too much for our boys would be difficult to do. They have been faithful in the battle for the relief of suffering humanity, and will be faithful now in giving relief to immortal souls.

We need all of our people in the missionary movement of our Church today. The Missionary Centenary presents to our people the greatest challenge we have ever faced. The Macedonian call for help has been heard, the battle cry has been made, and we must go. The Evil One is pushing his part of the fight, but a people united with God has the prevailing power. God as our leader will give us the victory.

Bailey, Miss.

FROM VANCLEAVE, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: At the middle of my second year on the Vancleave charge I have many reasons to rejoice in what has been accomplished, and in the prospects for the future.

To begin with, we received a cordial welcome, and every preacher knows what this means. Then we found a people who were ready to respond to our leadership; and no preacher can accomplish anything without the co-operation of his members.

Then we set about doing some things that ought to have been done. By the help of the Lord and these good people we have had some success. To begin with material things, and at the parsonage, we have made substantial improvement on the building, and additions to the furnishings, all of which were greatly needed. Just recently we have added many years to the life of the building with paint.

We found Mt. Pleasant Church storm-wrecked, and the members somewhat out of heart, for the same storm destroyed their crops, too. A second storm had almost ruined the building. The church has been rebuilt and painted, all of which is paid for. I know of no nicer church building in the country in our Conference. They have a splendid Sunday school, and have just recently bought a good organ, and a good supply of song books.

In addition to all of this, they have subscribed more than a thousand dollars on the Centenary fund, and are ready for a revival. What church that observed the Centenary program all the way through is not ready for a revival? My conviction is that this program has so strengthened the foundations of our faith and encouraged us in prayer and the stewardship of life that, as a whole, we are more ready for a great revival than ever before.

At the other churches, we are moving along in the usual way. Vancleave has bought a nice organ and supply of song books, and has had quite a revival in its Sunday school.

We think the spiritual condition has improved. Quite a number have united with the Church. The attendance upon the services is good.

Now for the revival season. If we carry out the Centenary plan, we will begin at home with our missionary work; and unless the church has a revival within it, how can it expect to extend the borders of the Kingdom? Intensify the work at home, and the extension will be easy. We are "over the top," with a good margin, in the Centenary drive. Yours to serve,

J. H. GRICE, P. C.

Vancleave, Miss., May 31.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

A French painter fitted up a cab for a studio, and went all about Paris making sketches of things he saw. He then transferred to canvas his sketches of scenes and incidents in the city's hidden ways, but put Christ everywhere among them. When the people saw the pictures, and themselves as they were, they were ashamed and startled at the frivolous life with Christ in the midst. Would it shame or startle you, O Christian, if some painter transferred to canvas your relationships to others in your home, church or community life? Jesus is in the midst of it all. What kind of picture does He see?—Selected.

You Can't Rub It Away; Rheumatism is in the Blood

Liniments Will Never Cure.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will?

Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain, and go after that. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain.

You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has never had an equal as a blood purifier and scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all trace of the disease from their system.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drug store, and get on the right treatment to-day. If you want special medical advice, you can obtain it free by addressing Medical Director, 23 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Strong, Forceful Men With Plenty of Iron In Their Blood—

These Are The Ones With The Power and Energy to Win

"Many a capable man or woman falls just short of winning because they don't back up their mentality with the physical strength and energy which come from having plenty of iron in the blood," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out-door Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron." It often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

We are planning to hold one or more institutes in each district in the Conference. One day will be devoted to the elementary work and one day to the young people and adult departments. These institutes will be worth a great deal to the church where they are to be held. Any preacher that cares to have such an institute will do well to speak now that the date may be set.

The Sunday school under the direction of Brother Ellis Finger, superintendent, at Ripley, is doing high-grade work. His teachers are taking the training necessary for such service. Rev. J. D. Wroten is in high favor with his people, but is in a hospital in Memphis for treatment for a few days.

During the past year the Southern Methodist Church lost 101,464 out of the Sunday schools. Dr. C. D. Bulla, our General Secretary, inaugurated a campaign to get all these, and more, back into the Sunday school. The date set for this membership campaign was May 12-24. Many took advantage of the offer for free literature and have had splendid success in winning people back to the study of God's Word. The need of the world about us demands that it be a universal effort. It is not too late to do this good work. Make yourself, or get some one to make you, do this worth-while job now.

We all know that our deepest need is a revival of vital godliness all over the country; a revival that comes in answer to importunate prayer; a revival of Holy Ghost religion that will show men the exceeding sinfulness of sin; a revival that will bring sinners, big and little, rich and poor, to their knees and to their Lord for salvation. Think of it, there are thousands of this generation that have never witnessed an outpouring of God's Spirit. Such a revival as we need is not going to come because we have made an offering of money for missions; and be sure it will not come by getting some brother to hold a protracted meeting of five or six days; nor will it come by hiring an evangelist to lambast the people, pull off religious stunts, and do a round. We have tried all these and other cheap methods, and who will say that they have accomplished what God wants done? The revival that we must have to save us is one that comes to the world through souls vitalized and filled with the Holy Spirit. May this Spirit make preachers, superintendents, teachers, all of us, willing to pay the price of full surrender to him, that the revival we need may come before it is too late for this generation.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

A most delightful district conference has just closed at Winnsboro. The presence of God's Spirit was felt throughout the meeting. The attendance of the preachers throughout the conference was noticeable. It was truly a coming together for worship and promotion of the Kingdom of our God.

Tuesday was Sunday School Day, and while we did not have an elaborate program, we did succeed in awakening a responsibility as to a district-wide Sunday school work. The presiding elder and the pastors cooperated commendably, and we had efficient workers for every department from which we could make a choice of leaders.

The following district officers for the Monroe District were elected for one year or until their successors are elected: District Secretary, C. E. Beard, Lake Providence; Elementary Superintendent, Miss Margaret Murphy, West Monroe; Intermediate—Senior, Mrs. J. B. Rawlinson, Gallion; Young People—Adult, Mrs. M. E. Gilbert, Gilbert; Missionary Education, Mrs. H. J. Norris, Oak Ridge; Teacher-training, J. P. Campbell.

The cordial good welcome of Brother S. D. Howard, our pastor host, made everybody feel at home. Brother Lutz kept his program moving all the time. It was a good meeting, and every soul was refreshed.

Please note that my headquarters are now at Alexandria.

JESUS' COMING.

I came across this verse in my daily Bible reading the other day: "Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts; for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." (St. James 5:8.) It came as a message to me, and I am passing it along to others. This message comes with more force, in view of the pan-world war, for I immediately remembered the words of our Lord to the effect that we should hear of "wars and rumors of wars." The time cannot be far distant when our Lord will come again, for everything seems to point that way. We may not know "the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in His own power," but it is ours to be ready when the Bridegroom shall come. Being thus prepared, we can joyfully say, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus!"—Alan Pressley Wilson.

GET A GOOD GRIP ON HEALTH

Look out for the unnatural weakness that indicates thinning of the blood and lack of power. It means that your bodily organs are starving for want of good nourishment; that the red corpuscles are fewer, unequal to demands of health. Hood's Sarsaparilla increases strength of the delicate and nervous, restores red corpuscles, makes the blood carry health to every part, creates an appetite.

If you need a good cathartic medicine, Hood's Pills will satisfy.

Swamp Chill and Fever Tonic

Have Dark Hair And Look Young

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known down-town druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

A DAY WELL SPENT FOR THE CENTENARY.

Several weeks since, the Conference President, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall; the New Orleans District Secretary, Mrs. R. H. Harper, with the Conference Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, visited Morgan City in the interest of Lafayette District work and the Centenary.

They were the guests at a Centenary luncheon, and carried to the women who gathered to meet them from Lafayette, Franklin, and other points, a message of fine inspiration and practical help.

Mrs. Harper presided over the after-luncheon program, at which time addresses were made by Mrs. Niebergall and Mrs. Holt on the Centenary. Miss Janie Watkins, of Lake Charles, spoke on "What the Centenary Means to China." There were several gentlemen present. Among those who responded with a pledge of earnest co-operation were Mr. Pharr, of Morgan City, Mrs. Crow Girard and Mrs. Kennedy, of Lafayette.

And thus it was, here and there, and in every place, the women have been working, as did the men, that the great Centenary of Methodist missions might be crowned with success.

Calomel Salivates and Makes You Sick

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you lose a day's work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

A DAY AT ST. MARK'S HALL.

We always have a plan, but it is unusual for us to follow it; still we accomplish more by having one. After morning prayers and a few early visitors, who have called up from the old courtyard below, have been attended to, we go to the office to begin work which is ever piled up ahead. First, the mail is opened. In it we find a letter from a couple who wish to adopt a baby. Will we please find one for them? Another letter tells of a lonely girl who has recently come to the city. She is a Methodist; will we please help her make ends meet? Another asks us to send a letter telling all about what we do at St. Mark's Hall, so it can be used in the missionary meeting. We are asked to write an article on "What the Centenary means to me as a deaconess." Another letter asks for a set of posters to be prepared for the Centenary exhibit at Columbus, Ohio; this will take a week of our time.

Finally, we proceed to the work of the morning. It may be balancing accounts, or writing a paper—a timid stranger comes in, an old grandmother, with a child to interpret for her. There is sickness in the home and they want the doctor at once, "Is he in?" We explain when he will have a clinic and promise to report the call to the nurse. They are satisfied and we resume work. Just as we begin to work again, another timid stranger comes in. He has brought back a lot of bottles for the druggist and assures us they are very clean. He lingers, and after some encouragement, tells that the mother of the family died with "the influenza." He wants advice about what to do with the children. Again we begin our office work, when the door is thrown open and some boys want to come in and play caroms. We inquire why they are out of school; they hang their heads and we have a problem of truancy to report to the boys' club worker. And thus the morning goes. We have not been able to carry out our plans, but we have long since learned to spell disappointment with an "h," and call it His appointment.

The other workers, who have been visiting for their departments, come in with most interesting reports. One tells of an old Spanish woman who was charmed when the Bible was read to her in Spanish. She laid her hands lovingly on it and said, "Oh, I do not believe I shall ever have one like that; I have wanted one so long." Of course the worker gave it to her. The only way the old woman could read it was by holding a magnifying glass to one eye and closing the other. We expect to have her eyes fitted with glasses soon.

Another worker comes in and tells of a noted courtyard on Decatur Street swarming with foreign people. On the very first floor is a charming looking young girl of about 17 years, who never leaves the house. The mother is dead and she has been the little mother since she was eleven years old. The father keeps her there. The worker tries to take some outside interest and hopes in time to change things.

The nurse returns and tells of a new baby for whom the mother had provided no clothes. This is another opportunity for service in which the women of the missionary auxiliary co-operate.

After lunch, the children begin to come for sewing school. It takes several workers to handle the group and get the rooms ready for classes. Later, the teachers come. Mrs. Brown has the story hour and tells a charming story written by her young daughter. The children show their appreciation by loud applause. After sewing school, the boys come to the game room and we have a lively time till the bell rings for dinner.

Only one worker stays at home—the other three plan to attend a Sunday school conference at First Church. Just as they are starting, a girl appears on the scene who proves to be the lonely girl of whom some one had written. She has been boarding at a miserable place and is afraid of the people. It is Saturday eve, her week is up, she has not thought to let us know earlier. The worker who meets her on the steps gives up her plans without a moment's hesitation. The head resident knows that this young woman has had a hard week and needs the inspiration of the conference—but instead she spends three hours walking the streets, trying to find a boarding place within the girl's means, and then finds only a temporary place.

After dinner, the older boys arrive. It is their club night. We try to make it attractive, for Saturday night has peculiar temptations for boys. They bring their violins and "music lends its charms to the evening." Later, some older girls come and are taken to the Sunday school conference.

We reach home at a late hour, our bodies very tired, but with the sweet consciousness that we have tried to serve His little ones. We commit our unfinished plans to Him, and, as the tapestry weavers who cannot see the design they are weaving, so we are hoping He will take these unfinished tasks and weave them into His great plan for the salvation of the world.

FROM SCOOBA, MISS.

I would like to say through the Advocate that there are many things to encourage us in the work here. On the 30th of March, we began our revival meeting at Scooba, and continued till the 13th of April. Rev. J. V. Bennett, our Conference evangelist, did the preaching, and it was done with earnestness and with power, which had the effect of bringing the people under conviction; and conversions were manifest. Twenty-one were added to the church, most of whom were received by baptism. Brother Bennett's sermons on intercession and stewardship were very helpful in the Centenary cause at Scooba.

Now the drive has been made and Scooba charge has subscribed more than the amount alloted to us, and we are getting still further subscriptions, which makes the pastor glad and the people seem very happy over the fact of having done so well.

J. T. ABNEY.

Poultry Expert Gives Away Chick Food

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd. Floor Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer to-day.—Adv.

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough,

Energy

THE WORK OF THE KIDNEYS is to filter and cast out waste products and poisons from the blood stream. When the kidneys are overworked, weak or diseased, the waste matter remains in the system and causes pains in side or back, rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness of joints, sore muscles and other symptoms.

When a person's kidneys are out of order, there is lack of energy, force, vigor, zeal and general effectiveness. Kidneys and bladder must properly function for anyone to enjoy good health.

Foley Kidney Pills

are prompt in action and tonic in their healing and soothing effect on weak, sore, overworked, diseased kidneys and bladder.

Mrs. Mary Henderson, Mt. Carmel, S. C., writes: "Before I used Foley Kidney Pills I was troubled with kidney trouble and my left side hurt me so I could hardly get up in the morning. Pain is all gone now and am feeling fine."

GOOD WORK AT HARLESTON, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We began our drive on time, and did our best to follow the plans before us. At two of our places, they were over the top in just a very short time. I, having had chills and fever, have not been able to get out much for a week or more, but our good people have been working hard and we are over the top. The Centenary has been a great blessing to our people on my charge. More of our people are working in our church. We have planned and are praying for a great revival all over the charge. We hope to have a nice church building at Hurley by Conference. Pray for us.

E. M. ALLEN, P. C.

Harleston, Miss.

FROM THE PRAIRIE AND STRONGS CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: This is my first year on this work (Prairie and Strongs). We have a liberal, broad-minded people. The stewards raised the salary $200 and have kept ahead paying the presiding elder and myself. Our work is small, less than 70 members, situated in as fine part for growing alfalfa as we have in the State.

We were kept warm on the subject of the Missionary Centenary until the drive was over, but we are proud of our showing. Our quota was $2750. We came over with $4101.50; besides our Sunday school pledges, which will be about $250. Too much credit can't be given our presiding elder, and Brother W. T. Reeves, our District Leader, also our own team, for the success that attended us and our district. It's a great move. God is in it. Surely a great revival will follow.

ON TIME AT AMITE, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: I see from press reports that some churches in the Connection report going "over the top" on the Centenary at one minute past twelve o'clock, Sunday. Amite City went over the top three minutes past twelve o'clock. That is to say, cards were signed and delivered into the hands of the campaign director, H. P. Forshag, sufficient to put us over with good margin by three minutes past twelve o'clock, Western Union time. We figured that a pledge was not a pledge officially till it was in the hands of the director. Of course, cards were already filled out, but they were signed and delivered in three minutes. Amite City will gladly take off its hat to the church that beat us on the foregoing basis. To be sure, there is glory enough for us all in the mighty achievement throughout the Church on Sunday, May 18, but I think it is due the church at Amite City that the foregoing facts be known. Your brother,

ELLIS SMITH, Pastor.

CONSISTENT.

By W. H. Patton.

The following quotations are from an article with the above caption: "In recommending that the ban be removed from beer and light wines, President Wilson has displeased the extreme prohibitionists, who want to go forward toward world prohibition, and who are intolerant of any halting and especially of any backward steps." The paragraph is wound up by saying, "Then we must remember that the President has never been a prohibitionist, always expressing himself in favor of local option."

In the early 80's a Mr. Moore moved from the country into Shubuta, and I asked him to join a Temperance Society; he said, "I have done passed that, I am a Pro-hi-bi-tionist." The Temperance Army has passed from Local Option and are Pro-hi-bi-tionists, and the whiskey crowd have become local optionists. It was too local and too optional; even after Mississippi secured prohibition, Alabama, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Kentucky shipped in intoxicants and thus continued the making of drunkards in our midst.

The article above mentioned is again quoted: "Our President could have concealed himself under a cloak of silence and in that way kept out of the storm which he has drawn around his head, but this is not his nature."

It is the general consensus of opinion in Congress that no bill will be reported out of Committee repealing the war prohibition act, but if it should be, that it would be defeated on a vote.

The brewers with unpronounceable names were the greatest allies the Huns had during the war. They and their cult are the greatest law violators in the United States. They are spending millions of dollars to corrupt legislation in cities, States and the United States.

The saloon, the point of contact between the public and the liquor traffic, has passed away never to return. The lucky ones who were engaged in the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, are those who read the handwriting on the wall" years ago and have gone into some business in which they have an inherent right to sell their manufactured goods and be producers of wealth, health and good government.

The great United States will never again be a partner in crime with the baleful traffic by legalizing the manufacture and sale of this product that robs it of its man-power, homes of their support, and makes man God's greatest work, something worse than a beast.

JUST A WORD.

Dear Brother Carley: The Centenary quota was raised here and at Doyline without any trouble. Haughton went over with its $3000 quota with the first in the Conference. Doyline followed on Monday with something over its $2200 quota. We have 21 signed tithers on the charge.

Of course you know about the Loving Cup we are holding for the Sunday School Board, because of the "little" collection we raised on our Children's Day last year. We are getting ready for Sunday School Day this year, and hope to keep the cup.

Some time ago, a certain brother told me that another brother told him that conditions are such in Louisiana that it is impossible to have a revival of the "old type" in our churches. Now, it may be that I would not recognize an "old type" revival, being a lad of only a few summers, but I am fully persuaded that we can have a meeting where things catch on fire, and folk forget that they are living in Louisiana. How do I know this? Answer: I was in one not many days ago. Where? Doyline, La. Who did the preaching? Brother Dan E. Kelly, Mississippi Conference Evangelist. What were the results? They can only be given in part:

1. It was planting time with the farmer—but Brother Farmer was there with all the family and everybody else.

2. Cold church members were warmed up.

3. The devil's camp was bombarded and many fine young men joined the Church, and are working for the Lord.

4. How many members did you get? Only fifty-two. What is the population of the place? About 200 souls. Is the revival still living? Yes, we have a prayer meeting every week that is a real live thing. We think our crowds are real good for a small church; of course they would look like midgets when compared to the city churches (?)—our average attendance is 62. There are many other things we could tell you about this meeting and our charge, but will have to do so at another time. Let us say that we believe that the fellow who thinks that we cannot have a sure enough revival in Louisiana is laboring under a delusion. Fraternally yours.

"A GROWING CHURCH AND A GROWING SUNDAY SCHOOL."

The above title is the slogan adopted by the Noel Memorial Church in Shreveport; and the record of its work for the first half of the present year has abundantly justified the watchword. A record of some of the elements of its development may interest the reader.

During the past six months, sixty-nine new members have been received, twenty-two of them on profession of faith. During the two and a half years of the present pastorate, 330 names have been added to the roll, which is almost as many as the total membership, 337, at the beginning of that period. The net gain for the period has been 209, or 62 per cent.

The board of stewards has adopted a wise and progressive policy of financial development, making, each year, a substantial increase in the pastor's salary and in other items of the budget where increase means enlarged service. This policy is rapidly placing the church on a basis of equality with the leading churches of the Conference and of the Connection.

The Sunday school has shown steady and remarkable growth, culminating in the recent contest, which has proved it to be the largest Sunday school in the Conference except those of First Church, Shreveport, and Trinity, Ruston. While the numerical reports gave Ruston the leadership in the contest, Noel Memorial was, in proportion to church membership, considerably ahead of all its competitors. The attendance for at least a half-dozen Sundays was greater than the membership of the church as reported at the last Annual Conference, while Ruston, at its highest mark, lacked two of reaching its church membership level.

The aggressive campaign of advertising conducted by the Noel Memorial Sunday school, under the able leadership of Mr. C. O. Beauchamp, the superintendent of the adult department, is said to be unparalleled in Sunday school history, and has attracted attention all over the United States. An incidental result has been to attract attention to the church and help all phases of its work.

The attendance for the nine Sundays in which Ruston was in the contest averaged, for Noel Memorial, 502, for Ruston, 584. For the entire thirteen Sundays of the spring, our school had an average of 446, against its own record of 231 for the same Sundays last year, an increase of about 93½ per cent. There is evidence that much of this increase will be permanent.

The development in the organization of the school has fully kept pace with the numerical progress, and probably no Sunday school in the Conference is more completely organized. Its Easter offering of $553 for the Orphanage was larger than that of any other school in the State except that of Ruston.

The other departments of the church are also well organized and active. The Woman's Missionary Society is alive and growing.

The Epworth League organization is now complete and efficient. Senior, Intermediate, and Junior Leagues are doing excellent work and showing substantial growth.

Our Centenary drive was a notable success, resulting in pledges of nearly $17,500 on a quota of $12,500, not including the credits, which would increase it to about $20,700.

The one thing so far lacking in the development of the church has been that we do not own a parsonage. Plans are now well under way to secure a suitable home for the pastor, which will complete our physical equipment.

The announcement that the College of Bishops has accepted the invitation of Noel Memorial Church to hold its fall meeting in Shreveport has given general satisfaction and pleasure, and will doubtless give us added inspiration.

Perhaps the most notable and encouraging feature of the development of the church is the indefinable but evident spirit of co-operation and the growing enthusiasm on the part of the membership of the congregation. This spirit is reflected in the fact that not infrequently we hear of persons moving to the city who try to find a home "near Noel Memorial Church." With such a spirit, it is safe to predict a continued growth and a constantly widening field of usefulness and service.

FROM BROTHER TOWNSLEY.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Brother P. H. Fontaine and I are having a real good meeting at Eunice—having genuine conversions at the altar of prayer at every service. We will close on Tuesday night, this week, as I am compelled to return to my work at Felicity. Brother Fontaine is doing a great work on this big circuit, which includes churches at Eunice, Gayden, Iota, Maxie, and Prudhomme City. He is in high favor with his people!

The last number of the Advocate was good, but, by the best part to me, was the good, strong spiritual pabulum you dished out to us on the editorial page. The article on that "duckbill auk," or what-you-may-call-it, was a "stunner." Shoot us again with these heavy loads! Your editorials are neither "exhaustive nor exhausting," but they actually (dictu mirable) oil the thought-cogs in the empty cranium of a busy pastor. Miracles still extant!

Please pardon my "buttin' in," but suppose you give us a "fetching" editorial on "Summer Meetings, or Revivals." I think we need some "new wine in the old bottles," or some new applications of old truths. You say you never was a great revivalist? Ha, then you are just the chap to tell the rest how to do it. Remember, old maids and bachelors always write the best books on "pedagogy and child training." Excuse this stuff! Pray for our meeting!

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ALL HOPE NOT GONE.

Several distinguished gentlemen have lately given expression to most pessimistic views concerning the future of the world. We are warned that dangerous influences are at work, that revolutionary doctrines are being propagated, that moral restraints are being weakened, and that we must be on our guard against a complete overthrow of a civilization that has been developing through the centuries. We ourselves are not blind to the evils of the present age, and we do not underestimate the strength of the forces that tear down. But we cannot find ourselves in sympathy with those who see evil and only evil continually. The world is not in its infancy, and this is not the only critical period in its history through which it has passed. The purposes of God have not varied through all the ages, and in strange ways he has wrought his will. We cannot believe that it will be otherwise now. If men should lose hope and cease working and praying, the future would be dark; but men will not cease to hope and work and pray. "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," and prayer is an indestructible instinct of the human race. Faith never gives up the fight—and it wins the victory in the end. We have seen too many rainbows after the storm to believe that the sun has been blotted out and eternal darkness is about to settle upon the earth. We have an invincible faith that the Kingdom of God is coming in spite of all indications to the contrary.

WE SHALL SOON KNOW.

According to dispatches from Paris, June 21 has been fixed as the time limit for the acceptance or rejection of the Peace Treaty by Germany. The statement is made that if Germany refuses to sign, the Allies will immediately put into effect a stringent blockade and take such other steps as will insure the full fruits of the victory that has cost so much to win. We have been patient, it seems to us, in dealing with a foe that has done everything possible to justify his own iniquitous acts and to make difficult a return to the normal conditions of world peace. We have full confidence in the ability and the determination of the Allies to finish successfully what they undertook to do in the beginning. We are not especially disturbed, therefore, by any suggestion that Germany may refuse to sign the treaty. We understand that all eventualities have been provided for. We shall soon know what the outcome will be.

WHAT IS THE REGULAR RATE?

A three-line dispatch from Rome states that the Capuchin monks have gone on a strike for double pay in officiating at funerals. The suggestion is strong that some religious institutions have become thoroughly commercialized. Some individuals are more concerned about money received than they are about service rendered. We wonder what the regular rate is, for a funeral in Rome, anyway. Protestant ministers do not look upon such services as commercial transactions.

WILL THE PRESIDENT DO IT?

Organized labor, led by Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, made a public demonstration in Washington on Saturday of last week against the enforcement of the wartime prohibition law. Mr. Gompers, according to press reports, declared that labor leaders would do everything they could to control the situation if the law should be enforced, but expressed himself as "apprehensive of results," and said that he could not foretell "what individual workers would do." Other representatives of the laborers, after declaring that there is little prospect that Congress will act favorably, predicted that the President would do so by proclamation. We do not know upon what grounds the prediction is based. The President seemed to be perfectly willing that Congress should bear the responsibility of repealing or retaining the law, although there is some reason to believe that the liquor dealers knew in advance that he would recommend its repeal. The members of Congress are usually in close touch with public opinion, and the fact that they are not disposed to make any changes would seem to indicate that they are convinced that the great majority of the American people want the law to go into effect on July 1. The President has been absent from the country for some months, and it is not likely that he is better informed concerning the state of public opinion than are the direct representatives of the people. We cannot imagine, therefore, upon what grounds he could defend his action if he should comply with the demands of those who have shown slight regard for the law in their agitation against prohibition. He will have to declare himself in the near future; we are greatly interested in knowing what position he will take when the "show-down" comes.

THE BLAME FIXED.

The responsibility for the continued high cost of meat has at last been placed. The United Master Butchers of the United States have issued a statement through their secretary in which they give the following perfectly clear and simple explanation: "When a butcher buys a beef carcass, he buys many different cuts. If the cost of business is kept down, his sales must show good volume on each sort of cut. If any cut is neglected, the neglected cut must be sold at a higher price, or the popular cut must help bear the selling expense of the unpopular." The rather hazy impression we get from reading the explanation is that the unpopular cuts cost more because they are unpopular, and the choice cuts are expensive because they are in demand. In any case, the dealers are not responsible for the high prices—the consumer is altogether to blame. We presume that all other dealers in foodstuffs who are engaged in the delectable pastime of charging "all the traffic will bear" will seize upon this explanation with avidity.

THIS PROVES SOMETHING.

According to a dispatch from Dallas, Texas, complete unofficial returns from the election of May 24 show that of the four constitutional amendments proposed, prohibition alone carried, with a majority of 20,075. The other amendments provided for woman suffrage, an increase of the governor's salary, and State aid to assist heads of families in obtaining and improving homes. The woman suffrage amendment was lost by 25,029 votes, the salary increase, by 85,767, and the home improvement measure, by 969. The predicted reaction against prohibition has evidently not struck Texas yet—and we do not believe it ever will. And we firmly believe that the same thing is true of the country at large. The people know what they want, and they want it now.

IT HAS BEEN DONE.

Captain John Alcock, an Englishman, and Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, an American, the one acting as pilot and the other as navigator, have made a non-stop flight across the Atlantic ocean in a Vickers-Vimy biplane. The start was made from Newfoundland on Saturday afternoon, and a landing was made at Clifden, Ireland, on Sunday morning, the trip having taken sixteen hours and twelve minutes. We are so accustomed to the unusual that this achievement will probably cause wonder for a day or two only. But it helps us to realize that we are living in a wonderful age. Nobody can tell what the morrow will bring forth. Jules Verne, by a strange intuition, described accurately many years ago the possibilities of submarine navigation, only to be laughed at for his pains. His "Trip to the Moon" may yet become a fact—who knows? Some of us need to adjust our mental processes to the new world in which we are living.

LET THEM SAVE ALL THEY CAN.

The present Congress, in which the Republicans have a majority, is priding itself upon the claim that it is saving the American people an average of $46,000,000 a day by scaling appropriation bills. We are glad that there seems to be a disposition to handle carefully the funds that are contributed to the support of the Government by the taxpayers of the country. It is usually an easy matter to spend the money of other people. We hope they will follow Mr. Wesley's plan of saving as much as possible. We suggest, however, that necessary expenditures in war times far exceed those in times of peace, and that no special credit is due our lawmakers for having regard to that fact. We overlook the tendency of all parties to make political capital in every way possible.

On and after July 1, the pre-war postage rates on letters and postcards will be effective—two cents per ounce for letters, and one cent for postcards. There will be no excuse then for not answering that letter that really should have been answered several weeks ago.

COURAGE, FAINT HEART!

Courage, faint heart! Thy Lord doth care
And he will send relief.
How often hath he heard thy prayer!
How often watched thy grief!

He now he bids thy soul be strong,
Upon the Lord to wait.
Have courage, all the way along;
He'll help thee—soon, or late.

The waiting time, so hard to bear,
Full soon shall pass away;
If thou dost cast thy every care
On him, thy strength and stay.

Have courage, then! Thy Lord doth care.
He waits to bless thee now;
He hears again thy earnest prayer—
Before him humbly bow.

In praise and adoration bow,
For all his mercies past,
For blessings that he gives thee now,
And hope of heaven at last.

A GREAT REVIVAL NEXT.

By Rev. H. A. Boaz, D. D.

The Centenary financial drive is over. Its results will abide forever. Our highest expectations were surpassed. A new day has dawned for the Kingdom of God. A new era for American Methodism is on. Our Church has been greatly quickened and other denominations inspired to undertake similar campaigns.

The great interchurch World Movement received its inspiration from the Centenary program.

The only disappointing feature was the failure on the part of many of our rich men to respond with large gifts. Where many large gifts were expected, only a few came in. It may be they are waiting to endow our schools a little later. Let us hope that they will catch the vision of a greater day and rally to the call of our schools in the near future.

The securing of this large sum of money was a great achievement. Dr. Beauchamp and all his coadjutors deserve much credit for the splendid work done and the brilliant results achieved. The whole Church was thoroughly organized, and with telling effect delivered itself on this objective. No military expedition has ever been better organized than General Beauchamp's army of Methodists. Greater honor awaits the genius of the commanding spirit.

The greatest results have not yet been achieved. Larger things are in the future. A great revival of religion must result from this campaign. In fact, it is already apparent. "The leaves are rustling in the mulberry trees," and a great spiritual awakening is at hand. The great fund that has been pledged is a sure token of a greater interest in spreading the Gospel throughout the earth. The Church has been awakened to a realization of its own strength.

The Centenary organization should be maintained and its attention now turned to the great work of winning men and women to a deeper consecration of life and a nobler order of living. The one great need of the day is a deeper spiritual life on the part of preachers and laymen and a greater passion for the salvation of lost souls. No mere wave of emotional excitement and religious fervor will prove sufficient. We need to preach the great fundamental doctrines in the light of this new day and look for an abiding spiritual power that will bring men in closer communion with God and lead them into the life of consecrated service. The day of regeneration is at hand. A great program must be planned and executed.

This age will not measure men's piety by loud professions, shouting or singing, but by their deeds of loving service. The need of the day is a revival that will bring better physical, intellectual and spiritual conditions for all men.

The Centenary campaign has revealed some of the latent forces of the Church, and great things will be dared by many congregations. At the Memphis Meeting of Conference Secretaries and Directors, a very successful manufacturer and layman in our church, Mr. W. E. Brock, from Chattanooga, made a memorable statement which shows the new trend of things. He had talked privately with me in the hotel lobby and so impressed me that I asked him to say the same things to the secretaries and directors. When called on by Dr. Beauchamp, he said, something like the following:

"I am sorry I was not called to preach, but as I was not, I desire to do the best I can as a layman. After the world war was in full swing, and the Government and Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. were all doing business on a new and much larger scale, I was ashamed that our Church was doing so little and remained so long on a pre-war basis. But when the Centenary campaign got under way the Church seemed to be on the new big basis, and I was delighted. The subscription of more than thirty-five million dollars seems a big thing, and it is, but greater things are in the future. This is but the beginning of what will follow.

"I have already called our Chattanooga District officers to meet at the Patton Hotel next Tuesday night. We are to put on a campaign to fill all the Methodist churches in the district. There is no inspiration in an empty pew. We expect to fill them. We want to give our preachers somebody to preach to, and will expect the preachers to have something to tell us when we come.

"While this program is on I expect to begin another campaign to raise two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to build, out of one treasury, seven new churches in and around Chattanooga. Some of our churches would not make a good garage, and yet our children are expected to attend Sunday school in these places and worship God under such uninspiring surroundings. We must build suitable places of worship."

The statement was received with much enthusiasm. It indicates what an awakening there is, at least, in some parts of the Church. Let us hope that many other strong laymen will catch the same vision and dare to undertake big things for the Church.

The day for the general awakening is dawning. Let every faithful soul watch and pray for the speedy coming of the Kingdom of God in new power.

"OVER THERE."

By Rev. Elmer C. Gunn.

Brussels and Antwerp.

The train for Brussels leaves Paris, Gare du Nord, at 7:30 a. m. Being an international express, it is one of the best the war has left this part of the world. The route is through Compeigne, Noyon, San Quentin and Mons—that is to say, through one of the most historic sections of Europe. It was at Mons, you will remember, that Britain's "contemptible little army" met the onrushing Huns in 1914 and checked them, though being outnumbered five to one; they were not able to hold them, and, retreating, they fought one of the most magnificent battles this war-scarred country ever witnessed. At San Quentin some of the bloodiest fighting of the war took place. From August, 1914, to November, 1918, it was never entirely out of shellfire range of one or the other army. At Noyon the French and British joined forces in April, 1918, and definitely checked the German menace after the British Fifth Army had been broken and shattered the latter days of March. Compeigne though under shellfire and frequently threatened was never taken by the enemy.

From Tergnier a city just north of Noyon and completely destroyed, northward for nearly one hundred kilometers, one passes through the heart of the wilderness of destruction wrought by the Germans in the famous "retreat to victory" of February and March, 1917. Over the ruins of a village one of the Huns posted a notice that said, "Look and wonder," and that is just what one does as he sees, on every hand, fine fruit trees cut off just above the ground; wrecked bridges that once afforded passage over canals, rivers, etc.; former villages of which there is nothing left but brickdust and broad fields so torn by shellfire as to require months of work before being fit to farm again—silent witnesses to the "completeness" of the German war spirit. For a long time to come this land will be nothing more than a desert, a wilderness, a no man's land of destruction, for even the home-loving peasant has so far been unwilling to undertake to live under the conditions presented by that waste.

Belgium is a surprisingly beautiful country. Doubtless because Germany expected to annex it bodily, there has been little destruction from Ostend and Mons, eastward and northward. Louvain, Dinant and a few other places have been partially wrecked, but not systematically destroyed. Brussels and Antwerp have little evidence of the invasion save in the matter of brass and copper and bronze fixtures, which were removed by the Germans for use in the manufacture of ammunition, and in the matter of memories, which only the passage of years will wipe out. Principally, Belgium is a manufacturing and mining country, though one is impressed with the many little farms and the pastures that may be seen from the car windows. No cattle were left the Belgians by the invaders. In a way, it was, at the time of the Armistice, like the South in 1865, save that instead of being overrun and mocked by a merciless crowd of carpet-baggers and an inferior race, she is given unlimited credit and permission to work out her own destiny, which is well. From Holland, cattle have been obtained and may already be seen on the hills, while America is furnishing food and credit and, together with England, raw materials.

One arrives at Brussels on the International Express from Paris at 5:30 p. m. and finds a city, historically great, with a present full of eager anticipation and the joyous realization of a new start, and with the glad promise of a future day of prosperity undimmed by shadows cast by the cloud of menace of the godless ambition of any nearby nation, junker or otherwise.

Under the careful administration of Mr. Wilson, food director, food has become more plentiful and less expensive than in France. This holds so far as the hotels are concerned, and that is, of course, as far as a casual observer may go in the matter of judgment. For $6 per day one may have a room and meals at a good hotel. Since the Germans removed all copper and brass fixtures, the bath facilities have, in most hotels and even private homes, not yet been restored. This is being rapidly remedied by the plumbers and gas men.

The Cathedral, the Royal Art Gallery, the Palace of Justice and the City Park are the show places of Brussels. The Cathedral is 13th-15th century Gothic. The Palace of Justice is a magnificent pile of stone and marble in the center of the city. From the ground floor to the dome is 325 feet, and by climbing 525 steps one may have a view which cannot be excelled from any building in Europe. One may have a panoramic view of the city itself, may see Waterloo, Charleroi, Louvain, Namur, and several other places. Across the top of the rotunda is an iron bar. It is said that on the day of the signing of the Armistice, a German officer crawled out to the middle of this bar and flung himself to the ground floor 325 feet below, his body making a lasting impression on the marble tiling of the floor. The Belgians seemed to have no feeling in the matter except maybe a regret that it didn't affect any others of the invaders the same way.

The Art Gallery has some very fine sculpture and painting. Chief among the former is Paul le Vigne's "Immortality," which is his masterpiece. Among the paintings a perfectly wonderful picture is "The Dreamer," by the Dutch artist, Maes. There are also some very fine works by Rembrandt and Van Dyke.

In Brussels, at the Tir National, early in the war, Miss Cavell, English instructor, was executed by the Germans. Her only crime against them lay in the fact that she was accused of assisting men of her own land and of Belgium to escape to France or Holland, a thing which to have kept from doing she must needs have been untrue to every better instinct of her British womanhood and have lost her ideals rather than imperil her life. She chose the better part, as did that woman of the long ago who endured criticism in order to serve her Master, and, unexpectedly to herself, was made immortal.

On May 13, Miss Cavell's body was removed to her own land, and, on May 14, was laid to rest in the village where she was reared. In a little room in the Tir National, I stood with bared head for a moment by the casket containing her remains. I also looked upon the place of her execution and stood by the grave from which her remains were exhumed in order to be taken home. She is one of the great figures of the fine history of womanhood. Stanton stood over the body of Lincoln immediately after his death and said, "Now he belongs to the ages;" we may well say the same of Miss Cavell. "She has done what she could" for the cause of civilization and Christianity—no more, it is true, than thousands of others would have done, given the opportunity, but one feels when standing by the place of her martyrdom that the world will be safe for us all so long as there are those that will die as did she.

I stood on the historic field of Waterloo, and, in my mind, repeopled it with the mighty forces that fought a gigantic battle there in June, 1815. Standing in the center, one may easily see the whole front of each of the opposing forces, and having been from Lille on the Western to Verdun on the Eastern end of the battle front of the late war, I could but feel that Waterloo is but a toy battle-field, with Wellington and Bonaparte children playing at war with the few thousands engaged—tin soldiers with toy weapons. This I say not because the years have removed these figures and this struggle far into history, but because I wish us all to realize the extent to which we have degraded ourselves as a world in the savage art of making war.

Antwerp is the most American, if I may use that term, of all the European cities I have seen. Thrifty-looking, clean, up-to-date in every sense so far as a casual observer may see, it turns one's mind back to the cities of our own U. S. A. The language is Dutch, though nearly everyone knows a smattering of English. This is the best port in Europe, its water front being along the river Schelde, wide and deep at this point.

Chief among the things to be seen in the city, one finds first, of course, the cathedral, one of the best in Europe—in the matter of architecture and art — and the art gallery which contains many world-famous paintings of the English, Belgian and French schools. It was my privilege to worship in the cathedral at 10 o'clock on Mother's Day. This was the first of the three hours of worship, the others coming at 11 o'clock and 12 o'clock. I was surprised to find in this service at least 2500 people and to realize that the others would have as many in attendance. The organ is beyond description. Within the cathedral there are four of the world's masterpieces in painting. There are "The Head of Christ" by Leonardi de Vinci, the "Assumption of Mary," the "Elevation to the Cross," the "Descent from the Cross" by Peter Paul Rubens, a native of Antwerp and her noblest son. Two paintings there are in Europe, to see which again I should be willing to travel from New York to Paris or Antwerp. They are both by de Vinci, both inimitable, both beggar description and both beyond any monetary value. They are "Mona Lisa" of Paris and "The Head of Christ" in Antwerp.

A striking thing in Belgium is that two languages are in use. Street signs, bill boards, announcements, notices, must all be posted in both languages of the country, French which is the court and aristocratic language, and Flemish, a form of Dutch and spoken by all the people of the northwestern provinces. There seems to have arisen no difficulty during the war because of a divided people. All were united in the business of ridding themselves of the invaders, and doubtless out of the trials through which they have passed these last five years an even closer unity will be formed.

One cannot feel in passing through Belgium that it will be long before her pre-war prosperity will be recovered. Looking at her shop windows, her fields, her railroad traffic, her apparently bountiful supply of foodstuffs, one feels that already she is far on the road to recovery, but the task is great and the lane is long. She must climb a weary way yet before she shall be able to stand on the hills of economic freedom. This generation has sacrificed its youth. Before reaching Brussels, I was told that I would find a city wilder in its gaiety than even Paris, that I would find a people given over entirely to rejoicing and pleasure, rioting and drunkenness; but only the casual observer could form that opinion. There are those whose trade lies in wine and song and these infest the streets as they do of all the cities of Europe, but their number is small. There are the men and women, young in years but old in experience, who are seeking to drown their memories for the moment in the wild gaiety of the white lights, but underneath it all, one sees the steady pull of the old head on young shoulders. There are no young people in Belgium. Her youth was burned by the fires of the German ambition and already she is beginning to realize it. With blood, with unheard of taxes, extorted from her by the merciless hand of the invader, with the fires of youth, Belgians bought the freedom of the world, and forever we shall owe them a debt of gratitude which to grudge would be a fatal mistake, and to forget an unspeakable wrong.

THE BIG DISGUST OF JONAS BATES

As Recounted by Bildad Akers.

The body of the narrative which follows has been taken from a letter which Bildad Akers wrote to Mrs. Turpin, Superintendent of the Centenary Religious Publicity Department, in response to her request for some homespun views on "Religious Literature." Mrs. Turpin, without any desire to reflect on the old philosopher, gave his letter to the editor of the Christian Advocate for decoding, renovating, and general furbishing.

The editor cannot say that he appreciates the job. Bildad could easily take first prize in hieroglyphics. He invariably writes with a hard pencil on some kind of glazed paper, a supply of which he must have bought at a sale. He has often said that in his schooldays he had "gone through" Smith's grammar and had actually figured with some credit to himself in a public spelling-match. This statement, if his friends were not so well acquainted with him, would cause a creaking in the joints of their confidence in his veracity. They cannot, at least, believe that he is friendly to grammar and spelling, for his speech, oral and verbal, is littered with mutilated fragments of those sacred things of the olden days.

So you can easily realize that the editor does not enjoy decoding Bildad's letters, and especially clearing the field of syntactical and orthographical mutilations, in fact, he hardly ever essays the latter service. Beyond leaving out certain parts, punctuating what remains, and slightly bandaging the most unsightly wounds, he gives the letter as it came into his hands. Here it is:

Dear Mrs. Turrepin,—I understand that you are the lady which has been runnin' the advertisin' bisness of the Cintuary in the Confearance orgins. I allow that what you want are some pints on relijus literchure. I've got 'em ready made from raie life—from my own pussonal experunce of mine. Show 'em to Ivry, and if he says so, let 'er go.

T'other day I went over to the store at the cross roads to get a couple of whang hailters for the mules. I run acrost Jonas Bates over thar. Jonas lost his Boy acrost the water last fall. You read about it in Ivry's paper. Jonas suffered a heap but it made a new man outen him. He had bin the stingiest white man in the whole wurld, ef not in the universe, but arter he lost Jim he wanted to give away all that he had to the Lord. Ef that ain't one of the best signs that relijun bad got holt of him I've shed my powers of jedgment, Mrs. Turrepin. The preacher made Jonas a stewart at the fourth quarterly and it was a fust-rate appintment too. We needed more relijun of a givin' kind in that bunch of stewarts. He tuk to the offus peart enuff, and the way he talked about it was a sight. He never had bin willin' to take it before bekase he thought it was a trick to get money outen him.

I had got my whang hailters and was right ferninst the cotton jin agoin' home when who should I meet but Jonas. He was goin' my way and both of us was afoot.

I seed at once arter I had made a pass at him with a few questions that he had a kind of misery on his mind and wanted to work it off. I sed "Jonas, you have been peart for several months. There's somethin' a pesterin' of you, ain't it?" "Yes, he said, "I'm on a plum disgust with myself. I would be willin' to swap two of my best hosses for one good second-hand kickin' masheen."

Well, to make matters short, he told me this tale consarnin' of hisself.

"I was up at Rolly yistiddy. I happened to run acrost Mose McGinnis, and we was standin' on the corner tawkin when Col. Mills come up. He knowed us both—knowed that we both was Methdists at Ebenezer. He said 'I've been lookin fer two honest men that is Methodists all mornin'. I've got a kind of church case affectin' some church property, and its mighty leetle I know about your church. I belong to the Baptisses, you know. I want you and Mose to come over to my offus fer a brace of minits. I want to bresh up on some church knowledge.'

"When we was in his offus he had me and Mose to set in frunt of him while he rared back like a rale lawyer what he was in his big offus cheer.

"The fust question he popped was somethin' consarin' the guvernmint of the Methdist Church. I kin remember the words he used, fer I've got a good memory ef I ain't got nothin' else. He wanted to know sumthin' about when the Methdist Church was organized. I told him as fer as I could remember it was about the time of John the Baptist and that John Wesley had sometbin' to do with it. He kinder looked quare when I said that, but I thought he thought I was pokin' fun at the Baptisses. He then said he had hearn tell of some kind of Chrismas Confearance away back in anshunt times. I told him Methdists never hold their Confearances at Chrismas time. He looked quare and reched for a seegar. While he was lightin' of it, I looked at Mose and Mose looked rale sad and trubled like.

"The Col. then went into church guvermint. He wanted to know what kind of guvermint we've got anyway. He said that he knowed it was of the Piscopal kind. No, I said, we like the Piscopals, but we ain't got nothin' to do with each other in church bisness. 'Maybe its Presbyterul' he said. This rather fired me, and I said that the Presbyterans is good peeple but they goes their ways and we goes our'n. The Col. cleared his throat and spit and said 'Its Congergational then, ain't it?' 'Yes,' I says, 'you've struck it there Col. We've got a sight of congergations and one of the best is at old Ebernezer.' Here I looked at Mose agin and he looked sadder'n ever.

"The Col. moved his cheer a leetle and popped this question to me. 'You Methdists have got a system of faith. You've bleeged to have. What is the cheif docterns you perfess which you dig outen the Bible?' This was the fust question. Bildad, which floret me, but I didn't let on but what I knowed. You know me, Bildad; Jonas Bates allers has some kind of answer to all question'. So I said Methdists believe in free salvashun and in practicin' the best economy in runnin' of the church. We believe in shoutin' and big meetin's and payin' the preacher his quarterage by the time he goes to Confearance et we kin. That's a purty good system of docterns, ain't it, Col? When I said that Mose groaned. It scairt me. I said, 'Mose, is that misery in your stummick struck you agin?' You see Mose is my neighbor and I have set up with him whole nights when he had his spells. Mose didn't answer but turned his face to the winder.

"By this time the Col. looked pestered like, sich as I have seed him zamin' of tuff witnesses. I felt sorter like I was on top so fur. I says to myself, Jonas, no Babtis lawyer kin turn you down when it comes to gettin' infermashun about your church.

"But at it he went agin. He says: 'Mr. Bates, you have Bishops, I believe. How many?' I didn't have to study any on this, I said, theres Dr. Killgo who used to run the college over at Durhams. He's one. That's Dr. Jubows who married in this State. Dr. Killgo lives in Sharlot. Don't know whethers he's got a church there or not. Dr. Jubows,—the Lord knows where they have sent him. They transferd him it striked me. Then, that's Dr. Atkins. He lived in Ashvil, but is now preachin' in Tennessy. Then that's—well that about all I know of to my 'zact knowledge.

"He stumped me when he axed me how many Confearances we have and how many members we have got. I made some kind of answer. The main question he axed was about our laws on church property. I told him every church owns its own property and has its title in a board of trustees of which I was one at Ebenezer. When I said this Mose had his misery to come back on him for he groaned agin and the Col. didn't look like he thanked me for all my informashun.

"Then I was knocked offen my pins by what Mose McGinnis done. Mose is ginerally quiet like. He allers heers in sluns whats goin' on, does a lot of readin, makes one of our best stewarts. He is pore, but he always pays his part and more to the church. He is what I call a good sitizen and a good Methdist, but you know, Bildad, he haint got his tongue hung loose as mine is, and is ginerally quiet like. Before I knowed it tho Mose had turned to the Col. and begun to speak. He said that he hated to change anything I had said but kerrect informashun was wanted and he was thankful he could give it. For once Mose's tongue was loose jinted. He made a regular speech and every word he said tood me plum between the eyes. I never felt so mean in all my life. He said it was a Chrismus Confearance in 1784 that the Methdist Church was orginized. He said we do have a Piscopal form of guvermint. He named all our Bishops and said they don't ride sirkuts. He told how many Confearances we have, thirty eight in this kentry in all, how many members, how our law is made. When he got to docterns he talked like a preacher, Bildad. He said aheap about universal atonement, jestification by faith, witness of the Sperit and a heap of other things. He said something' I never hearn before, that there are five pints in our Methdist doctern. He said that every bit of Ebenezer church poperty and all other of our church is secured to the whole Church and that it is not the Methdist Church as I told the Col. but the Methdist Piscopal Church South. I remember every word he said, Bildad, and I learned aheap that day. But jest to think that me the richest man in the county, d'rector of a bank in Rolly and who has axchally been to the Legislatur and is looked up to by all this part of the State should be turned down in a church knowledge match by Mose McGinnis. Bildad, I'm a fool. What is the mater? What's the kickin' masheen?"

We had got to the forks of the road by this time. Mrs. Turrepin, and we had to part. I had listened pashmunly to him, and now I felt that the Lord had delivered him into my hands so I could larn him a lesson that would be worth more'n a forchin to him.

I said to him, "Jonas you ain't no fool. You are just plain fool ignorunt. With all your money and fine house and fine clothes, and big proper way of talking and sense enuff to make money, you are just plain fool ignorunt about things which count most in this life, and so ignorunt that it is a plum scandle and explains why the angels has bin wonderin' a thousand year why the 'Old Ship of Zion' has never made the passage."

"The worst part of it is you have plenty of company. That's a site of high-fliers in the church who are counted larned who couldn't a made as good answrs as you made. Ignorunce in book larnin' seems to settle at the bottom in what you call the classes that has got the least money and s'ciety flashin' ways, but when it comes to ignorunce of the Church of Jesus Christ, why it seems to settle in them classes that has got the most money and shines highest in what you call s'ciety. For this reason the work of the Church is not carried on, as a rule, by them who has been most blessed in worldly means. In makin' money and cuttin' high wing they haven't tuk the time to larn much about the Church. Some of 'em has of course, but the bulk of 'em hasn't. Why, in this Cintuary them millions was paid mostly not by them who was most larned in books and in money makin but them who was most larned in things that belong to the Church of Jesus Christ. T'other bunch, I say agin, hasn't tuk the time to larn about the Church and what God is doin' and wants to do through it.

"Now, Jonas," I said, "the Holy Spirit last fall busted thru your tuff hide into your heart and for the fust time larned you somethin' about God—give you speritual knowledge. Now what you need is to larn something' of what he is and what he is doin' and wants to do through his Church. You caint love the Church when you are so fool ignrunt about it. Do you think I could have courted Liza unless I first learned to know somethin' about her?"

I took Jonas by the hand and looked square into his eyes and said: God bless you, nabor. This Cintuary has brought us to a time when God expects to make a hundred per cent outen every man like you for his kingdom. Go home and subscribe at once fer your Confearance orgin and fer Ivry's paper. No Methdist can have the larnin' that God wants him to have unless he reads his Church paper, no matter what Confearance it is. They can't larn you spellin' and grammar—you already know such truck—but they can larn you to live strait and be of some service to your church, which is a site better. Turn out a heap of that trash on your table and bring in good books and magazeens and the right kind of books. And nabor, don't feel so bad about Mose outshinin' you. Mose keeps up with the church. Go to his home and you'll fine the church papers and magazeens and other relijus literchure there. That tells why he put your light out. That tells why he makes a better Christian than you have bin and why he is so useful to the church. Goodby.

Now Mrs. Turrepin, I hope you think this is all right for your literchure number. So hopin' and in my rite mind and usual health, I sign myself with my left hand,

Yours till we meet agin,

BILDAD AKERS.

"PRINT AND PULPIT."

The Outlook of April 9 carries an article on "Print and Pulpit" in which there are some very striking observations, observations that will not fail to interest every earnest preacher and every honest seeker who will read them. The author says that "the first requisite of preaching is publicity," and that publicity can best be secured through the printed page. He says: "The Church as a human institution has never decayed and never will decay, but religion is so vital an energy that it is always finding new ways to reach people." "The common people still hear gladly, but with their eyes open to the printed page rather than with their ears open to the pulpit." "The transference of the pulpit to the printed page presents certain advantages both for the preacher and the hearer. The man who is inspired to inspire his fellow-man has fewer restrictions on the freedom of his utterances if he speaks on paper than if from the pulpit." "A man devout and devoted may feel greater freedom in a periodical than in a pulpit." Many a man may, often unconsciously, heed the printed word who would not have the temerity to enter a church, where his fellows may observe his reactions." "For both preacher and listener the printed sermon has the advantage of entire personal liberty." The author might have added that a much wider hearing may be secured through the printed page than through the pulpit, and that the wise pulpiteer uses the printed page, either for carrying his own message or that of others, as earnestly and as faithfully as he does the pulpit. He circulates the Church literature and encourages the reading of good magazines and books.—Exchange.

VALUE OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS.

The value of the religious press is eloquently asserted by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, in a recent statement issued to the general public. Of the religious journal it is said: "It has the highest political ideals; it is foremost in promoting good citizenship, education; first in establishing and supporting philanthropy. Equally true is it that the most worth-while portion of the religious element anywhere is that which subscribes to the religious press." It is strange that the value of the Church paper, thus recognized by the secular institutions, is so often unappreciated by its own constituency. It is true that the man who never sees his Church paper must remain in comparative ignorance of the wider vision and larger activity of his Church, and it is very apt to be true that this uninformed man is uninterested save in the life and work of his local Church.—Richmond Christian Advocate.

NEARLY AS OLD AS THE CENTENARY.

(The Nashville Christian Advocate).

The publication of the Christian Advocate really began in 1834 when it was established at Nashville and was called The Western Methodist. Revs. Lewis Garrett and John Newland Moffitt were the editors. In 1836 The Western Methodist was merged into the Southern Christian Advocate. Rev. Thomas Stringfield was elected editor by the General Conference. In 1840 Rev. Jno. B. McFerrin, D. D., became editor. In 1846 the name of the paper was changed to Nashville Christian Advocate. The word "Nashville" was dropped in 1858 when Rev. H. N. McTeyre, D. D., became editor. Rev. Thos. O. Summers was elected editor in 1866 and served until 1878, when Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, D. D., became editor. In 1886, Rev. Warren Candler, D.D., was elected assistant editor, and after two years, Rev. Jno. W. Boswell, D.D., was elected to succeed Dr. Candler. The General Conference of 1890 elected Rev. E. E. Hoss, D.D., editor and Rev. E. M. Bounds, D.D., assistant editor. The latter served four years and was succeeded by Dr. Jno. W. Boswell. In 1902, Rev. G. B. Winton, D.D., was elected editor and served until 1910. During this time Rev. S. M. Godbey was assistant editor. In 1910, Rev. T. N. Ivey, D.D., was elected editor. Rev. Jno. S. Chadwick, D.D., became assistant editor and served until the summer of 1918, when he was succeeded by Rev. R. S. Satterfield.

During all these years the circulation of the Advocate did not vary largely. The number on the mailing list ranged from 12,000 to 22,000. The Tennessee Conference for obvious reasons has always furnished the largest number of subscribers. It heads the list at present. The name of the oldest living subscriber is not known. It is nothing unusual for the editors to receive letters from those who speak of their having read the Christian Advocate for sixty years and more. The present weekly circulation of the Christian Advocate is about 38,000. During the recent campaign for new subscribers 23,000 names were added to the list. This means that the paper is now reaching a constituency of nearly 150,000. The Christian Advocate threw all of its resources into the work of helping to make the Centenary of Missions a success. It began to push this enterprise with all its strength from the very first, and week after week continued its efforts. During the Centenary campaign the Centenary matter contained in the Advocate advertising, editorials and contributions, amounted to more than 4700 narrow column inches, representing nearly 200,000 words, or more than four solid issues of the Advocate, or three volumes of good size of 200 pages each. The commercial value of all the space, according to reasonable advertising rates, would be worth more than $6000. This was part of the Christian Advocate's contribution to the Centenary.

The Christian Advocate's relations with the Conference organs have been most brotherly. It has been realized that there is no reason why there should be any competition between the Connectional organ and the Conference organ. Each supplies a need which the other cannot supply. Every member of the Church needs his Conference organ and also an outside general paper like the Christian Advocate.

The Christian Advocate is prepared to adapt itself to the fact that a new era has dawned for Christian journalism in Methodism. The war and the Centenary have wrought conditions under which the Church must suffer unless she be a reading Church in a sense never known before.

WHY THE MISSIONARY VOICE IN EVERY HOME.

By R. B. Eleazer.

1. Missions is the biggest business in the world. No person can be well informed who is not informed about missions.

2. Missions alone can make the world safe. Permanent peace, if it ever comes, will be the fruit not of treaties and leagues, but of the world-wide triumph of the missionary spirit.

3. Missions is the very essence of Christianity. Jesus was a missionary. Missions is Jesus' program. No Christian can afford not to know about it.

4. The Missionary Voice is the one magazine that represents officially the biggest and most important work of Southern Methodism.

5. Its thirty-two pages monthly are filled with interesting stories from the ends of the earth—China, Japan, Korea, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba, Africa.

6. Home missions figure largely in its pages—Wesley Houses, Immigrant Work, Mountains, Mines, Child Welfare, Social Service, Christian Education.

7. Interesting pictures tell instructive stories to even the most casual glance.

8. The Voice seeks to be a magazine of Christian world vision, vigorous, fearless, progressive—worthy of the support of every Southern Methodist.

9. The Voice is a magazine for men, no less than for women. If you don't think so, send for a sample copy and be convinced.

10. The Voice needs you. You need the Voice. Subscribe to-day.

MERIDIAN COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT, MERIDIAN, MISS.

Meridian College, has just closed the most successful year in its history. Dr. J. W. Beeson retires on account of nervous trouble after thirty-three years as college president, and is succeeded by Dr. Z. J. Edge, an experienced and successful college president.

The College awarded seventy-two diplomas and certificates, and conferred honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. George W. Matthews, of Fort Valley, Ga., who has attained much success in the Centenary drive; also upon Rev. Robt. S. Stewart, an alumnus of the college, who won distinction as a missionary in Japan and in the Centenary drive; also upon Rev. J. A. Smith, an alumnus, who has done excellent work as College pastor, and is now acting president during the threatened breakdown of the president; also upon Rev. E. J. Edge, the coming president of the College. Miss Nina J. Ridgell, the Dean of the Conservatory, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Music after twenty years of successful work as music teacher in the College; and Mrs. Jean Adams Haynes received the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature as a reward for twenty years of able service as teacher of English.

I will remain for the present as associated president and counsellor, but will retire from the active management. I believe the College is entering upon a new era of success and usefulness.

J. W. BEESON,
Associated President.

DURANT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The 28th session of the Durant District Conference met in Louisville, Miss., June 10, 1919; Rev. W. W. Mitchell, presiding elder, in the chair. The president opened the Conference with an exhortation to keep close to God, the Bible, and sound doctrine.

The attendance on the part of the preachers was good. Some were kept away on account of sickness in their families. Only a small number of laymen were present. Most of them were kept at home to battle with "General Green."

Rev. Robt. Selby, Commissioner for Emory University, and Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps College, were present and spoke in behalf of these two great schools. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, our Sunday School Field Secretary was present and had some good things to say. Bro. Gladney is a very earnest man and has the work intrusted to him wholly on his heart.

The reports of the pastors, as a whole, showed a marked advance over last year up to this time. Several charges have all the finances practically in full up to date. Three have the benevolences paid in full for the year.

The spiritual state of the church is, of course, never, perhaps, just what is desired, and yet we are not without fruits along this line, as 153 members have been received into the Church, 43 of these on profession of faith.

Bro. Walter Martin Hester, of Acona, was granted license by the conference as a local preacher. The preaching was done by Rev. G. W. Gordon, Tuesday, 11 a.m.; Rev. C. A. Parks, Tuesday, 8:30 p.m., and Rev. A. C. McCorkle, Wednesday, 11 a.m.

Resolutions were read and adopted by the brethren expressing their high regard for and devotion to the faithful and efficient presiding elder, who has so wisely and successfully led the forces of the Durant District for the past four years.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: W. C. Castleburg, R. E. Wilburn, J. Lem Seawright, J. T. McLeod, F. A. Howell, Parham Williams, W. J. Newsom, and J. T. Moore.

J. Lem Seawright was re-elected district lay leader. A rising vote of thanks was given Rev. W. C. Carlisle, pastor-host, and the people of Louisville for the generous and careful way in which they provided for our entertainment.

The Conference closed with a prayer of consecration and for a mighty outpouring of God's spirit before the Conference year closes.

C. A. PARKS, Secretary.

OPENING OF NEW CHURCH AT CLEVELAND, MISS.

The new Methodist church at Cleveland is completed at a cost of thirty-five thousand dollars. To build the edifice at present prices, the cost would be much greater. The first service in the new church will be held on June 22.

All former pastors are cordially invited to be present to rejoice with the people of Cleveland in praising God in this first service in the new church.

T. M. BRADLEY.

A CHILD.

A child am I, yet in me lies
  Part of the future of the race.
A child, in whom the good and ill
  Of ages past have left their trace.

A child—with right to dream and play;
  To grow just as God's flowers do.
A child—look deep within my eyes
  And you can read God's message true.

Protect me now, that I may keep
  The flag of freedom floating high;
Protect me—that the altar fires
  Of truth and justice may not die.

Protect me, for the Master said:
  "Let little children come to me.
And ye, whate'er ye do to them,
  Ye do it also unto me."

Protect me—ye of larger growth,
  Hear my appeal: Please take my hand
And lead me safely through the days
  Of childhood into grown-up land.

CALEB COOKSTOVE'S COUNSEL.

"Oh dear, oh dear!" sighed Billy Broom. "Will this spring house-cleaning never end? I've swept and I've swept all day long until I'm so tired I can't sleep a wink."

"You can't be any more in need of a rest than I am," rattled Delia Dishpan from her hook by the sink. "I'm so tired of dishes that I'm planning to spring a leak so I can be thrown on the ash heap. At least, that would be a change from dishes three or four times a day."

"I think it's change that I need, too," crackled Billy Broom. "If I could have Felicia Feather Duster's place and dust now and then, I'm sure I shouldn't get so tired of life."

"And I've always felt that I'd like to be Eva Egg Beater," confided Delia Dishpan. "She doesn't work all the time, but what a lively time she has when she does work, hopping and dancing about and singing at the top of her lungs."

"Miss Egg Beater is too noisy for me," remarked Billy. "I like quiet folk better. That's why I should choose Miss Feather Duster's lot. But, of course, I'd prefer to be myself some of the time. It would grow just as tiresome to do nothing but dust forever and ever as it does to sweep, sweep, sweep, until I feel as if every bristle I have is loose."

"You speak the truth, Billy," agreed Delia Dishpan. "I believe that no one who does the same thing day in and day out can ever get far ahead in the world."

Caleb Cookstove creaked and groaned in an effort to make himself heard.

"See here, see here, what do you young folks think of me?" he rumbled. "I'm the oldest inhabitant of this kitchen and I've done the same thing day after day for thirty years. The only rest I ever have is during the hottest weather of the summer, and then I'm not expected to move from my place."

"Yes, and where has work put you?" snapped Billy Broom. "Are you any better off in the world for doing the same thing over and over?"

"Don't lose your temper, my friend. I'm the one who should get hot," answered Mr. Cookstove. "I am growing old now, but I know that I am of more use to the lady of the house than I was when I first came here, for I've tried to do my work better each day and she has found that she can depend on me. She wouldn't trade me for a new stove, and it's all because I've learned to do my work well by doing it over and over. But if I had felt as you do, Miss Dishpan, and tried to make myself useless, I should now be sold for old iron and of not much use to any one. Why don't you brace up and learn how to do your work better, and when you prove that you are worth it and are not likely to spring a leak at any minute, the lady of the house may use you to hold her embroidered napkins while she boils them up.

"And you, Billy, should be ashamed of what every one says about you, 'A new broom sweeps clean.' Get a little ambition and show that you can do better as you grow older. I tell you, my friends, the folks that amount to the most in the world are those that do about the same thing day after day and do it better each time."

"Perhaps you are right, Mr. Cookstove," said Delia Dishpan. "I believe I'll try your way, anyhow."

"And so shall I," said Billy Broom. "You make me feel ashamed of my complaining."

"That sounds more hopeful," said Mr. Cookstove. "I must settle down for my night's rest now, or I won't be ready to wake when the master shakes me down in the morning. Good-night, my friends."

"Good-night," rattled Della Dishpan.

"Good-night," crackled Billy Broom.—Marian Churchill Graves, in The Child's Hour.

A GARDEN HELPER.

"I wish I could kill them all dead—every one in all the world!" cried Trot.

"Whew-ee!" said Uncle Jimmy. "That's a large order. What is it that you want to kill off?"

"Them," explained Trot, pointing a fat finger at a long pink worm on the wet sidewalk. "There was more, but Billy took them. He says it rained them last night."

"It didn't rain worms any more than it rained dogs and cats," said Uncle Jimmy. "Earthworms like the damp and they come out to enjoy it. That's the reason there are so many out this morning, just as there are more little boys and girls out on a sunny day than on a rainy one. Do you like potatoes, Trot?"

Trot's face brightened as she nodded her head.

"And carrots?"

"Course," said Trot, beaming.

"And strawberries?" went on Uncle Jimmy, picking his small niece up.

"Oh, my!" gurgled Trot. "Is it going to be a party?"

"It is not! You had a party yesterday. That ought to do a small girl for one while. But I was going to say that if you should go and kill all of those nice worms"—

"Nice! Uncle Jimmy, they're horrid!"

"If every single one of them should be killed off, by and by there wouldn't be any more potatoes, nor carrots, nor strawberries growing out of the ground for little girls and their uncles to eat."

"What has worms got to do with what we eat?" asked Trot.

"They have a lot to do with it. Aside from all the little fishes that are caught by means of angle worms"—

"Like Billy does," put in Trot.

"Not counting them, Trot, earthworms are great big helpers when it comes to food for us. They are forever busy burrowing and burrowing under the ground. This opens up passages for the water and air, and loosens the ground so that the tiny rootlets of plants can easily push through it to suck up nourishment. The worms eat the earth, too"—

"Eat it!" repeated Trot.

"Yes, they take the soil into their systems and probably get some food from it. Then they throw it out again in a richer form and this makes the soil much richer, so that plants will grow better."

"I 'spect they help father in the garden more than I do," said Trot.

"They always help and they never do any harm."

Trot hung her head.

"I only pulled up plants 'stead of weeds once," she said.

"Well, anyway, if all the earthworms disappeared, in time the soil would become so dry and hard and so poor that none of the vegetables and fruits you are so fond of could grow. Where now?" as Trot slipped off his knee.

"I'm going to put him on a stick and carry him to the strawberry bed," replied Trot, "He might as well be working."—Janet Thomas Van Osdel, in The Sunday School Times.

When the corn is nearly ripe it bows the head and drops lower than when it was green. In like manner when the people of God are near ripe for heaven they grow more humble and self-denying than in the days of their earlier development.—John Flavel.

Grace is determined to complete what it has begun, and to perform the good work until the day of redemption. The whole Church is given to Christ in covenant and every believer has his share in the blessed security. Looking at the internal strength of the Church, we may say it is endangered; but looking at the covenant, it is safe. God's honor is concerned to bring the Church through in spite of all enemies.—J. All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page, leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page, do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to pulled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE CHURCH PAPERS AND THE CENTENARY.

It is generally recognized that the successful carrying out of the Centenary Movement is the greatest achievement in the history of Methodism. The raising of more than $35,000,000 is a notable event in any undertaking; and the quickening of the spiritual life of the Church through the development of the prayer life and the acknowledgment of the principle of stewardship is worth more than all the millions of dollars that have been poured into the treasury of the Kingdom. It is not wide of the mark to say that the Church has entered upon a new era.

It is well understood, of course, that the idea of the Centenary Movement grew out of a realization of the religious needs of the world and of the present unparalleled opportunities of meeting those needs. It is not too much to say, however, that a full realization of the needs and opportunities came at first as a kind of inspiration to a few great spirits whose work made them peculiarly sensible of the obligations resting upon the Church to enlarge its borders and extend its work. The duty was perfectly clear to these few in the beginning; the problem that confronted them was to get others to see the duty as clearly as they saw it.

In this emergency, they hit upon the one way that was more likely than all others to bring about the result that was desired—they determined to begin a campaign of education that would bring to the "last man" in the Church the information and the inspiration that were necessary if great plans were to be formed and carried out successfully. The success of this plan hinged upon the degree of publicity that could be attained in a comparatively short period of time.

There were two ways of securing this publicity—and both of these ways were used intelligently, persistently, and extensively. The first was by the spoken word, and the second was by the printed page. We cannot overestimate the value of the thousands of speeches that were delivered by thousands of preachers and laymen throughout the length and breath of the land; without these speeches, the Movement could never have succeeded as it has succeeded. Full credit and all honor are due the men and women who gave themselves so unreservedly to the work of propagating the truth by means of addresses in public assemblies.

But it is our purpose at this time to call attention especially to the part the Church press played in making the Movement a success. The circulation of the general organ and of the Conference organs is by no means what it might to be, but these papers—every one of them—became the vehicle for conveying to thousands of people every week the Centenary message in all its forms. The Centenary authorities used full-page advertisements week after week; editorial treatment was given the Movement from almost every possible point of view; contributed articles covered every phase of the subject throughout the campaign. Every Methodist who read his Church paper had a degree of familiarity with the Centenary cause that made it easy for him to enter into its plans and contribute to its success. We are not presumptuous when we say that in our judgment the Centenary Movement could never have succeeded as it did without the help of the general organ and the seventeen Conference organs; and when we say further, that the success would have been proportionately greater if these papers were more generally circulated.

One of the great problems that confronts us now as a result of the Centenary success is to conserve and properly to direct the energies that have been generated and the resources that have been accumulated during the eventful months of the campaign. Many things must be taken into consideration; but we are as firmly convinced as we can be of anything that a largely increased circulation of the Church papers will do more than any other one thing to make permanent the benefits that have come to the Church through the successful completion of this great undertaking.

We read regularly all our Conference organs, as well as the general organ. They are uniformly of high grade, and the measure of their usefulness is limited only by the number of their readers. There is not one of them that does not deserve to have its subscription list increased by the addition of thousands of new subscribers; and we are convinced that nothing else would add so largely to the efficiency of our Methodism as a whole as the multiplying of the readers of these faithful exponents of the Methodist faith.

We hope that one of the next steps in the effort to develop our Church to its maximum efficiency will be an intensive campaign to put the Church papers into the homes of all our people.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, CAN ENTERTAIN THE CROWDS.

Just before going to press, the Advocate received a telegram from T. T. Frankenberg, of Columbus, Ohio, stating that Columbus is prepared to entertain an unlimited number of guests at the Centenary Celebration. Mayor Karb is quoted as saying that no matter how many thousands attend, the hearts and homes of the city are open to them all. James T. Daniels, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, says that Columbus can easily accommodate 300,000 visitors, the minimum estimate of the attendance, and that twice that number can be taken care of. Let nobody, therefore, stay away from this great Celebration for fear there will not be sufficient accommodations.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT AND ELSE.

We are expecting from a competent hand a full account of the recent commencement exercises at Millsaps College. It was our privilege, however, to be present on Monday and Tuesday of last week at some of the exercises, and we record briefly some of the interesting things that came to our attention.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the commencement exercises this year was the breaking of ground for the new dormitory. For several years the need of a modern, thoroughly equipped building for the accommodation of students has been urgent. The need has been recognized, but it was necessary to secure the funds before provision could be made to meet it. Rev. M. M. Black was appointed as commissioner of the college to raise the necessary amount of money, and through his energetic efforts the enterprise will soon be brought to completion. The building will consist of three units, only one of which will be erected at the present time. It will occupy what is, perhaps, the most beautiful location on the campus, facing the west on West Street. When completed, it will not be surpassed by any similar building in the State. A happy action of the Board of Trustees in connection with the dormitory was the decision to name the three units Galloway Hall, Murrah Hall, and Burton Hall, in honor of men who are inseparably connected with the history of the institution.

The exercises in connection with breaking the ground were informal and simple, but impressive. President Watkins presented Bishop Murrah, who spoke briefly concerning the significance of the occasion. The Bishop then lifted the first shovelful of dirt from the spot that will mark the corner of the north unit. The Bishop maintained his dignity throughout the difficult task of pushing the shovel into the hard ground, though it was not hard to guess that it was a real pleasure to him that he was not called upon to complete the excavation. The President of the college, the Trustees present, and other visitors then took their turn in following the example of Bishop Murrah. It is expected that the dormitory will be in readiness for the opening of the next session of the school.

A matter that we consider of the utmost importance was favorably acted upon by the Trustees—an increase of $400 in the professors' salaries was voted. Even with this increase, the salaries paid are, in our judgment, entirely inadequate for the kind of service that is rendered by the scholarly men who compose the faculty of the institution. The wonder is that educational institutions have been able to hold thus far in their service men who have suffered real hardships because of the financial sacrifices they have had to make. We feel not the slightest hesitancy in saying that the situation will have to change in this respect if our educational system is not to experience a deterioration that will make it utterly incapable of meeting the needs of the age upon which we have entered. Good teachers make good schools—and good teachers cost money. Of course, there was no opposition to the increase except such as grew out of the limited resources that were available for the increase. In fact, we found a strong sentiment, especially among the alumni, of making a considerably larger increase than was found possible at this time.

The Alumni Meeting on Monday evening was under the auspices of the Class of 1899 in celebration of its twentieth anniversary. Action was taken by the Alumni Association providing that hereafter each class shall have charge of the meeting on its tenth anniversary. It is hoped that this will result in the attendance of an increasing number of graduates every year.

The Literary Address in the college chapel on Tuesday morning was delivered by Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, of St. Louis. It was a scholarly and inspiring discussion of the kind of leadership that is necessary for the new age into which we have come. This was our first opportunity of hearing Dr. Holt, whose reputation as pastor of one of our greatest congregations—St. John's, St. Louis—is Church-wide. So far as we could judge, he made a fine impression upon his audience.

We heard high commendation of the sermons by Bishop John M. Moore, delivered on Sunday morning in the college chapel and on Sunday evening in the Galloway Memorial Church.

We were due at the meeting of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League, at Laurel, on Thursday morning. We took advantage of the opportunity to spend Wednesday under the parental roof at Ellisville, which is near Laurel and connected with it by an electric car line. No happier experience can come to a man than that of "going home"—home, where father and mother are, and other loved ones. Cares are forgotten and burdens are laid aside, and memory recalls a thousand incidents that stir the heart and make the eye grow moist. We are children again, but with a man's understanding of the tender love and affectionate yearning that have only grown stronger with the passing years. Truly, "There's no place like home."

The Epworth League Conference was a most profitable gathering, according to reports made to us. We regretted that we could spend only a few hours with that splendid company of young people who are intelligently and actively laboring for the maintenace and extension of the Kingdom of God on earth. We have been promised an account of the meeting for publication. We greatly appreciated the courtesy shown us by the Leaguers, and the opportunity we had of speaking a few words to them concerning the social life of the young people. Mr. W. D. Hawkins, the president of the Conference, is one of the most efficient League leaders in the Church.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Sunday school at Oak Grove, La., had an attendance of 71 on Sunday, June 8.

"Things are moving along well with us," writes Rev. Paul H. Grice, of Saucier, Miss.

Rev. T. B. Winstead, of Burns, Miss., reports that everything goes well on the Trenton circuit.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Cockrum, Miss., writes that his work is in fine shape, and that the outlook is good for a fine year's work.

Rev. F. M. Freeman, pastor of Parker Memorial Church, of this city, is assisting Rev. W. A. Mangum in a meeting at Bernice, La.

Mrs. Mattie Foster, of Alba, Texas, enjoys reading the Advocate because it enables her to keep in touch with many of her friends in Mississippi.

Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Castles, of McComb, Miss., announce the arrival of a daughter, Eleanor Loui, in their home on June 7. May blessings attend the little one!

Our church at Bunkie, La., has been greatly stimulated by the effort put forth in going "over the top" in the Centenary drive, according to the report of the pastor, Rev. Geo. Fox.

We are greatly indebted to Jewel Campbell, a fine twelve-year old boy, for securing six subscriptions to the Advocate at Norfield, Miss. Rev. Waldo W. Moore is our pastor at that point.

The Lake Arthur Camp Meeting will begin at Lake Arthur, La., on July 17, and continue for ten days. The meeting will be in charge of Dr. S. A. Danford, who will be assisted by the local pastors.

Chaplain J. A. Randolph, of the United States Army, is spending a few days with his family at his home in Memphis, Tenn. He will visit relatives and friends in Mississippi before returning to his post.

Rev. W. F. Rogers, of Oakland, Miss., hopes to be able to put the Advocate into the homes of all his people. We hope that he will be successful in his efforts to do so. He reports that his work is in good shape.

Mrs. J. C. Ross, of Flora, Miss., has been a subscriber to the Advocate since the days when Dr. Linus Parker was its editor. She is personally acqualnted with most of the preachers of the Mississippi Conference.

Rev. H. E. Carter, of Tunica, Miss., has recently been confined to his bed by illness, though his condition is improved now. Mrs. Carter, who was recently in a hospital for treatment, has returned to her home and is gaining in strength.

Rev. C. H. Ellis, of the Harrisville charge, Mississippi Conference, is one of the Advocate's most loyal friends and supporters. He has put the paper into the homes of many of his people this year. We pray that it may be a blessing to all of them.

Rev. Harry W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, Louisiana Conference, is not without honor in his own community. His friends of First Church, Baton Rouge, have complimented him with a trip to Columbus, Ohio, to attend the Centenary Celebration.

Rev. C. F. Emery, the pastor of Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, Miss., was a visitor to New Orleans on Monday of this week and honored the Advocate office with a call. It was a pleasure to shake hands with him, and to hear good things of Hattiesburg Methodism.

As an expression of its appreciation of his services, our church at Senatobia, Miss., has given its pastor, Rev. A. T. McIlwain, a trip to Columbus, Ohio, to attend the Centenary Celebration. We trust that this example will be followed by many other congregations in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Mrs. S. M. Carathers, of Lisbon, La., has been duly designated by her quarterly conference to look after the interests of the Advocate in her church. She has accepted the appointment cheerfully, and is meeting with success in her work. We appreciate her efforts in behalf of the Conference organ.

The World League Against Alcoholism was organized at the recent meeting of the Anti-Saloon League Convention in Washington, D. C. An executive committee of fifteen was appointed, with Bishop James Cannon, Jr., as chairman. The first World Convention will be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1920.

Rev. H. R. McKee, pastor of Seventh Avenue Church, Meridian, Miss., and Miss Tomasia Duncan, who has been a teacher in the Wesley House in Meridian for a number of years, were married at the Wesley House on June 4, Rev. Geo. H. Thompson and Rev. H. B. Watkins officiating. The Advocate extends congratulations.

According to information reaching us, Dr. C. M. Chapman, our pastor at Waynesboro, Miss., was elected president of the Mississippi Conference Training School, at Montrose, Miss., at the recent meeting of the board of trustees. We understand, however, that Dr. Chapman has declined the honor, since he prefers to continue his work in the pastorate.

Rev. R. B. Craig, our pastor at Fulton, Miss., writes that a successful revival meeting has just come to a close in Fulton. The meeting was conducted by Rev. Ira A. Brumley, of Whitton, Ark. There were fifteen or twenty conversions during the meeting, an Epworth League has been organized, and a Woman's Missionary Society is in prospect. The spiritual life of the whole town was strengthened.

We were in error last week in prefixing the title, "Rev." to the name of the treasurer of the Mississippi Conference Sunday School Board. Mr. D. S. Harmon, formerly of Meridian, but now of Poplarville, is the treasurer. He has two brothers who are preachers—Rev. G. S. Harmon and Rev. N. B. Harmon—and he would make a good one, but he has never been called to that special form of service.

Rev. H. B. Alsup, pastor of Epworth Church, New Orleans, and Miss Stella Wroten, of Bunkie, La., were married at the bride's home on Monday evening, June 9, Rev. Geo. Fox officiating. Only a few friends and relatives were present to witness the happy event. The bride is a young lady of many personal charms, and is well fitted by disposition and training to prove a real helpmeet to a Methodist preacher. She will be cordially welcomed by New Orleans Methodists.

Rev. A. T. McIlwain, of Senatobia, Miss., assisted Rev. R. P. Neblett in a meeting at Como, Miss., last week. Much interest was manifested in the meeting. Stores and offices were closed during the services, that all who desired to do so might attend. The music was unusually good, and a junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Grafton Pearce and Mrs. R. P. Neblett, contributed largely to the success of the meeting. The Como church easily exceeded, without credits, its quota in the Centenary drive.

Chaplain A. F. Vaughan, formerly pastor of Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, is at home on a furlough. He delivered an inspiring message to his former parishioners at Carrollton Avenue on last Sunday, and will preach at Felicity Church next Sunday morning. He wears a wound stripe by reason of having been "gassed" in one of the German offensives. As a token of their appreciation of his services with them, the men of his regiment presented him with a gold watch just before he left Brest. He is under orders to report to Hoboken, N. J., on June 26 for assignment to duty.

The corner-stone of the Methodist Hospital, located at Memphis, Tenn., was laid with elaborate ceremonies on Wednesday, June 12. Bishop W. B. Murrah and Bishop James Atkins delivered the principal addresses. A competent judge who heard them states that they were scholarly, eloquent, and appropriate. Rev. J. T. Leggett, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, Mississippi Conference, made the opening prayer. Representatives of the Mississippi, the North Mississippi, the Memphis, and the North Arkansas Conferences, which are the enterprisers of this great institution, were present. Dr. T. W. Lewis, pastor of the Madison Heights Church, Memphis, presided over the exercises, and T. B. King, the financial secretary of the hospital, read a historical sketch of the events leading up to the erection of the building. The hospital will consist of three units, of which the present building is the first. It will be five stories high, with 225 rooms and 150 beds. The additional units will give a capacity of 450 beds.

AN APPEAL BY THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

To the Clergymen of America: When real service for the upbuilding and betterment of the nation and community is needed we naturally look to the churches of the country for their loyal assistance and co-operation. During the war they held true to their faith and justified the confidence that all those in authority placed in them as being instruments upon which they could rely for the co-operation and assistance in all the activites of the government necessary to the successful prosecution of a just and righteous war.

The peace-time needs of the nation and the community are as great, and should be as inspiring to the churches, as are the war-time needs. Many of the things that we do under the pressure of war are equally necessary and valuable in time of peace, but it sometimes happens that it needs the shock and force of a war to bring these to our attention.

In no case is this more true than in that of saving and thrift. Under the strain and menace of war we were obliged to practice thrift and economy. We did it for the sake of the country without thought of personal gain or personal interest. In this the churches stood solidly behind the Government and rendered untold assistance. While helping the Government meet its war needs we were learning much that we should know and practice during the period of readjustment and peace-time development following the happy conclusion of the war.

The Treasury Department pledges its full aid in making the habits of real thrift, thoughtful and intelligent use of money, and saving for a real and worthy cause a part of the national habits and activities of the American people. With the idea of promoting this habit among the people and affording them an opportunity to invest their savings safely and carefully, and at the same time, by so investing them, to obtain an increased participation in the Government and take a more intelligent interest in our Government and its activities, the Treasury Department is continuing the Savings Campaign and the sale of Savings and Thrift Stamps. We hope that we can rely on the pastors and members of all the churches of this country to support the Government in the activity, which will mean better citizens, better communities, and a better country.

CARTER GLASS,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Miss MARY L. DORR was born on September 13, 1861, and departed this life on April 30, 1919, at the old Dorr home, five miles southwest of Sardis, Miss. She was in her 58th year of life, but had enjoyed good health up to a few months ago. Since that time she had been confined to her bed the greater part of the time. She suffered much at times, but bore up under her sufferings with great patience and fortitude till death released her. Miss Mary united with the M. E. Church, South, at Davis Chapel and remained a faithful and devoted member of same until the Master called her from us. She served her church well. She loved the church with a great devotion, and its every interest was upon her heart when she passed away. Hers was an unselfish life. She tried to live so the world would be better after her departure. The spirit of sacrifice ran through her life. Her faith in God was strong and her hope of Heaven seemed to be unclouded. Those of us who mourn her loss feel no uncertainty with regard to the future. We feel that our loss is her gain. She leaves four brothers, two sisters and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. But we do not "sorrow as those who have no hope;" we shall meet her in the "sweet beyond." Her pastor.

A. F. MOORE.

Sardis, Miss.

Mrs. M. E. COLEMAN, daughter of James and Mary Hanna, was born on February 16, 1842, and passed through the gates of death unto life on April 13, 1919. Having been reared in a Christian home, Auntie united with the Church at an early age and to the day of her death was a loyal Methodist. Her girlhood was spent near Carthage, Miss., in the Goshen neighborhood, where she was much beloved for her kindness to the sick and suffering. And to her there was never a place like Goshen; and it delighted her to talk of the long ago, of the people and things that clustered around the old home. Truly, old people see visions and young people dream dreams.

Her husband preceded her to the great beyond nineteen years, and since his death she had made her home with her sister, Mrs. John Coleman. Though we miss her, we know she has gone to more than she has left behind—father, mother, brothers, sisters; for year by year the ties of earth have been severed until of a large family only three survive her. But in that beautiful home of the soul, where eternal spring abides and where the Creator dwells, we know we shall find her where we, too, shall cross over the river of death, and shall spend a blessed eternity together. Her niece,

MYRA B. COLEMAN.

Carpenter, Miss.

Miss SUSAN ELIZABETH COLE was born at Selma, Ala., on February 21, 1856. On April 30, 1890, she married Mr. Rufus McLaurin, at Atkins, Ark. Two daughters were born of this marriage: Ada Lavanche, who died at two years of age, and Lizzie Kate, who survives. Sister McLaurin's charitable disposition is shown in the fact that she reared five orphan children. One orphaned niece, Minnie Cole, and two nephews, Charlie and Walter Cole, were with her at the time of her death. She had two brothers and one sister, who are now living in Arkansas. For some years she has been living near Bay Springs, Miss., where she held membership in the Methodist Church. For several years she has been an invalid. For months past she has been constantly confined to her room. Through all, she has suffered in patience and resignation, living in constant expectation of being released for the heavenly home. She died at Bay Springs, May 16, and was buried at Montrose on the 17th.

ROLFE HUNT, P. C.

Port Gibson, Miss.

Rev. LINTON L. HARGER was born on January 11, 1896, and was killed in action with the A. E. F. in France on October 12, 1918. At fifteen years of age he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and two years later was licensed to preach. Brother Harger was serving the Purvis Mission charge as pastor when he entered the U. S. Army. The purity and beauty of his daily life were an inspiration to all who knew him. His fidelity to his friends and his integrity as a man were unquestioned. He was untiring in his devotion to his parents and his willingness to do kind and obliging things for all who asked them at his hands. His present capabilities gave evidence of a very useful life to the Church by his ministry. Death has indeed done a cruel work, when by its resistless stroke it struck down such a promising life. Nothing more sublime can be said of him than that he died at his post of duty. He knew the fellowship of Christ as exemplified by his noble Christian life. May the God of peace comfort the loved ones in the loss of this son and brother.

OTTO PORTER, Pastor.

DeSoto, Miss.

Mrs. NANCY JOHNSTON was born on October 27, 1807, and departed this life on April 17, 1919, having lived 102 years, 5 months, and 20 days. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1836, and for 83 years she was a faithful member of the church and a devout Christian. She was married in 1851 to Mr. James Johnston. God blessed this union with 8 children, 7 of whom are still living. Her husband departed this life in 1881. She lived a widow 38 years, making her home with her son, Mr. A. C. Johnston, near Auburn, Miss. She was modest and unassuming in her disposition, yet she often shouted aloud praises to God. Ministers of all denominations were given a cordial welcome in her home. Her life was one of fidelity to God and simple faith in His promises. The silent forces of the Divine Spirit, operating within her heart, crowned her life with loving ministry. Her death was triumphant. She leaves behind to mourn her departure, 7 children, 42 grandchildren, 43 great-grandchildren, and a host of friends. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. B. King, assisted by the writer. Her body was tenderly deposited in the grave by loving friends in the cemetery at Auburn, Miss., to await the resurrection morn. We shall see her again.

R. A. SIBLEY, P. C.

On April 10, 1919, at her home, Raleigh, Miss., Mrs. FANNIE MOZELLE MARTIN peacefully fell asleep. She was born on January 22, 1888, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Roberts, of Trenton, Miss. Early in life she made profession of her faith in Christ, uniting with the Trenton Methodist Church. Influenza, followed by typhoid fever, was the cause of her death. All that medical aid and loving hands could do was done to stay the grim reaper, but in vain. Her mind was bright and clear to the last, and her own sufferings never abated her interest in her loved ones. Her life and faith were a noble example to all who knew her and her loved ones will ever remember her for her many beautiful and kindly deeds of service. The world is richer for her having lived in it. And her memory is precious to a host of friends. A more beautiful character we could not hope to find. She is survived by her husband, J. D. Martin, of Raleigh, and five small children, Mildred, Pauline, Mozelle, J. D. and James; her father, J. J. Roberts, of Trenton, and three sisters, Mrs. George Taylor, of Jackson, Mrs. W. B. Tullas, of Morton, and Miss Johnnie Roberts, of Trenton—these and a host of relatives and friends mourn her death. A strange providence it seems to us, that a life so young and full of promise should be taken away, but by his grace we say, "Not my will, but thine be done." Mrs. F. F. WARE.

SAMUEL AUGUSTUS FORD was born on February 28, 1856, near Waterford, Miss. Reared by Christian parents in a home of wholesome religious influence, his feet in early years turned "unto thy testimonies." When a mere child he joined the Methodist Church, and from that day to the day of his leaving, on Sunday, June 1, 1919, he was consistent in his walk and devotion to that church. Cant and pretension were not in his make-up. He was modest and rather reticent in his service to God, yet there was a quiet and positive strength in the fabric of his inner life or character. Pronounced convictions, clear and sound thinking, compassionate heart, love of his home and devotion to the highest ideals of a religious life, characterized him in his church and community. He was an ardent and thoughtful student of the Bible, and during the full length of his years the Bible was his chief textbook, and his knowledge of its facts was accurate and his interpretation was of a high order. He enjoyed the great hymns of the church, and worship was a means of grace to his soul. From Sunday school, prayer service and all preaching services he was seldom absent and made an inspirational contribution to each service. Here he shall long be missed. Those who knew him intimately loved him and a whole town highly regarded his unimpeachable integrity and purity of life. His sudden and fatal illness was a surprise to himself and friends. I knew he had not been well for some months but I didn't think when he told me of a visit to a specialist and his decision even then "that the chariot was at the door" that in a few days my friend "would soon find his way beyond the shadows into the land where all our sainted spirits stray." An insidious trouble had done its destructive work, but he faced the end as one who had long been on a journey and he hailed his destination. The First Methodist Church of Tupelo misses him to-day, but the youngest to the oldest member on her roll knows where they shall find him.

Freckles
The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.
Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

FRECKLES
Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots
There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.
Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.
Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

What Doctor Pierce Has Done For Humanity!

BY DOCTOR CRIPPS.

It has always seemed to me that Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., shonid be placed near the top when a list of America's great benefactors is written. He studied and conquered human diseases to a degree that few realize. Whenever he found a remedy that overcame disease, he at once announced it in the newspapers and told where it could be bought at a small price. He did not follow the usual cnstom of keeping the ingredients secret, so that the rich only conid afford to buy the medicine, but openly printed the name of each root and herb he nsed. And so to-day the names of Dr. Pierce and his medicines are widely known, and they stand for better health and better citizenship.

One of this great physician's most snccessful remedies is known as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Natnre grows in the gronnd. These Pellets are safe because they move the bowels gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as so many pills do. Very often they make a person who takes them feel like a new man or woman, for they cleanse the intestines of hard, decayed and poisonous matter that accumulates when one is costive. If yon are constipated, by all means go to yonr druggist and get some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They may prove to be the very thing yonr system requires to make you well and happy.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The first of June was spent at Forest. We had a most pleasant visit. Their school is a good one. They have some corners to round out to make it come up to the standard, and I feel that they are going to do it. Several of the teachers signed to take the Teacher-training Course and fourteen books were ordered.

Thursday night was spent at D'Lo. I do not know of a finer Sunday school, in many respects, than this one—seventy members of the church and 140 members of the Sunday school. They are making an effort to get everybody who is out of the Sunday school in it. $150 a year to the Orphans' Home: for a small school this is fine. I hope that Brother Armstrong will put in the Advocate a write-up of the school, as I think it will stimulate a great deal of interest.

Friday, we had an Institute at Harrisville in connection with the quarterly conference. Revs. B. F. Lewis, J. W. Chisolm, J. A. Smith and C. H. Ellis took part in the program, as did Mr. S. G. Armstrong, Mrs. S. S. Brame and Mrs. B. F. Lewis. Rev. J M. Morse, the presiding elder, presided, and the program was, I think, a most helpful one.

A large attendance, in spite of the grass and the good plowing weather, spoke well for the Sunday school interest of the Harrisville charge.

Sunday, the 8th of June, was spent with Rev. J. S. Purcell at Crystal Springs. I enjoyed this visit very much. This school only missed 100 per cent on the new Standard by a few points. I believe that in a short time they will report 100 per cent.

They are planning to erect a new building, and, with the proper building, they will be enabled to do a much better work.

This past week was spent with the Epworth Leaguers at Laurel. They had a mighty fine program and deserve a better attendance on the part of the pastors of the Conference.

I was unable to stay the whole time, as I am off to Alabama to be with Rev. S. U. Turnipseed in a district institute. I wish it had been my privilege to have enjoyed the whole program. Brother Hawkins deserves the thanks and praise of the Conference for his work with the Leaguers.

Just a word about Sunday School Day: Several of the brethren have suggested that their people were worked down, or thought they were, when they completed the drive. Well, this program is a demonstration and does not take the time that other programs do to get up. If it is impossible to have a program, if the charts which accompany the programs are exhibited and brought to the attention of the congregation, it will count, and the collection taken should be sent to Mr. D. S. Harmon, Poplarville, Miss.

The Mississippi Conference Sunday School Board will appreciate the earnest efforts of the brethren to help us. I hope the effort for the Centenary will fill our coffers, too.

Pray for the work and the workers.

Yours in Him,
JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

HARRISVILLE SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

Our genial and efficient presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse, kindly agreed to hold a Sunday school institute in connection with the third quarterly conference of the charge, Friday, June 6. He further arranged a splendid program and secured efficient speakers for the occasion—Rev. B. F. Lewis and wife, and Mrs. Sue Brame, of Jackson, Rev. J. L. Smith, of Mendenhall, Rev. J. W. Chisholm, of Brandon, and Brother Armstrong, the efficient superintendent of the D'Lo school. Rev. John C. Chambers, our active and efficient Conference Sunday School Secretary, put us on his program, and was with us. All brought us splendid and inspiring messages; but our lay speakers. Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Brame, and our efficient superintendent, Brother Armstrong, "went to the top and over." Good for the ladies and our lay brethren, for their time has come!

Mrs. Lewis spoke on "World Outlook;" Mrs. Brame, on "The Hope of the World." Brother Armstrong told us how he runs his school at D'Lo. The writer was to speak on the "Model Superintendent," and made his speech by saying, "You have seen and heard the man I was to tell you about." Brother Lewis told us how to read with interest and profit the Word of God. Brother Chisholm told us of "The Value of Child Life;" Brother Smith, "How to Interest the Children in the Service of Song;" Brother Chambers, "How to Run Schools, and how to Equip for this Great Service." Brother Morse filled in and presided, as he always does, with dignity, efficiency, and kindness. Our people brought an abundant dinner, which was served on the ground. The exercises closed at 4 p. m. with the doxology and benediction.

Are YOU one of the 3,000,000 users of NUXATED IRON?

Master Strength Builder of the Blood

The Power Behind the Strong Sturdy Men, and the Healthy Beautiful Women of Today

"To make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans, there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. It often increases the strength of weak, delicate people in two weeks' time.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron recommended above is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

A REPORT FROM OAK RIDGE, MISS.

Dear Advocate: Well, the report I have for Oak Ridge relative to the Centenary, spiritually and financially, is, "good measure, pressed down, shaken together, and running over." When my allotment was read in my hearing, my words were: "God only knows how I'll ever get it." I didn't have a layman whom I could really expect any help from except Prof. R. E. Selby, principal of our High School, who was already loaded with work, so in the secret grove I pleaded with God to raise up some men to assist me, and I had some men laid on my heart, and when I approached them they accepted the work as directors of their respective churches. I asked a lady at one church, who does most all the other collecting at her church, to act as director, but just before the Big Drive, after special prayer, I asked a man, who had never taken active part in church work, but who was a real man, to act as director and he said he would do his best, and, in checking up his accounts, I cried as we saw he had cleared the top. An evening appointment that paid $75 for pastor and presiding elder last year has been so wonderfully blessed that they have asked that their church be made a half-station next year, and they promise to pay half the salary, which means an increase of at least $400 for this church. This little church almost doubled its Centenary quota, and its director came to this church, where he was a member, living pretty close by, in February, the first time in ten years. Nearly every member of this church joined the "tithing millions." The church, now, is the most spiritual and interesting church on the Oak Ridge charge, and in all my rounds I've seen mighty few that will measure with it spiritually, and it all came about, mainly, because they are fulfilling Mal. 3:10.

This congregation met in a Sunday school picnic on June 5 and gave Mrs. Wells a linen shower that was certainly appreciated and worth while. Some of the members who were unable to get to town to get the gifts gave money, and they were not stingy with it, either. This little picnic was one of the most blessed days of my life—not because of the shower altogether (however, words cannot express our gratitude for the gift, for it was just exactly what we needed), but the spirit of the day. Everybody seemed so cheerful and happy. The ladies brought the gifts and dinner and the men provided the conveyances and brought the coffee and sugar. We sang awhile, and I undertook to preach a little and thank them for the occasion, and as I cried, others cried; so I quit. What a dinner! And what cheer graced the festal board! After dinner the ladies led the way and asked Mrs. Wells to inspect the shower. Here is where I stop. No words can convey to another one the picture of this meeting! God bless all who had a thing to do with it. Happy and busy,

J. A. WELLS.

BUILD YOURSELF UP SO AS TO FEEL BETTER

Eat and sleep better, as well as look better, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is an all-the-year-round medicine, good in all seasons.

It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood, creates an appetite, aids digestion, assists assimilation of the food you eat, and wonderfully builds up the whole system. In many cases it succeeds where other medicines fail to do any good.

If you need a mild effective cathartic, get Hood's Pills.

SAVE YOUR SHOES.

Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, not only stops the pain of corns and bunoins, and gives quick relief to sweating, callons, tired, aching, tender feet, blisters and sore spots, but Allen's Foot-Ease rests the feet, keeps them cool and comfortable all the time, saving the constant wear on shoes caused by nervousness of the feet. Shoes and stockings wear twice as long when you walk in comfort. Try Allen's Foot-Ease to-day.

AFTER THE CENTENARY, WHAT?

At a critcal time like this in the world's history, the Church of God cannot afford to stand still, even upon the zenith of a successful "Centenary Drive." There are greater tasks yet to be accomplished. Let us not rest ourselves in the thought that the task is finished; this is only the beginning of the great plan that God has made for the Church to carry forward. Each succeeding year will find larger things to be done, if we would bring this bleeding and discouraged world to Christ.

There is no place in the Church today for the shirker—each one must answer the personal call.

Every woman must join the missionary forces, for we cannot do the best without her.

Let not another sun go down upon your indifference. Be present at the very next meeting of your society and enroll your name. Be a patriot for your Church as well as for your country. EMMA MONTGOMERY.

A LETTER FROM MISS RANDLE.

Choonchun, Korea, Jan. 23, 1919.
Missionary Societies of the New Orleans District, care of Mrs. I. N. Niebergall, New Orleans, U. S. A.

My Dear Friends:

Christmas eve I addressed this envelope; for a long, long time before that I have been wanting to write to you: but time is just about as scarce as money. Though I do not have time to write to the many people to whom I would like to write, yet the scarcity of time does not keep me from thinking about them. And how often you occupy my thoughts!

After receiving an appointment under the Woman's Missionary Council, I began to wish that some of my people would take my support. Of course, I knew there was plenty of money to support all of the few missionaries we have on the fields; but the support of the other girls in my class was being taken by their own Conferences, and I was wishing that some group in my State would take my support. You cannot know how much joy it afforded me when I was told that you had raised your pledge in order to take my support. I have not lived in New Orleans long, but a sufficient length of time to learn to love you very much for your own sakes as well as for the Lord's sake.

I have not begun to talk much in Korean yet; it took me over twenty years to learn to talk much in my mother tongue, and even yet it is easier for me to keep silent (some of you are acquainted with that fact). But I have been singing in Korean eight or nine weeks; and the first thing these people know, I shall come as near chattering in Korean as I do in English. The study of the language is intensely interesting; my teacher is the best that can be found. There are five of us studying now; Dr. Hill, Mr. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Mingledorf, all working under the General Board; and I, under the Council. Mr. Taylor has to talk; I believe he would get sick if anything kept him from talking for an hour or two. As a consequence, he rattles off the Korean; but the rest of us are quiet as yet. To-day he and Mr. Mingledorf came into my study and he was rattling off something to my teacher.

Before Christmas, the missionaries held classes for the women out in the country throughout the district. The last class was begun two weeks before Christmas. Miss Oliver held that class. It was in a place about fifteen li (five miles) from here. The class was to close Thursday night. Miss Jackson and I promised Miss Oliver that we would go out Thursday and come back with her that night after service. Miss Oliver walked across the river when she went; but while she was gone the weather moderated. Thursday, early in the afternoon, Miss Jackson, Mr. Taylor, one of the Bible women, and I started out. Just before we reached the river, we met a woman coming back to town; she told us we could not cross the river. A short distance further a man was returning, and he told us we could not cross. We went on to the edge of the river. Some were crossing, others were going back to town. Not far from the other side the ice was all broken where a cow had fallen in. But Miss Oliver was out there and expecting us, and we felt that we had to go. Some distance down, at the rapids, there was no ice. While we were debating whether we should walk across or not, we saw an ox-cart come up on the other side and start down to the rapids: so did we. We asked the man what he would charge to take us to Sampod and bring us back. Five yen was his price, an outrageous price; but we had to go. We got on the cart; the man said he wanted the money in advance. We said we would give half in advance and the remainder at the end of the journey. Though he would not agree to that, he decided to take us. In the middle of the river was an island; on it the cart halted, and the man demanded payment in advance. We also dismounted and shook his straw from our garments while refusing to comply. Finally he said he would take our word for it, and again we mounted. To the time of the cartwheels grinding on the rocks and the ox splashing the water, the driver mumbled something about going to Sampod, and then Miss Jackson said, "When we get on the other side we are going to have another understanding." The conclusion of the matter was that we four were walking toward Sampod; the ox, the cart, and the man (with one of our yens in his pocket) were again crossing the river. That night after service there were eight of us on our way to Choonchun. The walk to the river was delightful; though it was cloudy, it was not dark. We came to the river. The Korean preacher who was with us asked the ferryman about crossing the river. He answered: "You cannot do it; ten men and several cows have fallen in late this afternoon." The ferries were securely frozen in the ice. The ferryman's house was about eight by twelve feet, and I do not know how many were in his family; there were eight of us. We could not stand on the bank of the river all the night; it was too cold. There was one thing to do. We walked down to the river; some sat down on the sand, others hopped about on one foot while they took the shoe and hose off of the other. Then we raised our garment above our knees and stepped into the ice-cold water. It was delightful as long as the sand lasted, but that was not long; and then—oh, my, those were the sharpest rocks you ever saw or heard of! After we crossed the island, there was ice to walk on for a short distance; but it, like the sand, was of short duration, and again those sharp rocks! All of us did get to the Choonshun side without failing down in the river. While we sat down on the rocks to put on our shoes and hose, I sang "Jesus loves me" in Korean. If there were a phonographic record of our exclamations while wading the river, I think it would excel Uncle Josh. All of us reached our homes in safety; none the worse, save for many stone bruises.

With much love from your own missionary,

PAULINE GLASS RANDLE.
